

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

I. NECESSITY OF INDICTMENT OR PRESENTMENT.

Due process of law, see Constitutional Law, 265.

2. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 4-8.

The 5th amendment to the United States constitution applies only to the federal government, and not to that of the states.—Eilenbecker v. Plymouth County District Court, 134 U. S. 31, 10 S. Ct. 424, 33 L. Ed. 801.

The powers of local government exercised by the Cherokee Nation are local powers, not created by the constitution, and hence are not operated upon by amendment 5 thereof, requiring a presentment by a grand jury in the case of a capital or other infamous crime.—Tilton v. Mayes, 163 U. S. 376, 16 S. Ct. 986, 41 L. Ed. 196.

The admission into the Union of the state of Nebraska "upon an equal footing with the original states in all respects whatsoever," by the act of Congress of February 9, 1867, though made subject to the condition that the people adopt the Constitution of the United States, did not make the fifth amendment of that Constitution, requiring an indictment of a grand jury for a felony case, applicable to procedure in the courts of that state. Judgment 71 N. W. 444, 51 Neb. 581, affirmed.—Bolln v. State of Nebraska, 20 S. Ct. 287, 176 U. S. 83, 44 L. Ed. 382.

3. Offenses which must be prosecuted by indictment.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 9-23; 19 Cent. Dig. Escape, § 10.

A crime punishable by imprisonment for a term of years at hard labor is an infamous crime, within the provision of the fifth amendment of the constitution of the United States, that "no person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury."—Ex parte Wilson, 114 U. S. 417, 5 S. Ct. 935, 29 L. Ed. 89.

Passing counterfeit money in violation of Rev. St. U. S. § 5457, being punishable by fine or by imprisonment at hard labor for a term of years, or both, is an infamous crime, to be prosecuted solely through indictment, pursuant to article 5 of the amendments to the constitution of the United States.—Ex parte Wilson, 114 U. S. 417, 5 S. Ct. 935, 29 L. Ed. 89; United States v. Petit, 114 U. S. 429, 5 S. Ct. 1190, 29 L. Ed. 93.

Conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States, punishable under Rev. St. § 5440, by fine and imprisonment of not more than two years, is an infamous crime, within the fifth amendment, providing that no person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury.—Mackin v. United States, 117 U. S. 348, 6 S. Ct. 777, 29 L. Ed. 909.

Imprisonment in a state prison or penitentiary, with or without hard labor, is an infamous punishment, and the crime of embezzlement and making false entries by a president of a national bank in violation of Rev. St. § 5209, being punishable by such imprisonment, is an infamous offense, within the meaning of the fifth amendment to the constitution, for which the accused can be held only on presentment or indictment by grand jury.—United States v. De Walt, 128 U. S. 393, 9 S. Ct. 111, 32 L. Ed. 485.

A crime which is made punishable by imprisonment in the state prison or penitentiary is an infamous crime, though the accused is not to be sentenced to hard labor.—In re Claasen, 140 U. S. 200, 11 S. Ct. 735, 35 L. Ed. 409.

Criminal prosecution for an infamous crime against the United States cannot be commenced in the District Court of the United States for the District of Porto Rico except on presentment or indictment of a grand jury, in view of the provision of Act of April 12, 1900, c. 191, § 34 (31 Stat. 85), that such court shall proceed in the same manner as a federal Circuit Court.—Crowley v. United States, 24 S. Ct. 731, 194 U. S. 461, 48 L. Ed. 1075.

The requirement of the fifth amendment to the federal Constitution that infamous crimes must be presented by indictment has no application to the Philippine Islands.—Dowdell v. United States, 31 S. Ct. 590, 221 U. S. 325, 55 L. Ed. 753.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 3, 24-27.

The provision of Rev. St. § 1022, authorizing certain offenses to be prosecuted either by indictment or by information, does not preclude the prosecution by information of such other offenses as may be so prosecuted consistently with the constitution and laws of the United States.—Ex parte Wilson, 114 U. S. 417, 5 S. Ct. 935, 29 L. Ed. 89.

II. FINDING AND FILING OF INDICTMENT OR PRESENTMENT.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 23-33.

Under Act July 12, 1894, requiring the prosecution of offenses "arising in the district of Minnesota" to be had in the division of the district "in which such offenses were committed," an indictment, in a case where there was no formal complaint before a magistrate, for an offense committed in one division and returned to the court held in another after the date of the act, was void, though the bill of indictment and evidence in support of it were submitted to the grand jury before that date.—Post v. United States, 161 U. S. 583, 16 S. Ct. 611, 40 L. Ed. 816.

§11. Return and filing or record.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 62-75.

Presentment of an indictment by the grand jury in a body is not required by Const. U. S. Amend. 5, and a failure to so present it does not go to the jurisdiction of the court.—Breece v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 1, 226 U. S. 1, 57 L. Ed. 97.

III. FORMAL REQUISITES OF INDICTMENT.

§27. Commencement.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 117-120.

§30. — Presentment or accusation.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. § 120.

An objection that an indictment recited that it was presented "upon the oath" of the grand jurors, when in fact it was presented upon the oath of all but one, who affirmed instead of making oath, is a merely formal defect, without prejudice, which is cured by the provisions of Rev. St. § 1025.—Bram v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 183, 168 U. S. 532, 42 L. Ed. 568.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 122-131; 4 Cent. Dig. Assault, § 106.

Omission of the conclusions to a count that the offense charged was "contrary to the form of the statutes in such case made and provided, and against the peace and dignity of the United States," is a matter of form, which does not tend to the prejudice of the defendant, and is therefore, by the provisions of Rev. St. § 1025, to be disregarded.—Frisbie v. United States, 157 U. S. 160, 15 S. Ct. 586, 39 L. Ed. 657.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 138-143.

It is advisable, at least, that an indictment found be indorsed "A true bill," and signed by the foreman of the grand jury.—Frisbie v. United States, 157 U. S. 160, 15 S. Ct. 586, 39 L. Ed. 657.

IV. FILING AND FORMAL REQUISITES OF INFORMATION OR COMPLAINT.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 144-173.

Self-executing constitutional provision, see Constitutional Law, §29.

V. REQUISITES AND SUFFICIENCY OF ACCUSATION.

Allegation of intent in indictment for conspiracy, see Conspiracy, §43.

Description of accused in complaint charging falsification of public documents, see Records, §22.

Mailing obscene matter, see Post Office, §48.

Review on habeas corpus, see Habeas Corpus, §30.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 175, 176.

The requirement of the Philippine Bill of Rights, that the accused be advised of the nature and cause of the accusation against him, is satisfied where such complaint, however open it may be to criticism on demurrer, supposing the strict rule of the old common law to be applied, leaves no doubt in the mind of a person of rudimentary intelligence that it means to charge the accused with the falsification of documents, contrary to the Philippine Penal Code.—Paraiso v. United States, 23 S. Ct. 127, 207 U. S. 368, 52 L. Ed. 249.

Act Aug. 23, 1912, amendatory of Food and Drugs Act, § 8, providing that a false statement as to the curative properties of drugs shall constitute a misbranding, is not so uncertain that a definite charge cannot be made in a prosecution as required by Const. Amend. 6.—Seven Cases v. United States, 36 S. Ct. 190, 239 U. S. 510, 60 L. Ed. 411.

57. Statutory provisions as to statement of offense.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 177-179.

Rev. St. § 1025, providing that no indictment in a federal court shall be deemed insufficient, nor the proceedings thereon be affected, by any defect in matter of form only, which shall not tend to the prejudice of defendant, does not dispense with the requirement of section 5396 that an indictment for perjury shall set forth the substance of the offense charged.—Markham v. United States, 160 U. S. 319, 16 S. Ct. 288, 40 L. Ed. 441.

71. Certainty and particularity.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 144, 174, 193, 194; 18 Cent. Dig. Embez. § 38.

Where deceased was first shot, and afterwards thrown into the sea, by defendant, an indictment which charges both acts in the same count, and that death resulted from both shooting and drowning, is not objectionable on the ground of uncertainty.—Andersen v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 689, 170 U. S. 481, 42 L. Ed. 1116.

The accused is not entitled to demand that all special or particular means employed in the commission of the offense should be more fully set out in the indictment, where the words of such indictment directly, and without ambiguity, disclose all the elements essential to the commission of the offense charged.—Burton v. United States, 26 S. Ct. 688, 202 U. S. 344, 50 L. Ed. 1057, 6 Ann. Cas. 362.

82. Codefendants.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. § 225.

An indictment charging several defendants, jointly, with murder by striking, beating, and drowning, need not show which one or more of them committed the alleged assault.—St. Clair v. United States, 154 U. S. 134, 14 S. Ct. 1002, 38 L. Ed. 936.

86. Place of offense.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 230-243; 4 Cent. Dig. Assault, §§ 103, 112; 8 Cent. Dig. Burg. § 33; 24 Cent. Dig. Gaming, § 221; 32 Cent. Dig. Larc. § 100.

An indictment in the circuit court for the Eastern district of Texas for a murder committed in the Indian Territory sufficiently negatives the exception to the jurisdiction of the court contained in Rev. St. § 2146, when it charges that defendants were not Indians, nor citizens of the Indian Territory.—Westmoreland v. United States, 155 U. S. 545, 15 S. Ct. 243, 39 L. Ed. 255; Wheeler v. Same, 159 U. S. 523, 16 S. Ct. 93, 40 L. Ed. 244.

An allegation in an indictment for murder that the crime was committed "within the Fort Worden Military Reservation, a place under the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States," charges with sufficient clearness that such reservation was under the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States at the time of the murder.—(1910) Holt v. United States, 31 S. Ct. 2, 218 U. S. 245, 54 L. Ed. 1021, 20 Ann. Cas. 1133, affirming judgment United States v. Holt (C. C. 1909) 168 F. 141.

The exact place of the formation of a conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, denounced by Rev. St. § 5480 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3696), need not be stated in the indictment which lays the venue in the place where an overt act was committed.—Brown v. Elliott, 32 S. Ct. 812, 225 U. S. 392, 56 L. Ed. 1136.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 256-258.

Where intent is of the essence of an offense as defined in the statute, it must be averred in an indictment for such offense. Order (D. C.)

United States v. Green, 136 F. 618, affirmed.—Green v. MacDougall, 26 S. Ct. 748, 199 U. S. 601, 50 L. Ed. 328.

91. Felonious or otherwise unlawful nature of act.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 261-265; 8 Cent. Dig. Burg. § 35; 18 Cent. Dig. Embez. § 140; 23 Cent. Dig. Forg. § 61; 32 Cent. Dig. Larc. § 60; 39 Cent. Dig. Perj. § 68; 46 Cent. Dig. Tresp. § 176.

Where an offense is created by a statute which does not use the word "feloniously," an indictment therefor need not aver felonious intent.—Bannon v. United States, 156 U. S. 464, 15 S. Ct. 467, 39 L. Ed. 494.

An indictment under Rev. St. § 5440, as amended by Act May 17, 1879 (21 Stat. 4), for a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States, need not allege that defendants "feloniously" conspired, as felonious intent is not a part of the description of the offense in the statute, and the infamous character of the punishment affixed does not of itself render the offense a felony.—Id.

An indictment for murder which charges that the acts constituting the assault were made feloniously and with malice aforethought need not contain such allegations in the preliminary averment of assault.—(1910) Holt v. United States, 31 S. Ct. 2, 218 U. S. 245, 54 L. Ed. 1021, 20 Ann. Cas. 1138, affirming judgment United States v. Holt (C. C. 1909) 168 F. 141.

97. Separate counts.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 269-271.

99. — Reference from one count to another.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 270, 270½.

A reference in the first count to an election held for representative in congress may be drawn through the second count into the third by the words "at the said election," so as to make the third count sufficient, although the first count is insufficient in another particular.—Blitz v. United States, 153 U. S. 308, 14 S. Ct. 924, 38 L. Ed. 725.

One count may, to avoid repetition, refer to matter in a previous count; and, if the reference is sufficient to incorporate such matter into the count, the count will not be vitiated, even where the previous count is held defective, or is rejected.—Blitz v. United States, 153 U. S. 308, 14 S. Ct. 924, 38 L. Ed. 725; Crain v. Same, 162 U. S. 625, 16 S. Ct. 952, 40 L. Ed. 1097.

107. Statutory offenses.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 284-299; 2 Cent. Dig. Anim. § 95; 6 Cent. Dig. Big. §§ 22, 23; 8 Cent. Dig. Breach of P. § 5; 8 Cent. Dig. Brib. § 5; 8 Cent. Dig. Burg. § 31; 10 Cent. Dig. Consp. §§ 95, 97; 17 Cent. Dig. Disorderly C. § 13; 17 Cent. Dig. Distur. of Pub. A. §§ 8-10; 23 Cent. Dig. Forg. §§ 61, 64; 23 Cent. Dig. Forn. § 3; 24 Cent. Dig. Gaming, §§ 226, 250; 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. § 1032; 32 Cent. Dig. Larc. § 58; 33 Cent. Dig. Lotteries, § 30; 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. § 20; 42 Cent. Dig. Rec. S. Goods, § 10; 46 Cent. Dig. Tresp. § 176.

108. — Reference to or recital of statute.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 284, 285.

An indorsement, on the margin of an indictment, of a citation of a statute, is not a part of the indictment itself, and does not make it an indictment under that statute alone; but the indictment will be good if it states an offense embraced in any statute then in force.—Williams v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 92, 168 U. S. 382, 42 L. Ed. 509.

110. — Language of statute.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 289-294; 2 Cent. Dig. Anim. § 95; 4 Cent. Dig. Assault, §§ 106, 108; 6 Cent. Dig. Big. § 22; 8 Cent. Dig. Breach of P. § 5; 8 Cent. Dig. Brib. § 5; 8 Cent. Dig. Burg. § 31;

10 Cent. Dig. Consp. §§ 95, 97; 17 Cent. Dig. Disorderly C. § 13; 17 Cent. Dig. Distur. of Pub. A. §§ 8-10; 23 Cent. Dig. Forg. §§ 61, 64; 23 Cent. Dig. Forn. § 3; 24 Cent. Dig. Gaming, §§ 226, 250; 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. § 1032; 32 Cent. Dig. Larc. § 68; 33 Cent. Dig. Lotteries, § 30; 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. § 20; 37 Cent. Dig. Neut. Laws, § 15; 42 Cent. Dig. Rec. S. Goods, § 10; 46 Cent. Dig. Tresp. § 176.

An indictment under Rev. St. § 3296, for aiding in the concealment of distilled spirits on which the tax had not been paid, and which had been removed to a place other than the distillery warehouse provided by law, is sufficiently certain where it charges the offense substantially in the language of the statute, and need not aver that there was a warehouse provided by law where such spirits should have been stored.—Pounds v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 729, 171 U. S. 35, 43 L. Ed. 62.

An indictment, under Act Feb. 8, 1875 (18 Stat. 307) § 16, is sufficient which charges, in the language of the statute, that defendant, at a time and place stated, did willfully, unlawfully, and feloniously "carry on the business of a retail liquor dealer, without having paid the special tax therefor as required by law," without more particularly defining the offense.—Ledbetter v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 774, 170 U. S. 606, 42 L. Ed. 1162.

117. Construction in general.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. § 310.

Where common-law words or phrases are used in an indictment or information, they must be given their common-law meaning. Order (D. C.) United States v. Green, 136 F. 618, affirmed.—Green v. MacDougall, 26 S. Ct. 748, 199 U. S. 601, 50 L. Ed. 328.

Any doubt as to whether the allegations of an indictment charging a conspiracy to suborn the commission of perjury in proceedings to purchase public land under the timber and stone act embrace a conspiracy to suborn perjury in respect to the making of final proofs, as well as in making the original applications, must be resolved in favor of the accused.—Williamson v. United States, 28 S. Ct. 163, 207 U. S. 425, 52 L. Ed. 278.

121. Bill of particulars.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 316-320; 10 Cent. Dig. Consp. § 83; 14 Cent. Dig. Crim. Law, § 1378; 24 Cent. Dig. Gaming, § 229; 32 Cent. Dig. Libel, § 425.

If it appears at the trial to be essential in the preparation of the defense to an indictment for receiving stolen property that defendant should know the name of the person from whom the government expects to prove that the property was received, the court may require the prosecution to give a bill of particulars.—Kirby v. United States, 19 S. Ct. 574, 174 U. S. 47, 43 L. Ed. 890.

VI. JOINDER OF PARTIES, OFFENSES, AND COUNTS, DUPLICITY, AND ELECTION.

Verdict on indictment containing several counts, see Criminal Law, 878.

124. Joinder of parties.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 327-333; 4 Cent. Dig. Assault, § 113; 10 Cent. Dig. Consp. § 80; 18 Cent. Dig. Elections, § 356; 24 Cent. Dig. Gaming, § 231.

Both the corporation and its agents may be joined in an indictment for violating the provisions of Elkins Act Feb. 19, 1903, c. 708, 32 Stat. 847 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1907, p. 880), against rebates, under which the commission by corporate officers or agents, acting within the scope of their employment, of criminal violations of the provisions of that act, is imputed to the corporation, and the corporation subjected to criminal prosecution therefor. Judgment (C. C. 1906) United States v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 146 F. 298, affirmed.—New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co. v. United States, 29 S. Ct. 304, 212 U. S. 481, 53 L. Ed. 613.

125. Duplicity.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 334-400; 1 Cent. Dig. Adulteration, § 26; 1 Cent. Dig. Adultery, § 17; 2 Cent. Dig. Anim. § 111; 4 Cent. Dig. Arson, § 33; 4 Cent. Dig. Assault, § 114; 10 Cent. Dig. Consp. § 81; 18 Cent. Dig. Elections, § 356; 24 Cent. Dig. Gaming, §§ 224, 232; 25 Cent. Dig. High, § 449; 32 Cent. Dig. Libel, § 418; 37 Cent. Dig. Nuis. § 206; 42 Cent. Dig. R. R. § 784.

A count based on Rev. St. § 5421, is not bad for duplicity because it charges that defendant did "make, counterfeit, forge, and cause to be made, counterfeited, and forged, a certain false affidavit," etc., for the purpose of defrauding the United States by obtaining pension money, etc.—Crain v. United States, 162 U. S. 625, 16 S. Ct. 952, 40 L. Ed. 1097.

The inclusion of more than one offense in the same count of the indictment is not ground for disturbing the verdict if the jury were expressly told that there could be a conviction of only one of such offenses.—Wiborg v. United States, 163 U. S. 632, 16 S. Ct. 1127, 1197, 41 L. Ed. 289, affirming judgment United States v. Wiborg, 73 F. 159.

Where deceased was first shot, and afterwards thrown into the sea, by defendant, an indictment which charges both acts in the same count, and that death resulted from both shooting and drowning, is not objectionable on the ground of duplicity.—Andersen v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 689, 170 U. S. 481, 42 L. Ed. 1116.

126. Joinder of counts.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 401-424; 4 Cent. Dig. Arson, § 33; 18 Cent. Dig. Embez. § 39; 24 Cent. Dig. Gaming, § 233.

127. — In general.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 401, 402; 4 Cent. Dig. Arson, § 33.

Crimes against the United States committed in Alaska, and not included in offenses contained in the Alaskan Penal Code, such as violations of Rev. St. § 5209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3497) relating to national banks, are governed by Code Cr. Proc. Alaska, § 43, relating to indictments rather than by Rev. St. § 1024 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 720), permitting joinder in one indictment of separate charges arising out of the same transaction or offense.—Summers v. United States, 34 S. Ct. 38, 231 U. S. 92, 58 L. Ed. 137, reversing judgment 202 F. 457, 120 C. C. A. 563, rehearing denied 204 F. 976, 123 C. C. A. 298.

A retrospective operation which would validate indictments found before its enactment, will not be given to Alaska Act of April 26, 1913, amending Code Cr. Proc. Alaska, § 43, so as to permit joinder of two or more crimes of the same class in one indictment in separate counts.—Id.

129. — Different offenses in same transaction.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 414-418; 4 Cent. Dig. Arson, § 33; 18 Cent. Dig. Elections, § 356.

Under Rev. St. § 1024, it is proper to join in one indictment a count for willfully and unlawfully presenting a fraudulent claim against the United States, and a second count for willfully and unlawfully using a false affidavit in the presentation of the fraudulent claim against the United States.—Ingraham v. United States, 155 U. S. 434, 15 S. Ct. 148, 39 L. Ed. 213.

132. Election.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 425-447, 449-453; 4 Cent. Dig. Assault, § 114; 6 Cent. Dig. Big. § 32; 18 Cent. Dig. Elections, § 356; 22 Cent. Dig. Forg. § 122; 24 Cent. Dig. Gaming, § 234.

The joinder, in separate counts of the same indictment, of different felonies of the same grade and class, and subject to the same punishment, does not of itself compel the court to require an election between them, but the matter rests in the court's discretion, provided the accused be not actually embarrassed in his defense by a multiplicity of charges to be tried by one jury.—Pointer v. United States, 151 U. S. 396, 14 S. Ct. 410, 38 L. Ed. 208.

There is no error in refusing to compel an election between two murders charged in separate counts of the same indictment, when it appears that they were so closely connected in respect of time, place, and occasion that it is difficult, if not impossible, to separate the proof of one from the proof of the other.—Id.

Where one count charges the murder to have been committed with a gun, and another charges it to have been committed "with a certain blunt instrument," and there is evidence that deceased was shot in the forehead, and also hit on the head with a hammer, the question whether the prosecution shall be compelled to elect between the counts is a matter purely within the court's discretion.—Pierce v. United States, 160 U. S. 355, 16 S. Ct. 321, 40 L. Ed. 454.

VII. MOTION TO QUASH OR DISMISS, AND DEMURRER.

Review of decisions, see—
Courts, 385(1½).
Criminal Law, 1149.

133. Mode of making objections in general.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 464-468; 24 Cent. Dig. Gaming, § 220.

A motion to quash an indictment against a negro because it was found by a grand jury from which all persons of the African race had been excluded because of their race or color, when made before arraignment, and when there had been no opportunity to challenge the array because the grand jury had been impaneled before the offense was committed, was a proper and timely mode of presenting the fundamental objection to such indictment, under the Constitution and laws of the United States, because of such exclusion, although the state statute does not provide for quashing an indictment on such ground. Judgment 46 S. W. 236, 39 Tex. Cr. App. 345, 48 S. W. 508, reversed.—Carter v. State of Texas, 20 S. Ct. 687, 177 U. S. 442, 44 L. Ed. 839.

135. Motion to quash or set aside.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 470-487.

136. — Nature of remedy.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 470, 471.

A motion to quash an indictment is ordinarily addressed to the discretion of the court.—Durland v. United States, 161 U. S. 306, 16 S. Ct. 508, 40 L. Ed. 709.

137. — Grounds.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 480-487.

An indictment need not be quashed because the grand jury considered testimony of admissions by the prisoner which were obtained under circumstances that made them incompetent.—(1910) Holt v. United States, 31 S. Ct. 2, 218 U. S. 245, 54 L. Ed. 1021, 20 Ann. Cas. 1138, affirming judgment United States v. Holt (C. C. 1909) 168 F. 141.

138. — Form and requisites in general.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. § 472.

The denial of a motion to quash an indictment, and the overruling of challenges to the array of jurors, which raise the objection that negroes were discriminated against in the selection of grand and petit jurors, is not error, where no evidence is received or offered in support of such charge except defendants' affidavit attached to the motion to quash, stating that the facts set up in such motion, are true "to their best knowledge, information, and belief." Judgment 30 So. 685, 43 Fla. 446, affirmed.—Tarrance v. State of Florida, 23 S. Ct. 402, 188 U. S. 519, 47 L. Ed. 572.

140. — Hearing and determination.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 474, 475, 478.

A motion to quash an indictment for irregularity in the selection of grand jurors, as for alleged discrimination against colored persons, is properly overruled where no evidence of the facts alleged is offered, except the statements made in the motion itself, verified by defendant "to the best of his knowledge and belief."—Smith v. State of Mississippi, 162 U. S. 592, 16 S. Ct. 900, 40 L. Ed. 1082.

VIII. AMENDMENT.

157. Defects cured by statute.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. § 504.

The fifth amendment to the United States constitution, providing that "no person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury," forbids the making of a change or amendment in the body of an indictment, after it has been filed, by order of court or by the prosecuting attorney, without resubmitting the indictment to the grand jury, although the change is only in striking out surplus words.—Ex parte Bain, 121 U. S. 1, 7 S. Ct. 781, 30 L. Ed. 849.

Objections that an indictment failed to show the organization of the court, or who were present as constituent parts thereof, when the indictment was returned; that there was no express recital that it was found by the concurrence of 12 jurors; and that it was signed by the assistant district attorney instead of by the attorney himself,—are immaterial, under Rev. St. § 1025, when the record shows that, at a term of the district court, the grand jurors of the United States in and for said district came into open court, and, through their foreman, presented the bill of indictment, indorsed "A true bill," with the signature of the foreman immediately thereunder.—Caba v. United States, 152 U. S. 211, 14 S. Ct. 513, 38 L. Ed. 415.

166. — In general.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 527-530, 532, 533.

Where an indictment under Rev. St. § 5200, against a president of a national bank and others, for misapplying the funds of the bank, avers that such funds were misapplied with intent to convert the same to the use of a certain company, "and to other persons to the grand jury unknown," the government need not prove want of knowledge in the grand jury as to such persons; and, in the absence of evidence on the subject, the verity of the averment will be presumed.—Coffin v. United States, 156 U. S. 432, 15 S. Ct. 394, 39 L. Ed. 481.

⇨170. Variance between allegations and proof.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 536-574.

⇨180. — Designation of persons other than accused.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 551-556.

In an indictment for embezzling the funds of a national bank whose real name is "National Granite State Bank of Exeter," the omission of the words "of Exeter" is not a fatal variance; it being further alleged that the bank carried on business at Exeter, which was the fact.—Putnam v. United States, 162 U. S. 687, 16 S. Ct. 923, 40 L. Ed. 1118.

A double variance between the name by which the woman transported contrary to White Slave Act June 25, 1910, was called in the indictment, and the name known to defendant, and her real name, held not fatal.—Bennett v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 288, 227 U. S. 333, 57 L. Ed. 531, affirming judgment 194 F. 630, 114 C. C. A. 402.

X. CONVICTION OF OFFENSE INCLUDED IN CHARGE.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 575-625.

Conviction of different offense included in same act as bar to subsequent prosecution, see Criminal Law, ⇨200.

XI. WAIVER OF DEFECTS AND OBJECTIONS, AND AIDER BY VERDICT.

⇨193. Defects and objections which may be cured or waived.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. § 626.

Omission of any averment in indictment charging a conspiracy to introduce liquors into the Indian territory, that the conspiracy was to introduce such liquors from without the state, is not a defect in form to be ignored under Rev. St. § 1025.—Joplin Mercantile Co. v. United States, 35 S. Ct. 291, 236 U. S. 531, 59 L. Ed. 705, affirming judgment 213 F. 926, 131 C. C. A. 160.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. § 637.

Delivery of an indictment to the court by the foreman of the grand jury in the absence of the grand jurors is a matter of form only, within Rev. St. § 1025 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 720).—Breese v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 1, 228 U. S. 1, 57 L. Ed. 97.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 628-638; 6 Cent. Dig. Blg. § 33.

⇨196. — Objections to indictment or information.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 628-635; 6 Cent. Dig. Blg. § 33; 8 Cent. Dig. Burg. § 39.

Though Act Cong. March 22, 1882, c. 47 (22 Stat. 31) § 3, makes the offense of polygamy punishable when committed by a male person, a defendant who pleads to an indictment containing no allegation that the defendant was a male person, instead of demurring thereto, it will be held, under Cr. Proc. Act Utah (Laws 1878, p. 91) § 200, requiring objections appearing on the face of the indictment to be taken by demurrer, to have understood that, as the offense could only be committed by a male person, the charge was against a male person, and not to have been prejudiced in respect to any substantial right.—Cannon v. United States, 116 U. S. 55, 6 S. Ct. 278, 29 L. Ed. 561, affirming 4 Utah, 122, 7 Pac. 369.

An objection to an indictment that it has not the indorsement "A true bill," signed by the foreman of the grand jury, is waived unless made when defendant is called on to plead, as the defect does not go to the substance of the charge, but only to the form.—Frisbie v. United States, 157 U. S. 160, 15 S. Ct. 586, 39 L. Ed. 657.

Mere formal objections to the indictment, not affecting substantial rights of the accused, are too late when not specifically pointed out in the demurrer, or otherwise taken advantage of upon the trial.—Holmgren v. United States, 30 S. Ct. 588, 217 U. S. 509, 54 L. Ed. 861, 19 Ann. Cas. 778, affirming judgment (1907) 156 F. 439, 84 C. C. A. 301.

Any right to have an indictment quashed on motion because the foreman of the grand jury delivered it to the court in the absence of the other grand jurors was waived on failure to raise the question until after the term and denial of a motion to quash on other grounds.—Breese v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 1, 226 U. S. 1, 57 L. Ed. 97.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 640-650; 4 Cent. Dig. Assault, § 125; 6 Cent. Dig. Blg. § 33; 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Ldg. § 236.

An objection that an indictment charges more than one offense in the same count cannot be raised for the first time after verdict, by motion in arrest.—Connors v. United States, 158 U. S. 408, 15 S. Ct. 951, 39 L. Ed. 1033.

The objection that the indictment includes various offenses cannot be taken after verdict.—Durland v. United States, 161 U. S. 306, 16 S. Ct. 508, 40 L. Ed. 709.

An indictment for violating the national banking laws averred that the bank in question had been "heretofore" created and organized under the laws of the United States. Held, that even if it were assumed that the word should have been "theretofore," in order to make it certain that the bank had been incorporated prior to the finding of the indictment, the result was only an imperfect statement of what the law implies to be true after verdict.—Coffin v. United States, 162 U. S. 664, 16 S. Ct. 943, 40 L. Ed. 1109.

A charge that defendant "knowingly deposited" in the mails a printed book, etc., "the character of which is so obscene, lewd, and lascivious" that it would be offensive to set it forth in the indictment, sufficiently charges, after verdict, both that the book is in fact obscene, etc., and that defendant knew it to be so.—Price v. United States, 17 S. Ct. 366, 165 U. S. 311, 41 L. Ed. 727.

An allegation that an offense was committed on the "_____ day" of the month in which the indictment was found does not render it fatally defective after verdict.—Ledbetter v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 774, 170 U. S. 606, 42 L. Ed. 1162.

An indictment will not be held bad on motion in arrest of judgment because the only venue stated is to aver the county in which the offense was committed, and that it was within the jurisdiction of the court.—Id.

203. — Verdict on good and bad counts.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. §§ 651-656.

Where the information contains several counts, and there is a general verdict for the informants, and no motion is made to have the government elect on which of the counts it claims a verdict, and on appeal it appears that the bill of exceptions does not contain all the evidence, it is sufficient if any one of the counts is good.—Friedenstein v. United States, 125 U. S. 224, 8 S. Ct. 838, 31 L. Ed. 736.

A general verdict and judgment on an indictment containing several counts cannot be reversed on error if any one of the counts is sufficient to sustain the judgment, since, in the absence of anything in the record to show the contrary, it will be presumed that the sentence was based on the good count alone.—Claassen v. United States, 142 U. S. 140, 12 S. Ct. 169, 35 L. Ed. 966.

Where one good count of an indictment is sufficient to sustain the judgment, it is immaterial whether the others alleged a scienter.—Dunbar v. United States, 156 U. S. 185, 15 S. Ct. 325, 39 L. Ed. 390, affirming judgment (D. C.) United States v. Dunbar, 60 F. 75.

One good count in an indictment containing several counts will support a general conviction.—Powers v. United States, 32 S. Ct. 281, 223 U. S. 303, 56 L. Ed. 448.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 85-89.

A decree of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia for the sale of an infant's real property for purposes of reinvestment, made with jurisdiction over the res and of the parties, is not open to collateral attack, even though the court erred in holding that a case had been made, either under its inherent power as a court of equity, or its statutory authority.—(1910) United States, to Use of Hine v. Morse, 31 S. Ct. 37, 218 U. S. 493, 54 L. Ed. 1123, 21 Ann. Cas. 782, reversing judgment (1908) 81 App. D. C. 433.

IV. CONTRACTS.58. Avoidance.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 149-160.

It is not a condition of the disaffirmance by an infant of a contract made during infancy that he shall return the consideration received by him, if, prior to such disaffirmance and during infancy, the specific thing received has been disposed of, wasted, or consumed, and cannot be returned.—MacGreal v. Taylor, 17 S. Ct. 961, 167 U. S. 688, 42 L. Ed. 326.

VII. ACTIONS.

Process in equity, see Equity, 119.

73. Jurisdiction and powers of courts.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 186, 187.

The interest of a minor devisee in land situated in another state cannot be determined in a suit to construe the will, in which a guardian ad litem is appointed for the infant, as neither the executor nor trustee under the will, nor the guardian ad litem, nor any other person assuming to represent the minor in that state, has authority to act for the minor in respect to real estate beyond the jurisdiction of the court and situated in another state. Judgment, Appeal of Clarke, 40 A. 111, 70 Conn. 483, affirmed.—Clarke v. Clarke, 20 S. Ct. 873, 178 U. S. 186, 44 L. Ed. 1028.

74. Parties.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 183-190.

A bill to enforce the rights of infants should be filed in their names by their guardian ad item or next friend.—Morgan v. Potter, 157 U. S. 195, 15 S. Ct. 590, 39 L. Ed. 670.

One who has adopted, after coming of age, a settlement, made during her minority, of claims belonging to her and others, is a proper party complainant to a suit to enforce such settlement.—Glover v. Patten, 17 S. Ct. 411, 165 U. S. 394, 41 L. Ed. 760.

§76. Guardian ad litem or next friend.
See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 192-248, 250-252.

§80. — Proceedings for appointment.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 210-221.

One who was present when a guardian ad litem for him was appointed must be regarded as having adopted as his own the answer filed for him, if he was really an adult.—Manson v. Duncanson, 17 S. Ct. 647, 166 U. S. 533, 41 L. Ed. 1105.

§84. — Rights and powers.

A next friend may select the tribunal in which a suit brought on behalf of an infant shall be prosecuted.—In re Moore, 28 S. Ct. 585, 706, 209 U. S. 490, 52 L. Ed. 904, 14 Ann. Cas. 1164.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 246, 247.

The fact that the guardian ad litem demurred to a subsequent bill to which he was made defendant, filed for the infant by his next friend, to set aside the former proceedings as fraudulent and void, does not show fraud or collusion.—Kingsbury v. Buckner, 134 U. S. 650, 10 S. Ct. 638, 33 L. Ed. 1047.

The facts that a guardian ad litem for an infant defendant to a cross bill consented, by writing dated three days before his appointment, that a commission to take a deposition for the cross plaintiffs should issue eight days thereafter, thus waiving the statutory notice of ten days, and that he failed to file cross interrogatories, do not show fraud and collusion on his part, where the waiver of notice was first signed by the attorney for the infant's mother and guardian, who is a co-defendant, and cross interrogatories were filed for her which covered the whole ground of dispute.—Id.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 255-272.

Nonresident minors may be proceeded against by publication in actions in equity concerning land, where the statute authorizes such process against nonresident adults.—Bryan v. Kennett, 113 U. S. 179, 5 S. Ct. 407, 28 L. Ed. 908.

§90. Appearance and representation by attorney.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 273-276.

A suit for partition in probate court is a "special proceeding," and minors may be represented by attorney appointed by the court, under Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 1718, providing that, "at or before the hearing of petitions and contests for * * * settlements, partitions, and distributions of estates, * * *" the court must appoint some competent attorney to represent the parties interested who are minors, and have no general guardian in the county.—Robinson v. Fair, 128 U. S. 53, 9 S. Ct. 30, 32 L. Ed. 415.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 277-291.

§92. — In general.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 277-281, 285, 288; 39 Cent. Dig. Plead. § 111.

One who brings a bill as next friend for an infant complainant, with the assent of his mother and guardian, is not required to show special authority to act as such, under Rev. St. Ill. 1845, c. 21, § 4; which provides that "suits in chancery may be commenced and prosecuted by infants, either by guardian or next friend," and chapter 47, § 13, which provides that "minors may bring suits * * * by any person that they may select as their next friend."—Kingsbury v. Buckner, 134 U. S. 650, 10 S. Ct. 638, 33 L. Ed. 1047.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, § 291.

A guardian ad litem of an infant respondent in a bill in equity cannot affect the infant's rights by admissions in his answer; but all allegations in the bill must, as to him, be proved.—White v. Miller, 158 U. S. 128, 15 S. Ct. 788, 39 L. Ed. 921.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 137, 296-300.

Under the statutes of Nebraska, a minor is bound under his contracts "unless he disaffirms them within a reasonable time after he attains his majority" (section 42); and, in an action for the recovery of real property, the statute of limitations does "not apply to minors so far as to prevent them from having at least one year after attaining their majority within which to commence such actions" (section 246). Held, in an action for the recovery of real property, that an instruction that a minor "would have to disaffirm a contract within a reasonable time after attaining his majority, and within a year or so would be a reasonable time," did not treat the question of "reasonable time" as a question of law, but left it to the jury as a question of fact.—Hegler v. Faulkner, 153 U. S. 109, 14 S. Ct. 779, 38 L. Ed. 653.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 302-321.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 302-305, 307, 311-313, 322.

The fact that a decree was entered as of a week earlier than it was rendered, without objection from the guardian ad litem, does not show fraud on his part, where this enabled the parties to get the case before the appellate court earlier, and it does not appear that the infant would have profited by delay.—Kingsbury v. Buckner, 134 U. S. 650, 10 S. Ct. 638, 33 L. Ed. 1047.

Infants are not estopped, as against their submission of their rights to the protection of the court, by the consent of a solicitor to the entry of a decree, when it does not appear by formal entry, or by proofs, that such solicitor was in fact employed to represent them.—White v. Miller, 158 U. S. 128, 15 S. Ct. 788, 39 L. Ed. 921.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, § 308.

Infants are bound by a consent decree agreed to in good faith by their attorneys, in accordance with a settlement made in their behalf by their mother and guardian ad litem, though it does not affirmatively appear that a prior inquiry was made by the court as to whether the settlement was for their benefit. In support of the decree, it will be presumed, in the absence of any showing to the contrary, that such inquiry was made.—Thompson v. Maxwell Land-Grant & Railway Co., 18 S. Ct. 121, 168 U. S. 451, 42 L. Ed. 539.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, § 320; 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 941, 961, 962.

A decree of a federal court subjecting real estate of a nonresident infant cannot be collaterally attacked on the ground that the infant was represented only by a guardian ad litem.—Manson v. Duncanson, 17 S. Ct. 647, 166 U. S. 533, 41 L. Ed. 1105.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Infants, §§ 305, 326-332; 2 Cent. Dig. App. & E. § 1911.

A next friend and a guardian ad litem for an infant litigant have power to consent that an appeal to the supreme court may be heard by it while sitting in a division other than that in which the case is decided, by which the hearing of the appeal is facilitated, under Const. Ill. 1870, art. 6, §§ 2, 5, 8, which prohibits appeals to the supreme court held in other divisions, except on consent of parties.—Kingsbury v. Buckner, 134 U. S. 650, 10 S. Ct. 638, 33 L. Ed. 1047.

Failure of the guardian ad litem to apply for a rehearing on an appeal decided against the infant is not evidence of bad faith.—Id.

Under the chancery practice, by which a decree against an infant is absolute, and he is given a certain time after becoming of age to appeal, the fact that the party against whom such decree is entered is an infant does not give him the right to bring an original bill to attack a decree entered in conformity with the mandate of an appellate court to which the case had been appealed, where he, by his next friend, appealed from the original decree, and appeared in the appellate court by his guardian ad litem in answer to a cross-appeal.—Id.

I. NATURE AND GROUNDS IN GENERAL.(A) NATURE AND FORM OF REMEDY.

4. Preventive and protective remedy.
See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 4.

Injunction, being merely a preventive remedy, will not lie for the purpose of restoring to possession one who claims to have been wrongfully evicted from lands under a writ of possession issued in a suit to which he was not a party.—Lacassagne v. Chapuis, 144 U. S. 119, 12 S. Ct. 659, 36 L. Ed. 368.

5. Mandatory injunction.
See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 4.

A court of equity is not limited to the restraint of threatened action, but may require affirmative action where the circumstances demand it.—Ex parte Lennon, 17 S. Ct. 658, 166 U. S. 548, 41 L. Ed. 1110, affirming judgment 64 F. 320, 12 C. C. A. 134.

(B) GROUNDS OF RELIEF.

11. Actual or anticipated violation of right.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 9, 10.

An injunction against action by the Kentucky railroad commission cannot be had on suit of railroad companies before any rates are fixed by the commission, as the duty of enforcing its rates rests on the commission, and the remedy of the railroad companies by the ordinary processes of law is adequate. Decree, Louisville & N. R. Co. v. McChord (C. C.) 103 F. 216, reversed.—McChord v. Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. Ry. Co., 22 S. Ct. 165, 183 U. S. 483, 46 L. Ed. 289.

Apprehension that such illegal action may be taken by a municipality as will impair the franchise and contract rights of a waterworks company, with whose predecessor the city has contracted for a municipal water supply, entitles the company to maintain a suit for equitable relief in advance of any actual proceedings on the part of the city to impair the company's rights under the contract.—Vicksburg Waterworks Co. v. City of Vicksburg, 22 S. Ct. 585, 185 U. S. 65, 46 L. Ed. 808.

19. Prevention of multiplicity of suits.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 18.

The prevention of a multiplicity of suits cannot be invoked as ground for equitable relief against a threatened survey, under direction of the land department, of lands to which complainants assert title, and which the department claims to be unsurveyed public lands of the United States, where the persons directly interested in such survey are not made parties, are not numerous, and assert separate and independent claims. Decree (1901) 109 F. 354, 48 C. C. A. 399, reversed.—Kirwan v. Murphy, 23 S. Ct. 599, 189 U. S. 35, 47 L. Ed. 698.

A court of equity ought not to interfere upon the ground of multiplicity of suits by the same person against the complainant for causes of action arising out of the same facts and legal principles, unless it is clearly necessary to protect the complainant against continued litigation.—Boise Artesian Hot & Cold Water Co. v. Boise City, 29 S. Ct. 426, 213 U. S. 276, 53 L. Ed. 796.

20. Defenses or objections to relief.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. §§ 19-22.

21. — In general.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 19.

A bill by a riparian owner to restrain unlawful dredging of sand on the river bed owned by her shows a ground for injunction, though prayed for only after hearing of the cause, and though the rights of the contestants may be finally adjudicated in her favor or the dredging may cease.—Archer v. Greenville Sand & Gravel Co., 34 S. Ct. 567, 233 U. S. 60, 58 L. Ed. 850, reversing judgment 194 F. 1020, 114 C. C. A. 664.

Unlawful practices of sugar refiner in its business cannot defeat its right to restrain enforcement of Act La. No. 10 of 1915, regulating its business, which, it asserts, violates its rights under federal Constitution.—McFarland v. American Sugar Refining Co., 36 S. Ct. 498, 241 U. S. 79, 60 L. Ed. 899, affirming decree (D.C.) American Sugar Refining Co. v. McFarland, 229 F. 284.

24. — Injury or inconvenience to public.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 23.

An injunction that would compel a board of education to withhold all assistance from a high school maintained for white children is not the proper remedy for error of the board in failing to provide a high school for colored children, and in turning the building and funds formerly used therefor to the use of primary schools for colored children. Judgment, Board of Education of Richmond County v. Cumming, 29 S. E. 488, 103 Ga. 641, affirmed.—Cumming v. Board of Education of Richmond County, 20 S. Ct. 197, 175 U. S. 528, 44 L. Ed. 262.

II. SUBJECTS OF PROTECTION AND RELIEF.

(A) ACTIONS AND OTHER LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

26. Commencement and prosecution of civil actions.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. §§ 24-49, 54-61; 22 Cent. Dig. Ex. & Ad. § 1568; 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 1185, 1216; 38 Cent. Dig. Partit. § 146; 38 Cent. Dig. Pat. § 447.

A license to manufacture being a perfect defense to an action at law for the infringement of a patent, when a bill to restrain the bringing of an action for infringement shows such a license, the injunction will not be granted.—Hapgood v. Hewitt, 119 U. S. 220, 7 S. Ct. 193, 30 L. Ed. 369.

A debtor was arrested on a Saturday night on a writ of ne exeat, authorizing the taking of bail that he would not leave the state. For the purposes of obtaining his release, there was a meeting of the attorneys for both parties, the sureties, and a friend of his, who secured the presence of G., one of the subsequent bondsmen. The creditor, who did not attend the meeting, desired that arrangements be made so that the debtor be released from jail. The creditor's attorneys proposed that the debtor give the bond provided by the writ, but the debtor said that he must go from the state. It was suggested that he apply for a discharge of the writ, which is generally given on furnishing security to be amenable to the process of the court; but he said that he could not remain at all. An agreement was then made that a bond should be prepared, and that it should be executed shortly after midnight Sunday, the debtor to be released in the meantime on his honor. At the time specified a bond prepared by the creditor's attorneys was executed, conditioned that the debtor "abide and perform the orders and decrees" of the court in the suit, and the writ of ne exeat was discharged. The attorneys for the creditor testified that the agreement was that the bond was to be conditioned to abide and "perform" the decrees, and was to be a security. All the others testified that it was merely to be in the nature of a bail-bond to secure the debtor's attendance. G. was but slightly acquainted with the debtor, and merely went on the bond because of his relative's request. The testimony was given some 12 years after the event. Held, that the bond should be considered to have been executed under a mutual mistake as to its legal effect, and that, as the bond could not be reformed, the principal and the other bondsmen being dead, G. was entitled to have all proceedings thereon against him restrained.—Griswold v. Hazard, 141 U. S. 260, 11 S. Ct. 972, 999, 35 L. Ed. 678.

Though defendant's laches will not avail a complainant, who seeks to enjoin an action at law by defendant, except as they show an estoppel, and an estoppel in pais, being an available defense in an action at law, is not of itself ground for equitable action, yet it may avail in an equitable action where there is other ground to give equity jurisdiction.—Wehrman v. Conklin, 155 U. S. 314, 15 S. Ct. 129, 39 L. Ed. 167.

Defendant in ejectment cannot enjoin the action on the ground that the certification of the land by the government to the state, through which plaintiff claims title, is void, as that defense is available in the ejectment suit.—Deweese

v. Reinhard, 17 S. Ct. 340, 165 U. S. 388, 41 L. Ed. 757, affirming decree 61 F. 777, 10 C. C. A. 55.

A suit, the purpose of which is to have canceled a guaranty upon a large number of negotiable bonds which might otherwise pass into the hands of bona fide purchasers, and to restrain suits upon the guaranty because of facts not appearing upon its face, is of equitable cognizance.—*Louisville, N. Persons having the equitable title only to two of three parcels of a lot can invoke the aid of equity to restrain an ejectment action involving the entire lot, though they have the legal, as well as the equitable, title, to the third parcel.—Camp v. Boyd, 33 S. Ct. 785, 229 U. S. 530, 57 L. Ed. 1317, affirming decree 35 App. D. C. 159.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. §§ 66, 67.

Commissioners, authorized by Act N. J. April 9, 1863, to subscribe in the name of a town for stock in a railroad company, and, on obtaining the consent of a certain majority of taxpayers, to issue bonds of the town under the hands and seals of the commissioners, and to sell the bonds and invest the proceeds of the sale in stock of the railroad company, which shall be held by the town with all the rights of other stockholders, issued, without obtaining the requisite consent of taxpayers, to the railroad company, in exchange for stock, such bonds signed by the commissioners, but on which the seals were omitted by oversight and mistake. The town set up the want of seals in defense of an action at law afterwards brought against it by one who has purchased such bonds for value in good faith, and without observing the omission, to recover interest on the bonds. Held, that a court of equity, at his suit, will decree that the bonds be held as valid as if actually sealed before being issued, and will restrain the setting up of the want of seals in the action at law.—Inhabitants of Bernards Tp. v. Stebbins, 109 U. S. 341, 3 S. Ct. 252, 27 L. Ed. 956.

A bill may be maintained in favor of a plaintiff in a proposed action at law to enjoin defendant from setting up a threatened defense on the ground that he is equitably estopped from doing so, it being doubtful if such estoppel can be availed of in an action at law in the state in which it is to be brought.—Davis v. Wakelee, 156 U. S. 680, 15 S. Ct. 555, 39 L. Ed. 378.

Injunction may issue against setting up a pretended judgment fraudulently obtained in another state in bar of a divorce proceeding. Judgment 43 A. 683, 58 N. J. Eq. 563, affirmed.—Streitwolf v. Streitwolf, 21 S. Ct. 553, 181 U. S. 179, 45 L. Ed. 807.

32. Actions or proceedings in other courts.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 69.

The assumption by the manufacturer of the defense of a patent infringement suit brought in a federal Circuit Court against one of his customers does not deprive him of his right to proceed against the complainant in such suit in the state and district of the latter's residence for wrongfully interfering with the business of such manufacturer by instituting the suit after a final adjudication in a prior suit that the article in question did not infringe the patent.—Kessler v. Eldred, 27 S. Ct. 611, 206 U. S. 285, 51 L. Ed. 1065.

Lack of any adequate remedy at law justifies a court of equity in taking jurisdiction of a suit by the successful defendant in a patent infringement suit to enjoin the complainant in the prior suit from interfering with the former's business by suing his customers for an alleged infringement of the patent on account of the use or sale of the same article passed upon in the prior suit.—Id.

(B) PROPERTY, CONVEYANCES, AND INCUMBRANCES.

36. Title or right in doubt or dispute.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. §§ 82-84; 19 Cent. Dig. Equity, § 40.

In cases where irremediable mischief is being done or threatened, going to the substance of the estate, such as the extraction of ores from a mine, it is proper to issue an injunction to prevent it, though the title be in litigation.—Erhardt v. Boaro, 113 U. S. 537, 5 S. Ct. 565, 28 L. Ed. 1116, affirming judgment (C. C.) 8 F. 692.

A mandatory injunction to establish a right to the possession of land claimed as a homestead under the United States statutes cannot be granted by an Oklahoma court, under St. Okl. 1893, p. 764, § 3882, abolishing the distinction between actions at law and suits in equity, where no special grounds are shown for equitable relief, and there is a remedy at law by action of forcible detainer, and a jury trial is not waived, since there is a right to a jury trial in such case, by virtue of Const. U. S. 7th Amend.—Black v. Jackson, 20 S. Ct. 648, 177 U. S. 349, 44 L. Ed. 801, reversing decree 52 P. 406, 6 Okl. 751; Potts v. Hollon, 20 S. Ct. 654, 177 U. S. 385, 44 L. Ed. 808, reversing decree 52 P. 917, 6 Okl. 696.

Equitable jurisdiction of a suit to enjoin the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of the General Land Office from casting a cloud on a title vested by an approved location of the grant under Act June 21, 1860, by proceedings in the matter of entries on such land under the public land laws, cannot be challenged on the ground that the purpose of the suit is to recover real property by trial of the legal title.—Lane v. Watts, 34 S. Ct. 965, 234 U. S. 525, 58 L. Ed. 1440, affirming decree 41 App. D. C. 139. Rehearing denied 35 S. Ct. 3, 235 U. S. 17, 59 L. Ed. 104.

37. Establishment of title or right by action at law.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 85.

An injunction may be granted to restrain a navigation company from towing barges through the draw of a railroad bridge in such a negligent manner as to endanger the bridge, though there has been no trial at law to settle the rights of the parties.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Interstate Transp. Co., 155 U. S. 585, 15 S. Ct. 228, 39 L. Ed. 271, modifying decree (C. C.) 45 F. 5.

42. Dealing in tickets of carriers.

Injunctive relief against ticket brokers dealing in nontransferable reduced-rate excursion tickets will not be denied on the ground that an adequate remedy at law exists, where such brokers admit past dealings, and avow their purpose to continue the practice, and where the number of such tickets issued is large, the risk to be incurred by the steps necessary to prevent their wrongful use is considerable, and numerous suits will be necessitated if redress is sought at law.—Bitterman v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 28 S. Ct. 91, 207 U. S. 205, 52 L. Ed. 171, 12 Ann. Cas. 693, affirming decree (1906) Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Bitterman, 144 F. 34, 75 C. C. A. 192, which modified (C. C. 1904) 128 F. 176; (1906)

52. — Cutting or removal of timber.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 105.

Equity may intervene by injunction to prevent the wrongful boxing and cutting of timber valuable for turpentine purposes, since the remedy at law in damages is of doubtful adequacy. Decree, Ashburn v. Graves (1907) 149 F. 968, 79 C. C. A. 478, reversed.—Graves v. Ashburn, 30 S. Ct. 108, 215 U. S. 331, 54 L. Ed. 217.

55. Injury to trade or business.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. §§ 108, 109.

A sale of the property of a third person on an execution will be restrained, where it would have the effect of breaking up the owner's business, notwithstanding the owner has a remedy by trespass, as such remedy is inadequate.—North v. Peters, 138 U. S. 271, 11 S. Ct. 346, 34 L. Ed. 936.

(C) CONTRACTS.

57. Contracts enforceable in general.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. §§ 111-113, 130.

A contractor agreed to build a certain piece of railroad for $29,000, with the right to retain possession thereof and run it for his own benefit until that sum was paid. After completing the road, and before receiving full payment, he was forcibly dispossessed by the officers of the railroad company, and brought an action of forcible entry and detainer in the district court. Pending this action he entered into a written stipulation with the company that the sum due under the contract at the date of the writing was $25,000. Judgment was rendered in his favor, and affirmed on appeal to the supreme court. Seven months later, and before judgment was entered below on the mandate, the company's successor tendered the contractor $25,000, with interest to date, which was refused, and thereupon it brought a bill to enjoin the contractor from taking possession under his judgment, and paid into court the amount tendered. Held, that the agreement was a settlement of the amount due the contractor, and, on payment into court, complainant was entitled to the injunction prayed.—Johnson v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co., 141 U. S. 602, 12 S. Ct. 124, 35 L. Ed. 875.

58. Negative or restrictive covenants or stipulations in general.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. §§ 111-112.

Injunctive relief will not be granted in equity against the disposal of sugar cane elsewhere than at the sugar factory designated in a contract with the growers, as a suit for damages will afford adequate relief.—Javierre v. Central Altagracia, 30 S. Ct. 598, 217 U. S. 502, 54 L. Ed. 859.

59. Breaches of contract which may be restrained in general.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. §§ 114-116, 128.

Equitable relief to holders of oil lease enjoining operation under a similar lease on the same land and granting discovery and an accounting will not be refused because of a clause giving option to surrender.—Guffey v. Smith, 35 S. Ct. 526, 237 U. S. 101, 59 L. Ed. 856; Id., 35 S. Ct. 532, 237 U. S. 120, 59 L. Ed. 866. Reversing decree Smith v. Guffey, 202 F. 106, 120 C. C. A. 436.

Relief against partial destruction of freehold interest under an oil lease will not be denied on the ground that the lease is unfair and inequitable.—Id.

Delay in first payments of rent held not ground for refusing relief to holders of oil lease by way of enjoining operations on a similar lease of the same land and of granting discovery and an accounting, where rent was not in arrears when subsequent lease was given.—Id.

(D) CORPORATE FRANCHISES, MANAGEMENT, AND DEALINGS.

Appellate jurisdiction of suit to enjoin enforcement of ordinance regulating telephone rates, see Courts, 385(7).

72. Disposition of or dealings with corporate property.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 138.

A United States circuit court, as a court of equity, may restrain a corporation, at the suit of one of its stockholders, from voluntarily making returns for the imposition of and paying an unconstitutional tax levied under an act of congress, on the ground of the breach of trust or duty in such misapplication or diversion of the corporate funds, and on allegations of threatened multiplicity of suits and irreparable injury, where the objection of adequate remedy at law is not raised, and the question of jurisdiction is waived so far as it is within the power of the government to do so.—Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U. S. 429, 15 S. Ct. 673, 39 L. Ed. 759.

Union River Logging R. Co., 147 U. S. 165, 13 S. Ct. 271, 37 L. Ed. 123, affirming decree Union River Logging R. Co. v. Noble, 20 D. C. 555.

75. State or national boards and officers.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. §§ 143, 144, 150.

While the head of a governmental department is not subject to injunction in matters involving the exercise of discretion, yet such writ may be issued against the secretary of the interior, where he attempts, without authority of law, to annul the action of his predecessor in office, approving the location of a railroad's right of way over public lands.—Noble v. Union River Logging R. Co., 147 U. S. 165, 13 S. Ct. 271, 37 L. Ed. 123, affirming decree Union River Logging R. Co. v. Noble, 20 D. C. 555.

The determination of the postmaster general that letters addressed to a certain corporation should be refused delivery is not so conclusive on the federal courts as to preclude them from granting injunctive relief to such corporation, where his action was not authorized by the statutes under which he assumed to act.—American School of Magnetic Healing v. McAnnulty, 23 S. Ct. 33, 187 U. S. 94, 47 L. Ed. 90, reversing judgment (C. C.) 102 F. 565.

The prevention of irreparable injury cannot be invoked as ground for equitable relief against a threatened survey, under direction of the land department, of lands to which complainants assert title, but which the department claims to be unsurveyed public lands of the United States, where such survey can be made without material injury to the soil or timber. Decree, 109 F. 354, 48 C. C. A. 399, reversed.—Kirwan v. Murphy, 23 S. Ct. 599, 189 U. S. 35, 47 L. Ed. 698.

Watts*, 34 S. Ct. 965, 234 U. S. 525, 58 L. Ed. 1440, affirming decree 41 App. D. C. 139. Rehearing denied 35 S. Ct. 3, 235 U. S. 17, 59 L. Ed. 104.

◀81. Appointment or removal of officers.

◀84. Passage of ordinances or resolutions.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 154.

The passage of ordinances by a city council are legislative acts, which a court of equity will not enjoin.—New Orleans Water Works Co. v. City of New Orleans, 17 S. Ct. 161, 164 U. S. 471, 41 L. Ed. 518.

◀85. Enforcement of statutes, ordinances, or other regulations.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. §§ 155, 156.

An injunction will not be granted against the collection of a franchise tax from a foreign corporation, where there is nothing to indicate inability of the corporation to pay the tax, or of the defendant to respond in judgment if the tax be found to have been illegally exacted, and no special circumstances are set up justifying the exercise of equity jurisdiction, other than consequences which the complainant can easily avert without loss or injury by paying the tax, although the validity of the law might be more conveniently tested by the party denying it by bill in equity than by action at law.—Arkansas Building & Loan Ass'n v. Madden, 20 S. Ct. 119, 175 U. S. 269, 44 L. Ed. 159.

A suit to restrain the collector of customs for a port from enforcing the provisions of the act of congress of March 2, 1897, to prevent the importation of impure and unwholesome tea, on the ground that the act is unconstitutional, cannot be maintained where the sole ground of equity jurisdiction put forward is the inadequacy of the remedy at law, while the matter in dispute is averred to be the value of teas in the collector's hands, which is known, and the right to import teas, since a judgment against the collector would be enforceable, and there is no dispute as to the right to import any teas except those which are below the standard fixed by the law. Decree, Cruikshank v. Bidwell (C. C.) 86 F. 7, affirmed.—Cruikshank v. Bidwell, 20 S. Ct. 280, 176 U. S. 73, 44 L. Ed. 377.

Equity will entertain jurisdiction of a suit to restrain, as impairing contract obligations, the enforcement of a municipal ordinance reducing street railway rates on a section only of a consolidated line, in view of the public interests and of the controversies, confusion, risks, and multiplicity of suits which would necessarily be occasioned by resistance to the enforcement of the ordinance. Decree, Cleveland City Ry. Co. v. City of Cleveland (C. C.) 94 F. 385, and Cleveland Electric Ry. Co. v. Same, Id., affirmed.—City of Cleveland v. Cleveland City Ry. Co., 24 S. Ct. 756, 194 U. A case for injunctive relief is presented where the Secretary of State threatens to issue a proclamation in his official capacity, under the authority of a state statute which violates the federal Constitution, that a foreign telegraph company is forbidden, under the heavy penalties prescribed by that statute, to continue to do local business in the state. Decree, Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Ludwig (C. C. 1907) 156 F. 152, affirmed.—Ludwig v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 30 S. Ct. 280, 216 U. S. 146, 54 L. Ed. 423.

Threatened enforcement by proper officers of Code Supp. Va. 1910, §§ 1104, 1105, requiring foreign corporations doing business in the state to obtain a license, will not be enjoined, where it is only claimed that it may be enforced so as to violate the commerce clause of the federal Constitution.—Dalton Adding Mach. Co. v. State Corporation Commission of Commonwealth of Virginia, 35 S. Ct. 480, 236 U. S. 699, 59 L. Ed. 797, affirming decree (D. C.) 213 F. 889.

The court will not enjoin the action of a state corporation commission in directing a street railway to double track its line in the absence of a clear case of confiscatory action.—Phoenix Ry. Co. of Arizona v. Geary, 36 S. Ct. 45, 239 U. S. 277, 60 L. Ed. 287, affirming decree (D. C.) 209 F. 694.

The threatened enforcement by state officers, of a statute attacked as repugnant to the federal Constitution may be enjoined by a federal court, where the statute, if exerted against complainants, will produce irreparable injury.—Rast v. Van Deman & Lewis Co., 36 S. Ct. 370, 240 U. S. 342, 60 L. Ed. 679, reversing order (D. C.) Van Deman & Lewis Co. v. Rast, 214 F. 827; Pitney v. State of Washington, 36 S. Ct. 385, 240 U. See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. §§ 174, 175.

An owner of a pilot boat, who alleges that he is aggrieved, in that defendants, by their words and acts, have denied his right, and that of his branch pilots, to exercise their calling, and have confederated together and bound themselves not to do business as pilots with others not belonging to such confederation, as a consequence of which he and his coowners have suffered in various specified ways, has adequate remedies at law, and cannot, therefore, seek aid of a court of equity, by way of injunction.—Francis v. Flinn, 118 U. S. 385, 6 S. Ct. 1148, 30 L. Ed. 165.

A court of equity may enjoin the continuance of a boycott, although spoken words or written matter were used as one of the instrumentalities by which the boycott was made effective.—(1911) *Gompers v. Federal courts restraining proceedings in state courts, see Courts, 508.

102. Criminal acts in general.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 176.

A court of equity has jurisdiction to enjoin the obstruction of the mails and the highways used in interstate commerce, though such obstruction amounts to a public nuisance, for which a criminal prosecution would lie; and the punishment imposed by such court for violation of its injunction is not an exercise of criminal jurisdiction.—In re Debs, 158 U. S. 564, 15 S. Ct. 900, 39 L. Ed. 1092.

105. Criminal prosecutions.

A court of equity, although having jurisdiction over person and property in a case pending before it, is not thereby vested with jurisdiction over crimes committed in dealing with such property by a party before the civil suit was brought, and cannot restrain, by injunction, proceedings regularly brought in a criminal court having jurisdiction of the crime and of the accused.—Harkrader v. Wadley, 19 S. Ct. 119, 172 U. S. 148, 43 L. Ed. 399.

The absence of an adequate remedy at law cannot be urged by a subcontractor who has contracted to erect gas works on certain premises, as a ground for injunctive relief to prevent the enforcement, by criminal proceedings against his employes, of municipal ordinances prohibiting the erection or maintenance of such structures within certain limits, which are alleged to infringe the obligation of the contract of the owner of the land with the municipality under prior ordinances, since his remedy, if any, is by action against the principal contractor, who is presumed to be able to respond in damages for all such which the subcontractor may have suffered by the interruption of the contract.—Davis & Farnum Mfg. Co. v. City of Los Angeles, 23 S. Ct. 498, 189 U. S. 207, 47 L. Ed. 778, affirming decree (C. C.) 115 F. 537.

judgment 72 P. 970, 139 Cal. 179, 96 Am. St. Rep. 95; Daly v. Elton, 25 S. Ct. 22, 195 U. S. 242, 49 L. Ed. 177, reversing judgment In re Daly, 72 P. 1097, 139 Cal. 216.

One whose property rights have been invaded in fixing harbor lines may sue to enjoin the Secretary of War from causing criminal proceedings to be brought against him, under Act of Congress March 3, 1899, §§ 11, 12, 17.—(1912) Philadelphia Co. v. Stimson, 32 S. Ct. 340, 223 U. S. 605, 56 L. Ed. 570, affirming decree (1909) Same v. Dickinson, 33 App. D. C. 338.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. §§ 188-194.

A United States circuit court, as a court of equity, may restrain a corporation, at the suit of one of its stockholders, from voluntarily making returns for the imposition of and paying an unconstitutional tax levied under an act of congress, on the ground of the breach of trust or duty in such misapplication or diversion of the corporate funds, and on allegations of threatened multiplicity of suits and irreparable injury, where the objection of adequate remedy at law is not raised, and the question of jurisdiction is waived, so far as it is within the power of the government to do so.—Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U. S. 429, 15 S. Ct. 673, 39 L. Ed. 759.

113. Limitations and laches.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. §§ 198-201.

Bondholders of a water company who, with knowledge of the passage of an ordinance authorizing the construction of city waterworks, delay for five years the commencement of a suit to enjoin its enforcement, during which time the city has issued bonds under the ordinance and expended a large part of the proceeds towards the construction of its waterworks, the ground of suit being that the ordinance and the carrying of it into effect impairs the obligation of a prior contract between the city and the water company, are guilty of such laches as will bar them of relief in a court of equity.—Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. City of Austin, 18 S. Ct. 223, 168 U. S. 685, 42 L. Ed. 626.

The inaction of a fraternal order for many years during which a newer order of the same name has existed and has exercised its functions, is laches defeating the former's right to injunctive relief.—(1912) Creswill v. Grand Lodge, K. P. of Georgia, 32 S. Ct. 822, 225 U. S. 246, 56 L. Ed. 1074, reversing judgment (1910) 67 S. E. 188, 133 Ga. 837, 134 Am. St. Rep. 231, 18 Ann. Cas. 453.

114. Parties.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. §§ 202-220.

Where plaintiff's store is taken by the sheriff under attachment against a third person, the sheriff, in seizing the property, becomes a trespasser, and he is the proper defendant in an injunction suit to restrain the closing of plaintiff's store and the sale of the goods, though he has no material interest in the subject-matter thereof.—North v. Peters, 138 U. S. 271, 11 S. Ct. 346, 34 L. Ed. 936.

Citizens of a state who may import liquors for their own use have not such a common interest in enjoining the seizure thereof by state officers, under authority of an unconstitutional law, that one citizen may maintain a bill for that purpose in behalf of himself and all others who may so import liquors.—Scott v. Donald, 17 S. Ct. 262, 165 U. S. 107, 41 L. Ed. 648.

A bill by a state against a corporation of another state to enjoin that corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, servants, or stockholders, from interfering in any way with the management or control, and from holding any of the stock, of either of two railroad corporations of the complainant state, is one to which the domestic corporations are necessary parties for the representation of the interests of all other stockholders and of the general public.—State of Minnesota v. Northern Securities Co., 22 S. Ct. 308, 184 U. S. 199, 46 L. Ed. 499.

A corporation, referred to in a bill to restrain any further action by the secretary of the interior upon applications for leases of Indian lands for mining purposes as one of the successful applicants, is not a necessary party defendant to the suit, which is instituted on the theory of the want of power in the secretary to execute leases affecting such lands.—Cherokee Nation v. Hitchcock, 23 S. Ct. 115, 187 U. S. 294, 47 L. Ed. 183.

The duty imposed upon the Attorney General of a state by the common law and statutes, requiring him to cause proceedings to be instituted against any corporation whenever it shall have offended against the laws of the state, and to enforce the railroad rate law at the instance of the railroad commission, sufficiently connects him with the enforcement of the statute to make him a proper party to a suit to enjoin its enforcement.—Ex parte Young, 28 S. Ct. 441, 209 U. S. 123, 52 L. Ed. 714, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 932, 14 Ann. Cas. 764.

Persons who have initiated claims are not necessary parties to a suit to enjoin the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of the General Land Office from casting a cloud on a title vested by an approved location of the grant made by act June 21, 1860, by proceedings in a matter of attempted entries of the land under the public land laws.—Lane v. Watts, 34 S. Ct. 965, 234 U. S. 525, 58 L. Ed. 1440, affirming decree 41 App. D. C. 139. Rehearing denied 35 S. Ct. 3, 235 U. S. 17, 59 L. Ed. 104.

The United States is not a necessary party to a suit in the District of Columbia to enjoin the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of the General Land Office from casting a cloud on the title to lands in New Mexico vested by an approved location of a grant under act June 21, 1860.—Id.

A bill filed by a water company against a city having by its charter power to furnish or contract for a supply of water for its own use and that of its inhabitants, setting out a franchise granted by the city, and a contract to take and pay for water for a term of years; that plaintiff, in reliance on such franchise and contract, has invested its capital in the erection of waterworks, and that the city has by subsequent legislation within the term of the franchise repudiated its contract, and determined upon the erection of water works of its own, to be operated in competition with plaintiff,—states sufficient grounds for relief, without setting out the particular manner in which such action will injure plaintiff, which is a matter of general knowledge. Decree Walla Walla Water Co. v. City of Walla Walla (C. C.) 60 F. 957, affirmed.—City of Walla Walla v. Walla Walla Water Co., 19 S. Ct. 77, 172 U. S. 1, 43 L. Ed. 341.

Circumstances bringing the case within some acknowledged head of equity jurisdiction so as to give the right to injunctive relief in a federal court against the enforcement of a municipal ordinance imposing a license fee upon a water company, upon the ground that such ordinance is unconstitutional, illegal, and void, are not shown by a vague allegation in the bill that the city has threatened to remove the company's pipes and works, without averring any facts showing such threat, or by suggesting the danger of a multiplicity of suits, or of the casting of a cloud upon the title of the company to its franchises, where a single action has been brought to collect the license fee, with an honest purpose to settle the rights of the parties, and the real basis for the contention as to the cloud on title is that the city's claim that the company has no more than a mere permission to occupy the streets, which is the reason said to have induced the enactment of the ordinance, unfavorably affects the company's property and impairs its credit.—Boise Artesian Hot & Cold Water Co. v. Boise City, 29 S. Ct. 428, 213 U. S. 276, 53 L. Ed. 796.

A case for an injunction against compliance by carriers with provisions of Oklahoma separate coach law, December 18, 1907 (Rev. Laws 1910, § 860 et seq.), permitting carriers to discriminate between white persons and negroes in providing sleeping, dining, and chair cars, is not presented by bill filed by five negro citizens containing general allegations as to discrimination, there being 50,000 persons of the negro race in the state who will be injured in their civil rights, where it is not alleged that any complainant has ever traveled on any of the railroads in question or that any one of them has requested accommodations in such cars or ever was notified that such accommodations would not be furnished to him when furnished to others upon a payment of the customary charge.—McCabe v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co., 35 S. Ct. 69, 235 U. S. 151, 59 L. Ed. 169, affirming decree 186 F. 966, 109 C. C. A. 110.

The title to land acquired under a patent was attacked by a bill to enjoin an action at law by defendant to recover the land and for the cancellation of his patent, charging that a series of applications, whereby the land was withheld from market, was fictitious, and made solely for that purpose. The bill having required an answer under oath, the defendant denied the fraudulent purposes and designs charged, and the person who filed the applications testified that the parties in whose names the respective applications were made were living persons, and that he made the applications for the bona fide purpose of procuring the lands for them. Held that, in the absence of any contradictory testimony, the charges of the bill must be regarded as not sustained.—Monroe Cattle Co. v. Becker, 147 U. S. 47, 13 S. Ct. 217, 37 L. Ed. 72.

126. — Presumptions and burden of proof.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 276.

Persons seeking to escape from the obligations of a contract to deliver sugar cane at a specified sugar factory for grinding, because of the happening of a condition subsequent embodied in a proviso in the contract, justifying cancellation if a projected sugar mill should be erected or its construction started by a certain date, are charged with the burden of proving that the identical mill referred to in the contract has been so built or started, although the bill alleges affirmatively a conspiracy to evade the undertaking by way of replication to the answer setting up the condition.—Javierre v. Central Altagracia, 30 S. Ct. 598, 217 U. S. 502, 54 L. Ed. 859.

128. — Weight and sufficiency.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 278.

Under authority of Act Cong. Tex. Feb. 5, 1842, the president of the republic of Texas entered into a contract with plaintiff's assignor, whereby the state agreed, in consideration of the contractor's undertaking to survey a certain grant of land, and to divide it into sections and half sections of 640 and 320 acres, respectively, to introduce bona fide settlers, immigrants from without the republic of Texas, to grant to each head of a family so settled 640 acres, and to each single man over 17 years of age 320 acres, and for every 100 families so introduced and settled to grant to the contractors 10 sections of 640 acres each. It appeared in a proceeding in equity by the assignees of the contractors against the land commissioner of the state of Texas that, although the exterior lines of the grant had been surveyed, it had never been divided into sections and half sections, and no sufficient showing was made that any of the settlers on the land had been introduced by the contractors. Held, that a decree "forever" enjoining the defendant from issuing a patent to any lands within the grant except to plaintiff, without defining the rights of the state or of others therein, was not supported by the evidence, and must be reversed.—Walsh v. Preston, 109 U. S. 297, 3 S. Ct. 169, 245, 27 L. Ed. 940.

Complainant filed a bill alleging that she was the owner of certain bonds in the possession of defendants, and praying that defendants be enjoined from selling the bonds, and for other equitable relief. The bill was sworn to by complainant's solicitor on belief, and complainant's name was signed thereto by the solicitor. Complainant was not sworn as a witness in the case. It appeared that the bonds in suit were delivered to defendants in exchange for a mortgage executed by complainant's husband. The husband testified that the bonds had been his, but had become the property of his wife under assignments, which did not appear ever to have been in complainant's possession, to secure a debt to her from him. No evidence was given as to the origin of this debt, or that complainant had a separate estate, and it appeared that the parties had been married more than 20 years. Complainant's son testified that, without authority from complainant, he had taken the bonds from her safe-deposit box, of which he had a key. Held, that the evidence failed to show that complainant ever had any real ownership or actual control of or lawful right to the bonds.—Matthews v. Warner, 112 U. S. 600, 5 S. Ct. 312, 28 L. Ed. 851, affirming (C. C.) 6 F. 461.

The refusal of the court of original jurisdiction to allow damages for the period during which the temporary restraining order, granted pursuant to Rev. St. U. S. § 718 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 590], was in force, upon the undertaking given as a condition of granting such order, cannot be sustained as an appropriate exercise of discretion, where, by such order, the Postmaster General was restrained from refusing to transmit certain publications at second-class rates, as theretofore, and the result of the litigation was to establish not only the right of the government to receive additional postage pending the controversy, but also the fact that the publishers had received a very considerable service from the government in carrying the publications through the mails at a rate less than that which it was entitled to charge. Decree, Cortelyou v. Houghton (1906) 27 App. D. C. 188, modified.—Houghton v. Cortelyou, 28 S. Ct. 234, 208 U. S. 149, 52 L. Ed. 432.

V. PERMANENT INJUNCTION AND OTHER RELIEF.

189. Nature and scope of relief.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 409.

Injunctive relief against ticket brokers unlawfully dealing in nontransferable reduced-rate excursion tickets may extend to the restraining of like dealings as to similar tickets which may be issued in the future. Decree, Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Bitterman (1906) 144 F. 34, 75 C. C. A. 192, affirmed.—Bitterman v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 28 S. Ct. 91, 207 U. S. 205, 52 L. Ed. 171, 12 Ann. Cas. 693.

Railroad companies whose long disregard of covenants in Land Grant Acts of April 10, 1869, and May 4, 1870, regulating sales to actual settlers, may have made the lands more inviting for speculation than settlement, should be enjoined from any disposition whatever of the lands or the timber thereon and from cutting or authorizing the cutting or removal of the timber.—Oregon & C. R. Co. v. United States, 35 S. Ct. 908, 238 U. S. 393, 59 L. Ed. 1360.

195. Recovery of damages instead of injunction.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 415.

An ascertainment and decree for the payment of damages, with injunction in the alternative, and not a permanent injunction to be entered on a specified date, unless the parties shall sooner agree in respect to compensation, is the measure of relief, in a suit by riparian owners to restrain the construction and maintenance by a municipal corporation of a dam in aid of its water supply, by which the waters of a river are unlawfully diverted from their natural flow through the lands of such riparian owners, who delayed their suit until the work of construction had proceeded for two years, with the consequent expenditure of a large sum of money, during which period negotiations between such owners and the municipality had been carried on with a view to compensation for the injuries such owners would sustain. Decree, Pine v. City of New York 112 F. 98, 50 C. C. A. 145, reversed.—City of New York v. Pine, 22 S. Ct. 592, 185 U. S. 93, 46 L. Ed. 820.

Jurisdiction of a suit to enjoin interference with alleged existing second-class mail privilege will not be retained, after new application for second-class rates has been granted pendente lite, to determine what relief should be accorded respecting injunction bond, where there is nothing to show complainant in danger from an action to enforce the bond.—Lewis Pub. Co. v. Wyman, 83 S. Ct. 599, 228 U. S. 610, 57 L. Ed. 989, affirming decree 182 F. 13, 104 C. C. A. 453.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 419.

Injunction against interference by municipality with a telegraph company which has accepted the provisions of Act July 24, 1866, should provide that nothing therein contained should prevent such municipality from subjecting the location of the line to reasonable regulations.—Town of Essex v. New England Tel. Co. of Massachusetts, 86 S. Ct. 102, 239 U. S. 313, 60 L. Ed. 301, modifying decree (D. C.) New England Telegraph Co. of Massachusetts v. Town of Essex, 206 F. 926.

After certain taxpayers had enjoined the collection of a town tax, the relators, being the holders and owners of certain bonds and coupons of the town, began separate suits against the town to recover the amounts due them on their coupons, and obtained judgment. Held, that the relators, not having been parties to the injunction proceedings, were not affected thereby in their right to enforce the collection of the taxes.—Hawley v. United States, 108 U. S. 543, 2 S. Ct. 846, 27 L. Ed. 820.

In an action by a mortgagee of the S. Co. against the trustees and the S. Co. to subject the trust lands to that company's mortgage, held that the trustees' deed to the company was void, because made in violation of an injunction, and that the S. Co., as a purchaser pendente lite, and its mortgagee, took subject to the subsequent decree.—Union Trust Co. v. Southern Inland Nav. & Imp. Co., 130 U. S. 565, 9 S. Ct. 606, 32 L. Ed. 1043.

A decree enjoining future violations by railroads of Land Grant Act April 10, 1869, and Act May 4, 1870, § 4, regulating sales to actual settlers, should be without prejudice to other remedies which the government may have under Joint Resolution April 30, 1908, where the government in its bill has distinguished between sold and unsold lands.—Oregon & C. R. Co. v. United States, 35 S. Ct. 908, 238 U. S. 393, 59 L. Ed. 1360.

¶210. — Opening and vacating or modifying.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 433.

Affirmance by federal Supreme Court of decree enjoining enforcement of state legislation, as prohibiting the transportation of natural gas in lawful channels of interstate commerce, does not require modification to except from its operation certain provisions which might have been valid as to transportation of gas wholly within the state.—Haskell v. Kansas Natural Gas Co., 32 S. Ct. 442, 224 U. S. 217, 56 L. Ed. 738.

¶211. — Operation and effect in general.

Laws Fla. 1885, c. 610, vested the land granted to Florida by act of congress of March 3, 1845, in trustees to dispose of and to invest the proceeds, with power to pledge the fund for the payment of interest on bonds which might be issued by any railroad company constructing roads along certain lines; the companies to pay the interest on the bonds, and a certain per cent. to form a sinking fund for the payment of the principal. In 1870 an action was commenced by the holder of bonds, issued in compliance with the act, to enjoin the trustees from committing waste and from misappropriating the funds, charging that they had misappropriated money received, had failed to pay past-due coupons, neglected to collect the sinking fund, and were illegally conveying millions of acres of land to corporations not entitled to receive them, and had attempted to secure to a certain company a large tract of the trust lands. Injunction issued commanding the trustees to desist from disposing of the trust land, except in accordance with the act, or for any other consideration than money. Subsequently a majority of the trustees conveyed to the company a large tract of land, and a decree was entered rescinding the contracts entered into with the company, and ordering the land restored to the trust fund. Held, that as rescission of the agreements was within the general scope of the pleadings, and the company was a party, the decree ordering restoration of the lands to the trust fund was not void, and could not be questioned collaterally.—Union Trust Co. v. Southern Inland Nav. & Imp. Co., 130 U. S. 565, 9 S. Ct. 606, 32 L. Ed. 1043.

Decree of federal Circuit Court enjoining enforcement of state legislation prohibiting transportation of natural gas outside the state does not prevent enforcement of legitimate state legislation not conflicting with interstate commerce, where the decree was affirmed on the ground that complainant had a right to take natural gas out of the state for purposes of interstate commerce.—Haskell v. Kansas Natural Gas Co., 32 S. Ct. 442, 224 U. S. 217, 56 L. Ed. 738.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 435.

An act of congress vested land in trustees to dispose of, with power to pledge the fund for certain purposes, and an action was brought to enjoin the trustees from committing waste, charging that the trustees had attempted to secure to the S. Co., also a defendant, a large tract of the lands. Injunction issued, and the bill was taken as confessed, and afterwards a majority of the trustees conveyed to the S. Co. a large tract of the land, after which the trustees appeared and answered. A decree was entered rescinding the contracts by the trustees with the S. Co. and the lands ordered restored; and the company requested that the decree be vacated, and that it be let in to defendant on the ground that it was not a party to the suit, but the application was denied and no appeal taken. Held, that the fact that the S. Co. was a party to the action, so as to be bound by the decree rescinding the contract, was established by the order denying its application.—Union Trust Co. v. Southern Inland Nav. & Imp. Co., 130 U. S. 565, 9 S. Ct. 606, 32 L. Ed. 1043.

A decree enjoining state officers from seizing, under authority of an unconstitutional statute, liquors imported by complainants, should be limited to the officers made parties to the suit, and not extended to all such officers generally, where no conspiracy between the defendants named and other unknown officers is charged.—Scott v. Donald, 17 S. Ct. 262, 165 U. S. 107, 41 L. Ed. 648, modifying decree Donald v. Scott (C. C.) 67 F. 854.

Disobedience of a decree of a state court enjoining excavation of the ship canal connecting Lake Washington with Puget Sound cannot be justified on the ground that the acts charged as a contempt were done under direction of the War Department in accordance with Acts of Congress, if the War Department had no authority to order such action.—Carlson v. State of Washington, 34 S. Ct. 717, 234 U. S. 103, 58 L. Ed. 1237, affirming judgment 120 P. 104, 66 Wash. 639.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 478.

The honest belief that when an appeal to the federal Supreme Court from a decree of a Circuit Court, dismissing a bill asking injunctive relief against the removal or destruction by municipal officers of the poles and wires of a light and power company, had been dismissed and an order of dismissal entered, there was no reason why such poles and wires should not be removed or destroyed, although not sufficient to acquit of a technical contempt of court where no mandate had issued or could have issued under the rules of the Supreme Court, may reduce the punishment to the payment of the costs of the contempt proceedings.—Merrimack River Savings Bank v. City of Clay Center, 31 S. Ct. 295, 219 U. S. 527, 55 L. Ed. 320, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 513.

¶228. Persons committing acts of violation and persons liable therefor.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 484-495.

To render a person amenable to an injunction, it is not necessary either that he should be a party to the suit or be served with notice, if he had actual notice.—Ex parte Lennon, 17 S. Ct. 658, 166 U. S. 548, 41 L. Ed. 1110, affirming judgment 64 F. 320, 12 C. C. A. 134.

¶229. Power to punish.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 496-501.

Continuing a temporary injunction pending an appeal to the federal Supreme Court from a decree of a Circuit Court, dismissing a bill asking injunctive relief, operates to continue in the Circuit Court such jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the litigation and the parties as to enable it to preserve the status quo pending the appeal, including the power to take cognizance of the violation of the injunction.—Merrimack River Savings Bank v. City of Clay

Center, 31 S. Ct. 295, 219 U. S. 527, 55 L. Ed. 320, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 513.

The willful destruction by municipal officers of the poles and wires of a light and power company, pending an appeal to the federal Supreme Court from a decree of a Circuit Court, dismissing a bill praying, among other things, an injunction to prevent such destruction until the right shall be determined, is in and of itself a contempt of the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, although such conduct may also be a violation of the temporary injunction order continued by the court below pending the appeal.—Id.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 502-516.

Where a foreign corporation has violated a restraining order, and its agent to accept service conceals himself, so that an order on the company to show cause why it should not be proceeded against for contempt cannot be served on him, it is competent for the court, under Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 187, to cause service to be had upon the attorney of record of the defendant, and proceed to hear the order to show cause.—Eureka Lake & Y. Canal Co. v. Superior Court of Yuba County, 116 U. S. 410, 6 S. Ct. 429, 29 L. Ed. 671.

The running of the three-year limitation prescribed by Rev. St. § 1044 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 725), for criminal prosecutions to punish criminal contempts of an injunction against a boycott, began as to each specific act charged from the date of the commission of such act.—Gompers v. United States, 34 S. Ct. 693, 233 U. S. 604, 58 L. Ed. 1115, Ann. Cas. 1915D, 1044, reversing judgment In re Gompers, 40 App. D. C. 293.

Proceedings to punish acts not committed in the presence of the court as criminal contempts of an injunction are none the less governed by the three-year limitation of Rev. St. § 1044 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 725), because such proceedings may not be instituted by indictment or information.—Id.

The federal Supreme Court would prescribe by analogy a three-year limitation for proceedings to punish past acts not committed in the presence of the court as criminal contempts of an injunction, if the case were not covered by Rev. St. § 1044 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 725).—Id.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 517; 2 Cent. Dig. App. & E. § 680.

A decree adjudging each defendant guilty of the independent acts set out in separate paragraphs of a petition charging them with contempt of an injunction order, and consolidating sentence without indicating how much of the punishment was imposed for the disobedience in any particular instance, should be reversed if it appears that the defendants have been sentenced on any charge which, in law or in fact, does not constitute a disobedience of the injunction.—(1911) Gompers v. Buck's Stove & Range Co., 31 S. Ct. 492, 221 U. S. 418, 55 L. Ed. 797, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 874, reversing judgment (1909) 33 App. D. C. 516.

A judgment of fine or imprisonment for an alleged criminal contempt is not reviewable by appeal.—Gompers v. United States, 34 S. Ct. 693, 233 U. S. 604, 58 L. Ed. 1115, Ann. Cas. 1915D, 1044, reversing judgment In re Gompers, 40 App. D. C. 293.

¶232. Punishment.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 519-523.

A punitive sentence appropriate only to a proceeding at law for criminal contempt where the contempt consisted in doing that which had been prohibited by an injunction could not properly be imposed in contempt proceedings which were instituted, entitled, tried, and, up to the moment of sentence, treated, as a part of the original cause in equity.—(1911) Gompers v. Buck's Stove & Range Co., 31 S. Ct. 492, 221 U. S. 418, 55 L. Ed. 797, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 874, reversing judgment (1909) 33 App. D. C. 516.

A proceeding in equity for civil contempt consisting in doing that which was forbidden by an injunction, where the only remedial relief possible was a fine payable to the complainant, must be dismissed without prejudice to the power and right of the court granting the injunction to punish for contempt by proper proceedings, where there has been a complete settlement between the parties of all the matters involved in the original equity cause.—Id.

Under an order of the United States district court that a bond be given by plaintiffs "to save the parties harmless from the effects of the injunction issued in this cause," a bond was given, conditioned to pay "to the said * * * defendant in said injunction all such damages as he may recover against us, in case it should be decided that the said writ of injunction was wrongfully issued." Held, that the bond should be construed to mean that such damages would be paid as the obligee should recover by a suit on the bond itself, and that, thus construed, the bond was valid and conformable to the order, and covered all damages arising from the wrongful issue of the injunction.—Meyers v. Block, 120 U. S. 206, 7 S. Ct. 525, 30 L. Ed. 642.

Liability on an undertaking required as a condition of granting the restraining order authorized by Rev. St. U. S. § 718 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 580], pending decision upon a motion for a temporary injunction, ceases when a new and permanent injunction is granted without reference to the restraining order, which is by its terms to be in force "until further order, to be made, if at all, after a hearing." Decree Cortelyou v. Houghton (1906) 27 App. D. C. 188, modified.—Houghton v. Cortelyou, 28 S. Ct. 234, 208 U. S. 149, 52 L. Ed. 432.

An undertaking accompanying a temporary restraining order directed against "the defendants and each of them" inures to the benefit of all the defendants who were included in that order, although the undertaking is expressed to be one "to make good to the defendant all damages by him suffered," where it was exacted by the court, was offered by the complainant at a time when none of the defendants knew of the pendency of the suit, and shows in its title that there was more than one defendant. Decree (1906) 28 App. D. C. 271, affirmed.—Hutchins

v. Munn, 28 S. Ct. 504, 209 U. S. 246, 52 L. Ed. 776.

The owner of the property is entitled to the benefit of an undertaking exacted by the court as a condition of granting an order temporarily restraining the continuance of the erection of an addition to a dwelling, where, although such owner was never served with subpoena or notice, either of the order to show cause or of the restraining order, such order was observed until dissolved, and inflicted injury upon her rights.—Id.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 533-605.

§247. — Time to sue and limitations.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 555.

The withdrawal by stipulation of the only part of a case which can sustain an injunction is the equivalent of a final determination against the right to an injunction, for the purpose of creating a right of action on the injunction bond, notwithstanding the fact that an appeal may be taken from the decree rendered in that part of the case which is not dismissed. Judgment, 60 P. 749, 61 Kan. 650, reversed.—Tullock v. Mulvane, 22 S. Ct. 372, 184 U. S. 497, 46 L. Ed. 657.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 533-536; 15 Cent. Dig. Damag. § 204.

Attorney's fees cannot be allowed as damages on an injunction bond given in a federal court. Judgment, Elliott v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co., 77 Mo. App. 652, reversed.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Elliott, 22 S. Ct. 446, 184 U. S. 530, 46 L. Ed. 673.

The value of the use of the dwelling for the period and season during which the owner was deprived of it as the direct result of the wrongful use of an order temporarily restraining the continuance of the erection of an addition is the proper measure of damages recoverable upon the undertaking to make good the resulting injury, exacted by the court as a condition of granting the order. Decree (1906) 28 App. D. C. 271, affirmed.—Hutchins v. Munn, 28 S. Ct. 504, 209 U. S. 246, 52 L. Ed. 776.

IX. WRONGFUL INJUNCTION.

§257. Nature and grounds of liability.

See 27 Cent. Dig. Inj. § 606.

Without a bond or other obligation for the payment of damages, a party against whom an injunction wrongfully issues can recover nothing but costs unless he can make out a case of malicious prosecution.—Meyers v. Block, 120 U. S. 206, 7 S. Ct. 525, 30 L. Ed. 642.

As under the insolvency laws of Louisiana, as interpreted by the supreme court of that state, when a cessio bonorum has been made by the debtor for the benefit of the creditors, and accepted by the court and the creditors, and a syndic has been appointed and qualified, all the property and rights of property of the insolvent are vested in his creditors, represented by the syndic as their trustee, and pass to the creditors by the cession, whether included in the debtor's schedule or not, the creditors' right to certain property of the debtor cannot be affected by the fact that he did not intend to surrender it, or that the cessio as accepted recited that it was the property of his wife.—Geilinger v. Philippi, 133 U. S. 246, 10 S. Ct. 266, 33 L. Ed. 614.

—56. — Partnership and individual property.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insolv. § 71.

A surrender of assets by the surviving partners of an insolvent firm in Louisiana, though ineffectual to carry the interest of the deceased partner, which on his death vested in his heirs, is valid as to the interests of the survivors; and, if, accepted by the court by the appointment of a syndic to administer, will have the effect to suspend the proceedings of firm creditors against the firm assets, under the insolvent law (Voorhies' Rev. Laws La. 1884, pp. 279-289), and an attachment issued by the United States court is properly dissolved, under Rev. St. U. S. § 933, providing that attachment from federal courts shall be dissolved whenever, upon like contingency, an attachment from a state court would be dissolved.—Tua v. Carriere, 117 U. S. 201, 6 S. See 28 Cent. Dig. Insolv. § 74, 78.

The court of commissioners of Alabama claims gave judgment for a person who had previously been declared an insolvent debtor under the Massachusetts law. A draft in satisfaction of this judgment, payable to the debtor's order, was received in Boston by his attorney. A few days thereafter the debtor died intestate, and the attorney received payment of the draft, acting under power of attorney from the widow, who took out letters of administration in the District of Columbia. All the parties were citizens of Massachusetts. Held, that the debtor's claim and its proceeds were within the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, and the right to them there vested in the assignee in insolvency before the debtor's death.—Butler v. Goreley, 146 U. S. 303, 13 S. Ct. 84, 36 L. Ed. 981, affirming judgment Goreley v. Butler, 147 Mass. 8, 16 N. E. 734.

Preference affecting validity of conveyance as to creditors, see Fraudulent Conveyances, 115-126.

61. Preferences.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insolv. § 79-95.

An insolvent has no standing to object that the effect of Code Md. 1888, art. 47, §§ 14, 22, providing that certain preferential conveyances by an insolvent shall be bad was to deprive persons of property without due process of law, he having parted with his title to the property in controversy by his conveyance, and having no right to avail himself of objections to the validity of proceedings under the state insolvency law affecting the rights of creditors preferred by the conveyance.—Brown v. Smart, 145 U. S. 454, 12 S. Ct. 953, 36 L. Ed. 773, affirming judgment 69 Md. 320, 14 A. 468, 17 A. 1101.

A statute declaring invalid preferential transfers of property by an insolvent debtor to one having cause to believe him insolvent, and providing that the fact that the transfer is not made in the usual and ordinary course of business shall be prima facie evidence of such cause of belief, does not attach the presumption of such belief to the mere taking of property as security for an antecedent debt, but limits it to cases where the nature of the transaction renders it one not in the ordinary course of the debtor's business.—McClellan v. Chipman, 17 S. Ct. 85, 164 U. S. 347, 41 L. Ed. 461.

66. Liens acquired by legal proceedings.

68. — Attachment or garnishment.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insolv. § 101, 103.

As the destination of the property of an insolvent, situate in the jurisdiction within which proceedings against him are taken, is fixed by the laws of that jurisdiction, and in Louisiana the rights of the creditors, as represented by the syndic, attach from the time of the acceptance of the cessio, the rights of a foreign judgment creditor under a levy on the debtor's property, after the acceptance of the cessio, but before possession is taken by the syndic, are subordinate to those of the creditors represented by the syndic.—Gellinger v. Philippi, 133 U. S. 246, 10 S. Ct. 266, 33 L. Ed. 614.

70. — Proceedings in other states or countries.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insolv. § 104.

A citizen of New Hampshire is not precluded by an assignment in insolvency proceedings had in Massachusetts from attaching goods of the insolvent found in Louisiana.—Reynolds v. Adden, 136 U. S. 348, 10 S. Ct. 843, 34 L. Ed. 360.

Laws Minn. 1881, c. 148, authorizing an assignment by an insolvent for the benefit of such of his creditors as should accept it and file releases of their claims, is in effect a bankrupt law, and an assignment thereunder does not operate to transfer title to the debtor's property, located in a foreign state, to the assignee, as against nonassenting creditors who attached such property after notice of the assignment.—Security Trust Co. v. Dodd, 19 S. Ct. 545, 173 U. S. 624, 43 L. Ed. 835.

The provision of the Massachusetts statute, retroactively vacating attachments, does not control attachments levied in other states at a time when, under the Massachusetts insolvent law, the insolvent had not, by operation of law, been deprived of the dominion and control over his credits. Judgment Cross v. Brown, 33 A. 147, 19 R. I. 220, affirmed.—King v. Cross, 20 S. Ct. 181, 175 U. S. 396, 44 L. Ed. 211.

A state statute imposing an inspection fee upon beer or other malt liquors shipped from other states into that state, and held there for sale and consumption therein, must, although producing a revenue, and not providing for an adequate inspection, be deemed enacted by the state "in the exercise of its police powers," within the meaning of Wilson Act Aug. 8, 1890, c.

728, 26 Stat. 818 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3177], subjecting to laws so enacted all intoxicating liquors arriving in the state, where the highest state court has upheld as a valid police regulation so much of the statute as imposes the same fee on beer of domestic manufacture over the objection that it is a revenue measure, and not an inspection law. ¶3. Power to control and regulate.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 3.

The privilege of doing business as an insurer is a franchise, subject to regulation by the state.—Orient Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Daggs, 19 S. Ct. 281, 172 U. S. 557, 43 L. ¶4. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 4.

The nonforfeiture provisions of Rev. St. Mo. 1899, §§ 5856-5859, 7897-7900, cannot without denying the right of freedom of contract, given by Const. U. S. Amend. 14, be applied to invalidate a loan agreement made in New York between a life insurance corporation of that state and the beneficiary, a resident of New Mexico, and the settlement effected in New York under such agreement in conformity to the New York laws, though the original contract was made in Missouri, though its laws provided that such company should be subject to the laws of Missouri as if it were a domestic corporation.—New York Life Ins. Co. v. Head, 34 S. Ct. 879, 234 U. S. 149, 58 L. Ed. 1259, reversing judgment Head v. New York Life Ins. Co., 147 S. W. 827, 241 Mo. 403; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Head, 34 S. Ct. 883, 234 U. A foreign insurance company is not denied constitutional rights because the state insurance commissioner, under Act S. C. March 8, 1910 (26 St. at Large, p. 774) § 13, has refused to accept bond of surety company on insurance company's application for license.—State of South Carolina ex rel. Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. McMaster, 35 S. Ct. 504, 237 U. S. 63, 59 L. Ed. 839, affirming judgment State ex rel. Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Same, 77 S. E. 401, 94 S. C. 379.

¶15. Foreign underwriters or companies and their agents.

¶16. — What constitutes "doing business."

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 17.

A foreign insurance company is doing business within the state, so far as the question of the power of a federal court, sitting in that state, to obtain jurisdiction over such corporation, is concerned, where, under the terms of its policies covering property in that state, it sends its agents there to adjust losses.—Pennsylvania Lumbermen's Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Meyer, 25 S. Ct. 483, 197 U. S. 407, 49 L. Ed. 810.

The receipt by a foreign insurance company at its home office of premiums upon policies theretofore issued, together with four isolated acts extending over a period of three years, consisting in rewriting an existing policy, sending a check in payment of a policy, to be delivered upon receipt of certain unpaid assessments, and two adjustments within the state of claims which have accrued, do not constitute doing business within the state after the company's asserted withdrawal therefrom in good faith, so as to preclude it from revoking its designation of the state insurance commissioner as its agent to receive service of process.—(1910) Hunter v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 31 S. Ct. 127, 218 U. S. 573, 54 L. Ed. 1155, 30 L. R. A. (N. S.) 686, affirming judgment (1906) 78 N. E. 1072, 184 N. Y. 136, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 291.

Continuance of obligation of existing policies in foreign life insurance company held by resident policy holders, together with receipt of premiums at home office, is not doing business within the state justifying privilege tax imposed under Ky. St. 1909, § 4226.—Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc. v. Commonwealth of Kentucky, 36 S. Ct. 34, 239 U. S. 103, 60 L. Ed. 167, L. R. A. 1916C, 572, reversing judgment 169 S. W. 551, 160 Ky. 18.

¶20. — Local authority or license and license fees or taxes.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 16, 18-22.

As the laws of Arkansas establish a distinct system for foreign insurance companies (Mansf. Dig. Ark. c. 83), which are required by section 3834 to file with the auditor a stipulation that service of process may be made on an agent specified by the company, such companies are not included in Act Ark. April 4, 1887, c. 135, requiring foreign corporations to file with the secretary of state a certificate designating an agent to receive service of process for the corporation.—St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Commercial Union Ins. Co., 139 U. S. 223, 11 S. Ct. 554, 35 L. Ed. 154.

¶22. — Appointment and regulation of local agents.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 26.

A foreign insurance company, upon withdrawing from the state in good faith, to escape the compulsion of Act N. C. Feb. 10, 1899 (Laws 1899, c. 62), requiring it to become a domestic corporation if it desires to continue to do business in the state, may revoke its appointment of the state insurance commissioner as its agent to receive service of process, so far as claims of citizens of other states are concerned, which are assigned after such withdrawal to a resident of the state for collection, although Laws N. C. 1899, c. 54, continues the authority of the commissioner in force and irrevocable so long as any liability of the company shall remain outstanding in the state.—(1910) Hunter v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 31 S. Ct. 127, 218 U. S. 573, 54 L. Ed. 1155, 30 L. R. A. (N. S.) 686, affirming judgment (1906) 76 N. E. 1072, 184 N. Y. 186, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 291.

27. Penalties for violations of regulation.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 34, 35.

30. Offenses by officers, agents, or brokers.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 35.

Insurance brokers, having their principal place of business outside the state, had a place of business within the state, and defendant, as their agent and employe, had charge of their business at the latter place. A resident of the state applied to him for insurance, which fact he communicated to the brokers outside the state, who placed the insurance in a foreign company, which had not complied with the insurance laws of the state, and forwarded the policy to defendant. Defendant delivered the policy and collected the premium. Held that, the brokers being agents of the company as well as of assured, defendant procured the insurance within the state, within Pen. Code Cal. § 439.—Hooper v. People of State of California, 155 U. S. 648, 15 S. Ct. 207, 39 L. Ed. 297.

An assignment by an insolvent insurance company to a company in another state does not carry a fund deposited with the treasurer of the state where the assignor was organized, in compliance with statutes of that state, as security for its citizens. Such a fund remains subject to attachment by citizens of the state in suits against the company.—Lovell v. St. Louis Mut. Life Ins. Co., 111 U. S. 264, 4 S. Ct. 390, 28 L. Ed. 423.

The fact that the children of the holder of an endowment policy in an insolvent insurance company have an interest in such policy contingent on the holder's death will not preclude him from setting off the equitable value of the policy against his liability on a mortgage given to the company, since his interest and the interests of the children are susceptible of accurate computation, and the settlement of the affairs of the company cannot be postponed to await the determination of every contingency on which its engagements depend.—Carr v. Hamilton, 129 U. S. 252, 9 S. Ct. 295, 32 L. Ed. 669.

The holder of an endowment policy in an insolvent insurance company is entitled to set off its equitable value against his liability on a mortgage given to the company.—Id.

The fact that the holder of an endowment policy in an insolvent insurance company is a trustee for his children to whom the policy is payable in case of his death, to the amount of their contingent interests, does not preclude him from setting off the equitable value of the policy against his liability on a mortgage given to the company, the respective interest of the holder and his children being susceptible of determination, and he not being a trustee for himself.—Id.

Civ. Code La. art. 2209, provides that "compensation takes place only between two debts having equally for their object a sum of money, * * * and which are equally liquidated and demandable [exigible, i. e., due]." Code Prac. art. 375, as amended by act of 1839, provides "that when the plaintiff resides out of the state * * * defendant may institute a demand in reconvention against him for any cause, although such demand be not necessarily connected with, or incidental to, the main cause of the action." Held, that though the demand of the holder of an endowment policy in an insolvent insurance company may have been objectionable as not technically due at the date of the company's insolvency, when set up by way of compensation against the holder's liability on a mortgage given to the company, it might have been allowed in reconvention, the plaintiff being a nonresident.—Id.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 49, 54, 55.

53. — Changing to joint-stock company.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 49.

A reservation of the right of amendment in the articles of association of a life insurance company, except with regard to keeping intact the fund pledged to secure payment of death losses, empowers the company to bind its members by a change in its plan of doing business from the assessment plan to the legal reserve, flat premium plan of "old line" insurance.—(Sup.) Wright v. Minnesota Mut. Life Ins. Co., 24 S. Ct. 549, 193 U. S. 657, 48 L. Ed. 832; (C. C.) Iversen v. Same, 137 F. 268.

59. Profits, dividends, and surplus.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 47, 77; 1 Cent. Dig. Acct. § 19.

Wrongdoing by the officers and directors of a mutual life company gives no jurisdiction for an accounting as between the company and a policy holder, in the absence of any trust relation between them. Decree (1907) Brown v. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States, 151 F. 1, 81 C. C. A. 1, 10 Ann. Cas. 402, reversed.—Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Brown, 29 S. Ct. 404, 213 U. S. 25, 53 L. Ed. 682.

There is no trust relation in New York between a mutual life insurance company and a policy holder entitled to participate equitably in the distribution of the surplus according to such methods and principles as shall be adopted by the company.—Id.

Frauds and mismanagement by the officers and directors of a mutual life company do not entitle a policy holder to an accounting and distribution of the surplus in any other manner, or at any other time, or in any other amounts, than as provided for in the contract, where, by such contract, he is entitled to participate equitably in the distribution of some part of the surplus, according to such principles and methods as shall be adopted by the company.—Id.

Waste and misappropriation of the moneys of a mutual life company by its officers or directors before such moneys reach the surplus fund, and before any distribution to policy holders is made, do not authorize a suit in equity to establish a trust in favor of a policy holder, in the absence of any trust relation between the company and the policy holder resulting from the policy.—Id.

61. Insolvency and dissolution.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 54-58.

63. — Rights and liabilities of members on insolvency.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 56-58.

An insolvent insurance company transferred its assets, under order of court, to another company, which undertook to reinsure all the risks of the insolvent company. Held, that the holder of a policy could not be required to continue his insurance with the assignee, but might treat the assignment as a rescission of the contract with the assignor, and recover from it whatever is justly due. The measure of damages in such a case is not the amount of the premiums actually paid, but only the value of the policy at the time of its surrender.—Lovell v. St. Louis Mut. Life Ins. Co., 111 U. S. 264, 4 S. Ct. 390, 28 L. Ed. 423.

⚡—68. — Grounds for forfeiture of franchise or dissolution.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 91.

The fact that the stockholders in a mutual life company claim in a pending suit to own the entire surplus, which claim the company fails to deny, does not authorize a suit in equity by a policy holder entitled to participate equitably in the distribution of the surplus according to methods and principles adopted by the company for an accounting and the appointment of a receiver to wind up its affairs, based upon mismanagement and misappropriation by its officers and directors. Decree (1907) Brown v. Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States, 151 F. 1, 81 C. C. A. 1, 10 Ann. Cas. 402, reversed.—Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Brown, 29 S. Ct. 404, 213 U. S. 25, 53 L. Ed. 682.

A court of equity is bound to take all the facts into consideration, and to weigh the relative advantages and disadvantages of granting an accounting and appointing a receiver to wind up the business of a mutual life insurance company at the suit of a policy holder because of the wrongdoing of its former officers and directors, assuming that jurisdiction exists to grant such relief.—Id.

The appointment of a receiver and a real, though not formal, dissolution of a mutual life company, and the distribution of its assets, cannot be had at the instance of a policy holder entitled to participate equitably in the distribution of the surplus, because the surplus fund is not as large as it should have been, owing to the misconduct of the company's officers, and because the company has not distributed as much of the surplus as complainant deems himself entitled to, by reason of such misconduct, where no trust relation exists between the policy holder and the company, and no claim is made that the apportionment made is inequitable as between the policy holders, or is based upon erroneous principles.—Id.

No case for an accounting or for the appointment of a receiver to wind up a mutual life company is made by allegations of insolvency contained in a bill filed by a policy holder, which are based upon the idea that the company itself is liable to policy holders for frauds or wrongdoing committed by the officers or directors against the company, and in their personal interests.—Id.

IV. INSURABLE INTEREST.

⚡—115. What constitutes interest in property.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 139-157, 177.

Where a company received cotton to compress, and issued receipts therefor, which were exchanged with a railroad company for its bills of lading for the transportation of the cotton, agreeing to deliver it at an address specified in the bills of lading, the railroad company has an insurable interest in the cotton, which may be covered by a policy issued to the compress company.—California Ins. Co. v. Union Compress Co., 133 U. S. 387, 10 S. Ct. 365, 33 L. Ed. 730.

The provision in the railroad companies' bills of lading that they shall not be liable for loss by fire does not relieve them from liability for loss arising from their own negligence or that of their servants, and against such latter loss they may insure themselves.—Id.

Defendant issued to plaintiff a policy of insurance on cotton owned by the latter, or held by it in trust or on commission. When cotton was delivered to it, plaintiff gave receipts therefor to the owners, who delivered the receipts to certain railroad companies. There was a standing agreement between plaintiff and the companies that, from the time bills of lading were issued by the latter for the transportation of the cotton, plaintiff should keep the cotton insured for the benefit of the companies. Held, upon the destruction of cotton by fire after the bills of lading were issued, that the right of recovery upon such policy is not affected by a provision in the receipts that plaintiff should not be responsible for losses by fire, where the railroad companies paid plaintiff for insuring the cotton under their agreement, and defendant knew of such payment.—Id.

Persons who, by a valid written contract, agree to purchase goods to be shipped by a certain vessel with a provision, "No arrival, no sale," have an insurable interest in the goods, which renders the master of the vessel, in case of necessity, their agent, as well as the agent of the seller and of the insurer.—Harrison v. Fortlage, 161 U. S. 57, 16 S. Ct. 488, 40 L. Ed. 616.

The owner of unused internal revenue stamps has an insurable interest therein though he may be able to reimburse himself from the government in case of their loss before being used.—United States v. American Tobacco Co., 17 S. Ct. 619, 166 U. S. 468, 41 L. Ed. 1081.

⚡—116. What constitutes interest in human life or health.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 153-162.

Where one of two members of a partnership, by the terms of which the capital was to have been contributed in equal proportions, has furnished all of it, he has an insurable interest in the life of his partner.—Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Luchs, 108 U. S. 498, 2 S. Ct. 949, 27 L. Ed. 800.

⚡—121. Necessity of interest to sustain assignment.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 166, 167.

The holder of a valid policy of insurance upon his own life may, as a matter of financial necessity, make a valid assignment of the policy to a person having no insurable interest in the life of the insured in consideration of a small sum of money and an undertaking to pay the premiums due and to become due, and the assignee takes the entire interest in the policy, as against the personal representatives of the insured.—(1911) Grigsby v. Russell, 32 S. Ct. 58, 222 U. S. 149, 56 L. Ed. 133, 36 L. R. A. (N. S.) 642, Ann. Cas. 1913B, 863, reversing decree Russell v. Grigsby, 168 F. 577, 94 C. C. A. 61.

A clause in a policy of life insurance that any claim against the company arising under any assignment of the policy shall be subject to proof of interest does not diminish the rights of an assignee with no insurable interest, as against the personal representatives of the insured, if there is no rule of law to that effect, and the company sees fit to pay.—Id.

V. THE CONTRACT IN GENERAL.

(A) NATURE, REQUISITES, AND VALIDITY.

125. What law governs.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 173-175.

A contract of marine insurance made by an English company, in this country, upon a cargo to be exported to Portugal, which specially provides that in case of loss the amount of damages are to be paid at the office of the company in London, the adjustment to be made according to the usages of Lloyds, being a contract to be performed in England, is governed by the English law.—London Assurance v. Companhia De Moagens Do Barreiro, 17 S. Ct. 785, 167 U. S. 149, 42 L. Ed. 113, affirming decree 68 F. 247, 15 C. C. A. 379.

A certificate of insurance issued in Illinois to a resident of New York, which, by its terms, was first to take effect as a binding obligation when the insured should execute the agreement indorsed thereon to accept it, "subject to all the conditions therein contained," is a New York, and not an Illinois, contract, where New York was the state in which the required agreement was executed. Judgments, Meyer v. Supreme Lodge K. P., 70 N. E. 111, 178 N. Y. 63, 64 L. R. A. 839, and 81 N. Y. S. 813, 82 App. Div. 359, affirmed.—Supreme Lodge K. P. v. Meyer, 25 S. Ct. 754, 198 U. S. 508, 49 L. Ed. 1146.

136. Delivery and acceptance of policy.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 219-230.

When the assured receives his policy of insurance, with a copy of his application attached, on which is indorsed a memorandum calling attention to such application, and a request that he report to the company for correction any errors found therein, it is his duty to obey the request, and upon failure so to do he must be presumed to have accepted the policy upon the faith of the answers, and to have acquiesced and agreed that it should remain as the basis of the contract of insurance.—New York Life Ins. Co. v. Fletcher, 117 U. S. 519, 6 S. Ct. 837, 29 L. Ed. 934, reversing (C. C.) Fletcher v. New York Life Ins. Co., 14 F. 846.

The operative effect of a policy of fire insurance may, by oral agreement, between the agents, respectively, of the insurance company and the insured, made at the time the policy was issued, be made to depend upon the company's acceptance of the risk, notwithstanding various provisions of the policy restricting the powers of agents to alter its terms, and requiring all additional terms and conditions to be indorsed thereon in writing, as such provisions apply only when the contract has been completed by an absolute delivery. Judgment, Wilson v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 17 App. D. C. 14, reversed.—Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Wilson, 23 S. Ct. 189, 187 U. S. 467, 47 L. Ed. 261.

138. Validity in general.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 246-249.

The holder of a policy of life insurance, procured through the fraud of the company's agent, is not justified in retaining such policy after having knowledge of the fraud, simply because such knowledge did not come to him until after payment by him of the first premium, and the delivery to him of the policy.—New York Life Ins. Co. v. Fletcher, 117 U. S. 519, 6 S. Ct. 837, 29 L. Ed. 934, reversing (C. C.) Fletcher v. New York Life Ins. Co., 14 F. 846.

139. Legality of object.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 250, 251.

A person heavily indebted for trust funds which he had appropriated, and carrying insurance in excess of an amount warranted by his income, contracted for a large amount of additional insurance, and, in less than a year thereafter, committed suicide. Just before his death he prepared a statement of his business affairs, and, on the day preceding his suicide, acknowledged his indebtedness, and declared that it must be paid, and that his life furnished the only means of satisfaction, and his intention to make the sacrifice. Held not error to refuse an instruction that there was no evidence to show that the additional insurance was contracted with the intention of defrauding the company, or committing suicide. Judgment 70 F. 954, 17 C. C. A. 537, 42 L. R. A. 583, affirmed.—Ritter v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 18 S. Ct. 300, 169 U. S. 139, 42 L. Ed. 693.

141. Estoppel or waiver as to defects or objections.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 75, 253-262; 12 Cent. Dig. Corp. § 1556.

The omission of the insured to read a life insurance policy when delivered to him and payment of premiums made, and when, in answer to his inquiry, the insurance agent told him that the policy conformed to their agreement, does not constitute such negligence as to estop the insured from denying that by accepting the policy he agreed to a provision therein contained, but of which he was ignorant and to which he had not agreed, to the effect that the annual premium should be paid in subsequent years on a date earlier than that on which the policy was issued. Judgments (C. C.) 90 F. 40, and 99 F. 856, 40 C. C. A. 119, reversed.—McMaster v. New York Life Ins. Co., 22 S. Ct. 10, 183 U. S. 25, 46 L. Ed. 64.

143. Reformation.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 265-272.

Where by inadvertence an insurance policy is made to run to "K., Receiver," while it was the agreement of the parties that it should run to such receiver and his successors, and for the benefit of whom it might concern, equity will reform the policy to effect the latter intention.—Thompson v. Phenix Ins. Co., 136 U. S. 287, 10 S. Ct. 1019, 34 L. Ed. 408.

(B) CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION.

Decisions of state court effect in federal courts, see Courts, 365.

Taxation of loans on policies, see Taxation, 95.

146. Application of general rules of construction.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 292, 294-298.

The contract expressed in an employee's fidelity bond is a form of insurance, and any ambiguity is to be construed most strongly against the company.—American Surety Co. of New York v. Pauly, 18 S. Ct. 552, 170 U. S. 133, 42 L. Ed. 977, affirming judgment 72 F. 470, 18 C. C. A. 644.

The rules established for the construction of written instruments apply to contracts of insurance equally with other contracts. Judgment 94 F. 314, 36 C. C. A. 265, affirmed.—Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. v. Kearney, 21 S. Ct. 326, 180 U. S. 132, 45 L. Ed. 460.

A contract of insurance prepared by an insurance company will be construed liberally as against the insured and strictly as against the company.—Id.

A policy of insurance being a contract for indemnity, an ambiguity in it must be construed in favor of indemnity and against a forfeiture.—McMaster v. New York Life Ins. Co., 22 S. Ct. 10, 183 U. S. 25, 46 L. Ed. 64, reversing judgment 99 F. 856, 40 C. C. A. 119.

The rule that, of two constructions of a bond executed by a guaranty company to secure a bank against defalcation by an employee, the one favorable to the bank, if consistent with the objects for which the bond was given, must be adopted, cannot be availed of to refine away terms of a contract expressed with sufficient clearness to convey the plain meaning of the parties, and embodying requirements compliance with which is made the condition to liability thereon. Decree, 100 F. 559, 40 C. C. A. 542, reversed.—Guarantee Co. of North America v. Mechanics' Sav. Bank & Trust Co., 22 S. Ct. 124, 183 U. S. 402, 46 L. Ed. 253.

—147. What law governs.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 293.

A policy of life insurance executed at company's office in Wisconsin held a Virginia contract, where application was made by a resident of the latter state at a place in that state, where the policy was delivered to him.—(1912) Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. McCue, 32 S. Ct. 220, 223 U. S. 234, 56 L. Ed. 419, 38 L. R. A. (N. S.) 57, reversing judgment (1908) McCue v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 167 F. 435, 93 C. C. A. 71.

—149. Printed and written portions of policy.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 301-304.

The words, "for account of whom it may concern," inserted in writing immediately following the name of the insured in a policy of marine insurance, protect a subsequent vendee of an interest in the vessel, notwithstanding the retention of the policy, which is written on a blank intended for insurance of property on land, of the printed clause that such policy shall be entirely void, unless otherwise provided by agreement, if any change in interest, title, or possession shall be made. Judgment Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Hagan, 102 F. 919, 43 C. C. A. 55, reversed.—Hagan v. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co., 22 S. Ct. 862, 186 U. S. 423, 46 L. Ed. 1229.

—151. Construing together policy and accompanying papers.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 308-311.

A notice, upon the back of a premium receipt, that, if a note is given for payment of premium and is not paid at maturity, the policy shall determine, constitutes a part of the contract of insurance, where such receipt states on its face that it is subject to the terms of the contract and the conditions on the back, which the assured is directed to read.—Iowa Life Ins. Co. v. Lewis, 23 S. Ct. 126, 187 U. S. 335, 47 L. Ed. 204.

—152. Construing statutes and character, by-laws, or rules of insurer as part of policy.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 312.

An agreement in an application for a policy of insurance issued on the assessment plan, to abide by the constitution, rules, and regulations of the company as they then were or might be constitutionally changed thereafter, did not amount to a consent to such changes which on their face indicated that they applied only to policies thereafter to be issued. Judgment 104 F. 638, 44 C. C. A. 93, affirmed.—Knights Templars' & Masons' Life Indemnity Co. v. Jarman, 23 S. Ct. 108, 187 U. S. 197, 47 L. Ed. 139.

—154. Construction by parties.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 315.

A statement in an application for insurance of the insured's understanding of what the insurance "will extend to" is a statement of law, and not of fact, and cannot control the legal construction of the policy; the latter referring to the application only in mentioning the "warranties made in the application" as the consideration, in part, for the insurance.—Accident

Ins. Co. v. Crandal, 120 U. S. 527, 7 S. Ct. 685, 30 L. Ed. 740, affirming judgment (C. C.) Crandal v. Accident Ins. Co., 27 F. 40.

—155. Evidence to aid construction.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 313, 354.

Evidence as to what kind of insurance was intended by the question in an application as to whether the applicant had any other insurance on his life is not excluded by a provision, which is made a part of the contract, to the effect that none of the terms of such contract can be modified, nor any forfeiture under it waived, except by an agreement in writing, signed by the president or secretary of the company.—Continental Life Ins. Co. v. Chamberlain, 132 U. S. 304, 10 S. Ct. 87, 33 L. Ed. 341.

—156. Parties to contract and relations between them.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 316-322.

Where a policy issued upon the life of one member of a firm acknowledges receipt of the first premium from his co-partner, and provides for the payment of "the said sum insured to the said assured" within 90 days after proof of death, and the parol evidence shows that the insurance was effected for the benefit of the co-partner, suit on the policy is properly brought in his name.—Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Luchs, 108 U. S. 498, 2 S. Ct. 949, 27 L. Ed. 800.

A policy of marine insurance, taken out in the name of a person "for account of whom it may concern," covers the interest of the person for whom it was intended by the party taking out the insurance, even though the particular person intended is not then known. Judgment Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Hagan, 102 F. 919, 43 C. C. A. 55, reversed.—Hagan v. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co., 22 S. Ct. 862, 186 U. S. 423, 46 L. Ed. 1229.

—158. Subjects of marine insurance.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 327-337.

—159. — In general.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 337-335.

A vessel, whose home port was known to the insurer to be New Orleans, was insured "to navigate the Atlantic Ocean between Europe and America." A clause of the policy was: "Warranted by the assured not to use port or ports in eastern Mexico, Texas, nor Yucatan, or anchorage thereof, during the continuance of this insurance, nor ports in West India Islands between July 15th and October 15th, nor ports on the northeast coast of Great Britain beyond the Thames, nor ports on the continent of Europe north of Antwerp, between November 1st and March 1st." The vessel was lost on a voyage from New Orleans to Liverpool, in the Gulf of Mexico. Held, that the vessel was covered by the insurance at the time of the loss; the language of the policy describing the trade in which she was engaged, rather than confining the insurance to those portions of her voyages which were in the Atlantic.—Merchants' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Allen, 121 U. S. 67, 7 S. Ct. 821, 30 L. Ed. 858.

—161. Property covered by insurance against fire or other cause of loss.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 338-353.

—164. — Description of title or interest.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 347-350.

Where, by the terms of a policy, a compress company was insured as to property thereon or held by them in trust or on commission, such clause cannot be limited to property held by the company in trust for an absolute owner, but will cover the insurable interest of a railroad company which had changed its bills of lading for the receipts given by the compress company agreeing to deliver the cotton to an address specified in such bills of lading.—California Ins. Co. v. Union Compress Co., 133 U. S. 387, 10 S. Ct. 365, 33 L. Ed. 730.

165. — Description of location.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 351.

A policy of insurance on a stock of sugar and molasses "deposited" in the sugar manufactory upon a sugar plantation covers sugar and molasses coming into the sugar house as a result of the manufacture of a crop which was growing when the insurance was effected, where the risk under the policy was not to attach until a date fixed at more than two months after the date of the policy.—Royal Ins. Co. v. Miller, 26 S. Ct. 46, 199 U. S. 353, 50 L. Ed. 226, followed Amadeo v. Northern Assur. Co., 26 S. Ct. 507, 201 U. S. 194, 50 L. Ed. 722.

170. Amount of insurance.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 355-361.

174. — Proceeds of assessments.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 361.

The policy provided that "the principal sum represented by the payment of two dollars by each member" in deceased's division, not to exceed a certain sum, should be paid to the policy holder's wife on the requisite proof. The by-laws stated that the object of the association was "to collect and accumulate a fund" for the payment of benefits, and that on the requisite proof an assessment should be ordered for that purpose; but the policy did not contract to make an assessment, or make payment contingent on an assessment. The complaint showed that the number of members in deceased's division would render collectible an amount in excess of the maximum sum named in the policy. Held, that defendant's contract was not to levy an assessment and pay over the proceeds, and therefore enforceable only in equity, but that plaintiff was entitled to the maximum sum, in an action at law.—United States Mut. Acc. Ass'n v. Barry, 131 U. S. 100, 9 S. Ct. 755, 33 L. Ed. 60, affirming (C. C.) Barry v. United States Mut. Acc. Ass'n, 23 F. 712.

VI. PREMIUMS, DUES, AND ASSESSMENTS.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 391-467.

Taxation of premiums, due process of law, see Constitutional Law, 283.

VII. ASSIGNMENT OR OTHER TRANSFER OF POLICY.

199. Assignability of policies.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 463.

An endowment policy payable to assured or his assigns if he should live to a specified time, or, if he should die before that time, to his legal representatives, is assignable.—Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Armstrong, 117 U. S. 591, 6 S. Ct. 877, 29 L. Ed. 997.

223. Priorities.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 493.

In an action to recover the amount due upon a policy of life insurance, held, that the plaintiff had failed to prove that an assignment by the assured, her husband, bearing the apparent date of September 19, 1872, had been made or delivered prior to an assignment by him to the insuring company, the defendant, of date June 14, 1880, and that she was not entitled to recover.—Roberts v. Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co., 7 S. Ct. 448, 120 U. S. 86, 30 L. Ed. 613.

VIII. CANCELLATION, SURRENDER, ABANDONMENT, OR RESCISSION OF POLICY.

Jurisdiction of federal courts, see Courts, 262.

229. Notice to cancel.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 500-503.

A provision in a fire policy that "any person, other than the assured, who may have procured the insurance to be taken by the company, shall be deemed to be the agent of the assured," and not of the company, in any transaction relating to the insurance, will not have the effect to render the broker who procured the insurance the agent of the assured to receive notice of the termination of the insurance, at the option of the company, under the provisions of the policy.—Grace v. American Cent. Ins. Co., 109 U. S. 278, 3 S. Ct. 207, 27 L. Ed. 932.

235. Evidence of cancellation.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 507.

Where a policy of fire insurance provides that the risk may be terminated by the company on giving notice and refunding a ratable proportion of the premium, evidence, in a suit thereon, of a local usage or custom to give such notice to the broker through whom the insurance was procured, is inadmissible.—Grace v. American Cent. Ins. Co., 109 U. S. 278, 3 S. Ct. 207, 27 L. Ed. 932.

240. Acts constituting surrender and acceptance.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 519, 522.

A policy of marine insurance dated April 5, 1880, for six months, provided: "This policy to continue in force from the date of expiration until notice is given this company of its discontinuance, the assured to pay for such privilege pro rata for the time used." October 9th the insured wrote to insurer, inclosing check for one monthly premium from October 5th to November 5th. November 6th there was a loss by a peril of the sea. Held, that the sending of the check for one month's insurance was a monthly payment, and not the notice of discontinuance provided for in the policy.—Greenwich Ins. Co. v. Providence & Stonington Steamship Co., 119 U. S. 481, 7 S. Ct. 292, 30 L. Ed. 473.

244. Repayment and recovery of premiums or paid-up value on surrender.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 194, 524-530.

Under a provision in a policy of life insurance that a default in payment of premiums shall not work a forfeiture of the policy, but the insurance may be commuted and reduced to the sum of the annual premiums paid, the insured may at any time elect to pay no more premiums, and, by notice thereof to the insurer, become entitled to a paid-up policy for the amount of premiums paid.—Lovell v. St. Louis Mut. Life Ins. Co., 111 U. S. 264, 4 S. Ct. 390, 28 L. Ed. 423.

245. Abandonment by insured or beneficiary.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 532.

An abandonment of a life insurance contract by the insured after default in payment of premiums, together with a refusal by the beneficiaries to keep the policy in life, will be conclusive against any claim on the policy.—Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Hill, 20 S. Ct. 914, 178 U. S. 347, 44 L. Ed. 1097.

246. Rescission by agreement of parties.

An abandonment and rescission of a contract of life insurance by mutual agreement of the parties after the insured is in default by nonpayment of premiums will put an end to the contract, although a forfeiture could not have been declared, by reason of the failure of the insurer to give notices required by statute. Judgment, 76 F. 617, 22 C. C. A. 425, reversed.—Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Phinney, 20 S. Ct. 906, 178 U. S. 327, 44 L. Ed. 1088.

A termination of a life insurance policy by mutual agreement, after default in the payment of premiums and the refusal of the insured to continue the policy, is conclusive against the insured, notwithstanding a statutory provision which precluded the forfeiture of the policy by reason of the default, because the notices required by the statute had not been given. Judgment 97 F. 988, 38 C. C. A. 696, reversed.—Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Sears, 20 S. Ct. 912, 178 U. S. 345, 44 L. Ed. 1096.

An agreement to terminate a policy of life insurance, made by the insured, who is also the beneficiary, after default in the payment of premiums, will end the contract.—Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Allen, 20 S. Ct. 913, 178 U. S. 351, 44 L. Ed. 1098.

IX. AVOIDANCE OF POLICY FOR MISREPRESENTATION, FRAUD, OR BREACH OF WARRANTY OR CONDITION.

(A) GROUNDS IN GENERAL

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 539.

The power of the legislature to define the public policy of the state in respect to life insurance, and to impose conditions on the transaction of business by life insurance companies within the state, is exercised without violation of the federal constitution by Rev. St. Ohio 1894, p. 1899, § 3625, providing that an answer by an applicant shall not bar recovery on the policy, unless clearly proved to be willfully false and fraudulently made and also material, and that it induced the company to issue the policy, and that the agent of the insurer had no knowledge of the falsity or fraud of such answer. Judgment, John Hancock Life Ins. Co. v. Warren, 51 N. E. 546, 59 Ohio St. 45, affirmed.—John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Warren, 21 S. Ct. 535, 181 U. S. 73, 45 L. Ed. 755.

◀252. Representations.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 533-549.

◀256. — Effect of misrepresentation.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 540, 549.

Misstatements by insured will, under Civ. Code Ga. 1910, §§ 2479, 2490, as construed by the courts of that state, avoid the policy where they are material to the risk, whether made in good faith or not.—Etina Life Ins. Co. v. Moore, 34 S. Ct. 186, 231 U. S. 543, 58 L. Ed. 356.

Misstatements made by insured will, under Civ. Code Ga. 1910, §§ 2479, 2490, as construed by the courts of that state, avoid the policy if material to the risk whether made in good faith or not.—Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Moore, 34 S. Ct. 191, 231 U. S. 560, 58 L. Ed. 367.

Material incorrect representations in application for life policy, if known to be untrue when made, invalidate the policy.—Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Hilton-Green, 36 S. Ct. 678, 241 U. S. 613, 60 L. Ed. 1202, reversing judgment 211 F. 31, 127 C. C. A. 467.

◀257. Concealment.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 550-556.

◀259. — Knowledge of facts by applicant or his agent.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 552.

In the absence of explicit, unequivocal stipulations requiring such an interpretation, it should not be inferred that the insured took a life policy with the understanding that it should be void if, at any time in the past, he was, whether conscious of the fact or not, afflicted with the diseases, or any one of them, specified in the questions propounded by the company.—Moulor v. American Life Ins. Co., 111 U. S. 335, 4 S. Ct. 466, 28 L. Ed. 447.

An applicant for life insurance, required to state, categorically, whether he had ever been afflicted with certain diseases, answered that he had not. Several of the diseases named were such that a person might have them without being conscious of the fact, and without it being in the power of any one, however learned or skillful to discover them; and other questions propounded appeared to call only for facts known to the applicant, or which he had reason to believe existed. Held, that clauses in the application and policy declaring the contract void if the answers to the questions were, in any respect, "untrue," were to be construed as requiring, as a condition precedent to a valid contract, nothing more than that the insured should observe good faith towards the insurance company, and make full, direct, and honest answers to all questions, without evasion or fraud, and without suppression, misrepresentation, or concealment of facts with which the company ought to be made acquainted.—Id.

◀263. Warranties.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 553-559.

◀264. — In general.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 553, 559, 562-566.

An application for a policy of life insurance contained a stipulation that it should form a part of the contract, and the policy purported to have been issued on the faith of the representations and answers in the application; but, while the application used the word "warranted," that word was not carried into the policy, which characterized the statements of the insured as representations. Held, that he was not liable as upon a strict warranty of such statements.—Moulor v. American Life Ins. Co., 111 U. S. 335, 4 S. Ct. 466, 28 L. Ed. 447.

◀265. — Distinction between warranties and representations.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 560.

Declarations of an insured to the medical examiner for the insurance company are not made warranties by the provision of the application that the applicant warrants that the statements in it "are true, full, and complete, * * * and are offered to the company, together with those contained in the declaration to the * * * medical examiner as a consideration for, and as the basis of, the contract."—Home Life Ins. Co. v. Fisher, 23 S. Ct. 380, 188 U. S. 726, 47 L. Ed. 667.

(B) MATTERS RELATING TO PROPERTY OR INTEREST INSURED.

◀273. Seaworthiness of vessel.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 582-588.

In the insurance of a vessel on time, the warranty of seaworthiness is complied with if the vessel be in an unexceptional condition at the commencement of the risk; and her being subsequently injured, and not properly refitted at an intermediate port, does not discharge the insurer from subsequent loss not occasioned by the omission.—Union Ins. Co. v. Smith, 124 U. S. 405, 8 S. Ct. 534, 31 L. Ed. 497.

283. Incumbrances.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 636-651.

In an application for fire insurance, a warranty concerning "incumbrances of all kinds" includes only incumbrances created by the act or consent of the parties, and not those created by law; and hence the policy is not avoided by an omission to disclose the fact that "delinquent taxes" on the premises for previous years were due and unpaid, although, by the statutes of the state, taxes are made a lien on the real estate taxed.—Hosford v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 127 U. S. 404, 8 S. Ct. 1202, 32 L. Ed. 198.

A condition in a policy of fire insurance for the unconditional and sole ownership of the property by the insured, and for the nonexistence of any chattel mortgage thereon, was broken where certain trust deeds of the property had been executed to secure payment of money, whose legal effect is practically the same as that of a chattel mortgage with power of sale. Judgment, 20 App. D. C. 48, affirmed.—Hunt v. Springfield Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 25 S. Ct. 179, 196 U. S. 47, 49 L. Ed. 381.

285. Fidelity of employes and others.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 657.

Negative answers by the president of a bank to the questions in a statement or declaration, in reliance on which a guaranty company executed a bond insuring the bank against defalcation by its cashier, "Have you known or heard anything unfavorable as to his habits or associations, past or present?" "Or of any matters concerning him about which you deem it advisable to make inquiry?"—when he had heard that such employe had been speculating, will defeat any recovery on such bond, which provided that any misstatement of any material fact in the declaration should invalidate it. Decree, 100 F. 559, 40 C. C. A. 542, reversed.—Guarantee Co. of North America v. Mechanics' Savings Bank & Trust Co., 22 S. Ct. 124, 183 U. S. 402, 46 L. Ed. 253.

The bond of a surety company, for the faithful discharge of the duties of the president of a bank, by its terms declared to be part of the bond and warranties certain statements by the assistant cashier of the bank, among them a statement that the president was not indebted to the bank, which was untrue, and was known by the assistant cashier to be untrue when he made it. Held, that this would defeat a recovery by the bank on the bond. Judgment, Willoughby v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland (1906) 85 P. 713, 18 Okl. 546, 7 L. R. A. (N. S.) 548, affirmed.—Cherry v. Fidelity & Deposit Co., 27 S. Ct. 790, 205 U. S. 537, 51 L. Ed. 920.

A bond for the faithful discharge of the duties of the president of a bank was issued by a surety company and accepted by the bank on the faith of statements made by the assistant cashier concerning the conduct, duties, employment, and accounts of the president. Held, that a receiver of the bank, subsequently appointed, in an action on the bond, could not be heard to question the authority of the assistant cashier to bind the bank by such statements, and at the same time be allowed to recover on the bond procured on the strength thereof.—Id.

An official certificate made in view of renewal of a bank cashier's bond that his books and accounts have just been examined and found correct is not a warranty of the correctness of such accounts, and existence of discrepancies, covered by bookkeeping devices will not avoid the new bond.—(1912) Title Guaranty & Surety Co. v. Nichols, 32 S. Ct. 475, 224 U. S. 346, 56 L. Ed. 795, affirming judgment (1909) 100 P. 825, 12 Ariz. 405.

288. Other insurance.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 660-669.

Under a condition in a policy on cotton that it shall not apply to any cotton covered by a marine policy at the time of loss, the forfeiture cannot be enforced, where it is not shown that the marine insurance was in favor of the same parties and upon the same interest as such policy; the sole object of the condition being to prevent such double insurance.—California Ins. Co. v. Union Compress Co., 133 U. S. 387, 10 S. Ct. 365, 33 L. Ed. 730.

(C) MATTERS RELATING TO PERSON INSURED.

Decisions of state courts denying full faith and credit to laws of foreign state, see Courts, 8.

291. Health and physical condition.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 681-690, 694-696.

To the question, in an application for life insurance, whether the applicant had ever had the disease of "affection of the liver," the answer was "No." Held, that the answer was a fair and true one within the meaning of the contract, if the insured had never had an affection of that organ which amounted to disease,—that is, of a character so well defined and marked as to materially disturb or derange for a time its vital functions,—and the question did not require him to state every instance of slight or accidental disorders or ailments affecting the liver which left no trace of injury to health, and were unattended by substantial injury or inconvenience or prolonged suffering.—Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Union Trust Co., 112 U. S. 250, 5 S. Ct. 119, 28 L. Ed. 708.

293. Family history.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 693.

Where, in the application by a partner for insurance on the life of his copartner, no answer is returned to the questions, "Brothers dead?" "Ages?" "Cause of Death?" the omission will not amount to a misrepresentation or breach of warranty, although it appeared that the insured had had a brother who had committed suicide; nor is the fact material that the insured himself, in a previous application to the same company, misrepresented the cause of the death of his brother as an "accident."—Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Luchs, 108 U. S. 498, 2 S. Ct. 949, 27 L. Ed. 800.

297. Habits.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 676.

A single or an occasional excess does not make a man an habitual drunkard; but where the habit and rule of a man's life is to indulge periodically, and with increasing frequency and violence, in excessive fits of intemperance, such a use of liquor is ground to support a finding of habitual intemperance.—Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Muskegon Nat. Bank, 122 U. S. 501, 7 S. Ct. 1221, 30 L. Ed. 1100.

A statement that the applicant had never been addicted to the excessive or intemperate use of any alcoholic stimulants or opium, and that he did not use any of them often or daily is not falsified unless, prior to the application, he was addicted to their use, or habitually used them daily or often.—Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. Davey, 123 U. S. 739, 8 S. Ct. 331, 31 L. Ed. 315.

298. Interest of assured or beneficiary.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 677.

A statement in the application for insurance, by a member of a firm on the life of his copartner, whose contribution to the capital of the business he has advanced, that his interest is $10,000, being necessarily conjectural in its character, will not amount to a misrepresentation, if made in good faith, irrespective of the condition of firm accounts, and of the fact that the capital advanced was only $5,000.—Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Luchs, 108 U. S. 498, 2 S. Ct. 949, 27 L. Ed. 800.

◀300. Previous application for insurance.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 679.

An application for life insurance contained the following question, consisting of four successive interrogatories, viz.: "(28) Has any application been made to this or any other company for assurance on the life of the party? If so, with what result? What amounts are now assured on the life of the party, and in what companies? If already insured in this company, state the No. of policy." The answer was: "$10,000; Equitable Life Assurance Society." Held, that the answer only purported to be an answer to the third of the four interrogatories, and that, as that was answered truly, and the company chose to issue a policy without requiring the others to be answered, it was no defense in an action on the policy, that the insured had made other applications for insurance which had been refused even though the omission to state this was intentional.—Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Raddin, 120 U. S. 183, 7 S. Ct. 500, 30 L. Ed. 644.

The answer, "No," to the question whether the applicant had applied for other insurance and had been rejected, constituted a misstatement under Civ. Code Ga. 1910, §§ 2479, 2480, though insured had withdrawn a prior application to another court after he had been rejected by its medical examiner.—Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Moore, 34 S. Ct. 186, 231 U. S. 543, 58 L. Ed. 356.

A negative answer by an applicant to a question in the application as to whether he had been declined insurance by any other company held to avoid the policy under Civ. Code Ga. 1910, §§ 2479, 2480, where in fact insured had two applications pending in other companies, and where he had withdrawn an application in another company after his rejection by its medical examiner.—Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Moore, 34 S. Ct. 191, 231 U. S. 560, 58 L. Ed. 367.

X. FORFEITURE OF POLICY FOR BREACH OF PROMISSORY WARRANTY, COVENANT, OR CONDITION SUBSEQUENT.

(A) GROUNDS IN GENERAL.

◀306. Conditions subsequent.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 699-702, 763, 823.

◀307. — Conditions in general.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 699.

The constitution and by-laws of a mutual life association provided that a member failing to receive a notice of an assessment should notify the home office of that fact. Held, that the duty imposed upon the insured to inform the company of his failure to receive notice of an assessment was not made a condition of the contract, the nonperformance of which would cause a forfeiture of membership.—Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n v. Hamlin, 189 U. S. 297, 11 S. Ct. 614, 35 L. Ed. 167.

◀310. Notice and proceedings to give effect to forfeiture.

A policy of life insurance is forfeited, without any affirmative action on the part of the insurance company, by the failure to pay at maturity a note given for the payment of the premium, which was accepted on the condition that, if not paid at maturity, the policy shall "cease and determine."—Iowa Life Ins. Co. v. Lewis, 23 S. Ct. 126, 187 U. S. 335, 47 L. Ed. 204.

(B) MATTERS RELATING TO PROPERTY OR INTEREST INSURED.

◀312. Subjects of marine insurance in general.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 709, 711-721.

An overinsurance of the cargo is not a breach of warranty by the owner of the vessel not to insure his interest in the vessel beyond a certain amount.—Merchants' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Allen, 121 U. S. 67, 7 S. Ct. 821, 30 L. Ed. 858.

An overinsurance of the freight to be earned by a voyage is not a breach of warranty by the owner of the vessel not to insure his interest in the vessel, "or any other insurable interest in said interest, during the continuance of the policy," beyond a specified amount.—Merchants' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Allen, 122 U. S. 376, 7 S. Ct. 1248, 30 L. Ed. 1209.

In the insurance of a vessel on a time policy, the warranty of seaworthiness is complied with if the vessel is seaworthy at the commencement of the risk, and the fact that she subsequently sustains damage, and is not properly refitted at an intermediate port, does not discharge the insurer from subsequent risk or loss, provided such loss is not the consequence of the omission.—Union Ins. Co. v. Smith, 124 U. S. 405, 8 S. Ct. 534, 31 L. Ed. 497.

◀318. Change in condition of building.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 744-747.

A condition avoiding the policy in case "mechanics are employed in building, altering, or repairing the premises," without notice to or permission of the insurer, is broken, and the policy annulled, by the making of extensive alterations without such notice or permission, irrespective of whether the risk was in fact increased during the time of the alterations, or whether, if increased, the increase continued at the time of the loss.—Imperial Fire Ins. Co. v. Coos County, 151 U. S. 452, 14 S. Ct. 379, 38 L. Ed. 231.

◀326. Keeping or use of prohibited articles.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 732-791.

The insured in a policy of fire insurance is not relieved of the responsibility for a breach of a condition against the keeping of inflammable oils on the premises by the fact that such breach occurred through the orders of the husband and general business manager of the tenant of the assured, although he was not acting by express or implied authority from the assured.—Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. v. Gunther, 116 U. S. 113, 6 S. Ct. 306, 29 L. Ed. 575.

The naked privilege to use a gas apparatus, not actually exercised, nor intended to be exercised, but in fact abandoned, does not justify the insured in keeping and storing gasoline in a place and manner other than that allowed in the policy.—Id.

Insurance policies provided that they should be void if certain inflammable material should be kept or used on the premises without written permission, but excepted "the use of refined coal, kerosene, or other carbon oil for lights, if the same is drawn, and the lamps filled, by daylight." A printed slip bearing the words,

"Privileged to use kerosene oil for lights. Lamps to be filled and trimmed by daylight," was attached to each. Held, that the policies were avoided by the drawing of any carbon oil, about dusk, on the premises, near a lighted lantern, though not for the purpose of filling lamps, by any person acting for a lessee of assured, whereby a fire is caused.—Gunther v. Liverpool & L. & G. Ins. Co., 134 U. S. 110, 10 S. Ct. 448, 33 L. Ed. 857.

Blasting powder, although it may be a less dangerous explosive than dynamite or gunpowder, is none the less included in the words, "or other explosives," as used in a condition avoiding a policy of fire insurance if there be kept, used, or allowed on the premises, benzine, benzole, dynamite, ether, fireworks, gasoline, Greek fire, gunpowder, naphtha, nitroglycerin, or other explosives. Judgment. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Penman (1907) 151 F. 961, 81 C. C. A. 151, affirmed.—Penman v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 30 S. Ct. 312, 216 U. S. 311, 54 L. Ed. 493.

§328. Change of title or interest.
See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 794-822, 825.

Where a firm, holding a fire policy upon its property, agrees with a third person that they will become incorporated, and that, upon the payment of certain sums on certain dates, he shall be "received into" the company to share in the profits thereof, and some of the payments are made and credit given therefor on the books of the firm, but the incorporation has not been consummated, the transaction does not constitute the third person a partner, and is not such a sale or transfer or change in the title or possession of the property as to render the policies void.—London Assur. Corp. v. Drennen, 116 U. S. 461, 6 S. Ct. 442, 29 L. Ed. 638.

A mere change of receivers in a suit does not involve such a change of the title and possession of the property as is contemplated by a condition avoiding the policy in the event of such change.—Thompson v. Phenix Ins. Co., 136 U. S. 287, 10 S. Ct. 1019, 34 L. Ed. 408.

A transfer by an insured, without notice to the insurance company, of his entire stock in trade to a firm in which he is a silent partner, discharges the company from all liability under a policy insuring such stock in trade, which provided that it should cease to be in force as to any property insured which should pass from the insured to any other person otherwise than by operation of law, unless notice be given to the company.—Royal Ins. Co. v. Martin, 24 S. Ct. 247, 192 U. S. 149, 48 L. Ed. 385.

A policy under which a building and a stock in trade contained therein were separately insured for distinct and different amounts is not avoided as respects the insurance on the building by a change in the ownership of such stock in trade without notice to the insurance company, although the policy provides that it shall cease to be in force as to any property thereby insured which shall pass from the insured to any other person otherwise than by due operation of law, unless notice thereof be given to the company.—Id.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 823, 824.

Defendant issued to plaintiff a policy of insurance on cotton owned by the latter, or "held by it in trust or on commission." When cotton was delivered to it, plaintiff gave receipts therefor to the owners. Held that, plaintiff having retained the actual possession of the cotton, the taking up of its receipts by certain railroad companies, and their issuing bills of lading for them, is not such a change of possession of the cotton as will avoid the policy, under a condition that it shall be void if possession is changed.—California Ins. Co. v. Union Compress Co., 133 U. S. 387, 10 S. Ct. 365, 33 L. Ed. 730.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 875, 875½.

The failure of a bank, upon its officers being told that its teller was speculating, to notify at once the guaranty company, which was on the teller's bond, of such information as it had, will defeat a recovery on such bond for defalcation after the information was received by such officers, where such bond provided that the bank should at once notify the company on its "becoming aware" that the teller was engaged in speculation or gambling. Decree, 100 F. 559, 40 C. C. A. 542, reversed.—Guarantee Co. of North America v. Mechanics' Sav. Bank & Trust Co., 22 S. Ct. 124, 183 U. S. 402, 46 L. Ed. 253.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 842-846.

Plaintiffs, in their application for fire insurance, the statements in which were to be warranties, in answer to the question, "Is smoking or drinking of spirituous liquors allowed on the premises?" replied "No." During the life of the policy one of the plaintiffs himself smoked on the premises, but the fire did not arise from that source. Held, that the question and answer referred merely to the rule on the subject at the time of the application, and not to the question whether that rule might be kept or broken in the future.—Hosford v. Germania Fire Ins. Co., 127 U. S. 399, 8 S. Ct. 1199, 32 L. Ed. 196.

§335. Keeping books, papers, and safe.
See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 852, 853.

Books showing "all purchases and sales both for cash and credit," within the meaning of a covenant and agreement in a policy of fire insurance requiring the insured to keep a set of books showing a complete record of business transacted, including all such purchases or sales, need only be such as will fairly show these matters to a man of ordinary intelligence. Judgment 94 F. 314, 36 C. C. A. 265, affirmed.—Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. v. Kearney, 21 S. Ct. 826, 180 U. S. 132, 45 L. Ed. 460.

The loss of the last inventory of a business, in the confusion incident to the exercise by the insured during a fire of their right to remove the books from the safe to a secure place, will not invalidate the policy, notwithstanding a provision that a failure to produce the same shall render the policy null and void, where the insured used such care on the occasion as prudent men acting in good faith would exercise.—Id.

A safe such as was commonly used, and such as, in the judgment of prudent men in the locality of the property insured, was sufficient, is "a fireproof safe," within the meaning of a clause in a policy of fire insurance requiring the insured to keep their books securely locked in such a safe.—Id.

(C) MATTERS RELATING TO PERSON INSURED.

§341. Change in habits.
See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 881.

It is not error to instruct the jury that the condition that assured should not become so intemperate as to impair his health was not broken if his health was impaired or death caused by the excessive use of alcoholic stimulants taken in good faith for medical purposes under medical advice.—Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Ward, 140 U. S. 76, 11 S. Ct. 720, 35 L. Ed. 371.

(D) ASSIGNMENT OF POLICY.

(E) NONPAYMENT OF PREMIUMS OR ASSESSMENTS.

Denial of right to contract, see Constitutional Law, ◄89.

◄349. Default as ground of forfeiture in general.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 831, 895-902, 913.

A life insurance policy was conditioned to be void if the annual premium, or any obligation given in payment thereof, should not be paid at maturity. An annual premium was paid by a draft drawn by the insured, payable three months after date, which draft contained a condition that if not paid at maturity the policy should be void. Whereupon a receipt was given by the company declaring the policy in force for the ensuing year. Held, that the forfeiture was incurred by nonpayment of the bill, on presentment, at maturity, without protest for nonpayment, though protest might be necessary to fix the liability of the drawer.—Knickerbocker Life Ins. Co. v. Pendleton, 112 U. S. 696, 5 S. Ct. 314, 28 L. Ed. 866, reversing (C. C.) Pendleton v. Knickerbocker Life Ins. Co., 5 F. 238.

A policy of life insurance was conditioned to be void if the annual premium was not paid at maturity. An annual premium was paid by a foreign bill drawn by the party insured, with a condition that if not paid at maturity the policy should be void. Held, that presentment and nonacceptance of the bill before maturity without protest did not dispense with presentment for payment in order to produce the forfeiture.—Id.

A policy of life insurance was conditioned to be void if the annual premium was not paid at maturity. An annual premium was paid by a foreign bill drawn by the party insured, with a condition that if not paid at maturity the policy should be void. Held, that want of funds in the hands of the drawee was no excuse for not presenting the draft, if the drawer had reasonable expectation to believe that it would be accepted and paid.—Id.

The failure to pay at maturity a note given for the payment of a premium forfeits the policy.—Iowa Life Ins. Co. v. Lewis, 23 S. Ct. 126, 187 U. S. 335, 47 L. Ed. 204.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 892, 893.

Rev. St. Mo. § 5983, provides that no policy of life insurance shall become void after the payment of two annual premiums, but that its value shall be computed according to a given scale, which shall be taken as a single premium for temporary insurance for the full amount of the policy, to be paid, under section 5983, if the assured dies during the period of temporary insurance. Held, that a waiver in the policy of any surrender value other than that therein provided, "whether required by any state statute or not," does not nullify the requirements of these sections; waiver not being one of the cases to which alone their provisions are declared not applicable by section 5983.—Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Pettus, 140 U. S. 226, 11 S. Ct. 822, 35 L. Ed. 497, affirming judgment (C. C.) Wall v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 32 F. 273.

A general declaration in a life insurance contract executed in another state, that it is to be held and construed to have been made in the city of New York, does not make controlling the requirement of Laws N. Y. 1876, p. 322, c. 341, as amended by Laws N. Y. 1877, p. 342, c. 321, for notice as a condition of forfeiture for nonpayment of premiums, where the contract contains an express stipulation with reference to notice which amounts to an admission by the insured of the receipt of every notice in respect to the payment of premiums which can be implied from any other part of the policy, or required by any statute.—Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Hill, 24 S. Ct. 538, 193 U. S. 551, 48 L. Ed. 788, reversing judgment 118 F. 708, 55 C. C. A. 536, which affirmed (C. C.) Hill v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York, 113 F. 44.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 894.

A resident of Missouri signed in that state an application for life insurance. The policy was executed by the insurer at its office in New York, and transmitted to Missouri, where it was delivered to the assured, and where the premiums thereon were paid. Held, that the policy only became a completed contract on its delivery and the payment of the premium in Missouri; so that it is a Missouri contract, and governed by the laws of that state.—Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Pettus, 140 U. S. 226, 11 S. Ct. 822, 35 L. Ed. 497, affirming judgment (C. C.) Wall v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. 32 F. 273.

The provision in an application for life insurance made in another state to a New York Company, that it is subject to the charter of the company and the laws of New York, is not sufficient to make the policy issued thereon, and which was delivered in such other state, subject to the requirement of Laws N. Y. 1877, c. 321, § 1, for notice as a condition of forfeiture for nonpayment of premium. Judgment 97 F. 985, 38 C. C. A. 696, reversed.—Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Cohen, 21 S. Ct. 106, 179 U. S. 262, 45 L. Ed. 181.

Insurance business transacted in other states by New York insurance companies, without any provision that the New York laws shall govern, is not subject to the provision of Laws N. Y. 1877, c. 321, § 1, for notice as a condition of the forfeiture of a policy for nonpayment of premium by any life insurance company "doing business in the state."—Id.

◄352. Notice of time for payment.

◄354. — Sufficiency.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 908-911, 912.

Prefixing the words "the conditions of your policy provide" to that part of the notice of the time for payment of the premium which, under Laws N. Y. 1892, c. 690, § 92, must state that, unless paid by or before the day it falls due, the policy and all payments thereon will become forfeited and void, does not render such notice insufficient as a basis for forfeiture for nonpayment, although the policy in fact provides for a forfeiture only in case of nonpayment of the premium within thirty days after it is due. Judgment 127 F. 651, 62 C. C. A. 377, reversed.—Nederland Life Ins. Co. v. Meinert, 26 S. Ct. 15, 199 U. S. 171, 50 L. Ed. 139, 4 Ann. Cas. 480.

◄359. Sufficiency of payment or tender to prevent forfeiture.

◄361. — To agent or broker.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 923.

Partial payment of a life insurance premium held not effective to keep the policy in force unless the agent does something operating as a waiver of a full payment.—Slocum v. New York Life Ins. Co., 33 S. Ct. 523, 228 U. S. 364, 57 L. Ed. 879, Ann. Cas. 1914D, 1029, modifying judgment New York Life Ins. Co. v. Slocum, 177 F. 842, 101 C. C. A. 56.

Acceptance by local agent from wife of insured of a check for a partial payment of the premium then due, with delivery of a "blue note" for insured to sign, did not continue insurance in force where insured died without signing the note and to the knowledge of insured and his wife the agent was without authority to waive full payment, save conformably to "blue note plan," and the company did not ratify the agent's acts.—Id.

⚡362. Excuses for nonpayment.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 925-930.

A policy of insurance payable to the wife of the insured provided that failure to pay any premium subsequent to the first should forfeit the policy, and also provided for the issuing of a paid-up policy, after payment of two or more annual premiums. After payment for eight years, and before the next premium became due, the insured, without the knowledge of the beneficiary, informed the company of his inability to pay further premiums, and requested a paid-up policy, but, at the company's suggestion, he released a portion of the amount insured, surrendered the policy, and received in its stead a policy for a less amount, having, as a prerequisite, delivered to the company a receipt and release as to the amount of reduction, purporting to be signed by his wife, but in reality forged by him. A year later, on his statement of inability to pay the premium on the second policy, and at his request, that policy was surrendered, and a paid-up policy issued in lieu thereof, on delivery by him to the company of a similar forged receipt and release. Held, that there was nothing in these facts to excuse a failure to pay the premiums on the original policy, or to prevent a forfeiture thereof by reason of such nonpayment, and the beneficiary could not recover thereon.—Miles v. Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co., 147 U. S. 177, 13 S. Ct. 275, 37 L. Ed. 128.

⚡363. Rights of insured after default.

⚡366. — Election between rights.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 934.

A policy provided that forfeiture by a failure to pay any premiums after the first two should not be absolute, but qualified; and that the insured should be entitled to be insured according to the sum already paid in premiums, either for the full amount of the original policy, so long as that sum would pay for it, or else for the full term of the original policy for such an amount as that sum would pay for. Held, that the proviso "that unless this policy shall be surrendered, and such paid-up policy shall be applied for within ninety days after such nonpayment, as aforesaid, then this policy shall be void and of no effect," required the insured to exercise an election within the 90 days, and in default of the exercise of such election, the law afforded no remedy upon the policy in favor of the holder.—Knapp v. Homeopathic Mut. Life Ins. Co., 117 U. S. 411, 6 S. Ct. 807, 29 L. Ed. 960.

XI. ESTOPPEL, WAIVER, OR AGREEMENTS AFFECTING RIGHT TO AVOID OR FORFEIT POLICY.

⚡372. What conditions may be waived.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 941.

A condition in a policy of life insurance that it shall be void if premiums are not paid when due means only that it shall be voidable at the option of the company, and a breach of the condition may be waived.—(1911) Grigsby v. Russell, 32 S. Ct. 58, 222 U. S. 149, 56 L. Ed. 133, 36 L. R. A. (N. S.) 642, Ann. Cas. 1913B, 863, reversing decree Russell v. Grigsby, 168 F. 577, 94 C. C. A. 61.

⚡374. Powers of officers or agents respecting waiver.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 948-955.

⚡375. — In general.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 948-951, 956-965.

The authority of an agent of an insurance company to waive a forfeiture which had accrued by reason of nonpayment of a premium note at maturity cannot be inferred from the act of the company in sending such note to the agent for collection some time before it was due, especially where his contract with the company and the provisions of the policy prohibited the exercise of such authority.—Iowa Life Ins. Co. v. Lewis, 23 S. Ct. 126, 187 U. S. 335, 47 L. Ed. 204.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 952-955.

An insurance company cannot be deemed to have waived a condition in a policy of fire insurance rendering it void in case other insurance had been or should be made upon the property, unless by agreement indorsed thereon or attached thereto, because its agent had notice or knowledge of the existence of other insurance in another company at the time he delivered the policy and received the premium, where such policy also provided that "no officer, agent, or other representative of this company shall have power to waive any provision or condition of this policy, except such as by the terms of the policy may be the subject of agreement indorsed hereon or added hereto, and as to such provisions or conditions no officer, agent, or representative shall have power or be deemed or held to have waived such provisions or conditions, unless such waiver, if any, shall be written upon, or attached hereto nor shall any privilege or permission affecting the insurance under this policy exist or be claimed by the insured unless so written or attached." Judgment 101 F. 77, 41 C. C. A. 207, reversed.—Northern Assur. Co. of London v. Grand View Bldg. Ass'n, 22 S. Ct. 133, 183 U. S. 308, 46 L. Ed. 213.

A condition avoiding a policy of fire insurance if blasting powder be kept on the premises is not waived because the insurer's agent knew that the building insured was to be occupied by miners, whose custom it was to keep blasting powder in their homes, and for that reason charged more than the usual rate, where the policy guards against any acts of waiver or change of its conditions by providing that such waiver or change, to be effective, shall be written upon, or attached to, the policy. Judgment, St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Penman (1907) 151 F. 961, 81 C. C. A. 151, affirmed.—Penman v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 30 S. Ct. 312, 216 U. S. 311, 54 L. Ed. 493.

⚡378. Knowledge of or notice to officers or agents.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 968-997.

Knowledge of the actual conditions by a local agent taking an application for a policy of life insurance held not to estop the insurer from urging misrepresentations in the application in view of conditions in the policy, but such knowledge should not be imputed to it.—Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Moore, 34 S. Ct. 186, 231 U. S. 543, 58 L. Ed. 356.

Knowledge of a local agent, taking an application for life insurance, of facts negating the truth of statements in the application, held not to estop the insurer to urge the invalidity of the policy in view of a clause therein that no agent should have power to waive any of the conditions of the policy.—Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Moore, 34 S. Ct. 191, 231 U. S. 560, 58 L. Ed. 367.

Designation as agents of insurance company by Gen. Stat. Fla. § 2765, of any person making contract of insurance for such insurance company, does not apply to agent and local medical examiner, agents of the company, so as to make their knowledge of the fraudulent character of material representations the knowledge of the company.—Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Hilton-Green, 36 S. Ct. 676, 241 U. S. 613, 60 L. Ed. 1202, reversing judgment 211 F. 31, 127 C. C. A. 467.

◀379. Insertion of false answers in application by agent or under his direction.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 999-1015.

A stipulation between a life insurance company and an applicant for a policy, limiting the powers of the soliciting agent, and providing that the contract for insurance shall be based upon the written application, signed by the applicant, is binding upon the parties; and, in an action on the policy by the executor of the assured, the plaintiff will not be heard to plead that false statements contained in the application were fraudulently inserted by the agent without the knowledge of the applicant, who signed the application without reading it.—New York Life Ins. Co. v. Fletcher, 117 U. S. 519, 6 S. Ct. 837, 29 L. Ed. 934, reversing (C. C.) Fletcher v. New York Life Ins. Co., 14 F. 846.

In the application for a policy of life insurance, the question was propounded whether the applicant had any other insurance on his life, to which the insurance company's agent wrote the answer "No other," after being informed by the applicant that he held certificates of membership in certain co-operative societies, which, the agent told him, were not considered insurance. There was a condition expressed in the policy, that if any of the statements in the application were untrue the policy should be void. Laws Iowa 1880, c. 211, provides that "any person who shall hereafter solicit insurance, or procure applications therefor, shall be held to be the soliciting agent of the insurance company * * * issuing a policy on such application, * * * anything in the application or policy to the contrary notwithstanding." Held, that the act of the agent in making such answer was the act of the company, which was thereby estopped to say that insurance in co-operative societies was insurance of the kind to which the question referred.—Continental Life Ins. Co. v. Chamberlain, 132 U. S. 304, 10 S. Ct. 87, 33 L. Ed. 341.

Where a mutual policy provides for forfeiture on nonpayment of the premium, which is subject to an uncertain reduction by the dividend, and where the company is accustomed to send notices stating when the premium is due and the cash required, a habit, extending through several years, of accepting overdue premiums, is a waiver of the right to forfeit, where it appears that the premium was not tendered until after death of the insured, several days after it was due, and that the delay was caused by misdirection of the notice at the company's office.—Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Doster, 106 U. S. 30, 1 S. Ct. 18, 27 L. Ed. 65.

In an action on a life insurance policy, the plaintiff proved tender of premium 27 days in arrears, the death of the assured occurring 3 days later, and claimed waiver of the policy condition requiring prompt payments. The court charged that a waiver might be found if the whole conduct of the company in dealing with the assured had been such as to lead a prudent and reasonable man to believe that premiums would be accepted a few days after due, without regard to the health of the assured; but, if the conduct of the company was such that the assured could believe that he might pay delinquent premiums only when in good health, then there was no waiver. Held a proper charge, as the company may, by its conduct, waive the condition requiring payments at a specified date.—Hartford Life & Annuity Ins. Co. v. Unsell, 144 U. S. 439, 12 S. Ct. 671, 36 L. Ed. 496, affirming judgment (C. C.) Unsell v. Hartford Life Annuity Ins. Co., 32 F. 443.

Insurance company held not to have waived breach of warranty in a policy insuring lumber that a continuous space of 100 feet should be maintained between the lumber and the mill of assured.—Lumber Underwriters of New York v. Rife, 35 S. Ct. 717, 237 U. S. 605, 59 L. Ed. 1140, reversing judgment Rife v. Lumber Underwriters, 204 F. 32, 122 C. C. A. 346.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1028-1031.

The issuance of a policy upon an application in which some of the questions are imperfectly, or not satisfactorily, answered is a waiver of objections thereto, and renders such imperfections immaterial.—Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Raddin, 120 U. S. 183, 7 S. Ct. 500, 30 L. Ed. 644.

Plaintiffs in their application for fire insurance, in answer to the question, "Is there any incumbrance on the property?" replied, "Yes." "If mortgaged, state the amount." "$3,000." A clause in the policy provided that if the assured's interest were other than the entire, unconditional, and sole ownership, or were incumbered by any lien, it must be so represented and so expressed in the policy. At the time of the application, there was due on the mortgage $3,079.45, principal ($3,000) and interest. Also delinquent taxes to the amount of $329.40. Held, that as the general question as to the existence of incumbrances was answered truly, and as the insurers had put no question as to the nature and amount of incumbrances other than mortgages, they could not object that no information was given on that subject.—Hosford v. Germania Fire Ins. Co., 127 U. S. 399, 8 S. Ct. 1199, 32 L. Ed. 196.

◀392. Demand, acceptance, or retention of premiums or assessments.

If insurers accept payment of a premium after they have notice of a change in the habits of the assured which, by the terms of the policy, would cause a forfeiture, they thereby waive the forfeiture.—Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Raddin, 120 U. S. 183, 7 S. Ct. 500, 30 L. Ed. 644.

◀401. Status of nonforfeitable or paid-up policy.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1087.

The holder of a policy of life insurance, under which he was entitled, in case of default, to have his insurance commuted to a paid-up policy for the amount of premiums actually paid, surrendered the policy to an agent of the company, upon an understanding on the part of both that he was entitled to a paid-up policy of such amount as the premiums paid would have purchased had they been paid all at once for that purpose. The insurance company retained the policy for six months, and then reduced it to a paid-up policy for the sum to which the insured was in fact entitled. Held, that he could not be considered in default because of a subsequent failure to pay premiums.—Lovell v. St. Louis Mut. Life Ins. Co., 4 S. Ct. 390, 111 U. S. 264, 28 L. Ed. 423.

XII. RISKS AND CAUSES OF LOSS.

(A) MARINE INSURANCE.

410. Barratry.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1099, 1100, 1109.

In an action on a policy of marine insurance of a cargo against perils of the sea and barratry of the master, it appeared that the vessel was stranded, and the cargo sold by the master. The declaration alleged loss by the perils of the sea and by the sale by the master. Defendant introduced evidence that the master did not act in good faith in making the sale. Held, that the court properly instructed that, if such sale was made in good faith, the insurance company was not bound by it; but if the sale was barratrously made, i. e., was an act of barratry, which was defined to the jury by the court, then the liability of defendant was established.—New Orleans Ins. Co. v. E. D. Albro Co., 112 U. S. 508, 5 S. Ct. 289, 28 L. Ed. 809.

411. Collision and liability therefor.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1101.

A vessel is "in collision," within the particular average clause, when, after being completely loaded, and casting off her moorings, she is made fast again to await the regulation of some insignificant trouble about her machinery, and is then run into by a scow, in tow of a tug, which makes a substantial break in her iron bulwarks, though the injury is not sufficient to impair her seaworthiness. 15 C. C. A. 379, 68 F. 247, affirmed.—London Assurance v. Companhia De Moagens Do Barreiro, 17 S. Ct. 785, 167 U. S. 149, 42 L. Ed. 113, affirming decree 68 F. 247, 15 C. C. A. 379.

413. Proximate cause of loss.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1115-1121.

Upon the arrival of the insured steamboat at Louisville, Ky., it was found that the joint of the mud valve was out of order. Steam was blown off to make repairs, and upon the return of the captain, who knew that repairs were going on, there was not sufficient steam to propel the vessel. The captain, without inquiring as to the condition of the steam, according to the custom of the river, gave the signal to let go. This was done, and the boat was carried by the current down the river, and over the falls, and, striking a pier, was sunk, and abandoned as a total loss. At the time of the accident the vessel was in a position to be carried over the falls if she was let go without steam on. Held, that, the proximate cause of the loss being a peril of the river against which the vessel was insured, the misconduct of the master was no defense to an action on the policy, in the absence of proof that it was affected by fraud or design.—Orient Mut. Ins. Co. v. Adams, 123 U. S. 67, 8 S. Ct. 68, 31 L. Ed. 63.

A policy provided that the company should be free of all claim for loss or damage occasioned by "the derangement or breaking of the engine or machinery, or any consequence resulting therefrom." Held, that the "consequence" referred to was an immediate or proximate, and not a remote, consequence, and that, even if the mud valve could be considered part of the machinery, the derangement of it, which appeared to have been repaired before the order to let go was given, was not a proximate cause of the loss.—Id.

A policy on a tugboat provided that the company should not be liable for loss by the breaking of any part of the machinery. The tug broke her shaft, and, while being towed by another tug, sprang a leak and sank. Held, that the insurer would not be released by the existence of one of the excluded causes, unless the loss was shown to be due to that cause.—Union Ins. Co. v. Smith, 124 U. S. 405, 8 S. Ct. 534, 31 L. Ed. 497.

415. Unseaworthiness of vessel.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1111.

In an action on a policy on a tugboat, where it appeared that the tug broke her shaft, and, while being towed, sprung a leak and sank, it was proper to charge that while the breaking of the shaft might have rendered the tug unseaworthy for propelling herself, it was competent for the insured to show that she was seaworthy to be towed to her home port.—Union Ins. Co. v. Smith, 124 U. S. 405, 8 S. Ct. 534, 31 L. Ed. 497.

An exception in a policy of losses that may be occasioned by the unseaworthiness of the vessel is, in effect, a warranty that loss shall not be so caused; and where a vessel so insured is stranded by reason of a defect in its compass, whether the defect was known or not, the insurer is not liable.—Richelieu & O. Nav. Co. v. Boston Marine Ins. Co., 136 U. S. 408, 10 S. Ct. 934, 84 L. Ed. 398.

416. Negligence of owners, master, or crew.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1112, 1112.

The insured tug broke its shaft, and while being towed home, after passing two ports of repair, sprung a leak and sank. Held proper to charge that permitting the tug to be towed in that condition past two ports of repair was not of itself a breach of the policy, but it was for the jury to consider whether the master was guilty of a lack of ordinary care, and also whether the condition of the vessel was the cause of her ultimate loss.—Union Ins. Co. v. Smith, 124 U. S. 405, 8 S. Ct. 534, 31 L. Ed. 497.

(B) INSURANCE OF PROPERTY AND TITLES.

422. Explosion.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1123, 1124, 1129, 1141.

An explosion caused by gasoline kept in a retail stove and tin store is not covered by a policy insuring the stock of goods by a written clause including the grant of a privilege to keep a limited quantity of gasoline, where the printed clauses of the policy exclude liability for explosions of any kind unless fire ensues, and then cover loss or damage by fire only. Judgment 16 App. D. C. 241, affirmed.—Mitchell v. Potomac Ins. Co., 22 S. Ct. 22, 183 U. S. 42, 46 L. Ed. 74.

A lighted match is not a fire, within the meaning of an insurance policy excluding liability for damages caused by explosions, so as to cover damages from an explosion caused by the match.—Id.

428. Negligence of insured.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1137.

The contingent liability of the railroad companies for losses arising from their own negligence is not excluded by the terms of the policy, in insuring against "direct loss or damage by fire," which apply to all losses of which fire is the immediate cause.—California Ins. Co. v. Union Compress Co., 133 U. S. 387, 10 S. Ct. 365, 33 L. Ed. 730.

(C) GUARANTY AND INDEMNITY INSURANCE.

430. Default or other misconduct of officer or employé.

A fidelity insurance bond provided that the insurer would be liable for loss, etc., discovered within six months from "the death or dismissal or retirement of the employé from the service of the employer." Held, that the mere suspension of a national bank, and the taking possession thereof by an examiner, did not effect the "retirement" of the cashier; but where he actually continued to render service he must be deemed to have remained in the service of his employer, at least until the appointment of a receiver by the comptroller.—American Surety Co. of New York v. Pauly, 18 S. Ct. 552, 170 U. S. 133, 42 L. Ed. 977, affirming judgment 72 F. 470, 18 C. C. A. 644; Id., 18 S. Ct. 563, 170 U. S. 160, 42 L. Ed. 987, affirming judgment 72 F. 484, 18 C. C. A. 657.

(D) LIFE INSURANCE.

438. Cause of death in general.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1145.

A policy of life insurance does not insure against the legal execution of the insured for crime, even though he may in fact have been innocent, and therefore unjustly convicted and executed. Judgment 105 F. 419, 44 C. C. A. 548, affirmed.—Burt v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 23 S. Ct. 139, 187 U. S. 362, 47 L. Ed. 216.

Death by legal execution held not covered by a policy of life insurance.—(1912) Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. McCue, 32 S. Ct. 220, 223 U. S. 234, 56 L. Ed. 419, 38 L. R. A. (N. S.) 57, reversing judgment (1908) McCue v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 167 F. 435, 93 C. C. A. 71.

Provision in the charter of a foreign life insurance company making person insured therein a member of the company gives no right of recovery for death by legal execution for crime.—Id.

443. Death in violation of law.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1149.

The killing of a person by the discharge of a gun which he was carrying, while at a place to which he had gone to get his wife to return home, and while he was coming out of an outdoor closet into which he had gone after making some disturbance, does not constitute a case of death while violating or attempting to violate any criminal or penal law, although he may have intended to use violence against her if she refused, since his act in going into and coming out of the closet was in no manner connected with or part of an attempt to carry out any criminal purpose. Judgment 94 F. 751, 36 C. C. A. 467, affirmed.—Supreme Lodge, K. P. of the World, v. Beck, 21 S. Ct. 532, 181 U. S. 49, 45 L. Ed. 741.

444. Suicide.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1152-1161.

445. — In general.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1152-1153.

A policy obtained by one on his own life, payable to himself, his executors, administrators, or assigns, and which is silent on the subject of suicide, becomes void if the insured commits suicide when sane. This results both from the presumed intention of the parties, and from principles of public policy. Judgment 70 F. 954, 17 C. C. A. 537, 42 L. R. A. 583, affirmed.—Ritter v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 18 S. Ct. 300, 169 U. S. 139, 42 L. Ed. 693.

Only policies of insurance issued on the assessment plan after the insurance company obtained its certificate of authority to do business as an assessment insurance company under Laws Mo. 1887, p. 199, are relieved from the provisions of Rev. St. Mo. 1879, § 5982, declaring that suicide shall be no defense to a suit on a policy of insurance, by the proviso of section 10 of the later act, that corporations doing business thereunder shall not be subject to any provisions of the general insurance law of the state, "except as herein distinctly set forth." Judgment 104 F. 638, 44 C. C. A. 93, affirmed.—Knights Templars' & Masons' Life Indemnity

Self-destruction while insane is as much within the provisions of Rev. St. Mo. 1879, § 5982, that it shall be no defense to a suit on a policy of life insurance that the insured "committed suicide," unless the same was contemplated at the time application was made for the policy, as is the taking of one's own life voluntarily while sane and in the full possession of one's mental faculties, especially in view of Rev. St. Mo. 1889, § 6570, declaring that words and phrases shall be taken in their plain, ordinary, and usual sense.—Id.

The exclusion of suicide as a defense in suits on policies of life insurance which is effected by Rev. St. Mo. 1879, § 5982, unless such suicide was contemplated at the time application was made for the policy, is a legitimate exertion of power by the state. Judgment (1906) 144 F. 356, 75 C. C. A. 358, reversed.—Whitfield v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 27 S. Ct. 578, 205 U. S. 489, 51 L. Ed. 895.

446. — Effect of insanity.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1159-1161.

Where one whose life is insured kills himself when his reasoning faculties are so far impaired by insanity that he is unable to understand the moral character of his act, his self-destruction will not, of itself, prevent a recovery on the policy, though he understand the physical nature and consequences of his act.—Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Broughton, 109 U. S. 121, 3 S. Ct. 99, 27 L. Ed. 873; Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Akens, 150 U. S. 468, 14 S. Ct. 155, 37 L. Ed. 1148.

The word "proof," as here used, does not refer to the proof required as a preliminary to bringing suit on the policy, but the proof necessary to establish the liability of the insurer.—Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Akens, 150 U. S. 468, 14 S. Ct. 155, 37 L. Ed. 1148.

Where the policy provides that "the self-destruction of the assured in any form, except upon proof that the same is the direct result of disease, or of accident occurring without the voluntary act of the assured," will avoid the policy, the word "disease," being unrestricted by anything in the context, includes disease of mind as well as of body.—Id.

A person is sane at the time of taking his life when he is able to comprehend the wrongfulness of his act, and to realize its full consequence to himself, his character, the members of his family and others, as fully as would a man of sound mind. Judgment 70 F. 954, 17 C. C. A. 537, 42 L. R. A. 583, affirmed.—Ritter v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 18 S. Ct. 300, 169 U. S. 139, 42 L. Ed. 693.

448. Death caused by beneficiary.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1150.

The assignee of a life policy, who has feloniously caused the death of the assured, cannot recover thereon.—Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Armstrong, 117 U. S. 591, 6 S. Ct. 877, 29 L. Ed. 997.

(E) ACCIDENT AND HEALTH INSURANCE.

449. What constitutes accident in general.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1162.

The term "accidental," as used in a policy, was properly defined to the jury as meaning "happening by chance; unexpectedly taking place; not according to the usual course of things, or not as expected."—United States Mut. Acc. Ass'n v. Barry, 131 U. S. 100, 9 S. Ct. 755, 33 L. Ed. 60, affirming (C. C.) Barry v. United States Mut. Acc. Ass'n, 23 F. 712.

461. Voluntary or unnecessary exposure to danger.

It appeared that deceased jumped voluntarily from a platform four or five feet from the ground, alighting heavily; that shortly afterwards he vomited; from that time on retained nothing on his stomach; passed nothing but decomposed blood and mucus; and died nine days afterwards. Held, that it was proper to charge that the jump was the means by which the injury, if any was sustained, was caused, and that the question was whether there was anything accidental in the act of jumping from the time deceased left the platform to the time he alighted on the ground.—United States Mut. Acc. Ass'n v. Barry, 131 U. S. 100, 9 S. Ct. 755, 33 L. Ed. 60, affirming (C. C.) Barry v. United States Mut. Acc. Ass'n, 23 F. 712.

Where two of his companions jumped from the same platform just before deceased, and alighted safely, it will be presumed that deceased intended to, and thought that he would, alight safely, and a verdict that it was an accident that he did not so alight is warranted.—Id.

465. Suicide or self-inflicted injuries.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1185.

A policy of insurance against "bodily injuries, effected through external, accidental, and violent means," and occasioning death or complete disability, providing that the insurance "shall not extend to death or disability which may have been caused wholly or in part by bodily infirmities or disease, or by suicide or self-inflicted injuries," covers a death of the insured by hanging himself while insane.—Accident Ins. Co. v. Crandal, 120 U. S. 527, 7 S. Ct. 685, 30 L. Ed. 740, affirming judgment (C. C.) Crandal v. Accident Ins. Co., 27 F. 40.

XIII. EXTENT OF LOSS AND LIABILITY OF INSURER.

Valued policy law as denying equal protection of laws, see Constitutional Law, 4240.

(A) MARINE INSURANCE.

469. Constructive total loss.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1192-1227.

A recovery of insurance on profits of a cargo under a policy insuring against total loss only, and valuing the profits at the sum insured, will not be prevented, where the cargo was abandoned as a total loss, by the fact that other insurers of the cargo subsequently saved a portion of it and then delivered it to the former owners in part payment, on a settlement of their liability for the total loss of the cargo. Decree Insurance Co. of North America v. Canada Sugar-Refining Co., 87 F. 491, 31 C. C. A. 65, reversed.—Canada Sugar Refining Co. v. Insurance Co. of North America, 20 S. Ct. 239, 175 U. S. 609, 44 L. Ed. 292.

470. Abandonment.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1192-1227.

A policy provided that there should be "no abandonment as for a total loss, * * * unless the injury sustained be equivalent to 50 per cent. of the agreed value." That value was $27,000. The vessel was carried over the falls at Louisville, Ky., and sunk, April 28, 1880. She was abandoned as a total loss May 18, 1880. The company raised her in the spring of 1881, and put her in the condition she was in before the accident, at an expense of less than $6,000. Held, that the right to abandon was to be determined by the facts as they existed May 18, 1880, and that if it was then impracticable to recover and repair the boat, the place where she lay, the uncertainty as to when (if at all) a rise would come to float her off, and all the other attendant circumstances, being taken into consideration, the subsequent floating off of the vessel would not change the result.—Orient Mut. Ins. Co. v. Adams, 123 U. S. 67, 8 S. Ct. 68, 31 L. Ed. 63.

A consignee who refuses to accept uninjured goods, and unjustifiably endeavors to abandon them to the insurer, who refuses to accept the abandonment, cannot hold the insurer liable for any loss sustained by the forced sale of the goods. Judgment 82 F. 296, 27 C. C. A. 134, affirmed.—Washburn & Moen Mfg. Co. v. Reliance Marine Ins. Co., 21 S. Ct. 1, 179 U. S. 1, 45 L. Ed. 49.

An insurer, which has stipulated in the policy that its acts in recovering, saving, and preserving the property in case of disaster shall not be considered an acceptance of abandonment, cannot be deemed to accept an attempted abandonment of the goods by carrying them from a place where there is no agent of the assured, no adequate means of protection, and no market, to the port of destination, where there are excellent facilities for protecting and handling them, easy access to the head agency of the assured, and a good market.—Id.

478. Exception of particular average or partial loss.

An exception in the words, "Free of particular average unless the vessel be sunk, burned, stranded, or in collision," ceases to operate, under the English rule, as soon as a collision has occurred; and the insurer is liable for a subsequent loss, whether resulting from the collision or not. 15 C. C. A. 379, 68 F. 247, affirmed.—London Assurance v. Companhia De Moagens Do Barreiro, 17 S. Ct. 785, 167 U. S. 149, 42 L. Ed. 113, affirming decree 68 F. 247, 15 C. C. A. 379.

A rider on the margin of a policy of marine insurance stating: "Free of particular average, but liable for absolute total loss of a part if amounting to 5 per cent.,"—is in pari materia with a memorandum by which goods are "warranted by the assured free from average unless general," and qualifies the memorandum, so that, instead of limiting the liability to an actual total loss, it permits recovery for an actual total loss of a part. Judgment 82 F. 296, 27 C. C. A. 134, affirmed.—Washburn & Moen Mfg. Co. v. Reliance Marine Ins. Co., 21 S. Ct. 1, 179 U. S. 1, 45 L. Ed. 49.

The general rule that a damage exceeding 50 per cent. justifies abandonment and recovery on a marine policy as for a constructive total loss does not apply to memorandum articles in respect of which the exception of particular average excludes a constructive total loss, though a rider extends the insurance to an actual total loss of a part.—Id.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1250.

A vessel bound from New York to Lisbon with a cargo of wheat was compelled by a protracted storm to put into Boston Harbor, where the cargo was found to be so damaged by water that it could not be restored to an entirely merchantable condition. By agreement of all parties the voyage was declared broken up, and the cargo was sold. It appeared that, owing to peculiar conditions prevailing in Portugal, damaged wheat was practically unsalable there. Held, that the sale must be regarded as made for the benefit of all concerned, and that the insurer was liable, as upon a salvage loss, for the difference between the valuation in the policy and the sum realized. 15 C. C. A. 379, 68 F. 247, affirmed.—London Assurance v. Companhia De Moagens Do Barreiro, 17 S. Ct. 785, 167 U. S. 149, 42 L. Ed. 113, affirming decree 68 F. 247, 15 C. C. A. 379.

(B) INSURANCE OF PROPERTY AND TITLES.

◀498. Value of property destroyed.
See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1274-1276.◀500. — Valued policies.
See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1275, 1276.

The statute of Missouri (Rev. St. 1889, §§ 5897, 5898), which provides that "in all suits brought upon policies of insurance against loss or damage by fire, hereafter issued or renewed, the defendant shall not be permitted to deny that the property insured thereby was worth at the time of the issuing of the policy the full amount insured therein on said property; and in case of total loss of the property insured, the measure of damages shall be the amount for which the same was insured," less the depreciation in value below that amount since the policy was issued; and also making illegal any condition in the policy to the contrary,—is within the legitimate powers of the state, in regulating the business of corporations created by its laws or of foreign corporations permitted to do business therein. Judgment, Daggs v. Orient Ins. Co., 38 S. W. 85, 136 Mo. 282, affirmed.—Orient Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn. v. Daggs, 19 S. Ct. 281, 172 U. S. 557, 43 L. Ed. 552.

(C) GUARANTY AND INDEMNITY INSURANCE.

◀514. Damages incurred or paid.
See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1238.

The amount paid by an employer in the prudent settlement of suits against it, founded on the negligence of an employé, may be recovered from the insurer against loss because of such negligence, who had denied all liability, and refused to defend the suits, as provided in the policy, although such policy contains a condition against compromising any claim without the written consent of the insurer, and provides that no action shall lie against the insurer as respects any loss under the policy unless it shall be brought by the assured himself, to reimburse him for loss actually sustained and paid by him in satisfaction of a judgment after trial of the issue.—St. Louis Dressed Beef & Provision Co. v. Maryland Casualty Co., 26 S. Ct. 400, 201 U. S. 173, 50 L. Ed. 712.

(D) LIFE INSURANCE.

(E) ACCIDENT AND HEALTH INSURANCE.

◀530. Limitation of liability by provisions of policy.
See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1309, 1316, 1317.

A policy of accident insurance issued after the passage of Rev. St. Mo. 1879, § 5982, providing that in all suits on policies of insurance on life it shall be no defense that the insured committed suicide, unless it be shown that he contemplated suicide when applying for the policy, cannot lawfully restrict the liability of the insurance company to one tenth of the principal sum insured, in the event of suicide not contemplated by the insured at the time application was made for the policy. Judgment (1906) 144 F. 356, 75 C. C. A. 358, reversed.—Whitfield v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, 27 S. Ct. 578, 205 U. S. 489, 51 L. Ed. 895.

XIV. NOTICE AND PROOF OF LOSS.

◀538. Persons to whom notice or proof may be given or made.
See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1327.

An agent of an accident company, who had written a risk, when told by a friend of the assured of the latter's death, undertook to notify the company at its principal office. He did so, and was supplied by the secretary with blanks for "proofs," which he gave to the assured's representatives, with instructions to return them to him when filled out. This was done. He kept them several months, and then sent them back for correction. When they came into his hands again, he held them back several weeks before sending them to the home office, which retained them without objection that they came too late. Held, that the company had treated the agent as having authority to receive the proofs, although the policy required notice at the home office.—Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Edwards, 122 U. S. 457, 7 S. Ct. 1249, 30 L. Ed. 1178, affirming judgment (C. C.) Edwards v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 20 F. 661.

◀539. Time for notice and proof.
See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1328-1336.

A provision in a fidelity insurance bond that the insuring company shall be notified of any act by the employé which may involve a loss for which the company is responsible, "as soon as practicable after the occurrence of such act shall have come to the knowledge of the employer," does not require notice unless the employer had knowledge, not simply suspicion, of the existence of facts which would justify a careful and prudent man in charging another with fraud or dishonesty.—American Surety Co. of New York v. Pauly, 18 S. Ct. 552, 170 U. S. 133, 42 L. Ed. 977, affirming judgment 72 F. 470, 18 C. C. A. 644, Id., 18 S. Ct. 563, 170 U. S. 160, 42 L. Ed. 987, affirming judgment 72 F. 484, 18 C. C. A. 657.

The fact that the receiver of a national bank was aware of some of the misappropriations of its president for some time before filing a proof of claim under an indemnity bond does not tend to show a violation of the requirement in such bond that proof of claim thereunder, "with full particulars thereof," be given as soon as practicable after giving notice of default. Judgment, 103 F. 599, 43 C. C. A. 331, affirmed.—Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Courtney, 22 S. Ct. 833, 186 U. S. 842, 46 L. Ed. 1193.

Proof of claim under an employé's indemnity bond, required to be filed with the surety company, with full particulars, as soon as practicable after the giving of written notice of a default or loss, is filed in time, when made as soon as practicable after the full particulars as to the default are ascertained.—Id.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1359-1361.

In an action on a policy of life insurance excepting from the risks assumed the death of insured "by his own hand or act, whether voluntary or involuntary, sane or insane," it appeared that in the proofs of death, to the question whether the death of deceased was caused by his own hands or acts, plaintiff answered, "See statement of coroner's physician, Dr. J." That statement gave "the immediate cause of death" as "shock from penetrating pistol shot; wound of head (right temple), mental aberration superinduced by chronic headache." To the direct question as to whether deceased's death was caused by his own hands or acts, the answer of Dr. J. was that he was "unable to make any further statements than above, other than from the history." It appeared that the statements of Dr. J. were based on hearsay. Held, that the proofs of death did not amount to an admission that deceased committed suicide, that defendant was not prejudiced by the statements and opinions therein, and that plaintiff was not estopped thereby.—Home Ben. Ass'n v. Sargent, 142 U. S. 691, 12 S. Ct. 332, 35 L. Ed. 1160, affirming judgment (C. C.) Sargent v. Home Ben. Ass'n, 35 F. 711.

A provision in a fidelity insurance bond that a written statement of loss, certified by the duly-authorized officer of the employer, and based upon the accounts of the employer, "shall be prima facie evidence thereof," makes such a statement prima facie proof in an action on the bond, and not merely on the presentation of the claim to the company.—American Surety Co. of New York v. Pauly, 18 S. Ct. 563, 170 U. S. 160, 42 L. Ed. 987, affirming judgment 72 F. 484, 18 C. C. A. 657.

552. Misstatements or omissions.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1358.

A statement in proofs of loss on a life insurance policy to the effect that death was caused by suicide, if made under a misapprehension of the facts, will not estop the beneficiary from proving that death was not caused by suicide. Judgment, 94 F. 751, 86 C. C. A. 467, affirmed.—Supreme Lodge K. P. of the World v. Beck, 21 S. Ct. 532, 181 U. S. 49, 45 L. Ed. 741.

553. Fraud or false swearing.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1362-1364.

A fire insurance policy required the assured, in case of loss, to submit to an examination under oath by the agent of the company, and provided that any fraud on the part of the assured or false swearing should avoid the policy. On such examination the assured made false statements as to the purchase of the insured goods and payment therefor. It appeared that such false statements were not made to deceive the insurance company, but to deceive other persons. Held such a breach of the condition as avoided the policy.—Claffin v. Commonwealth Ins. Co., 110 U. S. 81, 3 S. Ct. 507, 28 L. Ed. 76.

554. Estoppel or waiver as to notice and proofs or defects and objections.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1367-1409.

555. — In general.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1367-1373, 1382-1390.

An agent of an accident insurance company who had written the risk, when told by a friend of the assured of the latter's death, undertook to notify the company at its principal office. He did so, and was supplied by the secretary with blanks for "proofs," which he gave to the representatives of the assured, with instructions to return them to him when filled out. This was done. He kept them several months, and then sent them back for correction. When they came into his hands again he held them back several weeks before sending them to the home office, which retained them without objection that they came too late. Held, that the company was not in a position to exact a forfeiture for failure to give "immediate notice."—Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Edwards, 122 U. S. 457, 7 S. Ct. 1249, 30 L. Ed. 1178, affirming judgment (C. C.) Edwards v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 20 F. 661.

559. — Denial of liability.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1391, 1392.

Want of and defects in the proofs of loss are waived by the insurer's denying liability on other grounds.—Knickerbocker Life Ins. Co. v. Pendleton, 112 U. S. 698, 5 S. Ct. 314, 28 L. Ed. 866, and 115 U. S. 339, 6 S. Ct. 74, 29 L.

Ed. 432, reversing (C. C.) Pendleton v. Knickerbocker Life Ins. Co., 5 F. 238.

A denial by an insurance company of all liability under its policy dispenses with the necessity of furnishing the proofs that the loss occurred from independent causes—which the company, under the policy, was entitled to demand before it could be sued, where the fire happened during the existence of a riot in the country or locality where the property was situated—and opens the way for a suit by the insured, where the rights of the parties can be determined according to the facts as disclosed by the evidence.—Royal Ins. Co. v. Martin, 24 S. Ct. 247, 192 U. S. 149, 48 L. Ed. 385.

560. — Failure to object or to state ground of objection.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1393-1404.

The fact that an insurance company receives the proofs of the death of the insured without question is an admission only that they are sufficient in form, and not that all the statements contained in them are true, although such statements are in answer to questions on the printed form sent out by the company.—Crotty v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., 144 U. S. 621, 12 S. Ct. 749, 36 L. Ed. 566, distinguishing Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Francisco, 84 U. S. (17 Wall.) 672, 21 L. Ed. 698.

XV. ADJUSTMENT OF LOSS.

578. Refusal to adjust or arbitrate loss.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1435.

A fire insurance policy issued by defendant to plaintiff provided that, in case of a disagreement as to the amount of any loss or damage sustained, such difference should be submitted to arbitrators at the request of either party; that the award of the arbitrators should be binding as to the amount of the loss; that the loss should not be payable until such an appraisal should be permitted; and that defendant reserved the right to take any part of damaged goods at the appraised value. Plaintiff declined to agree to such an arbitration unless defendant would agree in advance that the arbitrators should hear all competent testimony that might be offered, and insisted upon the right to sell the damaged property before the award was made, and finally exercised such right. Held, that plaintiff could not maintain an action upon the policy.—Hamilton v. Liverpool & L. & G. Ins. Co., 136 U. S. 242, 10 S. Ct. 945, 34 L. Ed. 419.

The proceeds of policies of insurance on mortgaged property, taken out by the mortgagor's assignee for the benefit of creditors, inure to the trustee in the mortgage for the benefit of the bondholders secured thereby, where it requires the mortgagor to insure, and provides that in case of loss the insurance money may be applied by the trustee toward the renewal of, or additions to, the property destroyed, or, at his option, be retained and invested as a sinking fund for the redemption of the bonds, or applied to the payment of the principal. See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1443-1451, 1453, 1454, 1455.

Under a policy running to a bailee, "for account of whom it may concern," any persons whom the bailee intended to be insured thereby may recover their interest, in the event of loss, if he was authorized to insure for their benefit.—Sturm v. Boker, 150 U. S. 312, 14 S. Ct. 99, 37 L. Ed. 1093.

◀591. Life policy for benefit of creditor.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1480.

A creditor named as beneficiary in, or made the assignee of, a policy on his debtor's life, has no further interest after the payment of his debt, and the policy becomes one for the benefit of the insured, and can be collected by his personal representatives.—Crotty v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., 144 U. S. 621, 12 S. Ct. 749, 36 L. Ed. 566.

◀593. Assignee of policy before loss.

Where an endowment policy, payable to assured or his assigns, if he should live to a specified time, or, if he should die before that time, to his legal representatives, is assigned, the assignee alone is entitled to receive the sum insured in case of death of the assured before the day named.—Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Armstrong, 117 U. S. 591, 6 S. Ct. 877, 29 L. Ed. 997.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1492.

A state may impose upon life or health insurance companies, as a condition of doing business within the state, the obligation to pay damages and attorney's fees in case of default in the payment of their policies.—Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n v. Mettler, 22 S. Ct. 662, 185 U. S. 308, 46 L. Ed. 922.

◀606. — On payment of loss in general.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1504-1511, 1514-1516.

Where the insurer of goods, destroyed by fire while in the hands of a carrier, becomes subrogated to the rights of the assured by payment to him, the recovery of the insurer in an action in the name of the owner against the carrier may be for the entire loss sustained by the nominal plaintiff, and is not limited to the amount of insurance paid. Code Ala. § 2801, providing that, "where suits are brought in the name of the person having the legal right for the use of another, the beneficiary must be considered as the sole party in the record," only makes the party for whose use the suit is brought dominus litis, and gives him the same rights as if he were the assignee of the cause of action.—Mobile & M. Ry. Co. v. Jurey, 111 U. S. 584, 4 S. Ct. 566, 28 L. Ed. 527.

against a third person for damages therefor.—Liverpool & G. W. Steam Co. v. Phenix Ins. Co., 129 U. S. 397, 9 S. Ct. 469, 32 L. Ed. 788; Same v. Insurance Co. of North America, 129 U. S. 464, 9 S. Ct. 480, 32 L. Ed. 800. Affirming decree (C. C.) The Montana, 22 Fed. 715.

An insurer of a carrier against loss of cargo, under a policy for the benefit of whom it may concern, is not subrogated to the shipper's rights against the carrier by reason of paying the loss to the shipper, upon the carrier's order; nor does any right of subrogation arise by reason of the fact that the carrier attached the insurance certificate to the bill of lading, and delivered it therewith to the shipper on receiving the cargo.—Wager v. Providence Ins. Co., 150 U. S. 99, 14 S. Ct. 55, 37 L. Ed. 1013.

Where the owner of property destroyed by fire, who has received payment therefor under a contract of insurance, seeks to recover for the use of the insurer against one who was liable to him for the loss, it is immaterial whether he had an insurable interest.—United States v. American Tobacco Co., 17 S. Ct. 619, 166 U. S. 468, 41 L. Ed. 1081.

The fault of a vessel will not preclude the underwriters of her cargo from recovering the full amount of their damages caused by collision from another vessel, which is also in fault. Decreases, Union Steamboat Co. v. Erie & W. Transp. Co., 82 F. 819, 27 C. C. A. 154, and Union S. S. Co. v. Same, 86 F. 814, 30 C. C. A. 628, reversed.—The New York, 20 S. Ct. 67, 175 U. S. 187, 44 L. Ed. 126.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1513.

An insurance company issued to a compress company a policy on cotton owned by the latter, or held by it in trust or on commission. There was an agreement between the insured and certain railroad companies, of which the insurer was aware, that the insured should keep the cotton covered by a policy for the benefit of the railroad companies from the time the latter executed bills of lading therefor on receiving the cotton for shipment. Held, that the proceeds of the policy being primarily for the benefit of the insured, and the surplus being for the benefit of the railroad companies, the insured's right of action on the policy accrued immediately upon the destruction of the cotton by fire, in such manner as to render the railroad companies liable, and was not postponed until the railroad companies had paid the losses to the owners.—California Ins. Co. v. Union Compress Co., 133 U. S. 387, 10 S. Ct. 365, 33 L. Ed. 730.

◀612. Conditions precedent in general.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1520-1523.

A stipulation making an appraisal of the amount of the loss or damage a prerequisite to a suit on the policy is legal.—Hamilton v. Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co., 136 U. S. 242, 10 S. Ct. 945, 34 L. Ed. 419.

A policy of fire insurance provided for an appraisal of each article damaged or destroyed by fire, which appraisal was to be submitted as part of the proofs of loss, and that, in case differences shall arise touching any loss or damage after proof thereof has been received, the matter shall be submitted to arbitrators, whose award in writing shall be binding on the parties as to the amount of the loss. Held that, where the company received proofs of loss from the insured, without objection either as to their form or substance, the refusal of the insured to submit to an award of arbitrators could not be pleaded in bar to an action on the policy, which did not contain any provision that no action should be maintained on it until after such award.—Hamilton v. Home Ins. Co., 137 U. S. 370, 11 S. Ct. 133, 34 L. Ed. 708.

The effect of a provision in a policy of insurance, that it shall not cover loss or damage by fire happening during the existence of a riot within the country or locality in which the property is situated unless proof be made, to the satisfaction of the directors, that such loss or damage was due to independent causes, is to entitle the company to demand such proof before being sued.—Royal Ins. Co. v. Martin, 24 S. Ct. 247, 192 U. S. 149, 48 L. Ed. 385.

The mortgage creditor in a mortgage governed by the civil law may sue for the avails of insurance subject to his mortgage without first exhausting his remedies against other property embraced by the mortgage.—Royal Ins. Co. v. Miller, 26 S. Ct. 46, 199 U. S. 353, 50 L. Ed. 226, followed Amadeo v. Northern Assur. Co., 26 S. Ct. 507, 201 U. S. 194, 50 L. Ed. 722.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1551-1553.

Where a defendant insurance company, by its acts in negotiating for a settlement of a claim, has led insured to believe that he will be paid without suit, the company cannot take advantage of the provision in its policy requiring action to be brought within a stated time after loss.—Thompson v. Phenix Ins. Co., 136 U. S. 287, 10 S. Ct. 1019, 34 L. Ed. 408.

⚡624. Parties.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1557-1570.

The existence under the Spanish law of a summary remedy to enforce a mortgage does not prevent the mortgage creditor from suing in the ordinary way for the avails of insurance subject to his mortgage.—Royal Ins. Co. v. Miller, 26 S. Ct. 46, 199 U. S. 353, 50 L. Ed. 226, followed Amadeo v. Northern Assur. Co., 26 S. Ct. 507, 201 U. S. 194, 50 L. Ed. 722.

⚡625. Process.

⚡627. — Against foreign insurance companies.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1573, 1574; 12 Cent. Dig. Corp. §§ 2603-2627.

A life insurance corporation, that had for many years done an active business in a foreign state by agents therein, assumed to withdraw from the state by recalling its agents, giving notice to the state insurance commissioner, and refusing to issue new policies within the state. It continued, however, to collect premiums on its outstanding policies therein, through a former agent in the state, whom it had transferred to another state, and to pay losses accruing under such policies. Held, that it thereby continued to do business in the state, and accordingly it was amenable to state process through service therein on a proper agent.—Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Spratley, 19 S. Ct. 308, 172 U. S. 602, 43 L. Ed. 569.

An agent appointed by a life insurance company at an annual salary, to give his whole time to special service in matters that might be referred to him, pursuant to the directions of the company, was sent into a foreign state, wherein the company did business, to investigate a claim under a policy, and while there was authorized to compromise it, within stated terms, leaving him a certain discretion as to the amount. Held, that he sufficiently represented the company to enable the state courts to acquire jurisdiction over it by service of process on him.—Id.

The cancellation by the Insurance Commissioner of Kentucky, of the license to do business in that state, granted to an insurance company which had consented, pursuant to Ky. St. 1899, § 631, that service of process upon such commissioner in any action brought in the state should be a valid service upon the company, does not render such service insufficient to bring that company into a court of the state as a party defendant to a suit brought by a citizen of such state upon a cause of action which arose out of transactions between the parties while the insurance company was carrying on business in Kentucky under the license. Judgment, Phelps v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, 112 F. 453, 50 C. C. A. 339, 61 L. R. A. 717, affirmed.—Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n v. Phelps, 23 S. Ct. 707, 190 U. S. 147, 47 L. Ed. 987.

Service of summons within the state on a resident director of a foreign insurance company, as provided by Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 432, subd. 3, when the cause of action arises therein, is a valid service if the company is doing business in the state, and confers jurisdiction on a federal court sitting in that state.—Pennsylvania Lumbermen's Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Meyer, 25 S. Ct. 483, 197 U. S. 407, 49 L. Ed. 810.

A cause of action founded on a loss of the property covered by a policy of insurance issued by a foreign corporation arises within the state, within the meaning of the provision for service of summons on foreign corporations contained in Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 432, subd. 3, where the property insured was situated in that state, the loss was to be adjusted there, and the company, in case of loss, was given the option of payment or of repairing or rebuilding.—Id.

A foreign accident insurance company which has policies outstanding in the state, and has and exercises the right to investigate losses thereunder, to examine the body of the deceased insured, and to adjust and settle losses within the state, is doing business therein so as to support service of process upon a local agent, conformably to Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 7992 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 3801), providing for the service of process in actions against foreign insurance companies.—Commercial Mut. Accident Co. v. Davis, 29 S. Ct. 445, 213 U. S. 245, 53 L. Ed. 782.

A state may provide, as has Missouri by Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 7992 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 3801), for the service of process in an action against a foreign insurance company upon any person within the state who adjusts a loss.—Id.

The medical representative of a foreign company who comes into the state clothed with full authority to adjust a claim is one "who adjusts or settles a loss" within Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 7992 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 3801), providing for service of process on local agents, although in fact such loss is not actually settled.—Id.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1555, 1645-1668.

Where defendant alleges, as a special defense to a suit on a marine policy, that the loss was occasioned by want of prudence and ordinary care, it is proper to charge that the burden is on defendant to show lack of ordinary care by a fair preponderance of testimony.—Union Ins. Co. v. Smith, 124 U. S. 405, 8 S. Ct. 534, 31 L. Ed. 497.

A policy provided that it should not extend to any case of death or personal injury, unless it was established by direct and positive evidence that such death or personal injury was caused by external violence and accidental means. The insured was found dead with a pistol bullet through his heart. Held, that the court did not err in instructing that the law would presume that the death was not caused by suicide, but would, on the contrary, presume that it was unintentional on the part of the insured, within the meaning of the policy; and that plaintiff, in the absence of rebutting evidence, was entitled to the benefit of such presumptions.—Travellers' Ins. Co. v. McConkey, 127 U. S. 661, 8 S. Ct. 1360, 32 L. Ed. 308.

The court did not err in charging that the jury should not presume, from the mere fact of the death, that the insured was murdered; but they might draw such inferences, as to the cause of death, as, under the rules of evidence, the facts and circumstances justified.—Id.

In an action on a policy of marine insurance issued by a United States company, for loss by stranding of a Canadian vessel, navigating Canadian waters, between two Canadian ports, it appeared that the accident happened while the vessel was running at high speed, in a fog, and with a defective compass. A Canadian statute provided that ships should go at a moderate rate of speed in a fog, and, in case of damage caused by violation of the act, the damage should be deemed to have been occasioned by the willful default of the person in charge of the ship, unless the contrary should be proved. The policy excepted perils and losses that should be caused by want of ordinary care and skill and seaworthiness. Held, that the burden was on plaintiff to show that neither the speed nor the defective compass could have caused or contributed to the cause of the accident.—Richelieu & O. Nav. Co. v. Boston Marine Ins. Co., 136 U. S. 408, 10 S. Ct. 934, 34 L. Ed. 398.

In an action on a life policy excepting from the risks assumed the death of insured by suicide, it appeared that in the proofs of death, to the question whether the death of deceased was caused by his own hands or acts, plaintiff had answered, "See statement of coroner's physician, Dr. J." That statement gave "the immediate cause of death" as "shock from penetrating pistol shot; wound of head (right temple); mental aberration, superinduced by chronic headache." To the direct question as to whether deceased's death was caused by his own hand, Dr. J.'s answer was that he was "unable to make any further statements than above, other than from the history." It appeared that Dr. J.'s statements were based on hearsay. Held, that the burden was not cast on plaintiff to disprove death by suicide.—Home Ben. Ass'n v. Sargent, 142 U. S. 691, 12 S. Ct. 332, 35 L. Ed. 1160, affirming judgment (C. C.) Sargent v. Home Ben. Ass'n, 35 F. 711.

The burden is on a surety in an action on a cashier's bond to plead and prove a breach of the bank's agreement that monthly examinations of the cashier's books shall be made.—(1912) Title Guaranty & Surety Co. v. Nichols, 32 S. Ct. 475, 224 U. S. 346, 56 L. Ed. 795, affirming judgment (1909) 100 P. 825, 12 Ariz. 405.

647. Admissibility of evidence.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1555, 1669, 1681, 1683-1706.

649. — Insurable interest.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1670.

Defendant issued to plaintiff a policy of insurance on cotton owned by the latter, "or held by it in trust or on commission." In the course of business, when cotton was delivered to plaintiff to be compressed, it gave receipts therefor to the owners, who, by a well-known custom, delivered them to one or other of two railroad companies, which thereupon issued bills of lading for the cotton, agreeing to transport it to given points after compression by plaintiff. There was a standing agreement (of which defendant was informed) between plaintiff and the railroad companies that the former should keep the cotton insured for the benefit of the latter from the time the bills of lading were executed. Held, in an action on the policy, that, on taking up the receipts and issuing bills of lading, the railroad companies acquired an insurable interest in the cotton, of which parol evidence is admissible.—California Ins. Co. v. Union Compress Co., 133 U. S. 387, 10 S. Ct. 365, 33 L. Ed. 730.

A clause in an insurance policy upon a debtor's life, reciting that it is payable upon his death to his creditor if living, if an admission at all by the company of the relation of debtor and creditor, is an admission only at the date on which the policy was issued.—Crotty v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., 144 U. S. 621, 12 S. Ct. 749, 36 L. Ed. 566.

651. — Policy or other contract.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1673-1676.

Evidence of the unauthorized insertion in an insurance policy, on request of the insurance agent, of a provision contrary to that which had been agreed upon between him and the insured, and evidence of the agent's assurance, in response to an inquiry by the insured at the time when the policy was delivered, to the effect that the policy conformed to their agreement, is admissible on the question whether the insured was or was not bound by the inserted provision, either on the ground that he had requested it or that he was negligent in not reading the policy. Judgment, 99 F. 856, 40 C. C. A. 118, reversed.—McMaster v. New York Life Ins. Co., 22 S. Ct. 10, 183 U. S. 25, 46 L. Ed. 64.

652. — Existence and condition of subject-matter.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1678, 1679, 1683, 1684.

654. — Performance or breach of warranty or condition.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1677, 1680, 1681, 1683-1686.

In an action on a life policy, where the defense was that assured became so intemperate as to induce delirium tremens and forfeit the policy, testimony of a witness as to conversations with a doctor who attended the assured prior to 1875, as to whether the assured was threatened with delirium tremens or not, and as to his opinion that he (the witness) was afraid that the assured was going to have delirium tremens, is incompetent.—Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Muskegon Nat. Bank, 122 U. S. 501, 7 S. Ct. 1221, 30 L. Ed. 1100.

A witness may testify as to all the facts which he knows that tend to establish a habit of intemperance in the assured prior to 1875, although the policy was not taken out until 1879.—Id.

A witness testifying to all the facts which he knows that tend to establish a habit of intemperance in the assured prior to the issuance of a life policy cannot testify to his opinion as to the effect of such intemperance upon assured's health.—Id.

In an action on a policy on cotton, containing a condition that it shall not apply to any cotton covered by a marine policy, the deposition of a witness to the effect that some of the cotton was covered by marine policies is inadmissible, where such policies are not attached to the deposition, and where the only testimony as to the existence and identity of such policies is hearsay.—California Ins. Co. v. Union Compress Co., 133 U. S. 387, 10 S. Ct. 365, 33 L. Ed. 730.

In an action on a life insurance policy containing a stipulation that it should be void if the insured should become so far intemperate as to impair his health, or induce delirium tremens, the wife of deceased, after introduction of evidence as to his intemperate habits, may testify that in her presence a physician, since deceased, prescribed alcoholic stimulants for deceased, and that she prepared them for him.—Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Ward, 140 U. S. 76, 11 S. Ct. 720, 35 L. Ed. 371.

§ 658. — Loss or damage to property, and cause thereof.

The fact that a vessel abandoned as a total loss was recovered and repaired a year later is not "the best evidence" that it was practicable to recover and repair it at the time of the loss.—Orient Mut. Ins. Co. v. Adams, 123 U. S. 67, 8 S. Ct. 68, 31 L. Ed. 63.

In an action on a policy issued by a United States insurance company on a Canadian vessel, and excepting perils caused by want of ordinary care, skill, and seaworthiness, where the Canadian statute requires that a lookout shall be kept on the vessel, and provides that nothing in the rules of any vessel shall exonerate it or its owner from liability for failure to keep such lookout, evidence as to the custom of such vessels not to keep a lookout is inadmissible.—Richelieu & O. Nav. Co. v. Boston Marine Ins. Co., 136 U. S. 408, 10 S. Ct. 934, 34 L. Ed. 398.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1691-1693; 11 Cent. Dig. Coroners, § 28; 28 Cent. Dig. Ins. Per. § 8.

Upon the question as to the sanity of an insured person who has committed suicide, the testimony of nonprofessional witnesses, who were acquainted with him, in respect to his actions and apparent mental condition just prior to death, and their impressions as to his sanity, is admissible evidence.—Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Lathrop, 111 U. S. 612, 4 S. Ct. 533, 28 L. Ed. 536.

Upon an issue, in an action on a policy of life insurance, as to the insanity of the insured at the time he took his own life, the opinion of a nonprofessional witness as to his mental condition, in connection with a statement of the facts and circumstances within his personal knowledge upon which that opinion is based, is competent evidence.—Id.

In an action on a life policy by an assignee, where the defense is that he feloniously caused the death of the assured, evidence is admissible to show that he previously obtained other policies on the life of his victim from other companies.—Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Armstrong, 117 U. S. 591, 6 S. Ct. 877, 29 L. Ed. 997.

In an action on a policy of life insurance, testimony of a repute in the family of the insured concerning his death and the manner thereof is competent to rebut any inference of a combination to defraud the insurance company.—Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n v. Mettler, 22 S. Ct. 662, 185 U. S. 308, 46 L. Ed. 922.

§ 662. — Notice and proof and adjustment of loss.

A certified copy of the protest of the vessel's master and crew, which has been served on the insurer, and is referred to by the insured in their proofs of loss, is admissible in evidence against the insured, since it is thus made part of the proofs.—Richelieu & O. Nav. Co. v. Boston Marine Ins. Co., 136 U. S. 408, 10 S. Ct. 934, 34 L. Ed. 398.

Payment or tender of the premium in arrears being a prerequisite to the prosecution of an action on the policy, plaintiff's letter inclosing the amount to the company is competent evidence to show such tender.—Hartford Life & Annuity Ins. Co. v. Unsell, 144 U. S. 439, 12 S. Ct. 671, 36 L. Ed. 496, affirming judgment (C. C.) Unsell v. Hartford Life & Annuity Ins. Co., 32 F. 443.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1555, 1707-1723.

An overinsurance of cargo, growing out of insurance by a banking firm to protect them as acceptors of drafts drawn by the captain on them to meet disbursements in the purchase of timber, which composed the cargo, does not tend to establish that the loss of the vessel was fraudulent.—Merchants' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Allen, 121 U. S. 67, 7 S. Ct. 821, 30 L. Ed. 858.

In an action on a life insurance policy reciting that it is payable upon insured's death to his creditor, the plaintiff creditor must furnish positive proof of the fact that he is such creditor and of the amount of his debt, for which purpose the recital in the policy and the creditor's statements in the proofs of death are not sufficient.—Crotty v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., 144 U. S. 621, 12 S. Ct. 749, 36 L. Ed. 566.

It is not necessary, in an action on a policy of life insurance, that the death of the insured be proved beyond a reasonable doubt.—Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n v. Mettler, 22 S. Ct. 662, 185 U. S. 308, 46 L. Ed. 922.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1556, 1732-1770.

The true meaning and signification of the words "habitually intemperate" in a policy of life insurance, as they relate to the customs and habits of men generally in regard to the use of intoxicating drinks, is a question addressed rather to the jury than to the court; and instructions which attempt to define approximately for the jury the number of times the assured must have got drunk or had a spree, or how closely such excesses must have succeeded each other, to constitute him an "habitual drunkard," and thus avoid or forfeit the policy, are rightly refused.—Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Muskegon Nat. Bank, 122 U. S. 501, 7 S. Ct. 1221, 30 L. Ed. 1100.

A life policy provided that it should be void if the insured "shall become so far intemperate as to impair health, or induce delirium tremens." The court charged that the impairment of health was not the indisposition arising from a drunken debauch, but such as arose from such frequency of use as indicated an injurious addition to the practice. Held, that it was for the jury to decide if the death of the insured was caused by excessive use of stimulants.—Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Davey, 123 U. S. 739, 8 S. Ct. 331, 31 L. Ed. 315.

It is a question for the jury to determine whether the master of a tug is negligent in allowing it to be towed past two ports of repair after it has been injured, and whether the condition of the vessel was the cause of her ultimate loss.—Union Ins. Co. v. Smith, 124 U. S. 405, 8 S. Ct. 534, 31 L. Ed. 497.

On the question of defendant's acceptance of plaintiff's abandonment of the vessel, the evidence was that defendant, in reply to a request from the master of the vessel for assistance, sent a wrecking expedition to rescue it, which reached the vessel the day before notice of abandonment was telegraphed defendant. The policy provided that acts of the insurer in saving the vessel in case of disaster should not be considered an acceptance of an abandonment, nor as affirming or denying any liability under the policy, and that in case the insured failed to make all effort to save the vessel, the insurer might interpose and recover it. The vessel was towed by the wrecking party to a dock, and repaired, but the evidence was conflicting as to who ordered such repairs. Held, that the question whether there was a constructive acceptance by defendant of the abandonment was for the jury.—Richelieu & O. Nav. Co. v. Boston Marine Ins. Co., 136 U. S. 408, 10 S. Ct. 934, 34 L. Ed. 398.

The constitution and by-laws of a mutual life association provided that the mortuary assessments upon the members should be made the first weekdays of February, April, June, August, October, and December, for such sum as was sufficient to meet the existing claims by death; that a member failing to receive a notice of an assessment should notify the home office of that fact; and that a failure to pay the assessment within 30 days from the dates thereof should work a forfeiture of membership; but that a delinquent member might be reinstated within one year upon good cause shown, satisfactory evidence of good health, and payment of all back dues. Plaintiff's certificate stipulated that it was subject to the constitution and by-laws, and provided that "a notice addressed to a member at his post-office address, as appearing upon the books of the association, * * * shall be deemed a sufficient notice." The certificate was to become void if any of the payments provided for were not made "when due." The holder of a certificate failed to pay a June assessment for more than 30 days, and plaintiff, the beneficiary, averred that no notice was mailed or received, while defendant alleged that it was. Held, that if no notice was mailed the certificate was not forfeited, and that the question whether the notice was mailed or not was properly submitted to the jury, under an instruction that, if it was, they must find for defendant.—Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n v. Hamlin, 139 U. S. 297, 11 S. Ct. 614, 35 L. Ed. 167.

The jury cannot be permitted to pass on the question of actual total loss on a marine policy, when a large part of the goods reach their destination in specie, and a substantial part of them are wholly uninjured. Judgment 82 F. 296, 27 C. C. A. 134, affirmed.—Washburn & Moen Mfg. Co. v. Reliance Marine Ins. Co., 21 S. Ct. 1, 179 U. S. 1, 45 L. Ed. 49.

Notice that a bank official was a defaulter, given the surety company on his bond within from 10 to 17 days after the first discovery of the default, cannot be said, as a matter of law, not to have been given as soon as reasonably practicable. Judgment 108 F. 599, 43 C. C. A. 331, affirmed.—Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Courtney, 22 S. Ct. 833, 186 U. S. 342, 46 L. Ed. 1193.

The question whether reasonably proper monthly examinations of a cashier's books were made held for the jury under the evidence.—(1912) Title Guaranty & Surety Co. v. Nichols, 32 S. Ct. 475, 224 U. S. 346, 56 L. Ed. 795, affirming judgment (1909) 100 P. 825, 12 Ariz. 405.

The good faith of a bank in certifying in contemplation of the renewal of the cashier's bond that its accounts have just been examined and found correct is a question for the jury in an action on the new bond.—Id.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1556, 1771-1784.

In an action on an accident policy, the complaint alleged that the assured died from "a stricture of the duodenum," produced by the accident. The court refused to charge that, if the jury found that he did not die from duodenitis, they should find for defendant, "except as contained in the general charge." In the general charge the court laid before the jury the issue as to the constriction or occlusion of the duodenum, and charged that the jury must weigh the conflicting claims in regard thereto, and that if deceased received an injury which directly produced duodenitis and thereby caused death, the injury was the proximate cause of death. Held, that a contention that the case was not restricted to the issue made by the pleadings could not be sustained.—United States Mut. Acc. Ass'n v. Barry, 131 U. S. 100, 9 S. Ct. 755, 33 L. Ed. 60, affirming (C. C.) Barry v. United States Mut. Acc. Ass'n, 23 F. 712.

In an action on a life insurance policy containing a stipulation that it should be void if the insured should become so far intemperate as to impair his health, or induce delirium tremens, the court charged: "If impairment of health is caused by or followed his intemperance, then the degree of intemperance which has been forbidden by this condition has been reached. Thus you will perceive that if a single debauch, lasting for a period of a few days, or it may be a single day only, results in impairment of health, it will be clearly that intemperance which is positively forbidden." Held, that an additional instruction for defendant, that it was not necessary that the assured's health should be impaired to the extent of causing his death, was properly refused.—Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Ward, 140 U. S. 76, 11 S. Ct. 720, 35 L. Ed. 371.

It is not error to refuse to charge, as to the cause of a death, that the family physician's certificate of death, adhered to by him in his testimony, is prima facie evidence that deceased came to his death as therein set forth, and to charge instead that it is entitled to the weight which the jury would give an opinion of a learned physician, who saw deceased shortly before his death, and had personal knowledge of him for some time before.—Id.

Evidence that the insured in a policy of insurance dated in October, 1896, was behind in his payment on his land, and that forfeitures were entered in February, 1897, and that he was in the employ of a photographer for two or three months in the summer of 1896, does not require the giving of a requested instruction in an action on such policy that if at the time of making the application the insured was not, as stated therein, a farmer and real estate agent, there can be no recovery.—Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n v. Mettler, 22 S. Ct. 662, 185 U. S. 308, 46 L. Ed. 922.

An instruction, in an action on a policy of life insurance, in which the death of the insured is in issue, that his continued absence without being heard from by his relatives and friends should be given due weight, is not objectionable, where the jury are not left to infer death from the mere fact of disappearance, but are specifically told that that is not in itself sufficient, and that all the facts and circumstances must be considered.—Id.

An instruction, in an action on a policy, that if the jury believe, from the evidence tending to show that the insured had been seen on two occasions and at two places since the date of his alleged disappearance, that he was seen by the witnesses who so testified, they must find for defendant, is not open to the objection that the jury may suppose that they are instructed that they must be satisfied that the insured had been seen by both witnesses or on two occasions.—Id.

A requested instruction, in an action on a policy of life insurance, that, unless the jury believe from the evidence that the insured when last seen was in such a position of peril that it is more probable that he then and there lost his life than that he extricated himself from such perilous position alive, they must find for the defendant, is properly refused, where there is no evidence that the insured was in a position of peril when last seen, although there is evidence tending to show that he probably fell into a river, and so came in contact with a specific peril, and there is evidence regarding the depth, rapidity, and quicksands of the river.—Id.

674. Appeal and error.

On an issue as to the insanity of a person who had committed suicide, the admission in evidence of a conversation between two non-professional witnesses, on an occasion when they saw the deceased, a very few hours before his death, showing the expression of an opinion as to his condition, the same as that to which they testified, is not prejudicial error.—Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Lathrop, 111 U. S. 612, 4 S. Ct. 533, 28 L. Ed. 536.

Where there were two concurrent charters on the ship, both in force during the one voyage, in the course of which she was lost, and the first charter covered a full cargo, and no additional freight could be simultaneously earned under the second, because no part of the cargo contemplated by it could be on board till after the voyage under the first charter had been completed, a knowledge of the risk taken by the insurer must be brought home to the reinsurer, and its concealment avoids the policy of reinsurance, if actually intended to cover the risk for which the claim is made.—Sun Mut. Ins. Co. v. Ocean Ins. Co., 107 U. S. 485, 1 S. Ct. 582, 27 L. Ed. 337.

Plaintiff issued to defendant an open policy of reinsurance indorsed, "To apply to the excess which the said company may have in all their various policies over $50,000, and to apply pro rata with all reinsurance policies on same excess, but not to exceed $10,000." Held, that defendant, having reinsured with plaintiff the excess of its risks over $50,000, had the right to reinsure the $50,000, with other companies. It was not bound itself to carry $50,000.—Insurance Co. of North America v. Hibernia Ins. Co., 140 U. S. 565, 11 S. Ct. 909, 35 L. Ed. 517.

686. Actions on contracts of reinsurance.

See 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1822.

Reinsured is not bound to pay the loss before enforcing its claim against the reinsurer because the compact provides that losses, if any shall be payable pro rata with, in the same manner, and upon the same terms and conditions as paid by the reinsured under the contracts reinsured; that, in no event, shall the reinsurer be liable for an amount in excess of a ratable proportion of the sum actually paid to the insured by the reinsured under the original contracts of insurance, after deducting therefrom any and all liability of other reinsurers; and that reinsured shall forward to the reinsurer a statement of the date and probable amount of loss, and, after having adjusted such loss, shall forward the proofs and a copy of the original receipt taken on payment of such loss. The power of a Massachusetts mutual benefit society under its charter and by-laws to amend such by-laws so as to increase its assessment rates, and the rights and duties of the members of a New York subordinate council with respect to such increase, are to be determined by the Massachusetts law, under which, as construed by a judgment of the highest court of that state, such amendment is valid and violates no contract rights of the certificate holder.—Supreme Council of the Royal Arcanum v. Green, 35 S. Ct. 724, 237 U. S. 531, 59 L. Ed. 1089, L. R. A. 1916A, 771, reversing 100 N. E. 411, 206 N. Y. 591; 129 N. Y. S. 791, 144 App. Div. 761.

Rights of a fraternal order under Charter June 29, 1894, § 4, to amend its constitution at pleasure, extend to an increase in insurance rates.—Supreme Lodge K. of P. v. Mims, 36 S. Ct. 702, 241 U. S. 574, 60 L. Ed. 1179, reversing judgment (Tex. Civ. App.) 167 S. W. 835.

Benevolent order having power to amend its constitution may raise its rates notwithstanding clause in its laws that monthly payments of a member of the endowment rank shall continue the same as long as his membership continues.—Id.

Assumption under Act June 29, 1894, § 3, investing fraternal order incorporated by that act with all claims, etc., existing for or against unincorporated association, of an existing insurance contract, is not an assumption of a contract for immutable assessments where old and new organizations possessed power to amend their laws.—Id.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1896-1906.

Ⓒ751. — Notice of time for payment.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1897-1902.

The constitution and by-laws of a mutual life association provided that the mortuary assessments upon the members should be made the first weekdays of February, April, June, August, October, and December, for such sum as was sufficient to meet the existing claims by death, and that a member failing to receive a notice of an assessment should notify the home office of that fact; and that a failure to pay the assessment within 30 days from the dates thereof should work a forfeiture of membership, but that a delinquent member might be reinstated within one year upon good cause shown, satisfactory evidence of good health, and payment of all back dues. Plaintiff's certificate stipulated that it was subject to the constitution and by-laws, and provided that "a notice addressed to a member at his post-office address, as appearing upon the books of the association, * * * shall be deemed a sufficient notice." The certificate was to become void if any of the payments provided for were not made "when due." The holder of a certificate failed to pay a June assessment for more than 30 days, and plaintiff, the beneficiary, averred that no notice was mailed or received, while defendant alleged that it was. Held, that if no notice was mailed the certificate was not forfeited.—Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n v. Hamlin, 139 U. S. 297, 11 S. Ct. 614, 35 L. Ed. 167.

Ⓒ753. — Sufficiency of payment or tender to prevent forfeiture.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 1903, 1906.

The failure of the secretary of a local subordinate branch or section of the Knights of Pythias to transmit to the general board of control, within the time specified by the general laws of said order, moneys paid to him in due time by a member, will not be ground for forfeiture of the policy of such member, since the secretary's negligence is not chargeable to the member, but is that of an agent of the order, notwithstanding a provision in the general laws of the order to the effect that he is to be regarded as the agent of the member, and not of the order, where the general laws also require the member to pay dues to such secretary only, and provide that the secretary shall transmit immediately after the 10th of each month all moneys collected by him, and that the local branch shall be responsible to the board of control for all such moneys collected by the secretary. Judgment 89 F. 160, 32 C. C. A. 182, affirmed.—Supreme Lodge K. of P. v. Withers, 20 S. Ct. 611, 177 U. S. 260, 44 L. Ed. 762.

Ⓒ755. Estoppel or waiver affecting right of forfeiture.

The endowment rank, or insurance department, of the Knights of Pythias, is separate from the lodge, and entirely subject to a board of control, which has power to make regulations, and to hear and determine all appeals. Under the authority given, the board enacted that, when a member of the endowment rank became in arrears to his lodge for an amount equivalent to one year's dues, he should forfeit his membership in the rank, and his endowment certificate should be void. Thereafter a member of the rank died, who owed more than one year's dues, but had not been suspended by his lodge, and whose assessment had been regularly received by the rank, owing to the failure of the officer of such member's lodge to notify the rank that his dues were unpaid. Held, that a ruling made by the board on these facts, that the certificate of the member had not become void, was binding upon the association in a subsequent case involving the same facts.—Supreme Lodge K. of P. of the World v. Kalinski, 163 U. S. 289, 16 S. Ct. 1047, 41 L. Ed. 163, affirming judgment 57 F. 348, 6 C. C. A. 373.

Where, by the laws of a beneficial association, the failure of a member to pay his dues to his lodge forfeits his rights, under a certificate in the endowment rank of the association, and the rules of the order require the officers of the lodge to notify the secretary of such rank of the nonpayment of lodge dues by a member, so that this forfeiture may be enforced, a failure by the lodge officers to give such notice is imputable to the association, and it cannot allege such failure as a reason why the receipt by the endowment rank of the assessments due it by the member should not be considered a waiver of the forfeiture of his rights as a member of the rank.—Id.

The fact that after an association had refused to receive payment of past-due assessment, and of subsequent assessments as they became due, application was made in the name of the insured for reinstatement to membership, cannot be regarded as a waiver of his rights as a member, when in fact his membership was not forfeited by his failure to pay an assessment, of which no notice was mailed him.—*Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n v. ¶26. Waiver.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Interest, § 7-10.

Interest on a verdict is to be regarded as compensation for delay in payment of the sum found due, and it will not be allowed on a merely formal verdict taken by consent, subject to the opinion of the court, where the delay in the submission of the case for final decision is due to the laches of the party claiming the interest.—Redfield v. Ystalyfera Iron Co., 110 U. S. 174, 3 S. Ct. 570, 28 L. Ed. 109.

In 1863 plaintiffs sued the collector of New York to recover $1,500 for excess of duties illegally exacted from them. In 1864 a consent verdict was entered that plaintiffs should recover the excess of duties, the amount to be adjusted by the clerk. In 1865 the matter was referred to the then collector for adjustment, and in 1884 an amendment was allowed by which plaintiffs claimed $20,000. Of this something over $14,000 was allowed in 1886, with interest from the date the duties were paid, the referee reporting that the delay was not fairly attributable to plaintiffs, for their right to recover depended upon defendant's liability, which was then being litigated in numerous other suits, in whose result their claim was to that extent involved, and that it was reasonable to postpone the suit in prospect of an adjustment which at times seemed feasible, but was constantly deferred by the vacillating action of the officers of the government. Held, that plaintiffs' lack of diligence was such that, as to the claim of $20,000, they are only entitled to interest from the time it was demanded by the amendment.—Redfield v. Bartels, 139 U. S. 694, 11 S. Ct. 683, 35 L. Ed. 310, reversing judgment (C. C.) Bartels v. Redfield, 27 F. 286.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Interest, §§ 61-63.

At the time when a judgment was recovered the rate of interest allowed by the state statutes was 8 per cent. Pending a writ of error the rate was changed to 6 per cent. on judgments thereafter obtained. Act Tex. April 13, 1891. Held that, upon affirmance, interest at the rate of 8 per cent. until paid should be recovered.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Anderson, 149 U. S. 237, 13 S. Ct. 843, 37 L. Ed. 717.

The rate of interest on judgments and decrees, fixed in Michigan at 7 per cent. by a statute originally enacted in 1838, and carried forward in the various compilations of the statutes of that state, was not changed by a statute enacted in 1891, which, according to its title, was one to regulate the interest of money on account and interest on money judgments, but which actually provided only for the reduction of the rate of "interest of money" to 6 per cent., and which was amended by the act of September 22, 1899, by a further reduction of such rate to 5 per cent. Decree, The New York, 108 F. 102, 47 C. C. A. 232, affirmed.—Union Steamboat Co. v. Erie & W. Transp. Co., 23 S. Ct. 504, 189 U. S. 363, 47 L. Ed. 854.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Interest, §§ 64-67.

A person paying the obligation of another, which provides for a rate of interest greater than the legal rate, will be entitled to interest upon his payment only at the rate provided by law when no rate is agreed, and not at the higher rate, which the obligation paid off bears, although a judgment which had been obtained thereon would, by statute, bear the same rate as the obligation itself.—Memphis & L. R. Co. v. Dow, 120 U. S. 287, 7 S. Ct. 482, 30 L. Ed. 595.

¶32. Stipulations as to rate.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Interest, §§ 68-70.

Act N. Y. May 12, 1871, creating a mortgage company, authorized it to lend money on bond and mortgage on real estate situated within the United States, and provided that "no loan or advance of money shall be made at a rate of interest exceeding the legal rate." Held, that this was not intended to restrict the company in all cases to the legal rate of New York, but authorizes it to receive the rate authorized by law in the state where the loan is made.—United States Mortg. Co. v. Sperry, 138 U. S. 313, 11 S. Ct. 321, 34 L. Ed. 969, reversing decree (C. C.) 26 F. 727.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Interest, § 76; 1 Cent. Dig. Acct. St. § 59.

In a suit to foreclose mortgages executed by a guardian to secure loans made on behalf of his ward, a stipulation was made by which the mortgagee consented to a reduction of interest from 9 to 6½ per cent. after a certain date, on condition that the net income of the estate should be paid it monthly, to be credited on whatever might be found due it, and that the minor should pay the whole debt within six months after his majority; both parties to be remitted to their original rights if these conditions were not fulfilled. The court thereupon entered an order directing the payments to be so made, and it was done. When the minor attained his majority he obtained a rescission of this order. Held, that the mortgagee was thereupon remitted to its original rights, and was entitled to interest at 9 per cent., as stipulated when the loan was made, until it was paid.—United States Mortg. Co. v. Sperry, 138 U. S. 313, 11 S. Ct. 321, 34 L. Ed. 969, reversing decree (C. C.) 26 F. 727.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Interest, §§ 79-82.

Under Rev. St. Tex. 1879, art. 2976 (Pasch. Dig. art. 3940), providing that a judgment shall bear interest at the rate of 8 per cent., except when the contract on which it is founded bears a greater rate, in which case the judgment shall bear the same rate, a judgment on a note in which no rate of interest is reserved, but the interest is added to the principal, should not bear interest at a rate greater than 8 per cent.—Ewell v. Daggs, 108 U. S. 143, 2 S. Ct. 408, 27 L. Ed. 682.

Rev. St. § 713, relating to the District of Columbia, providing that the rate of interest on judgments and decrees shall be 6 per cent., has no application, except as to the deficiency after sale, to a decree of foreclosure fixing the amount due plaintiff, on payment of which the decree shall not take effect, as the contract is not merged in the decree.—Shepherd v. Pepper, 133 U. S. 626, 10 S. Ct. 438, 33 L. Ed. 706.

Pub. St. Mass. c. 13, relating to the taxation of telegraph companies, provides that such tax may be recovered, with 12 per cent. interest until paid. Held, that where the company admitted its liability for a certain amount, and paid such amount with 12 per cent. interest and costs into court, it should on the rendering of a judgment for a greater amount be applied to that part of the principal and interest admitted to be due, and interest at 12 per cent. should then be computed to the time of the decree on the balance of the principal, and thereafter interest should be at the legal rate.—Attorney General of Commonwealth of Massachusetts v. Western Union Tel. Co., 141 U. S. 40, 11 S. Ct. 889, 35 L. Ed. 628.

Rev. St. D. C. § 829, prescribing the rate and time of interest on judgments rendered, is by its terms exclusively confined to actions founded on contracts, and is not applicable in cases of action founded on torts.—Washington & G. R. Co. v. Tobriner, 147 U. S. 571, 13 S. Ct. 557, 37 L. Ed. 284.

III. TIME AND COMPUTATION.

§39. Time from which interest runs in general.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Interest, §§ 83-89; 5 Cent. Dig. Atty. & C. § 350; 48 Cent. Dig. Ven. & Pur. § 1017.

Under Rev. St. Ill. 1874, c. 74, § 2, allowing interest at 6 per cent. "for all moneys after they become due on * * * any instrument of writing," and "on money due on the settlement of the account from the day of liquidating accounts between the parties and ascertaining the balance," an agreement between debtor and creditor, containing an acknowledgment that the sum of $70,000 is due from the debtor, and a promise by the creditor to pay certain claims against and make further advances to the debtor, and conveying to the creditor a farm as security, the same to be foreclosed unless the debtor shall within six months from the date of the agreement pay all the indebtedness that may then exist, entitles the creditor to interest on the $70,000 after the expiration of the six months, and on the further payments and advances from their respective dates.—Goodwin v. Fox, 129 U. S. 601, 9 S. Ct. 367, 32 L. Ed. 805.

Sayles' Civ. St. Tex. art. 4809, limits the right to recover, in an ejectment suit, for use and occupation, to a period of two years prior to the commencement of the suit. Articles 4810, 4815, allow plaintiff in ejectment to recover for use and occupation for a longer period than two years prior to the bringing of the action where defendant in ejectment sets up a claim for improvements to the extent necessary to offset the claim for improvements. Held, that where the claim for use and occupation does not equal the claim for improvements, and therefore necessarily extends to the full period of defendant's occupancy, it is error to limit defendant's recovery of interest on the price paid by him against the warrantor to a period of two years instead of allowing him interest on the price from the day of sale.—White v. Van Horn, 159 U. S. 3, 15 S. Ct. 1027, 40 L. Ed. 55.

One who has in his possession and control the means of determining the amount of an indebtedness due by him to another is liable for interest thereon from the time when a demand for an accounting is made and the creditor's right thereto denied.—Spalding v. Mason, 161 U. S. 375, 16 S. Ct. 592, 40 L. Ed. 738.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Interest, §§ 96-106; 5 Cent. Dig. Atty. & C. § 350.

Where money is paid by a government officer under a misapprehension as to the right of the person to receive it, and there is a long delay in asserting the right to recover it, interest will be allowed only from the time the right is asserted.—Sanborn v. United States, 135 U. S. 271, 10 S. Ct. 812, 34 L. Ed. 112.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Interest, §§ 106-112.

Interest on the price of articles delivered in part performance of a contract, when no allowance is made for penalties or forfeitures and further performance is waived, is not to be limited to a period after suit was brought. Judgment 15 App. D. C. 198, affirmed.—District of Columbia v. Camden Iron Works, 21 S. Ct. 680, 181 U. S. 453, 45 L. Ed. 948.

The commencement by a trustee in bankruptcy of an action to recover a sum alleged to have been paid by the bankrupt to a creditor as a preference is a demand which starts the running of interest on the claim. Judgment, Tredway v. Kaufman, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 256, reversed.—Kaufman v. Tredway, 25 S. Ct. 33, 195 U. S. 271, 49 L. Ed. 190.

The liability of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company for interest on the statutory minimum price which the United States is seeking to recover under the adjustment acts March 3, 1887, and March 2, 1896, where lands within the overlap of a conflicting railroad land grant had been erroneously patented to such railroad, prior to the date of the first act, and had been sold to purchasers whose titles had been confirmed, arose only when suit was begun.—Southern Pac. R. Co. v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 717, 228 U. S. 618, 57 L. Ed. 993, modifying judgment 186 F. 737, 108 C. C. A. 607.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Interest, §§ 112-122; 24 Cent. Dig. Fraud. Conv. § 982.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Interest, §§ 113, 115-119.

In order to be relieved of interest on a debt secured by mortgage, accounting from a certain time, the plaintiff should show that at that time he made an actual tender of the money owed.—Peugh v. Davis, 113 U. S. 542, 5 S. Ct. 622, 28 L. Ed. 1127.

§53. — Appeal or other proceedings for review.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Interest, §§ 124-126.

Where on appeal from a decree awarding damages to a patentee for the infringement of his patent the case is sent back to a master to readjust the damages by making certain deductions, plaintiff is entitled to interest on the corrected amounts from the time of the master's report.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Turrill, 110 U. S. 301, 4 S. Ct. 5, 28 L. Ed. 154.

When a decree making separate specified allowances has been reversed, and remanded with instructions to strike out certain items, and allow others as fixed, interest should be allowed on the latter from the date of the decree appealed from, since it was as to them substantially affirmed.—Kneeland v. American Loan & Trust Co., 138 U. S. 509, 11 S. Ct. 426, 34 L. Ed. 1052.

IV. RECOVERY.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Interest, §§ 140-144.

Plaintiff, having paid excessive internal revenue taxes, accepted a sum appropriated by congress (Act July 26, 1886) for repayment thereof, but afterwards brought assumpsit against the collector for the sum illegally exacted, with interest. Held that, such principal sum having been paid, the action, not being one sounding in damages, could not be maintained for the interest.—Stewart v. Barnes, 153 U. S. 456, 14 S. Ct. 849, 38 L. Ed. 781.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Interest, §§ 155, 156.

When the bonds of a South Carolina railroad company, guaranteed by the state, are made payable in pounds sterling, and both principal and interest are to be paid at a designated banking house in London, there arises a presumption that the parties intend the contract to be governed by the law of England, and that, after the maturity of the debt, interest would be payable at the English, and not the South Carolina rate; and the fact that the holder, without objection, accepts interest at the English rate for several years after maturity, is sufficient to render the presumption conclusive. —Coghlan v. South Carolina R. Co., 142 U. S. 101, 12 S. Ct. 150, 35 L. Ed. 951, affirming decree (C. C.) 32 F. 316.

1. Power to impose taxes.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. § 1.

Distilled spirits are not in process of exportation on the giving of an exportation bond for their removal from bonded warehouses, so as to render applicable the constitutional inhibition of taxation of articles exported from the states; and the collector of internal revenue is not thereby deprived of his power to assess a tax on the deficiency accruing by reason of an evaporation, after the giving of one exportation bond, in a subsequent removal of the spirits under a second exportation bond.—Thompson v. United States, 142 U. S. 471, 12 S. Ct. 299, 35 L. Ed. 1084.

2. Constitutionality of revenue laws.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. § 2.

The tax of 5 per cent. on interest paid on bonds or dividends on stock of "any railroad, canal, turnpike, canal-navigation, or slack-water company," levied by Act Cong. June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 122, amended by Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, is not invalid with respect to interest paid by a railroad company to the non-resident alien holders of its bonds, as being a tax on property beyond the jurisdiction of the sovereign.—United States v. Erie Ry. Co., 108 U. S. 327, 1 S. Ct. 223, 27 L. Ed. 151, reversing Fed. Cas. No. 15,056; Id., 107 U. S. 1, 2 S. Ct. 83, 27 L. Ed. 385.

In so far as Act Aug. 15, 1894 (28 Stat. 509), levies a tax on income derived from municipal bonds, it is invalid, because such tax is a tax on the power of the states and their instrumentalities to borrow money, and consequently repugnant to the constitution.—Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U. S. 429, 15 S. Ct. 673, 39 L. Ed. 759.

Internal Revenue Act 1898, Schedule A, par. 2 (30 Stat. 458), imposing a tax on "each sale, agreement of sale or agreement to sell any products or merchandise, at any exchange or board of trade, or other similar place," and requiring, on the making of any such sale, the delivery by the seller to the buyer of a written bill or memorandum, to which a revenue stamp shall be affixed, equal to the amount of the tax on the sale, is not a direct tax, within Const. art. 1, § 9, subd. 4, requiring such a tax to be apportioned, but is in the nature of a duty or excise tax for the privilege of doing business at such place, graduated according to the use, and not a tax either on the memorandum required, the article sold, or the occupation; and, since applied equally to sales made at such places throughout the United States, it conforms with Const. art. 1, § 8, requiring excises and duties to be uniform throughout the United States, and is therefore valid. Order (C. C.) 89 F. 14, affirmed.—Nicol v. Ames, 19 S. Ct. 522, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. Ed. 786.

Internal Revenue Act 1898, Schedule A, par. 2 (30 Stat. 458), taxing sales at exchanges, boards of trade, etc., is not objectionable for nonuniformity, in that it is not levied on all who make sales of the same commodities, whether at exchanges or not; for since such places afford special facilities, not afforded to others, they furnish a legitimate ground for classification for the imposition of taxation, and the tax, being equally imposed on all availing themselves of such facilities, possesses the uniformity required by the constitution.—Id.

The tax is also not objectionable on that ground in that it only taxes the sellers, and not the buyers, and those who sell products or merchandise, and not those who sell bonds, stock, etc., since it is not necessary to the uniformity of an excise tax imposed on privileges that every exercise thereof should be taxed.—Id.

The uniformity required by Const. U. S. art. 1, § 9, providing that "duties, imposts, and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States," is not an intrinsic uniformity relating to the inherent character of the tax as respects its operations on individuals, but is merely a geographical uniformity requiring the same plan and the same method to be operative throughout the United States.—Knowlton v. Moore, 20 S. Ct. 747, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. Ed. 969.

A difference between the testamentary and intestacy laws of the states does not prevent the geographical uniformity of War Revenue Act

June, 1898, §§ 29, 30, under which the primary right of taxation upon legacies and distributive shares depends upon the degree of relationship or want of relationship to the deceased, since the rate is the same wherever the degree of relationship or the want of relationship is the same, so that the rule is uniform, although there may be different conditions among the states as to the objects upon which the tax is levied.—Id.

The direct taxes which must be apportioned under Const. U. S. art. 1, § 10, do not include the tax on the transmission or receipt of legacies and distributive shares of personal property, imposed by War Revenue Act June, 1898, §§ 29, 30, as that tax is a duty or excise, as distinguished from a tax on property.—Id.

The progressive rate feature of War Revenue Act June, 1898, §§ 29, 30, by which the rates are graded in accordance with the amounts of the legacies or distributive shares and progressively increased as those amounts increase, cannot be held unconstitutional on the ground that it is repugnant to fundamental principles of equality and justice; but the question whether a progressive tax is more just and equal than a proportional one is, in the absence of constitutional limitation, a legislative, and not a judicial, question.—Id.

The tax levied on tobacco by the war revenue act of June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 3, 30 Stat. 449 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2228], "in lieu of the tax now imposed by law," is an excise, and not a direct tax upon property, which must be apportioned according to population.—Patton v. Brady, 22 S. Ct. 493, 184 U. S. 608, 46 L. Ed. 713.

No unconstitutional regulation is made by the provision of Act July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 10, cl. 3 (30 Stat. 206 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2221]), prohibiting packing in, attaching to, or connecting with, packages of tobacco "any article or thing whatsoever," other than certain specified labels and stamps, although such provision is construed to prohibit the insertion in such packages of a coupon printed on thin paper of inappreciable weight and without intrinsic value, which does not affect in any way the ascertaining of the proper tax payable upon the package, or interfere in any way with the collection of such tax.—Felsenheld v. United States, 22 S. Ct. 740, 186 U. S. 126, 46 L. Ed. 1085.

The stamp tax on a memorandum or contract of sale of a certificate of stock, imposed by Act Cong. June 13, 1898, c. 448, 30 Stat. 448 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2228], is not unconstitutional as a direct tax on property, which, under Const. U. S. art. 1, § 2, cl. 3, must be apportioned according to the census, but falls within the class of duties, imposts, and excises which, by section 8, cl. 1, of that article, are required to be uniform throughout the United States. Judgment (C. C.) United States v. Thomas, 115 F. 207, affirmed.—Thomas v. United States, 24 S. Ct. 305, 192 U. S. 363, 48 L. Ed. 481.

The "special excise tax" imposed on sugar refining by War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 27, 30 Stat. 448, 464 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2306], to be measured by gross annual receipts in excess of a named sum, is not a direct tax, which, under the federal Constitution, must be apportioned among the several states according to population, but is an excise imposed by Congress under its power to lay and collect excises which shall be uniform throughout the United States. Judgment, 113 F. 244, 51 C. C. A. 201, reversed.—Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 24 S. Ct. 376, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. Ed. 496.

An excise which does not conflict with any express limitation of the federal Constitution cannot be held invalid because the court may deem the rate of taxation too high.—McCray v.

The congressional power to levy excises was not exceeded by the enactment of Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, § 8, 24 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2228], as amended by Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 3, 32 Stat. 193, imposing a tax on artificially colored oleomargarine, because the enforcement of such tax will destroy or restrict the manufacture of that article.—Id.

The motives or purposes of Congress in enacting the tax imposed by Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, § 8, 24 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2228], as amended by Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 3, 32 Stat. 193, on artificially colored oleomargarine, are not open to judicial inquiry in considering the power of that body to enact such legislation.—Id.

Any implied constitutional prohibition which may prevent the destruction by Congress of fundamental rights which it is the duty of every free government to safeguard cannot be invoked to invalidate the excise imposed on artificially colored oleomargarine by Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, § 8, 24 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2228], as amended by Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 3, 32 Stat. 193, because the effect of the tax may be to suppress the manufacture of the article.—Id.

The tax measured by net annual income imposed by Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844], upon the carrying on or doing of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, being an excise, and not a direct tax, is not invalid because not apportioned among the several states according to population.—Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 31 S. Ct. 342, 220 U. S. 107, 55 L. Ed. 389, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1312.

The excise imposed by Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844], upon the carrying on or the doing of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, is not invalid because the business taxed is done in pursuance of the authority granted by a state, in the creation of private corporations.—Id.

Taxing a business when carried on by a corporation, and exempting a similar business when carried on by a partnership or by a private individual, as is done by Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844], imposing an excise upon the carrying on or the doing of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, does not invalidate the tax, since the only limitation upon the power of Congress is uniformity in laying the tax, and this is a geographical uniformity, which does not require the equal application of the tax to all persons or corporations who may come within its operation.—Id.

Measuring the excise imposed by Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844], upon the carrying on or the doing of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity by the entire net income from all sources, does not invalidate the tax, although a part of such income may be derived from property in itself not taxable.—Id.

The measurement by the net corporate income from all sources of the excise imposed by Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844], upon the doing or carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, is not so arbitrary and baseless as to fall outside of the authority of the taxing power.—Id.

The possibility that the rights of the several states to create corporations may practically be destroyed by the exercise of the power assumed by Congress in Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844], to impose an excise upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, furnishes no ground for judicial interference with the tax.—Id.

Public service corporations, such as street railway companies created under state laws, may constitutionally be subjected to the excise imposed by Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844), upon the doing or carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity.—Id.

Exempting corporations whose net annual incomes are under $5,000 from the excise imposed by Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844), upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, does not invalidate the tax.—Id.

Labor, agricultural, and horticultural organizations, fraternal and benevolent societies, and organizations for religious, charitable or educational purposes, could be excepted from the operation of the excise imposed by Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844), upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, without invalidating the tax.—Id.

The excise measured by net annual income, imposed by Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844), upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, is not invalid because a deduction of interest payments is permitted only in case of interest paid by banks and trust companies on deposits, and interest actually paid within the year on bonded or other indebtedness to an amount not exceeding the paid-up capital stock.—Id.

Inequality of application, owing to different local conditions, does not invalidate the excise imposed by Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844), upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity.—Id.

Construing Act Aug. 5, 1909, § 38, imposing an excise tax on net income of corporation as preventing a realty corporation from deducting from gross income interest paid on mortgage in excess of its capital stock, held not unconstitutional as an arbitrary and unreasonable classification.—Anderson v. Forty-Two Broadway Co., 36 S. Ct. 17, 239 U. S. 69, 60 L. Ed. 152, reversing judgment 213 F. 777, 130 C. C. A. 338.

The retroactive effect of the income tax provisions of the Tariff Act, fixing preceding March 1st as the time from which the income for ten months is to be computed, does not render it inconsistent with Const. Amend. 16.—Brushaber v. Union Pac. R. Co., 36 S. Ct. 236, 240 U. S. 1, 60 L. Ed. 493.

Power to exclude from taxation some income of designated persons and classes and to exempt entirely certain enumerated organizations or corporations was not forbidden by Const. Amend. 16, providing for taxes on incomes from whatever source derived.—Id.

Labor, agricultural organizations, savings banks, etc., could be excepted from income tax provided by Act Oct. 3, 1913, without rendering tax repugnant to federal Constitution.—Id.

Labor and agriculture organizations, mutual savings banks, etc., can be excepted from operation of income tax provisions without rendering the tax repugnant to the federal Constitution.—Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 36 S. Ct. 273, 240 U. S. 103, 60 L. Ed. 546.

Taxation of mining companies cannot be taken out of Const. Amend. 16, excluding the source from which taxed income is derived because inadequate allowance by way of deduc-tion is made by the income tax law, for the exhaustion of the ore body.—Id.

Independently of Const. Amend. 16, income tax imposed on the product of the working of a corporate mine is not a direct tax on the property because adequate allowance is not made for the exhaustion of the ore body.—Id.

Retroactive effect of the income tax act, fixing preceding March 1st, as the time from which the income tax is to be computed, held not to render tax inconsistent with Const. Amend. 16, itself.—Tyee Realty Co. v. Anderson, 36 S. Ct. 281, 240 U. S. 115, 60 L. Ed. 554.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. § 1.

It was within the power of congress to impose by the war revenue act of June 13, 1898, an additional excise upon manufactured tobacco on which the excise theretofore imposed by law had been paid, even though such tobacco had passed from the hands of the manufacturer, where it had not reached the consumer, and was, at the time of the passage of the act, held and intended for sale.—Patton v. Brady, 22 S. Ct. 403, 184 U. S. 608, 46 L. Ed. 713.

◀4. Construction and operation of revenue laws in general.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 4, 5.

Section 7, Act Cong. March 3, 1883, entitled "An act to reduce internal revenue taxation, and for other purposes," which provided that Rev. St. §§ 2907, 2908 "be, and the same are hereby, repealed, and hereafter none of the charges imposed by said sections * * * shall be estimated in ascertaining the value of goods to be imported," and which named no date for taking effect, went into operation from the date of its passage, as the act itself took effect immediately, though some provisions were expressly postponed.—Robertson v. Bradbury, 132 U. S. 491, 10 S. Ct. 158, 33 L. Ed. 405.

Statutes to prevent frauds on the internal revenue are enacted for the public good, and though they impose penalties, they are not to be construed strictly in favor of the defendant, like penal laws generally, but are to be so construed as to carry out the intention of the legislature.—United States v. Stowell, 133 U. S. 1, 10 S. Ct. 244, 33 L. Ed. 555.

Revenue Act 1898, Schedule A, par. 2 (30 Stat. 459), provides for the taxation of sales of products or merchandise "at any exchange, or board of trade, or other similar place," etc., and for the affixing of stamps to the bill or memorandum equal to the amount of the tax on the sale. Held, that the Chicago Union Stock Yards, where special facilities are provided for the penning, feeding, weighing, and sale of stock, was a "similar place," within the meaning of the act, and that sales made there were subject to its provisions. Order (C. C.) 89 F. 144, affirmed.—Nicol v. Ames, 19 S. Ct. 522, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. Ed. 786.

The act affects with equal force sales made at such places for future delivery, though they may ultimately be carried out by payment of differences in market price at the date of delivery, instead of actual delivery of the goods, since the privilege used in either case is the same.—Id.

An application of the war revenue act of June 1898, to the District of Columbia is secured by section 31, which incorporates therein the laws relating to the assessment of taxes, thereby including Rev. St. U. S. § 3140, which requires the District of Columbia to be regarded as a state in construing the internal revenue laws.—Knowlton v. Moore, 20 S. Ct. 747, 173 U. S. 41, 44 L. Ed. 969.

The remedy afforded by Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, 14 Stat. 98, 107, 108 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 2073, 2074, 2077], of a sale by distraint of whatever interest in real estate a distiller owned when the government's lien for unpaid internal revenue taxes attached, was not superseded by Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 106, 15 Stat. 125, 167 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2081], empowering the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, if he deems it expedient, to proceed to enforce such lien by a regular suit in equity in a federal court, in which all persons having liens upon, or claiming any interest in, the premises, can be made parties and can have their rights adjudicated. Judgment (1906) 41 Ct. Cl. 89, affirmed.—Blacklock v. United States, 28 S. Ct. 228, 208 U. S. 75, 52 L. Ed. 396.

Conveyances of land previously made, as well as those subsequently executed, were comprehended by Amendment March 2, 1901, c. 806, § 7, 31 Stat. 941 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2294], by which the language of the original proviso in War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 443, § 13, 30 Stat. 454, for validating unstamped bonds, debentures, or certificates of stock or indebtedness, on making the prescribed payment, was broadened so as to embrace any instrument, document, or paper of any kind or description whatsoever mentioned in Schedule A of the act, which specifically mentioned conveyances of land.—(1911) United States v. Chamberlin, 31 S. Ct. 155, 219 U. S. 250, 55 L. Ed. 204, reversing judgment (1907) 156 F. 881, 84 C. C. A. 461, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 720.

The express extension of the provisions of Rev. St. U. S. §§ 3232-3241, 3243 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 2091-2095], which deal with special taxes, to the special tax on oleomargarine, made by Act Aug. 2, 1886, § 3, c. 840, 24 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2229], imposing such tax, and not purporting to be complete in itself, is not an implied exclusion of the general provisions of section 3177 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2069], for the entry by revenue officers of any building or place where any articles or objects subject to tax are made, produced, or kept, for the purpose of examining such articles or objects.—United States v. Barnes, 32 S. Ct. 117, 222 U. S. 513, 56 L. Ed. 291.

5. Liability of persons and property in general.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. § 6.

A lot of land, part of the navy yard at Memphis, Tenn., being the property of the city, not under lease to a private party, and therefore exempt from state and county taxation under Act Tenn. Feb. 20, 1860 (Priv. Acts 1859-60, c. 70, p. 284), was, by Act Cong. Aug. 5, 1861, § 13 (12 Stat. c. 45, p. 297), exempt from taxation under the direct tax on land.—Ensminger v. Powers, 108 U. S. 292, 2 S. Ct. 643, 27 L. Ed. 732.

A municipal corporation which engages in the business of distilling and selling ardent spirits is none the less liable for the internal revenue taxes thereon because it had no authority under its charter to engage in the business.—Salt Lake City v. Hollister, 118 U. S. 256, 6 S. Ct. 1055, 30 L. Ed. 176, affirming 3 Utah, 200, 2 P. 200.

The direct tax laid by Act Aug. 5, 1861, did not create any liability on the part of the states, in which the lands taxed were situated, to pay the tax.—United States v. State of Alabama, 123 U. S. 39, 8 S. Ct. 21, 31 L. Ed. 73.

6. Direct taxes.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. § 7.

In so far as Act Aug. 15, 1894 (28 Stat. 509, c. 349), imposing taxes on incomes, levies a tax on rents and income of real estate, it is invalid, because such tax, being equivalent to a tax on the real estate itself, and therefore a direct tax, is not apportioned among the states, according to the rule prescribed by Const. art. 1, § 2, cl. 3, and Id. § 9, cl. 4, for direct taxes.—Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U. S. 429, 15 S. Ct. 673, 39 L. Ed. 759.

Taxes on the rents or income of real estate are direct taxes.—Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 158 U. S. 601, 15 S. Ct. 912, 39 L. Ed. 1108.

Taxes on personal property, or on the income of personal property, are direct taxes.—Id.

7. Income tax.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 8-10.

The interest paid by corporations to non-resident alien owners of bonds and coupons is subject to the tax imposed by Internal Revenue Act June 30, 1864, § 122, and its amendments.—United States v. Erie R. Co., 106 U. S. 327, 1 S. Ct. 223, 27 L. Ed. 151, reversing Fed. Cas. No. 15,056 [9 Ben. 67].

As it was the intention of congress, in imposing a tax on interest paid by railroads, to tax only such payments as were in fact or in legal effect made from the income, payments of interest, made by a railroad in reorganizing its affairs for future business, at the close of the war, by funding its past-due coupons in a new issue of bonds, or by a sale of such new bonds were not taxable.—Memphis & C. R. Co. v. United States, 108 U. S. 228, 2 S. Ct. 482, 27 L. Ed. 711.

Dividends and interest earned by a railroad company, by leases of its rolling stock within the Confederate lines, and there declared by its officers, and paid in Confederate money, at a time when the entire road and its two principal offices were within the military lines of the United States, are properly subjected to the income tax, under Act 1862, c. 119.—Id.

The tax of 5 per cent. on the profits of railroad companies "carried to the account of any fund, or used in construction," under Act Cong. June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 122 (13 Stat. 284), amended by Act July 13, 1866, c. 184 (14 Stat. 139), cannot be collected on earnings used in construction, where it appears that there were no profits on the business of the company as a whole during the period covered by the petition of the United States in a suit to recover the tax.—Little Miami & C. & X. R. Co. v. United States, 108 U. S. 277, 2 S. Ct. 627, 27 L. Ed. 724.

Act Cong. July 1, 1862, as amended in 1866, imposed a tax on "all profits of any railroad company carried to the account of any fund, or used for construction." Certain so-called "subsidy bonds" were issued by the United States to the Sioux City & Pacific Railroad Company, on which a certain amount of interest accrued yearly, which the company would be liable to pay upon the maturity of the bonds. This interest was to be met by a fund in the nature of a sinking fund. Held, that the taxable earnings of the railroad could not be reduced by the deduction of the amount of the accrued interest.—Sioux City & P. R. Co. v. United States, 110 U. S. 205, 3 S. Ct. 565, 28 L. Ed. 120.

Act Cong. 1870 § 15, provides that there shall be levied and collected, for and during the year 1871, a certain tax on the amount of all interest or coupons paid on bonds issued and payable in one or more years after date by railroad companies, etc. Held, that such section did not impose a tax on interest coupons of the bonds of a railroad company payable and paid on the 1st of January, 1872, though such interest was paid out for the earnings for 1871.—United States v. Indianapolis & St. L. R. Co., 113 U. S. 711, 5 S. Ct. 716, 28 L. Ed. 1140.

Act Cong. July 14, 1870, provides for a tax of 2½ per cent. on the undivided profits of a railroad company "which have accrued, been earned, and added to any surplus, contingent, or other fund" during and for the year 1871. A railroad company used $102,738.30 undivided profits during that year in the construction of new works. Held, that that sum was not taxable as profits for that year.—Marquette, H. & O. R. Co. v. United States, 123 U. S. 722, 8 S. Ct. 319, 31 L. Ed. 302.

The tax of 5 per cent. imposed by Act Cong. June 30, 1864, § 120, on all dividends declared to stockholders "as part of the earnings, income, or gain of any bank," was assessable against the bank for the whole amount of dividends so declared, notwithstanding that it had paid a sum to the state of New York, under Act N. Y. April 23, 1866, imposing a tax against the stockholders on the value of their shares, and requiring the bank to retain the amount thereof from the dividends due them, until it was made to appear that their tax was paid.—Central Nat. Bank v. United States, 137 U. S. 355, 11 S. Ct. 126, 34 L. Ed. 703, affirming judgment (C. C.) United States v. Central Nat. Bank, 24 F. 577.

The act of a bank in declaring a dividend, and making a sworn return of the taxes due thereon, as required by section 120 of the act of congress, was conclusive as to the liability of the bank, and it could not avoid paying the tax by showing that, owing to an undiscovered embezzlement by its cashier, there were no "earnings, income, or gains" for the year, and that the dividends were in fact ignorantly paid out of the capital and accumulated surplus of former years.—Id.

Under Act July 14, 1870, § 15, providing that "there shall be levied and collected for and during the year 1871, a tax of 2½ per centum upon the amount of all interest coupons paid on bonds or other evidences of debt issued and payable * * * by any of the corporations in this section hereafter enumerated, and on the amount of all dividends of earnings, income, or gains hereafter declared by any bank, * * * railroad company, * * * whenever or wherever the same shall be payable," dividends declared during the remaining months of 1870 were taxable.—Blake v. Fourth Nat. Bank, 154 U. S. 616, 14 S. Ct. 1196, 23 L. Ed. 121.

The tax imposed by sections 27-37, inclusive, of the act of August 28, 1894, so far as it falls on the income of real estate and of personal property, being a direct tax within the meaning of the constitution, and void, because not apportioned according to representation, all those sections, constituting one entire scheme of taxation, are necessarily invalid.—Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 158 U. S. 601, 15 S. Ct. 912, 39 L. Ed. 1108.

Internal Revenue Act 1864, § 121, providing that, when the dividend of a railroad company includes any part of the surplus fund on which a duty has been paid, the amount of duty so paid may be deducted from the duty on the dividend; does not include a stock dividend.—Commissioners of Sinking Fund of Logan County, Ky. v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 361, 169 U. S. 255, 42 L. Ed. 737.

An internal revenue tax on the undistributed surplus of a railroad company is a tax on the property of the company, and not on its shareholders; and, though the company shortly afterwards declares a scrip dividend representing the surplus, the tax cannot be considered as a tax on the dividend, on the theory that the dividend was diminished by the amount of the tax. Therefore a municipality receiving a scrip dividend, under such circumstances, on its railroad shares, is not entitled to have a proportionate amount of the tax refunded to it.—Id.

Purpose of Const. Amend. 16, giving Congress power to collect taxes on incomes, was to exclude the source from which taxed incomes were derived as a criterion by which to determine applicability of constitutional requirement as to apportionment of direct taxes.—Brushaber v. Union Pac. R. Co., 36 S. Ct. 236, 240 U. S. 1, 60 L. Ed. 493.

The whole purpose of Const. Amend. 16, giving Congress power to collect income taxes without apportionment among the several states, was to exclude the source from which a tax income was derived as the criterion by which to determine the applicability of the constitutional requirement as to apportionment of direct taxes.—Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 36 S. Ct. 278, 240 U. S. 103, 60 L. Ed. 546.

The whole purpose of Const. Amend. 16, authorizing an income tax, was to exclude the source from which a taxed income was derived as the criterion by which to determine the applicability of constitutional requirement as to apportionment of direct taxes.—Tyce Realty Co. v. Anderson, 36 S. Ct. 281, 240 U. S. 115, 60 L. Ed. 554.

—8. Legacy, inheritance, and transfer taxes.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. § 11, 12.

Where a legacy had not vested before the act of July 14, 1870, repealing the act of June 30, 1864, was passed, it cannot be held liable to the tax imposed by Act 1864, § 124.—Sturges v. United States, 117 U. S. 363, 6 S. Ct. 767, 29 L. Ed. 920.

The amount of each particular legacy or distributive share, and not the sum of the whole personal estate of a decedent, is the amount on which the progressive rate of tax is imposed by War Revenue Act June, 1898, §§ 29, 30, and by which the rate is measured.—Knowlton v. Moore, 20 S. Ct. 747, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. Ed. 969.

The taxes upon legacies and distributive shares of personal property, which are imposed by the War Revenue Act June, 1898 (30 Stat. 448) §§ 29, 30, are imposed upon the transmission or receipt of such inheritances and legacies, and not upon the right of the state to regulate the devolution of property upon death.—Id.

United States bonds included in a legacy or distributive share of a decedent's estate are not exempted from the tax on the transmission of such property, imposed by War Revenue Act 1898, §§ 29, 30, by reason of the declaration in the federal statutes and on the face of the bonds to the effect that they are exempt from taxation, since the tax is not upon the bonds, but on the right of transfer by will or under the intestate law.—Murdock v. Ward, 20 S. Ct. 775, 178 U. S. 139, 44 L. Ed. 1009.

American securities passing partly under a will executed abroad by a nonresident alien, and partly under the intestate laws of Spain, are not subject to the inheritance tax imposed by War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, § 29, upon personal property passing "either by will or by the intestate laws of any state or territory," since the words, "passing by will," are limited by the subsequent words, "or by the intestate laws of any state or territory," as is evident from the provision of section 30 for the payment of such tax to the collector of the district of which the deceased person was a resident.—Eidman v. Martinez, 22 S. Ct. 515, 184 U. S. 573, 46 L. Ed. 697.

Personal property in the United States, passing under the will of a nonresident alien executed in New York during a temporary sojourn there, is not subject to the inheritance tax imposed by the war revenue act of June 13, 1898.—Moore v. Ruckgaber, 22 S. Ct. 521, 181 U. S. 593, 46 L. Ed. 705.

A legacy not capable of being immediately possessed or enjoyed, and therefore not taxable under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, §§ 29, 30, 30 Stat. 464 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 2307, 2308], as construed by the administrative officers prior to Amending Act March 2, 1901, c. 806, 31 Stat. 946 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2307], cannot be deemed to have been subjected to such taxation by the provision of the later act making the inheritance tax due and payable one year after the death of the testator, and requiring the executor to make return of the estate in his control within 30 days after taking charge thereof, especially in view of subsequent legislative affirmance in Act June 27, 1902, c. 1160, 32 Stat. 406 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1903, p. 231], of the construction given to the original statute before the amendment.—Vanderbilt v. Eidman, 25 S. Ct. 331, 196 U. S. 480, 49 L. Ed. 563.

The interest of a residuary legatee, conditioned on his attaining a certain age, cannot be deemed taxable under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, §§ 29, 30, 30 Stat. 464 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 2307, 2308], before the happening of the contingency, in view of the express provisions of those sections as to "possession or enjoyment" and "beneficial interest" and "clear value," and of the absence of any express language exhibiting an intention to tax a mere technically vested interest in a case where the right to possession or enjoyment is subordinated to an uncertain contingency.—Id.

Under sections 29 and 30 of the war revenue act of July 1, 1898, c. 448, 30 Stat. 464, 465 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 2307, 2308], as amended by Act March 2, 1901, c. 806, § 10, 31 Stat. 946, 948 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 2307, 2308], providing for a tax on legacies, to become "due and payable in one year after the death of the testator," and to be a lien, etc., legacies left by a testator who died within one year prior to July 1, 1902, at which time the act repealing such sections took effect, are not taxable thereunder, the repealing act of April 12, 1902, c. 500, § 8, 32 Stat. 97 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1903, p. 279], saving only taxes which had been "imposed" prior to its taking effect.—Eidman v. Tilghman, 27 S. Ct. 779, 203 U. S. 580, 51 L. Ed. 326, affirming judgment (1905) 136 F. 141, 69 C. C. A. 139, which affirmed (C. C. 1904) Tilghman v. Eidman, 131 F. 651.

Legacy taxes, under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, §§ 29, 30, 30 Stat. 464, 465, as amended by Act March 2, 1901, c. 806, §§ 10, 11, 31 Stat. 946, 948 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 2307, 2308], which were made due and payable one year after the death of the testator, are not collectible on the estates of persons who died within one year prior to July 1, 1902, at which time the repeal of said section 29 took effect (32 Stat. 97 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1905, p. 446]).—McCoach v. Philadelphia Trust, Safe Deposit & Ins. Co., 27 S. Ct. 793, 205 U. S. 539, 51 L. Ed. 921, affirming judgment (1905) 142 F. 120, 73 C. C. A. 610, which affirmed (C. C. 1905) Philadelphia Trust, Safe Deposit & Ins. Co. v. McCoach, 135 F. 866.

The tax provided for by section 29 of the war revenue act of June 13, 1898 (30 Stat. 464, c. 448 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2308]), being an ad valorem tax, was not "imposed," within the meaning of the saving clause of the repealing Act April 12, 1902, c. 500, 32 Stat. 97, § 8 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1905, p. 447], until its assessment, and where an intestate died while the act was in force and more than one year before its repeal, but owing to a dispute as to the heirship and the pendency of unsettled claims the estate did not become distributable nor the tax ascertainable until after the repealing act took effect, it is not subject to the tax. Judgment (1906) 143 F. 301, 74 C. C. A. 439, affirmed.—

The inheritance tax imposed by the war revenue act (Act June 1898, c. 448, § 29, 30 Stat. 464 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2307]), although not "due and payable" under section 30 of that act, as amended by Act March 2, 1901, c. 806, § 11, 31 Stat. 948 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2308], until one year after the death of the testator, must be deemed to have become an obligation immediately upon the passing by death of a vested right to the present possession or enjoyment of a legacy or distributive share, so as to be within the saving clause of the repealing act (Act April 12, 1902, c. 500, § 8, 32 Stat. 97 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 876]), preserving all taxes "imposed" prior to the taking effect of that act, although the testator's death was less than one year prior to such date, in view of Rev. St. § 13 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 6), providing that the repeal of any statute shall not have the effect to release or extinguish any penalty, forfeiture, or liability incurred thereunder, unless the repealing act shall expressly so provide.—Hertz v. Woodman, 30 S. Ct. 621, 218 U. S. 205, 54 L. Ed. 1001.

The entire clear value of a legacy under a will devising the residuary estate in trust to pay over to the testator's niece the net income in quarterly payments for life, and not merely so much of such life estate as she had actually received before July 1, 1902, had "vested" prior to that date, in the sense of the provision of Act June 27, 1902, c. 1160, § 3, 32 Stat. 406 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 879), for the refunding of so much of the succession tax as may have been collected on "contingent beneficial interests which shall not have become vested" before the date mentioned.—(1911) United States v. Fidelity Trust Co., 32 S. Ct. 59, 222 U. S. 158, 56 L. Ed. 137, reversing decree (1910) Fidelity Trust Co. v. United States, 45 Ct. Cl. 362.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 13-28.

Certificates of indebtedness issued by a railroad company, not calculated or intended to circulate or be used as money, are not taxable as "circulation," under Rev. St. § 3408, cl. 3.—United States v. Wilson, 106 U. S. 620, 2 S. Ct. 85, 27 L. Ed. 310.

The idea of regularity, as to route or time, or both, is involved in the words "express business," under Act Cong. June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 104 (13 Stat. 276), imposing a tax on persons engaged in such business, and those words do not cover what is done by a person who carries goods solely on call and at special request, and does not run regular trips or over regular routes.—Retzer v. Wood, 109 U. S. 185, 3 S. Ct. 164, 27 L. Ed. 900.

Under Act Cong. Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 19 (18 Stat. 311), providing that every person, firm, or corporation "shall pay a tax of 10 per centum on the amount of their own notes used for circulation and paid out by them," only negotiable promissory notes payable in money are taxable, and an order for the payment of money in merchandise is not within the purview of the act.—Hollister v. Zion's Co-op. Mercantile Inst., 111 U. S. 62, 4 S. Ct. 283, 28 L. Ed. 352; Willis v. Belleville Nail Co., 111 U. S. 62, 4 S. Ct. 265, 28 L. Ed. 354.

One whose business is buying and selling stocks for his customers, and who employs capital in his business, and has a regular place for transacting it, is a "banker," within the meaning of Rev. St. §§ 3407, 3408 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 2246, 2247], which provide that every person "having a place of business * * * where money is advanced or loaned on stocks, bonds," etc., "or where stocks, bonds," etc., "are received for discount or for sale, shall be regarded as a * * * banker," and impose a tax "on the capital employed by any person in the business of banking."—Richmond v. Blake, 132 U. S. 592, 10 S. Ct. 204, 33 L. Ed. 481.

Moneys placed in the Manhattan Bank by the state treasurer of New York, pursuant to the contract of July 13, 1840, between the bank and the commissioners of the canal fund, and also under the provisions of Rev. St. N. Y. pt. 1, c. 8, tit. 4, §§ 7-10, to be disbursed by the bank, as agent of the state, in discharge of the principal and interest of the state canal loan and the loan for payment of bounties to volunteers, and which moneys were held by the bank at its own risk, mixed with its general funds, and were subject to be recalled by the state, were true "deposits," and computable as such in determining the sum which was subject to the federal tax of one twenty-fourth of 1 per cent. a month, imposed by the act of June 30, 1864, § 110 (Rev. St. § 3408), on the average amount of bank deposits subject to payment by check, draft, etc.—President, etc., of Manhattan Co. v. Blake, 148 U. S. 412, 13 S. Ct. 640, 37 L. Ed. 504.

The deposit of the money by the state did not create a vested right in the creditors to whom it was to be paid, so as to make the bank a mere trustee for them; nor, on the other hand, was the money held by the bank merely as agent of the state, so as to render the tax a tax on the revenues of the state in the hands of its disbursing agent, or a tax directly upon the revenues of the state.—Id.

Interest on bank deposits and dividends on shares of stock owned by a sugar refining company are not properly included in the gross annual receipts upon which the amount of the tax imposed on sugar refining by War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 27, 30 Stat. 448, 464 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2306], is to be computed, but receipts from wharves owned by it and almost exclusively used for the unloading of sugar consigned to it are properly included.—Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 24 S. Ct. 376, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. Ed. 496.

The dispensing and selling agents of a state which, in the exercise of its sovereign power, has taken charge of the business of selling intoxicating liquors, are fairly within the scope of Rev. St. U. S. §§ 3140, 3232, 3244 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 2091, 2097, 2040], under which an excise tax is to be collected from all sellers of intoxicating liquors. Judgment (1904) 39 Ct. Cl. 257, affirmed.—State of South Carolina v. United States, 26 S. Ct. 110, 199 U. S. 437, 50 L. Ed. 261, 4 Ann. Cas. 737.

A national bank whose outstanding circulating notes amount to less than 5 per cent. of its capital is not exempted from the half-yearly duty imposed by Rev. St. U. S. § 5214 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3500), upon the average amount of its notes in circulation, by section 3411 (page 2248) although the latter section is by section 3417 (page 2251) expressly made applicable to national banking associations, since it was so made applicable, as clearly appears from the legislation from which its provisions were drawn, in order to give national banks representing state banks the benefit of the presumption of loss or inability to retire the circulation of the state bank when 95 per cent. thereof had been actually retired. Judgment (1906) 42 Ct. Cl. 6, affirmed.—Merchants' National Bank of Baltimore v. United States, 29 S. Ct. 593, 214 U. S. 33, 53 L. Ed. 899.

An excise upon the carrying on or the doing of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity is what was imposed by Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844), providing that insurance companies and all corporations, joint-stock companies, or associations organized for profit, and having a capital stock represented by shares, shall be subject annually to a special excise tax with respect to the carrying on or doing business, equivalent to 1 per centum upon the entire net income over and above $5,000 received from all sources during the year, with certain allowances and deductions.—Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 31 S. Ct. 342, 220 U. S. 107, 55 L. Ed. 389, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1312.

Corporations organized for and actually engaged in such activities as leasing property, collecting rents, managing office buildings, making investments of profits, or leasing ore lands and collecting royalties, managing wharves, dividing profits, and in some cases investing the surplus, are engaged in business within the meaning of Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844), imposing an excise upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity.—Id.

A corporation owning and leasing taxicabs and collecting rents therefrom is engaged in business within the meaning of Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844), imposing an excise upon the doing or carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity.—Id.

Corporations acting as trustees, guardians, etc., under the authority of the laws or courts of a state, are not the agents of the state government in such a sense as to be exempt from the imposition, under Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844), of an excise measured by net income upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity.—Id.

Real estate trusts created by deed for the purchasing, improving, holding, or selling lands and buildings for the benefit of the shareholders, which do not derive any benefit from, and are not organized under, any statute of the state, and which, by their terms, end with lives in being and twenty years thereafter, are not subject to the excise imposed by Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844), upon the doing of business by corporations, joint-stock companies, or associations "now or hereafter organized under the laws of the United States or of any state or territory."—Ediot v. Freeman, 31 S. Ct. 360, 220 U. S. 178, 55 L. Ed. 424.

A corporation organized for the purpose of owning and renting an office building, but which has wholly parted with the control and management of the property, and by the terms of a reorganization has disqualified itself from any activity in respect to it, its sole authority being to hold the title subject to a lease for 130 years, and to receive and distribute the rentals which may accrue under the terms of the lease, or the proceeds of any sale of the land, if it shall be sold, is not doing business within the meaning of Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38, 36 Stat. 112 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 844), imposing an excise upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity.—Zonne v. Minneapolis Syndicate, 31 S. Ct. 361, 220 U. S. 187, 55 L. Ed. 423.

A railroad which has leased its entire road and all its rights and privileges for a term of years at an annual rental, the lessees operating it and agreeing to return it at the expiration of the lease, is not with respect to the railroad "engaged in business" within federal Corporation Tax Law, § 38, imposing an excise tax on corporations, though it retains a franchise of corporate existence, and is ready to resume possession at the expiration of the lease, and to exercise its franchise of eminent domain when required by the lessee.—McCoach v. Minehill & S.

H. R. Co., 33 S. Ct. 419, 228 U. S. 295, 57 L. Ed. 842.

The receipt by a lessor railroad of the income from its railroad and of interest and dividends from invested funds and payment of expenses incidental of the receipt of such moneys and distribution among stockholders do not constitute a business taxable under federal Corporation Tax Law, § 38.—Id.

Income derived by receivers of street railways where they are required to operate same under the supervision of the court, is not subject to the excise tax imposed by Act Aug. 5, 1909, § 38.—United States v. Whitridge, 34 S. Ct. 24, 231 U. S. 144, 58 L. Ed. 159, affirming decree Pennsylvania Steel Co. v. New York City Ry. Co., 198 F. 774, 117 C. C. A. 556.

Corporations engaged solely in mining on their own premises are subject to the excise tax imposed by Act Aug. 5, 1909, § 38, such corporations being within the general description of that section.—Stratton's Independence v. Howbert, 34 S. Ct. 136, 231 U. S. 399, 58 L. Ed. 285, answering certified questions 211 F. 1023, 127 C. C. A. 607.

The proceeds of ore mined by a corporation from its own premises are income within the meaning of Act Aug. 5, 1909, § 38, imposing an excise tax measured by the net annual income.—Id.

Treating the proceeds of ore mined by a corporation as income within Act Aug. 5, 1909, § 38, does not make the excise tax thereon a direct tax and invalid.—Id.

Assuming that the depletion of the mineral supply by mining should be considered in determining the reasonable depreciation that under Act Aug. 5, 1909, § 38, is to be deducted from the net annual income when assessing the excise tax of a mining corporation, the difference between the proceeds of the sales during the year and the amount expended for mining and marketing cannot be treated as the value of the ore in place for such purpose.—Id.

A real estate corporation, whose business consists in the collection of rent received from its single lessee, is not engaged in business within federal Corporation Tax Law (Act Aug. 5, 1909, § 38).—United States v. Emery, Bird, Thayer Realty Co., 35 S. Ct. 490, 237 U. S. 28, 59 L. Ed. 825, affirming judgment (D. C.) Emery, Bird, Thayer Realty Co. v. United States, 198 F. 242.

Under Act Aug. 5, 1909, § 38, authorizing that, in determining income of corporation, interest paid on bonded debt in an amount not exceeding its capital stock may be deducted, does not permit deduction of interest on bonded debt of more than the capital stock as part of the expenses of operation.—Anderson v. Forty-Two Broadway Co., 36 S. Ct. 17, 239 U. S. 69, 60 L. Ed. 152, reversing judgment 213 F. 777, 130 C. C. A. 338.

—10. Taxes on specific articles.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 29-33.

—11. — In general.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 29, 30-32.

The reconversion of the residuum of opium remaining after smoking into a form fit for re-smoking is not a manufacture of opium for smoking purposes within Act Oct. 1, 1890, § 36, levying an internal revenue tax on all opium manufactured in United States for smoking purposes.—United States v. Shelley, 33 S. Ct. 635, 229 U. S. 239, 57 L. Ed. 1167.

—12. — Distilled spirits.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 30-32.

An indorsement by a distiller on the collector's survey of his distillery accepting it, and acknowledging it as binding, made at the time his bond is executed, is a waiver of a formal delivery of a copy of the survey required by Rev. St. U. S. § 3264, and the taxes on the difference between the capacity of the distillery and the returns of production may be recovered, notwithstanding the nondelivery.—Wright v. United States, 108 U. S. 281, 2 S. Ct. 633, 27 L. Ed. 727.

Rev. St. § 3309, provides that, "if the commissioner finds that the distiller has used any grain in excess of the capacity of his distillery as estimated according to law, he shall make an assessment against the distiller at the rate of ninety cents for every proof gallon that should have been produced from the grain so used in excess;" and by section 3307 the distiller is required to make a sworn report monthly of the grain used. Held, that the tax is not to be assessed against an apparent excess above the daily average in one month, which is balanced by a corresponding deficiency in the next month.—Chicago Distilling Co. v. Stone, 140 U. S. 647, 11 S. Ct. 862, 35 L. Ed. 532.

As Rev. St. § 3330, providing for the withdrawal of distilled spirits from bonded warehouses for exportation in the original casks without the payment of taxes, under regulations to be prescribed by the commissioner of internal revenue, contemplates but one withdrawal entry for exportation, and Act Cong. May 28, 1880, § 17 (21 Stat. 149), makes allowance for a deficiency upon only one such entry, the collector has power to assess a tax on a deficiency accruing by reason of evaporation after the giving of an exportation bond and the actual removal under a later exportation bond.—Thompson v. United States, 142 U. S. 471, 12 S. Ct. 299, 35 L. Ed. 1084.

—14. — Tobacco and snuff.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. § 34.

A dealer in tobacco, who is assessed on his sales thereof when it is in a bonded warehouse, is not liable to be taxed for the revenue stamps required to be affixed thereto before the removal thereof, unless they were at the time of such sales so affixed, whereby they entered into the value of the tobacco and formed a part of the price thereof.—Jones v. Van Benthuyssen, 115 U. S. 464, 6 S. Ct. 128, 29 L. Ed. 446.

—16. — Oleomargarine and adulterated or renovated butter.

Artificially colored oleomargarine, whose color is imparted in its manufacture by the use of an artificially colored and authorized ingredient, is not within the proviso to Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, § 8, 24 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2228], as amended by Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 3, 32 Stat. 193, imposing, instead of the general tax on oleomargarine prescribed by that section, a lower rate when "free from artificial coloration," because of the provision of section 2 of the amendatory act that persons adding to, or mixing with, oleomargarine any artificial coloration shall be held to be manufacturers of oleomargarine.—McCray v. United States, 24 S. Ct. 769, 195 U. S. 27, 49 L. Ed. 78, 1 Ann. Cas. 561.

Oleomargarine, whose yellow color is produced by the employment as an ingredient of butter which itself is artificially colored, is not "free from artificial coloration," within the meaning of the proviso to Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, § 8, 24 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2228], as amended by Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 3, 32 Stat. 193, prescribing a lower rate of taxation for oleomargarine not so colored, although the statute treats butter, whether artificially colored or not, as an authorized ingredient of oleomargarine.—Id.

Oleomargarine, containing a small quantity of a vegetable oil, which substantially serves only to give the product the yellow shade which causes it to resemble butter, cannot be regarded as within the proviso in Act Aug. 2, 1886, c.

840, § 8, 24 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2228], as amended by Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, 32 Stat. 193 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1903, p. 266], imposing a lesser tax on oleomargarine when "free from artificial coloration that causes it to look like butter of any shade of yellow," on the theory that the use of a substance which Congress has, in section 2 of the original act, recognized as a possible ingredient, cannot be artificial coloration, since this congressional enumeration of ingredients specifically includes coloring matter.—Chif v. United States, 25 S. Ct. 1, 195 U. S. 159, 49 L. Ed. 139.

Oleomargarine made to look like butter of a shade of yellow by the use of one-half of 1 per cent. of palm oil, a vegetable oil recognized as a possible ingredient by Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, § 2, 24 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2228), is not "free from artificial coloration" within the meaning of the proviso in section 8 of that act, as amended by Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 3, 32 Stat. 194 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1903, p. 864), imposing a lesser tax on oleomargarine when free from artificial coloration that causes it to look like butter of any shade of yellow, although the addition of such palm oil may give the product a slightly better grain of texture, and a slightly better physiological effect upon those who eat it, where, but for its coloring power, it probably would not have been used.—Wm. J. Moxley v. Hertz, 80 S. Ct. 305, 216 U. S. 844, 54 L. Ed. 510.

17. — Filled cheese.

No exemption of filled cheese manufactured for export from the manufacturing tax imposed by Act June 6, 1896, c. 337, § 9, 29 Stat. 253 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2236], was effected by the provision that "the tax levied by this section shall be represented by coupon stamps, and the provisions of existing laws governing the engraving, issue, sale, accountability, effacement, and destruction of stamps relating to tobacco and snuff, as far as applicable, are hereby made to apply to stamps provided for by this section," although by Rev. St. U. S. § 3385 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2212], exported manufactured tobacco and snuff are relieved from the manufacturing tax.—Cornell v. Coyne, 24 S. Ct. 383, 192 U. S. 418, 48 L. Ed. 504.

18. Stamp taxes on specific objects.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 39-45.

19. — Written instruments.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 33-44.

A "call" for stock, which contains an absolute promise to sell the stock at any time within 15 days at a certain price, though it may be a unilateral contract, is an "agreement to sell," within the provision of War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 25, Schedule A, 30 Stat. 458 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2300] requiring a stamp tax of 2 cents on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof.—Treat v. White, 21 S. Ct. 611, 181 U. S. 264, 45 L. Ed. 853, answering certified questions 109 F. 1063, 47 C. C. A. 686.

Bonds required to be given to the state of Illinois and city of Chicago as a condition precedent to the issue of the liquor license were exempted from the stamp tax requirement of the war revenue act of 1898, 30 Stat. 448, c. 448 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2286], either as bonds issued by a state or city within the meaning of the exemption conferred by section 17 of that act [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2297], or by virtue of the proviso in that section that it was thereby intended to exempt the state and municipalities in respect of the exercise of strictly governmental functions.—Ambrosini v. United States, 23 S. Ct. 1, 187 U. S. 1, 47 L. Ed. 49, reversing judgment (D. C.) United States v. Ambrosini, 105 F. 239.

22. Revenue officers and agents.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 47-61.

The sureties on an official bond of an internal revenue collector are liable for taxes collected during the term covered by their bond upon assessment rolls recovered during a prior term or for moneys or stamps on hand at the expiration of a former term, and remaining in possession of the collector at the beginning of the new term, when retained by him as his own successor, as when received from any other predecessor.—United States v. Stone, 106 U. S. 525, 1 S. Ct. 287, 27 L. Ed. 163.

In an action against sureties on an official bond of an internal revenue collector, it is competent for defendants to show, by certified transcripts of the books of the treasury department, that the balance charged against their principal upon the adjustment of his accounts, during the period when they were liable for his defaults, had in fact arisen, by virtue of a default during his prior term.—Id.

A person appointed and commissioned as a collector of internal revenue, under the act of July 1, 1862 (12 Stat. 432), is entitled to the compensation, provided for by section 34 of that act, of a percentage commission to be computed on the moneys accounted for and paid over by him, from the time he enters on the duties of his office and his services are accepted, and not merely from the time he takes the oath of office.—United States v. Flanders, 112 U. S. 88, 5 S. Ct. 67, 28 L. Ed. 630.

A collector of internal revenue appointed under Act July 1, 1862 (12 Stat. 432), is entitled, in a suit against him on his bond, brought to recover public money collected by him and not paid over, to have allowed, as a set-off, money paid by him for publishing advertisements required to be made by section 19 of that act, if the amount is found to be reasonable and proper, though the item was not formally allowed or certified by the accounting officers in the treasury department, or otherwise.—Id.

Rev. St. § 3314, allowing commissions to collectors of internal revenue on taxes collected by the sale of tax-paid spirit stamps, was not repealed by Act March 1, 1879, § 2; the intention of congress that it should remain in force being unmistakably expressed by the re-enactment verbatim of section 3314 in section 5 of said act of 1879.—United States v. Landram, 118 U. S. 81, 6 S. Ct. 954, 30 L. Ed. 58.

Under Rev. St. § 3220, providing that the commissioner of internal revenue, subject to the regulations of the secretary of the treasury, is authorized, on application by the officer, to repay all damages and costs recovered against such officer by reason of anything done in the due performance of his official duties, an officer applied to the commissioner for payment of a judgment, who, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, allowed the claim, and certified it for payment to the judgment creditor, "upon due satisfaction of the judgment." Held, it was proper, under the statute, to make the payment directly to the judgment creditor, on satisfaction of the judgment by him, when it appeared that payment had not been made by the officer.—United States v. Frerichs, 124 U. S. 315, 8 S. Ct. 514, 31 L. Ed. 471.

The rule that justification of an alleged trespass, to avail, must be pleaded, does not apply in an action against a collector of internal revenue for the alleged wrongful seizure of a distiller's property, where the declaration itself shows that the collector acted in his official capacity, and in conformity with law, in making the seizure.—Harding v. Woodcock, 137 U. S. 43, 11 S. Ct. 6, 34 L. Ed. 580.

The doctrine that a ministerial officer will be protected in the enforcement of process regular on its face, issued by an officer or tribunal possessing jurisdiction over the subject-matter, and having the power to issue process for the enforcement of its judgment, applies to a collector of internal revenue in enforcing against a distiller an assessment for taxes, regular on its face, made by the commissioner of internal revenue, and duly certified to the collector, though such assessment may in fact have been invalid.—Id.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 62-67.

Where the penalty of a bond was payable directly to the United States, and the condition was that the defendant should pay, or cause to be paid, to the treasurer of the United States, for the use of the United States, all and every such sum or sums of money as he might owe to the United States for adhesive stamps, any evidence which shows that defendant was indebted for adhesive stamps is competent, and it is immaterial whether the stamps were furnished by the assistant treasurer or by the commissioner of internal revenue.—Jessup v. United States, 106 U. S. 147, 1 S. Ct. 74, 27 L. Ed. 85.

In an action on a bond under Revenue Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 161, given "to secure payment to the treasurer of the United States" for revenue stamps furnished on credit, it is no defense that the bond is given to the United States, and not to the treasurer, and that the suit is not brought in his name.—Id.

An order from the secretary of the treasury pursuant to Act Cong. May 27, 1872 (17 Stat. 162), abating taxes upon bonded spirits on account of their destruction by fire, cancels the warehouse bond; and, though the order may be revoked for cause and the tax reimposed, the obligation of the bond can never be revived.—United States v. Alexander, 110 U. S. 325, 4 S. Ct. 99, 28 L. Ed. 166.

The seizure and sale of bonded spirits forfeited by the fraudulent acts of the distiller, and the payment of the taxes out of the proceeds, render the bond functus officio, and discharge the obligors.—United States v. Ulrich, 111 U. S. 38, 4 S. Ct. 283, 28 L. Ed. 344; Same v. Sutton, 111 U. S. 42, 4 S. Ct. 291, 28 L. Ed. 346.

The government assumes no responsibility to a distiller for the safe-keeping of bonded whisky deposited in a distillery warehouse.—United States v. Witten, 143 U. S. 76, 79, 12 S. Ct. 372, 36 L. Ed. 81.

The fact that bonded whisky deposited in a distillery warehouse was stolen through failure of the revenue officers to provide sufficient locks for the doors is no defense to an action on the bond.—Id.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. § 74.

The lien of the United States on distillery premises for delinquent taxes can be enforced only by a suit in equity, in which the owners of the fee in the land, or of incumbrances on it, are made parties.—Mansfield v. Excelsior Refinery Co., 135 U. S. 326, 10 S. Ct. 823, 34 L. Ed. 162.

Rev. St. § 3251, gives the United States, for taxes due on distilled spirits, a lien on the land whereon the distillery is situated. Section 3262 declares that, where a distiller does not own the land on which his distillery is situated, he must file with the collector the written consent of the owner of the fee, or of any mortgagee, judgment creditor, or other person having a lien thereon, that the premises may be used for the purpose of distilling spirits, and stipulating that the lien of the United States for taxes shall have priority of such mortgage, etc. Held, that the consent provided for in section 3262 passes no interest in the land to the distiller, but merely gives to the United States a first lien for the taxes that may be due from him.—Id.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. § 75.

A rule of the tax commissioners not to receive payment of the taxes imposed by Act June 7, 1862, except from the owner in person has the effect to dispense with the necessity of tender, since it would be of no avail.—United States v. Lee, 106 U. S. 196, 1 S. Ct. 240, 27 L. Ed. 171.

An express company is not forbidden by the act of congress of June 13, 1893, known as the "war revenue act," from adding to its rates an amount sufficient to cover the cost of the stamp required to be affixed to a receipt issued to the shipper, and thereby shifting the burden of the tax upon the shipper, if the rate as increased thereby is not unreasonable.—Crawford v. Hubbell, 20 S. Ct. 701, 177 U. S. 419, 44 L. Ed. 829; American Exp. Co. v. Maynard, 20 S. Ct. 696, 177 U. S. 404, 44 L. Ed. 823, reversing judgment Attorney General v. American Exp. Co., 77 N. W. 317, 118 Mich. 682, 5 Detroit Leg. N. 669.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 76-81.

Under Rev. St. § 3224, prohibiting suits restraining the collection of internal revenue taxes, and providing a remedy by suit to recover back the tax after it is paid, the statutory remedy is exclusive, and a bill in equity will not lie to enjoin the collection of an internal revenue tax on tobacco, on the theory that a tax illegally assessed is not a tax within the statute.—Snyder v. Marks, 109 U. S. 189, 3 S. Ct. 157, 27 L. Ed. 901.

Land subject to a direct tax was sold for its nonpayment, and was bought in for the United States for the sum of $1,100, under Act June 7, 1862, c. 98, § 7, as amended by Act Feb. 6, 1863, c. 21 (12 Stat. 640), the tax, penalty, interest, and costs being $170.50. No money was paid. The United States took possession of the land and leased it, and afterwards sold all but 50 acres for $130, under Act June 8, 1872, c. 337 (17 Stat. 330). The land was not redeemed. Application by its owner was made to the secretary of the treasury for the $929.50 surplus, and, no action being taken thereon, he sued in the court of claims to recover that sum. Held, that he was entitled to recover it.—United States v. Lawton, 110 U. S. 146, 3 S. Ct. 545, 28 L. Ed. 100.

In an action to recover the surplus proceeds of a sale of property for direct taxes under the act of congress of August 5, 1861, the court of claims found that in 1865, after the tax sale, the claimant sold the property subject to the tax title, and in 1882 released to the government, and those claiming under it, all his interest, to secure it against a second payment of the surplus. Held, that it could not be inferred from these findings that the claimant retained possession of the property after the tax sale, and sold it to a third person for a valuable consideration, regardless of the tax sale, even if these facts were material, and that, if the sale was for any reason invalid, the release secured the government against any possible claim by the owner on that account.—United States v. Cooper, 120 U. S. 124, 7 S. Ct. 459, 30 L. Ed. 606.

Until an application has been made to the treasury, the statute does not begin to run against a claim for the surplus proceeds of a sale under Act Cong. Aug. 5, 1861, relative to the sale of property which was subject to direct taxes, and which proceeds have, under the statute, been deposited in the treasury to be held until called for by the owner.—Id.

Rev. St. §§ 3187-3194, provide for the sale by the collector of the personal property of a delinquent for taxes due the United States; and sections 3196, 3197, provide that if such property is insufficient the collector may sell the real estate after publication of a notice of the sale, and service of a notice thereof in writing, on the person, "whose estate it is proposed to sell." Sections 3198, 3199, provide for a deed from the collector to the purchaser at such sale, which shall operate to convey "all the right, title, and interest of the party delinquent." Held that, where land on which a distillery is situated is sold under these sections for taxes due from the distiller, who does not own the fee in the land, only his interest passes under the collector's deed.—Mansfield v. Excelsior Refinery Co., 135 U. S. 326, 10 S. Ct. 825, 34 L. Ed. 162.

The duty imposed by law on a collector of internal revenue to collect by distraint taxes assessed against a distiller and duly certified to the collector is not suspended or in any way affected by the commencement of an action by the government on the distiller's bond for the collection of the same taxes.—Harding v. Woodcock, 137 U. S. 43, 11 S. Ct. 6, 34 L. Ed. 580.

The stamp tax which, under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 6, 30 Stat. 451 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2291), is to be "levied, collected, and paid" upon the execution of a conveyance, may be recovered by the United States in an action of debt, notwithstanding the further provisions of the statute imposing fine or imprisonment for issuing an unstamped conveyance, and making such unstamped instrument inadmissible in evidence, incapable of record, and invalid and of no effect, which must be deemed made in order to induce the payment of the tax, and not as substitutes for payment.—(1911) United States v. Chamberlin, 31 S. Ct. 156, 219 U. S. 250, 55 L. Ed. 204, reversing judgment (1907) 156 F. 881, 84 C. C. A. 461, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 720.

The satisfaction of a judgment for the recovery of the stamp tax which, under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 6, 30 Stat. 451 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2294), is to be levied, collected, and paid upon the execution of a conveyance, must be deemed the equivalent of the payment of the price of the stamps under section 13 of that act, as amended by Act March 2, 1901, c. 808, § 7, 31 Stat. 941 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2294), validating unstamped instruments on making the prescribed payment, in view of Rev. St. U. S. § 3216 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2084), providing that all judgments and moneys recovered or received for taxes, costs, forfeitures, and penalties shall be paid to collectors as internal taxes are required to be paid.—Id.

Express statutory authority for an action by the United States to recover the stamp tax which, under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 6, 30 Stat. 451 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2291), is to be levied, collected, and paid upon the execution of a conveyance, is given by section 31 of that act, making applicable all administrative, special, or stamp provisions of law, including the laws in relation to the assessment of taxes not heretofore specifically repealed, which must comprehend the authority conferred by Rev. St. U. S. § 3213 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2083), to sue for and recover taxes in the name of the United States in any proper form of action, before any federal Circuit or District Court for the district within which the liability is incurred, or where the party from whom such tax is due resides.—Id.

Maintenance by stockholder of suit to restrain corporation from voluntarily complying with income tax provisions of Act Oct. 3, 1913, as unconstitutional, is not forbidden by Rev. St. § 3224 (Comp. St. 1913, § 5947), prohibiting enjoining enforcement of taxes.—Brushaber v. Union Pac. R. Co., 36 S. Ct. 236, 240 U. S. 1, 60 L. Ed. 493.

Courts are precluded by Rev. St. § 3224 (Comp. St. 1913, § 5947), from taking jurisdiction of a bill against commissioner of internal revenue to enjoin collection of taxes imposed by income tax section of Tariff Act Oct. 3, 1913, on the ground that the statute is in violation of Const. U. S.—Dodge v. Osborn, 36 S. Ct. 275, 240 U. S. 118, 60 L. Ed. 557, affirming decree 43 App. D. C. 144.

Allegations in bill against commissioner of internal revenue to enjoin collection of taxes imposed by income tax law, that by Rev. St. § 3187 (Comp. St. 1913, § 5909), making tax a lien on plaintiff's property, its assessment would constitute a cloud on plaintiff's title, do not take case out of rule that by section 3224 (Comp. St. 1913, § 5947) collection of tax cannot be enjoined because of alleged unconstitutionality of act imposing it.—Id.

Maintenance by stockholder of suit to restrain corporation from complying with income tax provisions of Tariff Act Oct. 3, 1913, for unconstitutionality of the statute, is not forbidden by prohibition of Rev. St. § 3224 (Comp. St. 1913, § 5947), against enjoining enforcement of taxes.—Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 36 S. Ct. 278, 240 U. S. 103, 60 L. Ed. 546.

—29. Issuance and distribution of stamps.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. § 85.

The provision of Revenue Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 161, allowing the commissioner of internal revenue to furnish manufacturers of matches with revenue stamps "without prepayment therefor, on a credit not exceeding 60 days, requiring in advance such security as he may judge necessary," does not require a new security to be given for each advance of stamps; and, in an action on a bond given in pursuance thereof, the account against the defendant is not incompetent, because it appears on its face that the stamps were furnished from time to time, and that the credits were continuous for a greater period than 60 days.—Jessup v. United States, 106 U. S. 147, 1 S. Ct. 74, 27 L. Ed. 85.

Under the internal revenue acts, the commission of 10 per cent. allowed to dealers in proprietary articles, purchasing for their own use stamps made from their own dies, must be paid in money, and not in stamps at their face values; and, where the internal revenue bureau refuses to allow dealers to purchase at all, unless they accepted stamps in payment of their commission, the acceptance of stamps is not a voluntary one, such as would amount to a waiver of the statutory right of the dealer, and no formal protest is necessary in order to enable him to recover the amount of his claim.—Swift & Courtney & Beecher Co. v. United States, 111 U. S. 22, 4 S. Ct. 244, 28 L. Ed. 341.

The statute of limitations runs against the claims from the time each commission was withheld, and only those claims can be successfully prosecuted which have arisen within six years.—Id.

—36. Refunding taxes collected.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. § 82.

Under Act Cong. July 29, 1882 (22 Stat. 723, c. 359), providing for the refunding to the persons therein named of the amount of taxes assessed upon and collected from them contrary to the provisions of the regulations therein mentioned, "that is to say, to" each of such persons the sum set opposite his name, each of them is entitled to be paid the whole of that sum, and no discretion is vested in the secretary of the treasury, or in any court, to determine whether the sum specified was or was not the amount of a tax assessed contrary to the provisions of such regulations.—United States v. Jordan, 113 U. S. 418, 5 S. Ct. 585, 28 L. Ed. 1013.

Rev. St. § 3220, authorizes the commissioner of internal revenue, subject to regulations prescribed by the secretary of the treasury, on appeal to him, to refund all taxes erroneously collected. Regulation 3 prescribed by the secretary of the treasury requires the commissioner, after hearing an appeal, to make a formal certificate of his decision, with the amount in writing which should be refunded; regulation 4 requires the entry of the decision in a docket; regulation 5 requires a weekly transmission of the list of awards, with the vouchers, to the first comptroller of the treasury; and regulation 7 requires the transmission of the case, with the evidence in support of it, to the secretary of the treasury, for his consideration and advisement, before final decision of an appeal involving over $250. Held, that the examination and allowance of a claim exceeding $250 by the commissioner without complying with regulations 3, 4, and 5, and the subsequent transmission of the claim to the secretary of the treasury for his consideration and advisement, did not constitute a final award by the commissioner, which was binding on the government.—Stotesbury v. United States, 146 U. S. 196, 13 S. Ct. 1, 36 L. Ed. 940, affirming judgment 23 Ct. Cl. 285.

Beneficial interests of next of kin of an intestate dying June 28, 1902, were not vested in possession three days later within Act June 27, 1902, providing for refunding of succession taxes collected on contingent interests not vested prior to July 1, 1902, where no administrator had been appointed and the debts and expenses had not been ascertained.—United States v. Jones, 35 S. Ct. 261, 236 U. S. 106, 59 L. Ed. 488, Ann. Cas. 1916A, 316.

Legacies under a will held not absolutely vested July 1, 1902, within Act June 27, 1902, for refund of succession taxes on contingent beneficial interests not vested prior to July 1, 1902.—McCoach v. Pratt, 35 S. Ct. 421, 236 U. S. 562, 59 L. Ed. 720, affirming judgment 201 F. 1021, 119 C. C. A. 666.

Death duties illegally assessed were not the only taxes to be refunded under Act July 27, 1912, collected under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, § 29.—United States v. Hvoslef, 35 S. Ct. 459, 237 U. S. 1, 59 L. Ed. 813, Ann. Cas. 1916A, 286, affirming judgment (D. C.) Hvoslet v. United States, 217 F. 680.

Payment under protest is not necessary to a suit founded on Act July 27, 1912, for refunding of internal tax illegally assessed under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, § 29.—Id.

A devise to residuary legatees held contingent and not vested prior to July 1, 1902, within Act June 27, 1902, § 3, relating to the refunding of succession taxes on contingent beneficial interests.—Uterhart v. United States, 36 S. Ct. 417, 240 U. S. 598, 60 L. Ed. 819, reversing judgment 49 Ct. Cl. 709.

—37. Redemption of stamps.

Where internal revenue stamps have been destroyed by fire before they have been used, the fact that the owner has received payment therefor under a contract of insurance does not bar his right to claim payment from the United States, under Rev. St. § 3426, as amended by 20 Stat. 327, 349, where the recovery is sought for the use of the insurer.—United States v. Amer- ican Tobacco Co., 17 S. Ct. 619, 166 U. S. 468, 41 L. Ed. 1081.

A regulation prescribed by the commissioner of internal revenue, requiring claimants under that statute to make oath "that the value or reimbursement of the value of said stamps, or any portion thereof, has not heretofore been received by claimant, directly or indirectly," is substantially complied with by an oath that such value or reimbursement, or any portion thereof, "has not heretofore been received by claimant, directly or indirectly, from the government."—Id.

Though the commissioner of internal revenue has the choice, in redeeming unused revenue stamps, either to give other stamps or refund in money, yet where he has refused to do either, and compelled the claimant to sue, the government will not be heard to complain on appeal, for the first time, that the suit is for money only, and the commissioner is deprived of his right to elect.—Id.

—38. Recovery of taxes paid.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 83, 84.

A railroad company issued certificates entitling each stockholder to 80 per cent. of his stock, payable ratably out of future earnings, with dividends thereon at the same rates and times as capital stock, and convertible into stock, at the option of the company, whenever authorized to sufficiently increase its capital. At a former hearing, it was held that, while these certificates constituted a scrip dividend, and were subject to the 5 per cent. income tax imposed by Internal Revenue Act 1864, § 122 (13 Stat. 284), still, as they represented earnings expended in the improvement, construction, and equipment of the road through a period of 15 years, during only 6 of which the income tax was in force, the amount subject thereto was properly reduced to six-fifteenths of their total. The company paid under protest, and brought action to recover the amount as illegally exacted. Held, that it was competent for plaintiff to show just how much of the sums represented by the certificates had been expended for construction and improvement during the six years covered by the tax, and had not already been assessed for taxation as profits carried to construction or other account.—Bailey v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 106 U. S. 109, 1 S. Ct. 62, 27 L. Ed. 81.

Acts 1866, c. 184, § 19, declares that no suit shall be brought to recover taxes illegally exacted until an appeal has been made to the commissioner and decided by him, unless such suit shall be brought within 6 months after such decision, provided that, if he delays decision more than 6 months, suit may be brought at any time within 12 months from the date of the appeal. Held, that a person who, on the neglect of the commissioner to render a decision within 6 months, fails to bring suit within a year from the date of his appeal, is not thereby precluded from maintaining his action within 6 months after a decision is actually rendered by the commissioner.—James v. Hicks, 110 U. S. 272, 4 S. Ct. 6, 28 L. Ed. 144.

No suit can be maintained to recover taxes illegally collected, unless a claim for abatement or refunding of the amount claimed has been presented to the commissioner of internal revenue within two years after the claim accrued, as required by Rev. St. § 3228.—Kings County Sav. Inst. v. Blair, 116 U. S. 200, 6 S. Ct. 353, 29 L. Ed. 557.

Section 61 of the act of August 28, 1894 (28 Stat. pp. 509, 567, c. 349), provides that any manufacturer finding it necessary to use alcohol in the arts, etc., "may use the same under regulations to be prescribed by the secretary of the treasury, and on satisfying the collector * * * that he has complied with such regulation and has used such alcohol therein, and exhibiting and delivering up the stamps which show that a tax has been paid thereon, shall be entitled to receive" repayment of such tax. Held, that the making of such regulations was a condition precedent to the existence of any right of rebate, and, the secretary having found it impracticable to make any proper and enforceable regulations without further legislation by congress, which was never enacted, no right of rebate arose under the statute. Judgment Robert Dunlap & Co. v. United States, 33 Ct. Cl. 135, affirmed.—Dunlap v. United States, 19 S. Ct. 319, 173 U. S. 65, 43 L. Ed. 616.

A judgment dismissing an action by a legatee against the United States to recover an alleged illegal tax under the war revenue act, where the statute is held constitutional, but on a proper construction thereof is held not to justify the imposition of the whole amount of the tax that was collected, will be reversed, although in another action the executor has established his right to recover the illegal excess from the internal revenue collector, in order that judgment of dismissal in the present case may not embarrass the plaintiff's right to claim indemnity from the executor.—Sherman v. United States, 20 S. Ct. 779, 178 U. S. 150, 44 L. Ed. 1014.

A written application to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to refund a sum expended in the voluntary purchase of revenue stamps from a collector, to be affixed to a conveyance, though it may be sufficient to justify favorable action by the commissioner, under Rev. St. U. S. § 3220 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 2086, 2087], is not the equivalent of an appeal to him from an adverse decision by the collector, which, under sections 3228-3228 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 2088, 2089], is essential to the maintenance of a suit for the recovery of internal taxes alleged to have been erroneously or illegally assessed or collected.—Chesebrough v. United States, 24 S. Ct. 262, 192 U. S. 253, 48 L. Ed. 432.

The necessity of protest or notice to sustain the recovery of a stamp tax illegally collected on manifests of cargoes on vessels bound to foreign ports is not removed by the provision of Act May 12, 1900, c. 393, § 31 Stat. 177 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2276], authorizing the commissioner of internal revenue to redeem or make allowance for internal revenue stamps in any manner "wrongfully collected." Judgment (D. C.) New York & Cuba Mail S. S. Co. v. United States, 125 F. 320, reversed.—United States v. New York & Cuba Mail S. S. Co., 26 S. Ct. 327, 200 U. S. 488, 50 L. Ed. 569.

The purchase of documentary stamps at various times without protest, and the affixing of such stamps to manifests of cargoes on vessels bound to foreign ports, cannot be deemed to have been under duress, so as to sustain a recovery from the United States of the amount of the illegal tax so collected, because clearance papers for vessels so bound could not be procured without delivery to the collector of the district of the stamped manifests, without which clearance papers the vessels would be prevented from sailing, or would be liable, under Rev. St. U. S. § 4197 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2840], for the penalty therein prescribed.—Id.

Remedy by suit against collector, where internal revenue taxes have been wrongfully collected under Corporation Tax Law, Aug. 5, 1909, § 38, is not exclusive.—United States v. Emery, Bird, Thayer Realty Co., 35 S. Ct. 499, 237 U. S. 28, 59 L. Ed. 825, affirming judgment (D. C.) Emery, Bird, Thayer Realty Co. v. United States, 198 F. 242.

The inhibition of Rev. St. § 3224 (Comp. St. 1913, § 5947), of suits to restrain assessment or collection of a tax, and provisions of sections 3220, 3226, 3227 (Comp. St. 1913, §§ 5944, 5949, 5950), making an appeal to a commissioner of internal revenue after payment and refusal to refund prerequisite to a suit to recover taxes illegally collected, are applicable to taxes under the income tax section of tariff act (Act Oct. 3, 1913, § 2, par. L).—Dodge v. Osborn, 36 S. Ct. 275, 240 U. S. 118, 60 L. Ed. 557, affirming decree 43 App. D. C. 144.

Federal District Court did not commit reversible error in passing on merits of controversy in supplemental bill to enjoin collection of surtaxes under income tax law 1913, on ground of its unconstitutionality, that the commissioner of internal revenue had ruled adversely upon plaintiff's protest and the taxes had been paid, notwithstanding failure of such bill to allege compliance with conditions imposed by Rev. St. §§ 3220, 3226 (Comp. St. 1913, §§ 5944, 5949), as prerequisites to such suit.—Dodge v. Brady, 36 S. Ct. 277, 240 U. S. 122, 60 L. Ed. 560.

It is not an offense, within Act Cong. March 1, 1879, § 12, to have in possession an uncanceled stamp that has been used on a package of imported liquors, unless such stamp was removed therefrom by some person intentionally, without being defaced or destroyed.—United States v. Spiegel, 116 U. S. 270, 6 S. Ct. 587, 29 L. Ed. 664.

The insertion, in a package of smoking and chewing tobacco, of a coupon printed on thin paper of inappreciable weight and without intrinsic value, which does not affect in any way the ascertaining of the proper tax payable upon the package, or interfere in any way with the collection of such tax, is forbidden by Act July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 10, cl. 3, 30 Stat. 206 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2221], which prohibits packing in, attaching to, or connecting with such a package "any article or thing whatsoever," other than certain specified labels and stamps.—Felsenheld v. United States, 22 S. Ct. 740, 186 U. S. 126, 46 L. Ed. 1085.

A corporation is a "person" within the meaning of Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 1, 32 Stat. 193 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1907, p. 636], requiring wholesale dealers in oleomargarine to keep certain books and make certain returns, and providing for punishing by fine and imprisonment "any person who willfully violates any of the provisions of this section," although section 5 of the same act applies in express terms to corporations, and gives the court discretionary power to punish either by fine or imprisonment or both.—United States v. Union Supply Co., 30 S. Ct. 15, 216 U. S. 50, 54 L. Ed. 87.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 109-113.

Act Cong. Aug. 2, 1886, regulating the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine, by section 20 authorizes the commissioner of internal revenue, on the approval of the secretary of the treasury to make "needful regulations" for carrying its provisions into effect, and by section 18 imposes a penalty for the neglect to do anything "required by law" to be done under any of its sections, not otherwise specially provided for. Held, that a regulation of the commissioner of internal revenue requiring wholesale dealers to keep certain books, and make certain prescribed returns of their sales, although proper under section 20, cannot render one violating it liable to the penalty imposed by section 18, in the absence of a statute distinctly making such neglect a criminal offense.—United States v.

46. Forfeitures, and enforcement thereof.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 117-141.

A circular by the commissioner of internal revenue required that a cigar factory shall be at least an entire room, separated by walls and partitions from the rest of the building, and that the factory shall not, any part of it, even though marked off and separated from the remainder by a railing, counter, bench, screen, or curtain, be used as a store, where the manufacturer can sell his cigars otherwise than in legal boxes properly branded and stamped. Plaintiffs, having paid special taxes both as retail dealers and as manufacturers, disregarded the order, and continued to sell at retail from the front part of the room in the rear part of which was their manufactory. Held, that the order was within the authority of the commissioner, under Rev. St. § 3396, to prescribe regulations for the inspection of cigars, and that the sales were illegal and ground for forfeiture, under Rev. St. §§ 3392, 3397, 3400, being removals of cigars from the place where they were manufactured without being packed in boxes and properly stamped.—Ludloff v. United States, 108 U. S. 176, 2 S. Ct. 475, 27 L. Ed. 693.

A general verdict, on an information in several counts for a single forfeiture under the internal revenue laws, is valid if one count is good.—Snyder v. United States, 112 U. S. 216, 5 S. Ct. 118, 28 L. Ed. 697.

In an information for forfeiture of distillery property and apparatus, under Rev. St. § 3257, for an attempt to defraud the government of the internal revenue tax, it is sufficient to follow the words of the statute, without setting forth the particular means by which the fraud was attempted, or to specify the particular spirits covered by the tax, or to allege that the spirits found were distilled by the claimant, or were the product of his distillery.—Coffey v. United States, 116 U. S. 427, 6 S. Ct. 432, 29 L. Ed. 681.

Proceedings in rem under the revenue laws being kindred to such proceedings in admiralty, so far as the pleadings are concerned, no reply or replication to the answer is necessary to raise an issue of fact on the matters averred in it, but new matter is considered as denied. Hence an issue of fact as to a former conviction raised by the answer must be held to have been covered by the verdict; and no question in regard to the defense set up can be raised, in the absence of a demurrer to the answer and of a bill of exceptions raising specific questions.—Id.

Section 3305, which declares that, for failure to keep the books required by law, "the distillery, distilling apparatus, and the lot or tract of land on which it stands," shall be forfeited, will not be construed to include the interests of innocent third persons, as the forfeiture would be more comprehensive than that provided for the graver offense declared against in section 3281.—United States v. Stowell, 133 U. S. 1, 10 S. Ct. 244, 33 L. Ed. 555.

Rev. St. § 3281, as re-enacted in Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 16 (18 Stat. 310), declares that if any person carries on the business of a distiller without giving bond, or with the intent to defraud the United States, there shall be forfeited "all distilled spirits or wines and personal property found in the distillery, or in any building, room, yard, or inclosure connected therewith, and used with or constituting a part of the premises." Held, that the provision is not limited to property owned by the distiller, but applies also to personalty sold by the distiller, before the commission of the offense, but left in his possession and control, and which was on the premises when the act was committed, and found there at the time of seizure, though the owner had no participation in or knowledge of the unlawful acts.—Id.

Where an internal revenue act, imposing a penalty for its violation, contains nothing to imply that the forfeiture is to be postponed, the forfeiture takes effect on the commission of the act; and the condemnation, when obtained, relates back, and avoids all intermediate sales or alienations, even to purchasers in good faith.—Id.

Rev. St. § 3281, as re-enacted in Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 306, § 16 (18 Stat. 310), providing that if any person carries on the business of a distiller without giving bond and with intent to defraud the United States, all his right, title, and interest in the lot or tract of land on which the distillery is situated, and all right, title, and interest therein of every person who knowingly has permitted the business of a distiller to be carried on, shall be forfeited. Held, that this provision does not reach the interest of a prior mortgagee in the land, without whose knowledge the act was committed.—Id.

Boilers, engines, pumps, vats, and tanks, which were in lawful use as part of a brewery before an illicit still was set up on the premises, constitute a part of the land while annexed thereto, and are covered by a mortgage thereon, and hence are not subject to forfeiture for a violation of the revenue laws by the mortgagor.—Id.

In a proceeding by the United States for the forfeiture of certain property for an alleged violation of the internal revenue laws, the claimants answered denying the unlawful acts charged in the information. They subsequently filed an amended and supplemental answer setting up an additional defense, but expressly reserving the right to rely on the denials of the original answer. A demurrer to the amended answer was overruled, and the cause was submitted to the court generally on an admission of the facts alleged in the amended answer and on the pleadings. Held that, in the absence of proof of the allegations of the information, a judgment of dismissal was proper, and could not be reversed, and the sufficiency of the amended answer and the correctness of the ruling on the demurrer thereto became immaterial.—United States v. One Distillery, 19 S. Ct. 624, 174 U. S. 149, 43 L. Ed. 929.

Substances which are not in themselves taxable under the laws of the United States are not embraced in the words "anything else," as used in Rev. St. U. S. § 3455 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2279], providing for a seizure, forfeiture, and penalty for selling packages which contain, at the time of sale, anything else than the contents when the same were lawfully stamped by a revenue officer, even where there is no intent to defraud, and for a much heavier penalty where there is such fraudulent intent.—United States v. A. Graf Distilling Co., 28 S. Ct. 264, 208 U. S. 198, 52 L. Ed. 452.

The sale of a barrel of whisky to which has been added, after such barrel has been properly stamped by a revenue officer, burnt sugar, or caramel, as coloring matter, does not authorize the seizure and forfeiture to the United States provided for by Rev. St. U. S. § 3455 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2279], when a barrel or other package contains anything else at the time of sale than the contents which were therein when lawfully stamped.—Id.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. §§ 144-150.

A finding that the use of palm oil as an ingredient of oleomargarine was substantially only for coloring purposes will not be disturbed on appeal, where it is based on testimony that out of a total of 160 ounces, only 1½ ounces were palm oil, and that this quantity imparted the yellow shade which caused the product to resemble butter.—Cliff v. United States, 25 S. Ct. 1, 195 U. S. 159, 49 L. Ed. 139.

⚡48. Disposition of proceeds of penalties, forfeitures, and fines.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Rev. § 151.

Act Cong. June 30, 1864, § 179, as amended by Act July 13, 1866, giving to the first informer of a violation of the internal revenue laws a portion of the fine, penalty, or forfeiture coming to the government by reason of such violation, declares that "no right accrues to or is vested in any informer in any case until the fine, penalty, or forfeiture in such case is fixed by judgment or compromise, and the amount or proceeds shall have been paid." By Act June 6, 1872, §

39, this provision was repealed, and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, was authorized to pay such sums as he deemed necessary, not exceeding the amount appropriated, for detecting and bringing to trial persons guilty of violating the internal revenue laws. Held, that one who gave information before the repeal of a violation for which a compromise sum was agreed upon, and paid after the repeal, had no right to an informer's share.—United States v. Connor, 138 U. S. 61, 11 S. Ct. 229, 34 L. Ed. 860.

As between nations, the minimum limit of the territorial jurisdiction of a nation over its tide waters is a marine league from its coast, and bays wholly within its territory, not more than two marine leagues wide at the mouth, are within this limit, which jurisdiction includes the right of control over fisheries, whether of floating or shell fish.—*Manchester v. Certain executive acts held to prove that the president, in the exercise of the discretionary power conferred upon him by the constitution, and the act of congress, was satisfied that the island of Navassa was not within the jurisdiction of Hayti, or of any foreign government, and that it should be considered as appertaining to the United States.—Id.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Intern. Law, § 7.

The obligations assumed by the United States in respect to Cuba were limited by the treaty of Paris, December 10, 1893 (article 16), to the time of occupation. During the period of occupation the United States assumed the obligations resulting therefrom under international law. Judgment (1905) 40 Ct. Cl. 495, affirmed.—Galban & Co. v. United States, 28 S. Ct. 254, 207 U. S. 579, 52 L. Ed. 349.

It has been judicially determined that Cuba was foreign territory during its military occupation by the United States, but that, as between Cuba and the United States, the island was territory held by the United States in trust for the inhabitants thereof.—Id.

—9. Change of sovereignty.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Intern. Law, § 9.

The doctrine that the laws of a conquered or ceded country, except so far as affected by the political institutions of the new government, remain in force after conquest or cession, until changed by it, does not apply to laws authorizing the alienation of any portions of the public domain, or to officers charged under the former government with that power. No proceedings affecting the rights of the new government over public property could be taken, except in pursuance of its authority on the subject.—More v. Steinbach, 127 U. S. 70, 8 S. Ct. 1067, 32 L. Ed. 51.

It is the duty of a nation receiving a cession of territory to respect all rights of property recognized by the nation making the cession, but not to right wrongs which the grantor nation may have theretofore committed against individuals, except, perhaps, in cases where the wrong was so recently committed that the individual may not have had time to appeal to the courts or other authorities of the grantor nation for redress.—Cesna v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 314, 169 U. S. 165, 42 L. Ed. 702.

The right to the emoluments incident to the hereditary office of high sheriff of Havana, which were left by the Spanish law in the hands of the incumbent until proceedings for the condemnation of the office should be completed and the incumbent be paid, did not survive the extinction of the sovereignty of Spain over Cuba. Judgment (D. C. 1906) 142 F. 858, affirmed.—O'Reilly De Camara v. Brooke, 28 S. Ct. 439, 209 U. S. 45, 52 L. Ed. 676.

—11. Intervention.

The occupancy and control of the island of Cuba under military authority of the United States cannot be deemed to be an unconstitutional and unauthorized interference with the internal affairs of a friendly power, by virtue of the joint resolution of congress of April 20, 1898, declaring that "the people of Cuba are, and of right ought to be, free and independent," since this declaration was not intended as a recognition of the existence of an organized government instituted by the people of that island in hostility to the government maintained by Spain.—Neely v. Henkel, 21 S. Ct. 302, 180 U. S. 109, 45 L. Ed. 448, affirming judgment (C. C.) In re Neely, 103 F. 631; Neely v. Henkel, 21 S. Ct. 308, 180 U. S. 126, 45 L. Ed. 457, affirming judgment In re Neely (C. C.) 103 F. 626.

During the period of occupation of Cuba the President had the right to prescribe rules and regulations, having the force of law, for the government of the island; but he had no authority to, practically, so extend the Union that a citizen of the United States should be exempt from the payment of duties. Judgment (1905) 40 Ct. Cl. 495, affirmed.—Galban & Co. v. United States, 28 S. Ct. 254, 207 U. S. 579, 52 L. Ed. 349.

The powers and duties of the United States in Cuba were those of a trustee for the protection and security of persons and property. It would have been a violation of their obligations as trustee to allow their own citizens to import merchandise free of the duties necessarily imposed for the purposes of government.—Id.

The right of the United States to intervene to stop the effusion of blood in Cuba and protect the lives and property of their citizens there has passed beyond judicial inquiry and become a rule of international law.—Id.

There is no inconsistency with the principles underlying international arbitration in providing for a judicial investigation of fraud in obtaining an award from an international commission, the amount of which has been paid to the United States, in accordance with the award, for distribution, as the purpose of the suit is to enforce good faith on the part of citizens who seek the intervention of the government to obtain redress of alleged wrongs from another country. Decree United States v. La Abra Silver-Min. Co., 32 Ct. Cl. 462, affirmed.—La Abra Silver-Min. Co. v. United States, 20 S. Ct. 168, 175 U. S. 423, 44 L. Ed. 223.

A bill in equity alleged that complainant was the trustee and legal owner of certain property for the use of the "German Reformed Church"; that defendants A., E., and L., trustees of said church, claimed to be the legal beneficiaries of the trust, and "expected to sue complainant for the recovery of their supposed rights"; and that defendants K. and S., trustees of the "German Evangelical Church," claimed to be the legal beneficiaries, and entitled to the rents of the trust property, and had already received part of said rents. The bill prayed for an account of such rents, that the trustees of the two church societies might be enjoined from suing complainant on account of the trust property, and that they might be required to interplead together. Judgment, State v. Durein (1905) 80 P. 987, 70 Kan. 1, affirmed.—Durein v. State of Kansas, 28 S. Ct. 567, 208 U. S. 613, 52 L. Ed. 645.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Liq. § 263-274; 27 Cent. Dig. Ind. & Inf. § 540-542, 548, 550.

Evidence that the express company knew that a C. O. D. interstate shipment of intoxicating liquors was not ordered by the consignee is immaterial on a criminal prosecution of the express company for violating a state local option law, where the indictment avers that the express company was engaged in the business of a common carrier of packages, and that the shipment and delivery were made and done in the usual course of its business.—Adams Express Co. v. Commonwealth of Kentucky, 27 S. Ct. 606, 208 U. S. 129, 51 L. Ed. 987; Id., 103 S. W. 353, 31 Ky. Law Rep. 811-813, reversing judgment (1905) 87 S. W. 1111, 27 Ky. Law Rep. 1090; Adams Express Co. v. Commonwealth of Kentucky, 27 S. Ct. 608, 208 U. S. 138, 51 L. Ed. 992, reversing judgment (1906) 92 S. W. 932, 29 Ky. Law Rep. 224, 5 L. R. A. (N. S.) 630; American Express Co. of New York v. Same, 27 S. Ct. 609, 208 U. S. 139, 51 L. Ed. 993, reversing judgment (1906) 97 S. W. 907, 30 Ky. Law Rep. 207.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Liq. § 230-322.

In a prosecution for illegally selling intoxicating liquors, evidence is not insufficient because the witnesses were unable to identify, out of a dozen men who were drinking, the particular individual who furnished the money observed to pass. Judgment, State v. Durein (1905) 80 P. 987, 70 Kan. 1, affirmed.—Durein v. State of Kansas, 28 S. Ct. 567, 208 U. S. 613, 52 L. Ed. 645.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Liq. § 222.

In a prosecution for selling liquor contrary to law, an election to rely on a transaction occurring on a stated day is not defective because the witnesses are not named, when there is no evidence of any other transaction on the same day, nor because it does not designate a sale to a particular individual, out of a dozen men who were drinking, the witnesses being unable to identify the precise person or persons who furnished the money observed to pass. Judgment, State v. Durein (1905) 80 P. 987, 70 Kan. 1, affirmed.—Durein v. State of Kan-

Where there was evidence that in June, 1902, one accused of selling liquor illegally told witnesses that he was proprietor of a saloon then running, and that he intended to keep right on running the saloon, and selling beer, and that January 10, 1903, he was still a keeper of the saloon, justifies an instruction that the testimony was competent to be considered with other facts and circumstances for the purpose of determining whether the place described was a common nuisance by reason of being a place where intoxicating liquors were kept for sale in violation of law. Judgment, State v. Durein (1905) 80 P. 987, 70 Kan. 1, affirmed.—Durein v. State of Kansas, 28 S. Ct. 567, 208 U. S. 613, 52 L. Ed. 645.

Power to search for and seize liquors deposited in the warehouse of a carrier, without first procuring a warrant, is not given by section 25 of the South Carolina dispensary act, and does not exist at common law.—In re Swan, 150 U. S. 637, 14 S. Ct. 225, 37 L. Ed. 1207.

XI. CIVIL DAMAGE LAWS.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Liq. § 418.

Code Wash. T. § 2059, providing that an employer or other person shall have a right of action against the seller of intoxicating liquor, or against the owner of the place where it is sold, to recover damages suffered by reason of sales to particular persons, creates a new liability unknown to common law, is to be strictly construed, and does not authorize an injunction to prevent the use of the building for future sales.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Whalen, 149 U. S. 157, 13 S. Ct. 822, 37 L. Ed. 686, affirming judgment 3 Wash. T. 452, 17 Pac. 890.

XII. RIGHTS OF PROPERTY AND CONTRACTS.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Liq. § 474-481.

There can be no recovery for liquor sold in violation of a city ordinance prohibiting the sale of spirituous liquors in quantities of one gallon or more, without first obtaining a license, and providing a penalty for its violation, since the same contains both a prohibition and a penalty, and there is no language indicating an intent to make the sale legal as between the parties.—Miller v. I. APPOINTMENT, QUALIFICATION, AND TENURE.

—6. De facto judges.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Judges, §§ 11, 12.

Laws Wis. 1889, c. 94, which establishes the municipal court of the city and county of Ashland, was duly published March 15, 1889, and provides that it shall be in force from its publication; that a judge shall be elected on the first Monday of April following, to hold office from the first Monday of January thereafter; and that in case of a vacancy the governor shall fill the office by appointment. On the first Monday of April a judge was elected, and two days afterwards was appointed to fill the office until the first Monday of the following January. Held, that the court was legally in existence, and the appointee was a judge de facto during the term of his appointment, and his acts as such cannot be collaterally attacked. —Manning v. Weeks, 139 U. S. 504, 11 S. Ct. 624, 35 L. Ed. 264, affirming judgment in re Manning, 76 Wis. 365, 45 N. W. 26.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Judges, §§ 42-45.

Though Act Cong. May 17, 1884, § 8 (23 Stat. p. 24, c. 53), creates a district court for the district of Alaska with the jurisdiction, civil and criminal, of the district courts of the United States, and of the district courts exercising the jurisdiction of circuit courts, such court, in common with other territorial courts, is not a "court of the United States," within the meaning of Rev. St. § 1768, which excepts judges of the courts of the United States from the authority therein given the president to suspend any civil officer appointed by and with the advice and consent of the senate. —McAllister v. United States, 141 U. S. 174, 11 S. Ct. 949, 35 L. Ed. 693, affirming judgment 22 Ct. Cl. 318; Wingard v. Same, 141 U. S. 201, 11 S. Ct. 959, 35 L. Ed. 719.

This right of suspension is not divested by the provision of the Alaska act that the district judge shall hold office for four years, and until his successor is appointed and qualified; for this, not being inconsistent with section 1768, does not repeal that section, but is subject to its provisions. —Id.

—12. Title to and possession of office.

—19. Objections to authority.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Judges, §§ 64-67.

B., the district judge of a district of Louisiana, was appointed by the circuit judge of the Fifth judicial circuit, under Rev. St. § 591, to act as judge for the Eastern district of Texas, during the year 1889, and during the sickness of the judge of that district, to hold terms of said court in 1889 at Tyler, Jefferson, and Galveston, and the appointment was recorded at Galveston. The appointment was made before Act Cong. March 1, 1889, establishing two separate terms of that court to be held at Paris, and was never recorded there. B. held the 1889 terms of the court at Paris, and also, after the death of the regular judge and before the appointment of his successor, held the April term, 1890. Held, that he was judge de jure of the court held at Paris in 1889, and was judge de facto, if not de jure, at the April term, 1890, and his acts cannot be collaterally attacked. —Ball v. United States, 140 U. S. 118, 11 S. Ct. 761, 35 L. Ed. 877.

A district judge acting in another district, in which the office of judge is vacant, by virtue of an appointment, regular on its face, made by a circuit judge, is an officer de facto, and his orders continuing the term in such district from day to day cannot be questioned on the ground that the circuit judge has no power of appointment in the case of a vacancy in the office of district judge. —McDowell v. Neagle, 135 U. S. 1, 10 S. Ct. 658, 34 L. Ed. 55, affirming (C. C.) in re Neagle 39 F. 833, 5 L. R. A. 78.

Act Cong. June 17, 1870 (Rev. St. § 1879), fixed the salary of the chief justice of Wyoming at $3,000 per annum. The appropriation acts of 1878, 1879, and 1880 (19 Stat. 294; 20 Stat. 178, 194; 21 Stat. 23), appropriated $2,600 "in full compensation for the service." Held, that the later acts effected a repeal by implication of the former. —United States v. Fisher, 109 U. S. 143, 3 S. Ct. 154, 27 L. Ed. 885.

The salary payable to a judge of the United States district court after his resignation, under Rev. St. U. S. § 714, when he has held his commission at least 10 years and has reached the age of 70 years, does not include the allowance of $300 per term provided by Rev. St. U. S. § 613, in case of a judge holding terms of the circuit court for the Southern district of New York for criminal business, although the judge may, for many years before his resignation, have held every such term. Judgment 34 Ct. Cl. 388, affirmed. —Benedict v. United States, 20 S. Ct. 458, 176 U. S. 357, 44 L. Ed. 503.

The Supreme Court of the District of Columbia is "a court of the United States" within the meaning of Rev. St. U. S. § 714 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 578], providing that, when any judge of any court of the United States resigns his office after having held his commission as such at least 10 years, and having attained the age of 70 years, he shall, during the residue of his natural life, receive the same salary which was by law payable to him at the time of his resignation. Judgment 38 Ct. Cl. 615, reversed. —James v. United States, 26 S. Ct. 685, 202 U. S. 401, 50 L. Ed. 1079.

The salary of justices of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia payable by law during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, was $5,000, which was the amount to which such salaries were increased by the express provision of the appropriation act for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, although the appropriation for the next fiscal year was a lump sum, inadequate to pay more than the former salary, since these provisions must be read in connection with the appropriation made by Act March 2, 1895 (chapter 187, 28 Stat. 851), to pay, as a deficiency for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, to the justices of that court, a sum representing the difference between the rate of compensation theretofore received by them and $5,000 per year.—Id.

Act Cong. July 10, 1890, providing for the division of the territory of New Mexico into five judicial districts, that a district court shall be held in each by "one of the justices of the supreme court," and that each judge shall reside in the district to which he is assigned, does not prevent a judge from acting in another district than his own, the judge thereof being disqualified. Borrego v. Territory, 46 P. 349, 8 N. M. 446 affirmed.—Borrego v. Cunningham, 17 S. Ct. 182, 164 U. S. 612, 41 L. Ed. 572.

The American doctrine of immunity of judges from suit because of their judicial acts protects a justice of the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands against a suit for damages because without jurisdiction, he entered a judgment against plaintiff, contrary to an order of the full court.—Alzua v. Johnson, 34 S. Ct. 27, 231 U. S. 106, 58 L. Ed. 142.

No implication that a justice of the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands is liable for a judgment rendered in bad faith, is deducible from act No. 190 of the Philippine Commission, § 9, providing that no judge, justice of the peace or assessor shall be liable for damages by reason of any judicial action rendered in good faith.—Id.

Since the court of appeals of Texas was created as a court of last resort in criminal matters by Const. Tex. art. 5, §§ 5, 6, which also defined its powers and jurisdiction, and prescribed the salary, terms of office, and qualification of its judges, that court is not disqualified, by reason of interest, from determining the validity or invalidity of the Penal Code of Texas, though such determination also involves the validity of the Revised Statutes, enacted at the same time, which regulates the method of the election of the state judges, fixes the salaries of some of them, and determines the jurisdiction of some of the courts.—*Duncan v. ➡48. Review by judge of his own decision.

Under section 3 of Act March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 827), creating the circuit courts of appeals, which provides that no justice or judge before whom a cause or question may have been tried or heard in a district or circuit court shall sit on the trial or hearing of such cause or question in the circuit court of appeals, a judge who has once heard a cause on its merits in the court of first instance is disqualified from sitting in the circuit court of appeals on the hearing and decision of any question in the same cause which involves, in any degree, matter on which he had occasion to pass in the lower court, if not from taking part in the hearing and decision of any question in such cause.—Moran v. Dillingham, 19 S. Ct. 620, 174 U. S. 153, 43 L. Ed. 930.

A federal district judge who denied a motion to remand to the state court is disqualified to sit in the Circuit Court of Appeals on the hearing of an appeal from the final decree of the Circuit Court in such case, by the provision of Act March 3, 1891, § 3.—Rexford v. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., 33 S. Ct. 515, 228 U. S. 389, 57 L. Ed. 864, reversing judgment 181 F. 462, 104 C. C. A. 210.

The requirements as to the disqualification of a judge made by the proviso to Judicial Code, § 120 (Act March 3, 1911, c. 231, 36 Stat. 1132 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1911, p. 191]), applies to a judge who entered a pro forma decree to enable the case to be heard for the first time by the reviewing court, acting pro hac vice as a court of first instance.—William Cramp & Sons Ship & Engine Bldg. Co. v. International Curtis Marine Turbine Co., 33 S. Ct. 722, 228 U. S. 645, 57 L. Ed. 1003, reversing decree International Curtis Marine Turbine Co. v. William Cramp & Sons Ship & Engine Bldg. Co., 202 F. 932, 121 C. C. A. 290.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Judges, §§ 224-221.

The disqualification of the trial judge for interest is not established, nor is it offered to be established in any legitimate way, by an unverified petition stating that the wife of the judge has acquired an interest in the property which is the subject-matter of the litigation, accompanied by a statement of a desire to offer testimony in support thereof, without furnishing the names of the witnesses, or filing any affidavits, or definitely stating what the witnesses would say if permitted to testify. Judgment, 121 F. 1020, 56 C. C. A. 682, affirmed.—McGuire v. Blount, 26 S. Ct. 1, 199 U. S. 142, 50 L. Ed. 125.

➡52. Waiver of disqualification or objections.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Judges, §§ 222, 223.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Judges, § 222; 14 Cent. Dig. Crim. Law, § 216.

Declaration of counsel for appellant before hearing that he will not insist on objection to removal from a state court, founded on the time when the removal petition was filed, eliminates that question from the case so as to remove disqualification of federal judge who had denied the motion to remand to sit in the Circuit Court of Appeals on an appeal from the final decree of the Circuit Court, which would otherwise result under Act March 3, 1891, § 3.—Rexford v.

See 29 Cent. Dig. Judges, § 233; 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 81.

Consent of the parties cannot qualify a judge who disposed of a case in the first instance to sit in the Circuit Court of Appeals, contrary to the proviso of Judicial Code, § 120 (Act March 3, 1911, c. 231, 36 Stat. 1132 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1911, p. 191]), to review his own action.—William Cramp & Sons Ship & Engine Bldg. Co. v. International Curtis Marine Turbine Co., 33 S. Ct. 722, 228 U. S. 645, 57 L. Ed. 1003, reversing decree International Curtis Marine Turbine Co. v. William Cramp & Sons Ship & Engine Bldg. Co., 202 F. 932, 121 C. C. A. 290.

I. NATURE AND ESSENTIALS IN GENERAL.

16. Jurisdiction of the person and subject-matter.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 23, 24.

Since a statute attempting to make a non-resident lot owner personally liable for an assessment for local improvements is a taking of property without due process of law, the non-resident does not, by resorting to the state courts for relief, thereby consent, or render himself liable, to a personal judgment against him. Judgment 70 N. W. 605, 101 Iowa, 416, reversed.—Dewey v. City of Des Moines, 19 S. Ct. 379, 173 U. S. 193, 43 L. Ed. 665.

17. Process or notice to sustain judgment.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 25-33, 157, 422.

A judgment in attachment proceedings against a foreign corporation under 2 Comp. Laws Mich. 1871, § 6550, authorizing service "on any officer, member, clerk, or agent within the state," though effective to dispose of the property attached, will not be regarded as establishing a valid personal demand, unless it appears in the record thereof that the defendant company was engaged in business in that state, and that the person on whom service was had represented it there.—St. Clair v. Cox, 106 U. S. 350, 1 S. Ct. 354, 27 L. Ed. 222.

The courts of a state have no jurisdiction over the persons of nonresidents; and where judgment for costs was rendered in an action of trespass to try title to lands against a defendant who was a nonresident, and who was not personally served with process, and did not appear, a sale of other lands of defendant to satisfy the judgment is void.—Freeman v. Alderson, 119 U. S. 185, 7 S. Ct. 165, 30 L. Ed. 372.

A decree of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in a suit to cancel a conveyance on the ground of alleged fraud practiced on complainant in the transaction is not void because defendant was not served personally with process instead of by publication, since Rev. St. D. O. § 787, authorizes constructive service by publication.—Lynch v. Murphy, 16 S. Ct. 523, 161 U. S. 247, 40 L. Ed. 688.

A decree entered against persons not served with process, but for whom an unauthorized appearance has been entered by an attorney, will be reversed.—Hatfield v. King, 22 S. Ct. 477, 184 U. S. 162, 46 L. Ed. 481.

No valid judgment in personam can be rendered against a defendant without personal service upon him in a court of competent jurisdiction, or waiver of summons, and voluntary appearance therein. Judgment, Wells v. Clark (C. C. 1905) 136 F. 462, modified and affirmed.—Clark v. Wells, 27 S. Ct. 43, 203 U. S. 164, 51 L. Ed. 138.

An executor who has removed from the jurisdiction is bound by a personal judgment for devastavit, rendered on constructive service by the probate court appointing him, in favor of an administrator de bonis non, if the local law permits such practice.—*Michigan Trust Co. v. Service by publication and mailing of summons in partition, conformably to the local law, naming as party defendant Albert Guilfuss, assignee and Albert B. Guolfuss, conferred jurisdiction so as to render a judgment binding on Albert B. Gilfuss, assignee as to his lien; he not having appeared.—Grannis v. Ordean, 34 S. Ct. 779, 234 U. S. 385, 58 L. Ed. 1363, affirming judgment Ordean v. Grannis, 136 N. W. 576, 1026, 118 Minn. 117.

Where valid personal judgment has been obtained on domiciliary service, though empowered through garnishment proceedings, after debtor had become a nonresident, to inquire as to validity of her claim against life insurance company, court could not, without further personal service, bind her by a judgment requiring payment of the fund in court over to insured.—New York Life Ins. Co. v. Dunlevy, 36 S. Ct. 613, 241 U. S. 513, 60 L. Ed. 1140, affirming judgment 214 F. 1, 130 C. C. A. 473.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 253.

An absolute right to appear in and defend within a year after final judgment a suit to enforce a lien or to remove a cloud on title to property within the district was given to absent defendants whenever the jurisdiction of the federal Circuit Court over them rested upon publication, even though they may in fact have had knowledge of the suit, by act March 3, 1875, c. 137, § 8, 18 Stat. 472 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 513) conferring such right upon all such defendants who have not been "actually personally notified as above provided," the previous provisions of the section calling for service on the party outside of the district of an order of the court directed to him, and requiring him to appear and defend within a time stated, or, if not practicable, for notice by publication.—Perez y Fernandez v. Fernandez y Perez, 31 S. Ct. 412, 220 U. S. 224, 55 L. Ed. 443; Blanco y Blanco v. Hubbard, 31 S. Ct. 415, 220 U. S. 233, 55 L. Ed. 447.

☞166. Conditions on granting application.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 322-326.

☞167. — In general.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 326, 330, 332, 334.

No other terms than the payment of costs can be imposed by the court in opening a decree to permit absent defendants served only by publication to appear in and defend a suit to enforce a lien or remove a cloud on the title to property within the district, pursuant to Act

March 3, 1875, c. 137, § 8, 18 Stat. 472 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 513), providing that in such cases the court shall make an order setting aside the judgment, and permitting such defendants to plead therein on payment of such costs as the court deems just.—Perez y Fernandez v. Fernandez y Perez, 31 S. Ct. 412, 220 U. S. 224, 55 L. Ed. 443; Blanco y Blanco v. Hubbard, 31 S. Ct. 415, 220 U. S. 233, 55 L. Ed. 447.

Defendants were sued as partners, and did not deny the partnership, but the proof showed that one of them was not a partner, but only a clerk, and that the business carried on in the firm name was that of the other defendant alone. The jury accordingly found that there was no partnership. Held, that under the laws of Alabama, where the suit was brought, judgment might be entered against that defendant alone who was the owner of the business.—Bibb v. Allen, 149 U. S. 481, 13 S. Ct. 950, 37 L. Ed. 819.

A New Jersey insurance company reinsured risks of a New York company, took its assets, and assumed its liabilities. After the failure of the New Jersey company, and the appointment of a receiver in New York, suit was brought against the latter in New York by the holders of policies in the old New York company, seeking only to subject to their claims $100,000 of securities deposited by that company with the superintendent of the insurance department. Judgment was rendered against the receiver and the New Jersey company for $1,000,000. Held, that the judgment was invalid, because not responsive to the pleadings.—Reynolds v. Stockton, 140 U. S. 254, 11 S. Ct. 773, 35 L. Ed. 464, affirming decree 10 A. 385, 43 N. J. Eq. (16 Stew.) 211.

The United States, seeking to follow the illicit gains of its agent into the property or securities into which they have gone, is entitled, under a prayer for "other, further, and general relief," to a judgment, as for money had and received for its use, for any difference between the cost of the specific property recovered and the gains which it is unable to trace. Decree (1909) 172 F. 1, 96 C. C. A. 587, affirmed.—United States v. Carter, 30 S. Ct. 515, 217 U. S. 286, 54 L. Ed. 769, 19 Ann. Cas. 594.

—266. Matter not apparent of record in general.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 467.

⚡273. Entry nunc pro tunc.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 535-541.

Where an erroneous judgment has been reversed by an appellate court, it is not error to enter the new judgment, conforming to the direction of the upper court, nunc pro tunc as of the date of the judgment which was reversed, so that the same shall not be affected by the death of the appealing party in the interval; since the delay arose by the act of the court, for which parties will not be allowed to suffer.—Borer v. Chapman, 119 U. S. 587, 7 S. Ct. 342, 30 L. Ed. 532, affirming decree (C. O.) Chapman v. Borer, 1 F. 274.

A decree nunc pro tunc is properly entered on rehearing in lieu of the former decree, which is set aside because a fact was overlooked, when the petitioner has died in the meantime.—City of New Orleans v. Warner, 20 S. Ct. 290, 176 U. S. 92, 44 L. Ed. 385.

A judgment of the United States supreme court affirming a judgment of the court below for a divorce and for alimony and costs, rendered after appearance and answer of the husband, may be entered nunc pro tunc as of the date of argument, where the husband has died since the argument of the cause. Judgment 53 N. E. 1123, 157 N. Y. 719, affirmed.—Bell v. Bell, 21 S. Ct. 551, 181 U. S. 176, 45 L. Ed. 804.

Where the circuit court has entered a decree, without the records showing that the amount involved within its jurisdictional limits, it is enough to have the records amended at the same term by affidavits showing the amount involved, though it would be more formal to set aside the decree, and renew it after the amendment.—Carr v. Fife, 156 U. S. 494, 15 S. Ct. 427, 39 L. Ed. 508.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 663-671.

While the power of a court to vacate its own judgment is discretionary during the term at which it is rendered, it does not extend beyond adjournment, except in the matter of clerical errors, and other errors of fact, which may be corrected by writ of error coram vobis or on motion.—Phillips v. Negley, 117 U. S. 685, 6 S. Ct. 901, 29 L. Ed. 1013.

A judgment dismissing a case for want of prosecution cannot be set aside on application made after the close of the term at which it is entered, where no showing of fraud or surprise is made. Judgment 20 App. D. C. 541 affirmed.—Tubman v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 23 S. Ct. 777, 190 U. S. 38, 47 L. Ed. 946.

A federal Circuit Court which, after denying a motion to remand the cause to the state court, whence it had been removed as presenting a separable controversy, sustains the demurrer of one of the defendants, and decrees the dismissal of the bill as to it, cannot vacate such decree after the term, on the theory that its final decree dismissing the bill as to the other defendants having been reversed on an appeal to which such defendant was not a party, with directions to remand the cause to the state court, the decision sought to be vacated was a nullity, as rendered without jurisdiction.—In re Metropolitan Trust Co. of City of New York, 31 S. Ct. 18, 218 U. S. 312, 54 L. Ed. 1051.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 697.

The refusal of the trial court to vacate a decree because of the incompetency of a juror, first discovered after verdict and judgment, is not an abuse of its discretion in the premises, where the verdict rendered was the only one which could be rendered consistently with the facts. Judgment 17 App. D. C. 505, affirmed.—Raub v. Carpenter, 23 S. Ct. 72, 187 U. S. 159, 47 L. Ed. 119.

⚡381. Vacating judgment on court's own motion.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 725.

A court which, acting under the erroneous belief that no action had been taken in a cause within a year, renders a judgment of dismissal, cannot, consistently with due process of law, set aside such judgment after the term, or the rule day which, under the local practice, is equivalent to the end of the term, without motion or proceedings to vacate the judgment, and without notice, and proceed to render a personal judgment against the defendant. Judgment (1905) 26 App. D. C. 124, affirmed.—Wetmore v. Karrick, 27 S. Ct. 434, 205 U. S. 141, 51 L. Ed. 745.

⚡386. Time for application.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 735-744; 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. §§ 305, 420.

In the absence of any excuse for the delay, a judgment under which property has been levied on and sold, and which has stood unchallenged for nearly two years, will not be set aside for usury.—Société Foncière et Agricole des États Unis v. Milliken, 135 U. S. 304, 10 S. Ct. 823, 34 L. Ed. 208.

⚡398. Operation and effect.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 733, 759, 760.

⚡399. — In general.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 733, 759, 760.

A judgment duly recovered is not affected, nor the right to take out execution on it impaired, by an application made to the court to have it set aside, and "continued until the next term, without prejudice to either party."—Freeman v. Dawson, 110 U. S. 264, 4 S. Ct. 94, 28 L. Ed. 141.

X. EQUITABLE RELIEF.

Bill of review in equity, see Equity, —443-464.

(A) NATURE OF REMEDY AND GROUNDS.

—428. Defenses not interposed in former action.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 808-815.

—430. — Equitable defenses.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 809.

Where an agent, who has loaned money for a guardian, and taken a deed of trust as security, agrees with the purchasers of a portion of the land covered by the deed that upon payment of the price to him or the guardian he will release the trust deed, equity will enjoin a judgment in ejectment recovered by the ward, after coming of age, on a title acquired by purchase under the trust deed, the above agreement constituting an equitable defense, which could not have been set up at law.—Johnson v. Christian, 128 U. S. 374, 9 S. Ct. 87, 32 L. Ed. 412.

—431. Excuses for failure to interpose defenses.

—436. — Negligence of party.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 823-826.

In an action in the supreme court of the District of Columbia for services, plaintiff pleaded a contract for a certain rate of compensation in a special count, together with a general count upon a quantum meruit. A bill for compensation at the contract rate had been previously presented, and payment refused. The defendants, not fearing a recovery in excess of the contract rate, were absent from the trial; and their counsel, unduly confident of the legal defenses, did not think it necessary to be prepared with proof of the special agreement. A judgment was rendered against them on the quantum meruit largely in excess of the contract rate. Held, on writ of error to review the judgment of a state court enjoining the collection of the judgment in excess of the contract rate, that there was no ground of equity jurisdiction; that their defense was at law, which they were not prevented from making by the fraud or unfairness of plaintiff; that they were themselves guilty of laches; and that the injunction of the state court was error.—Embry v. Palmer, 107 U. S. 3, 2 S. Ct. 25, 27 L. Ed. 346.

—437. — Negligence of counsel.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 827, 828.

A bill filed by a railroad corporation, alleging that a decree in a foreclosure suit was rendered against it because of the unfaithful conduct of its solicitor and directors, and seeking to have the decree set aside on that ground, presents a case of which a court of equity will take cognizance.—Pacific R. Co. v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co., 111 U. S. 505, 4 S. Ct. 583, 28 L. Ed. 498.

—440. Fraud, perjury, collusion, or other misconduct.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 785, 836-840; 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. § 306.

—443. — Fraud in preventing defense or procuring judgment.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 785, 836, 838; 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. § 306.

A compromise judgment will not be set aside on the ground of fraud, because of representations by the defendants that they were without property, and that nothing could be realized by execution against them, when no representations are made with respect to the merits of the cause of action, and especially where the complaint itself is based upon the fact of their insolvency.—United States v. Beebe, 21 S. Ct. 371, 180 U. S. 343, 45 L. Ed. 563.

—444. — Perjury or false testimony.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 839.

A court of equity will entertain a suit to enjoin the enforcement of a judgment at law when the bill alleges that the judgment was obtained by the use of a forged letter as evidence; that complainant was ignorant of the existence of such evidence before the trial, and did not discover its falsity until after the rendition of judgment and the lapse of the time in which a motion for new trial could have been made; and that she was guilty of no laches in failing to show or discover the forgery of the letter.—Marshall v. Holmes, 141 U. S. 589, 12 S. Ct. 62, 35 L. Ed. 870, reversing judgment Calhoun v. McKnight, 39 La. Ann. 325, 1 South. 612.

—446. Newly discovered evidence.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 845-848.

Enforcement of judgment in action for libel will not be restrained for newly discovered evidence, where it is not clear the evidence will produce a different verdict.—(1912) Pickford v. Talbott, 32 S. Ct. 687, 225 U. S. 651, 56 L. Ed. 1240, affirming decree Talbott v. Pickford, (1911) 36 App. D. C. 289.

Defense in action at law is not newly discovered for purpose of invoking equitable relief against judgment, if it should have been within the knowledge of defendant when called upon for his defense in such action.—Id.

Newly discovered evidence of truth of a libel will not justify relief against judgment recovered in the libel action, on theory that failure to plead justification was through mistake, where it was deliberately rejected, because it could not be sustained, and because failure to sustain it would result probably in increasing the damages.—Id.

—447. Meritorious cause of action or defense.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 849-851.

The enforcement of a judgment will not be enjoined as fraudulently procured, unless the judgment debtor aver and prove that he has a good defense on the merits.—White v. Crow, 110 U. S. 183, 4 S. Ct. 71, 28 L. Ed. 113, affirming decree (C. C.) 17 F. 93, 5 McCrary, 810.

In order to obtain injunction restraining enforcement of a judgment at law, complainant must show something rendering it unconscionable for his successful adversary to enforce the judgment.—(1912) Pickford v. Talbott, 32 S. Ct. 687, 225 U. S. 651, 56 L. Ed. 1240, affirming decree (1911) Talbott v. Pickford, 36 App. D. C. 289.

—449. Conditions precedent.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 852, 853, 871.

An offer to repay the money received in payment of a compromise judgment in favor of the United States is not necessary in a bill by the United States to set aside the judgment on the ground that a larger sum was due, since, if that is found to be the case, a credit of the payment can be made, and if nothing is found due, judgment can be entered against the United States for the amount of such payment.—United States v. Beebe, 21 S. Ct. 371, 180 U. S. 343, 45 L. Ed. 563.

—452. Persons entitled to relief.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 791, 792, 856, 857; 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. § 306.

The error, if any, in not allowing a release to be interposed as a defense in a suit, cannot, after decree, be corrected by a bill in equity filed by a surety on the bond of the defendant in the original suit, conditioned to perform the decrees therein.—Griswold v. Hazard, 141 U. S. 260, 11 S. Ct. 972, 999, 35 L. Ed. 678, affirming decrees (C. C.) 28 F. 597.

—453. Persons as against whom relief may be granted.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 858.

Notice of the denial of the death of the insured in the answer in an action on a policy of insurance is not notice of the fraud in recovering judgment on the policy while the insured was alive which will impeach such judgment as to the parties to whom the clerk of court pays over, out of the money paid into court in satisfaction of such judgment, the sums called for in certain assignments of an interest in the policy by way of contingent fees for professional services, rendered in good faith in collecting the insurance.—Fidelity Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Clark, 27 S. Ct. 19, 203 U. S. 64, 51 L. Ed. 91.

Notice of the fraud in recovering a judgment on a policy of life insurance which induces the payment into court of the amount of recovery, out of which the clerk of court pays over the sums called for in certain assignments by way of contingent fees for professional services in collecting the insurance, cannot be established by the mere fact that, while the assignees held an interest in the policy only, they were assignees of a chose in action, and took it subject to the equities.—Id.

(B) JURISDICTION AND PROCEEDINGS.

—455. Jurisdiction and venue.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 880-883.

The circuit court has jurisdiction over a proceeding to impeach its own former decree, although the parties are new and are both aliens.—Lacassagne v. Chapuis, 144 U. S. 119, 12 S. Ct. 659, 36 L. Ed. 368.

—456. Limitations and laches.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 883-886; 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. § 306.

Negligence and laches in applying to a court to set aside a judgment are equally fatal bars to relief, though such application be addressed to the equitable powers of the court. Judgment 48 P. 309, 9 N. M. 12, affirmed.—Rio Grande Irrigation & Colonization Co. v. Gildersleeve, 19 S. Ct. 761, 174 U. S. 603, 43 L. Ed. 1103.

There was no ratification of an unauthorized judgment of compromise entered in favor of the United States, nor any laches in attacking it, where there was a delay of a little more than five years after the judgment was entered before steps were taken to set it aside, but this was due to the fact that no one having authority to act had any knowledge of the facts until that time.—United States v. Beebe, 21 S. Ct. 371, 180 U. S. 343, 45 L. Ed. 563.

—457. Parties.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 887-889; 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. § 306.

A guardian loaned her ward's money, taking a note therefor secured by a trust deed. Plaintiff afterwards purchased a tract included in the trust deed under an agreement with the agent of the guardian that, on payment of the purchase price to such agent, the tract should be released from the trust deed. On arrival at his majority the ward recovered this tract of land in ejectment, contrary to the terms of the agreement. Held, in an action to enjoin the judgment, that it was not necessary to make the grantor in the trust deed a party.—Johnson

v. Christian, 128 U. S. 374, 9 S. Ct. 87, 32 L. Ed. 412.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 879, 880, 882, 891; 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. § 306.

A defendant, against whom a judgment has been rendered on default by a circuit court of the United States in an action at law, cannot maintain a bill in equity to avoid it, upon the ground that the plaintiff at law falsely and fraudulently alleged that the parties were citizens of different states, without showing that the false allegation was unknown to him before the judgment.—Cragin v. Lovell, 109 U. S. 194, 3 S. Ct. 132, 27 L. Ed. 903.

Complainants, urging newly discovered evidence as to the truth of a libel to enjoin enforcement of a judgment for damages recovered because thereof, must plead and prove due diligence, where the answer calls for strict proof thereof.—(1912) Pickford v. Talbott, 32 S. Ct. 687, 225 U. S. 651, 56 L. Ed. 1240, affirming decree (1911) Talbott v. Pickford, 36 App. D. C. 289.

A decree of the court of ordinary in matters within its jurisdiction is conclusive until reversed.—Veach v. Rice, 131 U. S. 293, 9 S. Ct. 730, 33 L. Ed. 163.

Decree of probate court escheating to county the real property of an intestate having no heirs is not open to a collateral attack by a person claiming title as heir and grantee of heirs.—Christianson v. King County, 36 S. Ct. 114, 239 U. S. 356, 60 L. Ed. 327, affirming judgment 203 F. 894, 122 C. C. A. 188.

—479. Nature of action or other proceeding.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 912-915; 33 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1470.

Questions involved in the determination of a suit in equity are not open to re-examination, in any collateral proceeding between the same parties or their privies, if the court rendering the decree had jurisdiction of the subject-matter of the parties.—Bryan v. Kennett, 113 U. S. 179, 5 S. Ct. 407, 28 L. Ed. 908.

—481. Judgment by confession or on consent or offer.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 917.

The rules of practice of the United States supreme court provide that, where an order is entered that a bill be taken pro confesso, the cause shall be prosecuted ex parte, and the matter of the bill may be decreed by the court at any time after the expiration of 30 days from the entry of said order, if the same can be done without an answer, and is proper to be decreed; or the plaintiff, if he requires a discovery or answer to enable him to obtain a proper decree, shall be entitled to process of attachment against defendant to compel him to answer, etc. The rules further provide that the decree rendered upon a bill taken pro confesso shall be deemed absolute, unless the court shall at the same term set aside the same, or enlarge the time for filing the answer. Held, that one against whom a decree pro confesso has been entered is absolutely precluded from alleging anything in opposition to the decree, so long as it stands unrevoked, except what appears on the face of the bill.—Thomson v. Wooster, 114 U. S. 104, 5 S. Ct. 788, 29 L. Ed. 105.

(B) GROUNDS.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 919-923; 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. § 421.

The right of a creditor, in a suit against an insolvent corporation to subject its property to the payment of its debts and to remove a lien on such property created by a trust deed and chattel mortgage, to invoke the aid of equity to remove such incumbrance and have the same declared null and void, before he exhausted his legal remedy by obtaining judgment for his debt and issuing execution, cannot be questioned in an independent suit by the holders of such incumbrance to enforce the same.—Mellen v. Moline Malleable Iron Works, 131 U. S. 352, 9 S. Ct. 781, 33 L. Ed. 178.

Where a petition to a county judge for the issuance of railroad aid bonds was insufficient to confer jurisdiction, by reason of the failure to aver, as required by statute, that the petitioners constituted a majority of the taxpayers, as defined in the statute, and the judgment of the county judge, granting such petition, fails to show that such majority were petitioners, the judgment may be collaterally attacked, though the statute provides that judgments on such petitions are reviewable by certiorari.—Rich v. Town of Mentz, 134 U. S. 632, 10 S. Ct. 610, 33 L. Ed. 1074.

A judgment rendered after the defendant's death, without the plaintiff's fault, in a suit which is defended by defendant's brother and agent, who is also his universal legatee, is good as against collateral attack.—City of New Orleans v. Whitney, 138 U. S. 595, 11 S. Ct. 428, 34 L. Ed. 1102, modifying decree Whitney v. City of New Orleans (C. C.) 43 F. 215.

The method to obtain a review of a federal question involved in a decision of a state court refusing to entertain a third amended bill is by a writ of error under Judicial Code, § 237, from the federal Supreme Court and not by attacking the judgment collaterally when pleaded as res judicata in a suit in another state.—Roller v. Murray, 34 S. Ct. 902, 234 U. S. 738, 58 L. Ed. 1570, dismissing writ of error, 76 S. E. 172, 71 W. Va. 161.

488. Want of jurisdiction.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 924-940; 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. § 307.

489. — In general.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 924, 925; 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. § 307.

The forfeiture of a bail bond, under the laws of the United States, by scire facias in the district court, being a matter within the jurisdiction thereof (Rev. St. §§ 563, 716), is not subject to collateral attack, on the ground that the state statutes require bail bonds to be proceeded on by formal suit, for the error, if any, in selecting the remedy, does not go to the jurisdiction.—Insley v. United States, 150 U. S. 512, 14 S. Ct. 158, 37 L. Ed. 1163, affirming decree United States v. Insley, 54 F. 221, 4 C. C. A. 296, 12 U. S. App. 125.

A judgment pro confesso against a defendant whose answer has been stricken out under the assumed power to thus punish for contempt is void for want of jurisdiction, and may be collaterally attacked.—Hovey v. Elliott, 17 S. Ct. 841, 167 U. S. 409, 42 L. Ed. 215.

Possible error in ruling against the doctrine that, if a debt is exempt from judicial process in the state where it is created, the exemption will follow the debt, as an incident thereto, into any other state into which the debt may be supposed to be carried, did not destroy the jurisdiction of the court of the foreign state, so as to subject the judgment entered therein, to collateral attack. Judgment 51 P. 1100, 58 Kan. 818, reversed.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Sturm, 19 S. Ct. 797, 174 U. S. 710, 43 L. Ed. 1144.

490. — Want of or defects in process, service or notice.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 926-928; 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. § 307.

A decree for plaintiff in a suit to quiet title to land in the Las Vegas land grant may be attacked because the town of Las Vegas was not a party, unless within the designation "unknown claimants."—Priest v. Board of Trustees of Town of Las Vegas, 34 S. Ct. 443, 232 U. S. 604, 58 L. Ed. 751, affirming judgment 120 P. 894, 16 N. M. 692.

495. — Presumptions as to superiority or general jurisdiction.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 549½, 933, 934.

Rev. St. § 725, gives the federal courts power to punish as contempts, inter alia, "misbehavior of any person in their presence, or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice." On habeas corpus, the record of petitioner's conviction of contempt in the district court showed that on due hearing he was found guilty of attempting to corruptly influence a juror sworn in a case therein pending; but both the petition and the record were silent as to the particular locality where such attempt was committed. Held, that it would be presumed, in support of the judgment thus collaterally attacked, that the necessary jurisdictional facts existed.—Ex parte Cuddy, 131 U. S. 280, 9 S. Ct. 703, 33 L. Ed. 154.

A judgment obtained upon a note in a federal circuit court is not a nullity, although the record fails to show diverse citizenship of the parties; and it is therefore not subject to collateral attack, upon that ground, in garnishment proceedings brought to enforce collection thereof.—Cutler v. Huston, 158 U. S. 423, 15 S. Ct. 868, 39 L. Ed. 1040.

A judgment of the circuit court of the United States as to the competency of the plaintiff's assignors to sue in that court, and the diversity of citizenship between the parties, is not open to impeachment on either ground, either collaterally or on a creditors' bill, where an objection to jurisdiction on the first ground was raised and overruled in the proceedings resulting in the judgment, and the petition alleged diversity of citizenship. Decree 91 F. 574, 34 C. C. A. 15, modified.—City of New Orleans v. Fisher, 21 S. Ct. 347, 180 U. S. 185, 45 L. Ed. 485.

The presumption that a court of superior authority, whose judgment is attacked collaterally for the want of jurisdiction, acted within its jurisdiction, when proceeding within the general scope of its powers, cannot be indulged when it affirmatively appears from the pleadings or evidence that jurisdiction was wanting. Judgment (1905) 73 N. E. 703, 164 Ind. 321, reversed.—

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 939.

Where a federal court has exercised jurisdiction growing out of diverse citizenship in proceedings to foreclose a trust deed, such jurisdiction cannot be questioned in a subsequent action in another court by a person owning bonds secured by the deed, especially when his trustee raised the question in the former suit, and it was decided against him.—Kent v. Lake Superior Ship Canal Ry. & Iron Co., 144 U. S. 75, 12 S. Ct. 650, 36 L. Ed. 352.

Where the federal court has exercised jurisdiction, on the ground of diverse citizenship, the proceedings cannot be attacked in another action between different parties, on the ground that the citizenship was not diverse.—Lacassagne v. Chapuis, 144 U. S. 119, 12 S. Ct. 659, 36 L. Ed. 368.

The fact that the record in a federal court fails to affirmatively show federal jurisdiction does not make its judgment a nullity, or render it subject to collateral attack; and this is true when the court assumes jurisdiction because it holds that the suit involves the construction of an act of congress, even if it is mistaken in so holding.—Dowell v. Applegate, 152 U. S. 327, 14 S. Ct. 611, 38 L. Ed. 463, reversing decree Applegate v. Dowell, 15 Or. 513, 16 Pac. 651.

The decision of a judge that the interests of the only defendant who is a citizen of the same state as plaintiff are identical with those of plaintiff, and that, therefore, the suit is removable as one between citizens of different states, is not reviewable collaterally.—Evers v. Watson, 156 U. S. 527, 15 S. Ct. 430, 39 L. Ed. 520.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 940.

If in any case the final decree of a federal court can, in a collateral proceeding, be held void, it can only be where it is shown beyond controversy that on the record the court could not have had jurisdiction.—Evers v. Watson, 156 U. S. 527, 15 S. Ct. 430, 39 L. Ed. 520.

◀500. Errors and irregularities.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 941-950; 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. §§ 308, 421.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 941; 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. § 308.

Though a deceased debtor may have had only a life estate, a decree subjecting the land to pay her debts is not void; the construction of the deed under which she held the property being a question before the court.—Manson v. Duncanson, 17 S. Ct. 647, 166 U. S. 533, 41 L. Ed. 1105.

A decree subjecting real estate to pay debts of a deceased debtor, rendered in a suit brought by one claiming to be a creditor, is not void, though the court may have erred in holding that the allegations and proof were sufficient to show a collectible debt.—Id.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 943; 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. § 308.

A decree of the orphans' court, ordering a sale of a decedent's lands to pay debts, cannot be impeached collaterally where the court had jurisdiction, although the petition for the sale shows that the debts are outlawed.—Herron v.

A judgment rendered against a defendant after due service of process, before the expiration of the time for answering, is irregular, but not void, under Civ. Code Colo. § 46, providing that "from the time of service of summons in a civil action the court shall be deemed to have acquired jurisdiction"; and, if defendant takes no steps to correct the error, he is presumed to have waived it.—White v. Crow, 110 U. S. 183, 4 S. Ct. 71, 28 L. Ed. 113, affirming decree (C. O.) 17 F. 98, 5 McCrary, 810.

Whether or not the United States provisional court for Porto Rico lost jurisdiction of a cause and of the parties because, in the course of its proceedings, it disregarded certain provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure which were binding upon it, is a question which cannot be raised by collateral attack on its judgment.—Santiago v. Nogueras, 29 S. Ct. 608, 214 U. S. 260, 53 L. Ed. 989.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 949.

One who appears and procures an amendment of a decree against him as to a recital therein cannot thereafter attack it collaterally, in a court of different jurisdiction, on the ground that he was thereby deprived of his property without due process of law.—Laing v. Rigney, 160 U. S. 531, 16 S. Ct. 366, 40 L. Ed. 525.

◀508. Fraud, perjury, collusion, or other misconduct.

◀514. — Right of parties or privies to impeach judgment.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 956.

A land-grant canal company having given four trust deeds to secure separate issues of bonds, proceedings were instituted to foreclose the first deed, and the trustees in the others were made parties defendant. A decree was entered, without objection, directing the receiver to execute a trust deed creating a paramount lien, and to issue receivership certificates thereunder to complete the canal, in order to prevent the lands from reverting to the government under the terms of the grant. Subsequently a bondholder delivered bonds to his trustee, and received a release of 8,000 acres, according to a provision of the trust deed; but his trustee had, in the meantime, brought a bill of foreclosure in which he recognized the priority of the receiver's trust deed. The foreclosure suits having been consolidated, a decree was entered for the sale of all the property, and by a clause therein the release was declared void. The proceeds of the sale were barely sufficient to discharge the receiver's certificates. Held, that plaintiff was bound by the bona fide acts and admissions of his trustees during the litigation, and could not afterwards, in another court, upon general allegations of fraud in the foreclosure, assert the validity of the release without alleging actual fraud on the part of his trustee.—Kent v. Lake Superior Ship Canal, Ry. & Iron Co., 144 U. S. 75, 12 S. Ct. 650, 36 L. Ed. 352.

◀517. Matters available or questions presented in original action.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 959, 960.

On appeal to the supreme court of a state from a judgment allowing a mandamus to compel the collection of a tax to pay a judgment against a municipal corporation, the supreme court may authorize an inquiry into the cause of action on which the judgment was rendered, to discover whether or not it was founded upon a contract the obligation of which could not be impaired by subsequent legislation of the state repealing or modifying the taxing power of the corporation; but such an inquiry does not authorize a re-examination of the validity of the contract, or of the propriety of the judgment.—State of Louisiana v. Police Jury of the Parish of St. Martin, 111 U. S. 716, 4 S. Ct. 648, 28 L. Ed. 574.

A judgment cannot be collaterally attacked by setting up a defense which was or might have been raised in the original action.—Avegno v. Schmidt, 113 U. S. 293, 5 S. Ct. 487, 28 L. Ed. 976, affirming 35 La. Ann. 585.

Bonds issued by a city were void because the election at which their issue was authorized was held after the statute authorizing their issue had been abrogated by the adoption of a new state constitution. Held, that judgments on the bonds do not estop the city, in mandamus proceedings to compel the city to levy a tax for the payment of such judgments, to assert the abrogation of that act, particularly where the judgment creditor goes behind his judgments and seeks to obtain a remedy provided by the act and pertaining merely to the bonds.—Taxing Dist. of Brownsville v. Loague, 129 U. S. 493, 9 S. Ct. 327, 32 L. Ed. 780, reversing Loague v. Taxing Dist. of Brownsville (C. C.) 36 F. 149.

(C) PROCEEDINGS.

519. Proceedings to enforce judgment.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 963.

A proceeding by mandamus to compel the levy by a county court of a tax sufficient to pay a judgment obtained against the county is a remedy in the nature of an execution for the purpose of collecting the judgment, and nothing that contradicts the record of the judgment can be alleged in the proceeding.—United States v. Knox County Court, 122 U. S. 306, 7 S. Ct. 1171, 30 L. Ed. 1152.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 969.

Where the relief prayed by a bank was that certain tax assessments be decreed "void and null," and be "canceled and annulled," a judgment granting that relief must be regarded as based on a charter exemption set up by plaintiff, though it was averred that the assessments, besides "being illegal and without warrant of law, were excessive"; there being no prayer for the reduction of an excessive assessment, and that relief, which is provided as to such assessments, not being granted.—City of New Orleans v. Citizens' Bank of Louisiana, 17 S. Ct. 905, 167 U. S. 371, 42 L. Ed. 202.

Resort may be had to the pleadings and opinions in determining what was decided by a final decree of a United States circuit court, entered after receiving the mandate of the circuit court of appeals reversing its prior decree and remanding the case, with instructions to dismiss the bill, where from such decree there is uncertainty as to what was really decided.—

528. Judgment in personam or in rem.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 972.

A suit to determine the title of land lying in another state from that in which the suit is brought is purely in personam, and the decree therein rendered does not operate directly on the property or affect the title, but is made effectual only by coercion of the parties, and binds only them and their privies. Decree Blackman v. Wright, 65 N. W. 843, 96 Iowa, 541, affirmed.—Dull v. Blackman, 18 S. Ct. 333, 169 U. S. 243, 42 L. Ed. 733.

533. Subject-matter.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 978, 983.

Suit was brought to foreclose a railway mortgage. The property was in the hands of a receiver, whose certificates for money advanced to him, when approved by the commissioner, gave their holders a lien upon the property superior to all others. The commissioner presented his report, but a few of the certificates, being in the hands of different owners, whose right could not be immediately ascertained, were not allowed. The owners were ordered to file their bills for the settlement of their claims. A decree was then entered that the property be sold "subject to the liens established, or that may be established, by said court in this cause, on references heretofore had and now pending." Held, that the liens of the holders of those certificates which had not yet been allowed were within the terms of the decree, and the purchaser was estopped to deny their validity.—Swann v. Clark, 110 U. S. 602, 4 S. Ct. 241, 28 L. Ed. 256.

XIII. MERGER AND BAR OF CAUSES OF ACTION AND DEFENSES.

(A) JUDGMENTS OPERATIVE AS BAR.

Effect in deportation proceedings, see Aliens, 54.

541. Courts or other tribunals rendering judgment.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 987-992.

543. — Concurrent or co-ordinate jurisdiction.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 988.

In an action on a note, defendant pleaded that a judgment had been recovered by plaintiff in a suit on the same note in another court of concurrent jurisdiction. Held, on demurrer, that the note was merged in the judgment, and the plea was good in law.—Schuler v. Israel, 120 U. S. 506, 7 S. Ct. 648, 30 L. Ed. 707, affirming judgment (C. C.) 27 F. 851.

As each of the several divisions of the civil district court of the parish of Orleans has plenary jurisdiction over the causes allotted it for decision, the judgment of one of the divisions may become the subject-matter of res judicata.—City of New Orleans v. Citizens' Bank of Louisiana, 17 S. Ct. 905, 167 U. S. 371, 42 L. Ed. 202.

549. Nature of action or other proceeding.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 994-998, 1050-1061, 1075-1078.

552. — Special proceedings other than actions.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 997.

The establishment of railway passenger rates by the Virginia Corporation Commission is not res judicata in a suit which seeks injunctive relief on the ground that the rates are confiscatory, although such commission for some purposes is a court, and acted only after hearing and investigation, since proceedings to establish rates are legislative, and not judicial, in their nature.—Prentiss v. Atlantic Coast Line Co., 29 S. Ct. 67, 211 U. S. 210, 53 L. Ed. 150.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1077, 1078.

A judgment of acquittal, in a criminal prosecution for a violation of the internal revenue laws, is conclusive in favor of defendant, as claimant of the property involved in a subsequent suit in rem, when, as against him, the existence of the same act or fact involved in the criminal prosecution is in issue as cause for the forfeiture of such property.—Coffey v. United States, 116 U. S. 436, 6 S. Ct. 437, 29 L. Ed. 684.

When an acquittal in a criminal prosecution in behalf of the government is pleaded or offered in evidence by the same defendant in an action against him by an individual, the rule of autrefois acquit does not apply. It is otherwise, however, when the party suing as last mentioned is the government itself.—Id.

An acquittal of a person indicted under Rev. St. § 2461, for taking timber from public lands, is not a bar to a civil action against him by the United States to recover the value of such timber, as the civil case turns wholly upon the issue of ownership, and does not involve any question of criminal intent, or of forfeiture for prohibited acts. 12 C. C. A. 451, 64 F. 667, affirmed.—Stone v. United States, 17 S. Ct. 778, 167 U. S. 178, 42 L. Ed. 127, affirming judgment 64 F. 667, 12 C. C. A. 451, 29 U. S. App. 32.

A civil action for indemnification for the damages resulting from the malicious or unlawful burning of a storehouse and its contents may not be maintained in the Philippine courts, where there has been a judgment of acquittal against the same defendant for the same malicious and unlawful burning, in view of the positive legislation in the Philippine Codes, civil and criminal, drawing a distinction between a civil liability which results from the mere negligence of the defendant, and a liability for the civil consequences of a crime by which another has sustained loss or injury, and of the plain inference from article 17 of the Penal Code that civil liability springs out of and is dependent upon facts which, if true, would constitute a crime or misdemeanor, and of the provisions of Code Cr. Proc. §§ 106, 112, 742, which plainly contemplate that the civil liability of the defendant shall be ascertained and declared in the criminal proceedings.—Chantangco v. Abaroa, 51 S. Ct. 34, 218 U. S. 476, 54 L. Ed. 1116.

☞560. Nature, rendition, and form of judgment in general.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 999, 1000, 1002.

The application of the doctrine of res judicata is in no wise affected by the fact that the amount in controversy in the former suit was so small as to prevent the defeated party from securing a review of the judgment by an appellate court.—Johnson Steel Street Rail Co. v. William Wharton, Jr. & Co., 152 U. S. 252, 14 S. Ct. 608, 38 L. Ed. 429.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1002, 1008, 1010, 1014.

An order in an action on a claim under a contract, a one half interest in which plaintiff had assigned to his attorney as security, having assigned the other half to his son, who assigned his interest to such attorney, which upholds the assignment from the son, who had procured payment into court of one half of the recovery, and which, dismissing the son's claims, awards to the attorney the fund in court, is not res judicata as between the father and the attorney as to the former's right to the one half interest assigned by the son.—Radford v. Myers, 34 S. Ct. 249, 231 U. S. 725, 58 L. Ed. 454, affirming judgment 132 N. W. 550, 167 Mich. 135.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1015-1017.

In a suit to foreclose a railway mortgage an intervenor claimed certain rolling stock in possession of the receiver, alleging that it had been leased by him to the mortgagor, and, after sale of the property on foreclosure, a decree was made on the intervention, directing delivery of such rolling stock to the intervenor, and referring the case to a master to determine its rental value while used by the receiver, with other like matters, and to determine all questions between the receiver and intervenor growing out of the use and restoration of said rolling stock. Thereafter, by leave of the court, and without objection, the purchaser at foreclosure answered the intervenor's petitions, claiming that the title to such rolling stock had passed by the foreclosure sale. Held, that the decree requiring delivery of possession of the rolling stock was not a final decree, so as to preclude the court from determining at a subsequent term that the title to such rolling stock had passed to the purchaser on foreclosure.—McGourkey v. Toledo & O. C. Ry. Co., 146 U. S. 536, 13 S. Ct. 170, 36 L. Ed. 1079.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1018.

A suit in which the bill prays for the appointment of a trustee in place of trustees named in deeds of trust given to secure debts due plaintiff, with authority to execute the trusts, and in which a decree rendered, appointing a trustee, declares that it is made "without prejudice to all other rights of defendant," and, furthermore, is void for uncertainty, is no bar to a subsequent suit to foreclose the deeds of trust.—Shepherd v. Pepper, 133 U. S. 626, 10 S. Ct. 438, 33 L. Ed. 706.

A suit to enforce a parol trust was submitted on the pleadings and proof, and a decree entered dismissing the bill "without prejudice to any parties to enforce" the trust as created by a certain deed, and without prejudice to any rights created by a will. Held, that this was a final determination on the merits against the existence of the parol trust, and the decree can be pleaded in bar in a subsequent suit by the same complainants to enforce the same parol trust.—Albright v. Oyster, 140 U. S. 493, 11 S. Ct. 916, 35 L. Ed. 534, affirming decree Oyster v. Oyster (C. C.) 28 F. 909.

A decision cannot be held res judicata on a question of title by reason of certain language used by way of reasoning in the opinion, when the substantial effect of the decision is that the title will not be adjudicated in equity, and that the bill must be dismissed, but without prejudice to an action at law. Decree, Lacasagne v. Abraham, 25 So. 441, 51 La. Ann. 840, affirmed.—H. Abraham & Son v. Casey, 21 S. Ct. 88, 179 U. S. 210, 45 L. Ed. 156.

Dismissal of suit by railway company to enjoin enforcement of a rate-fixing law on ground that the rates as fixed were confiscatory, though without prejudice, estops the railroad when sued by state to recover back passenger fares and excessive rates collected from state officers traveling on state business, to assert the rates were so low as to be confiscatory.—State of Missouri v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 36 S. Ct. 715, 241 U. S. 533, 60 L. Ed. 1148.

☞567. Judgment by confession or on consent or offer.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1011, 1012.

A decree entered by consent is not res judicata on a subsequent bill to carry it into execution by enforcing it against a successor of the former defendant.—Lawrence Mfg. Co. v. Janesville Cotton Mills, 138 U. S. 552, 11 S. Ct. 402, 34 L. Ed. 1005.

A decree for the separate maintenance of the wife in a suit brought under Laws Ill. 1877, p. 115, is not less res judicata in Illinois on the question of her desertion because it was rendered by consent, where the Appellate Court and the Supreme Court of that state have affirmed the decree and the finding therein made that the wife was living separate and apart from her husband without fault on her part. Judgment 74 P. 284, 140 Cal. 690, reversed.—Harding v. Harding, 25 S. Ct. 679, 198 U. S. 317, 49 L. Ed. 1066.

570. Judgment on discontinuance, dismissal, or nonsuit.

Judgment of nonsuit, not being a decision on the merits, is no bar to a second action for the same cause.—Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Broughton, 109 U. S. 121, 3 S. Ct. 99, 27 L. Ed. 878.

A decree in a suit in equity by the United States against a railroad corporation in Tennessee, appearing on its face to have been by consent of parties, and confirming a compromise of all claims between them, is a bar to a suit by the corporation on a claim for mail service set forth in the decree as among the matters compromised, although such claim was not in fact litigated in the former suit, and although at the time of the decree payment to the corporation of any claim was prohibited by law, because of its having aided the Rebellion.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. United States, 113 U. S. 261, 5 S. Ct. 460, 28 L. Ed. 971.

In an action on the official bond of a superintendent of Indian affairs, in which defendant pleaded res adjudicata, the allegation of the answer showed, with reference to the judgment in the former action, that defendant, at the trial of that action, presented to the court documents showing that his accounts were settled, and that nothing was due the government, whereon, in open court, on motion of defendants, the district attorney consenting, a dismissal was ordered, the entry reciting that it appeared to the court that the subject-matter of the action had been adjusted and settled by the proper parties in Washington. Held, that the judgment was on the merits.—United States v. Parker, 120 U. S. 89, 7 S. Ct. 454, 30 L. Ed. 601.

A dismissal of a suit for want of proper parties, which leaves the merits unconsidered and undisposed of, does not render the subject of controversy res judicata.—St. Romes v. Levee Steam Cotton Press Co., 127 U. S. 614, 8 S. Ct. 1335, 32 L. Ed. 289.

A county sued to enjoin the collection of taxes to pay certain railroad aid bonds, and to procure the cancellation of the bonds themselves, alleging that they were void by reason of the road's noncompliance with certain conditions precedent, and that the acts authorizing their issuance were unconstitutional. The bill recited these acts, and set out in full all the proceedings prior to the issuance of the bonds. A bondholder intervened, putting in issue all the averments of the bill, and after a full trial thereof a decree was rendered, declaring certain of the bonds valid, and dismissing the bill as to them. Held that, though the affirmation of the validity of the bonds was mere surplusage, yet, as the bill could not have been dismissed except by holding them valid, the question of their validity was res judicata, and could not be retried in a suit on the bonds themselves, even on the theory that the record of the injunction suit, which was placed in evidence, showed that they were void.—Franklin County v. German Sav. Bank, 142 U. S. 93, 12 S. Ct. 147, 35 L. Ed. 948.

A general dismissal on the merits of a bill in equity, not made conditionally or without prejudice, or with any saving of the right of action, will constitute a bar to the use of the cause of action there involved as a set-off in a subsequent action at law between the same parties.—Baker v. Cummings, 21 S. Ct. 578, 181 U. S. 117, 45 L. Ed. 776.

A decree of a federal Circuit Court of Appeals affirming a decree in admiralty adjudging a sunken barge to be liable to the owners of a tugboat for damages from a collision, but dismissing the libel as to the person who it was alleged had agreed to mark the wreck without prejudice, is not a judgment on the merits in his favor.—Baxter v. Buchholz-Hill Transp. Co., 33 S. Ct. 402, 227 U. S. 637, 57 L. Ed. 681, dismissing writ of error Buchholz-Hill Transp. Co. v. Baxter, 99 N. E. 180, 206 N. Y. 173.

A decree of dismissal was not a final adjudication on the merits, where it was rendered after a demurrer to the bill had been overruled, and defendant offered to submit to a decree in plaintiff's favor to which plaintiff had responded by motion to dismiss the bill, asserting therein rights under the contract which provided for future adjustment of the profits and liabilities when they could be determined.—Swift v. McPherson, 34 S. Ct. 239, 232 U. S. 51, 58 L. Ed. 499, affirming judgment McPherson v. Swift, 130 N. W. 768, 27 S. D. 296.

572. Judgment on demurrer or exceptions.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1041, 1047-1049.

An amended bill alleged that defendant T. was in possession of complainant's land as his agent; that his codefendant, M., knowing complainant to have a perfect title, falsely represented the land to be unappropriated, and thus procured a patent therefor from the state; and that T. collusively surrendered possession to M., and asked for relief against M. Held, that a decree sustaining a demurrer to the original bill, which alleged the same facts, for multifariousness in the prayer, which, in addition to the relief asked against M., also sought an account of T., as complainant's agent and trustee, and to have the amount found due on such accounting declared a lien on land claimed by T. as a homestead, purchased with the trust fund, does not adjudicate the merits of the controversy with M. so as to require a demurrer to the amended bill to be sustained.—Stewart v. Masterson, 131 U. S. 151, 9 S. Ct. 682, 33 L. Ed. 114.

In an action for breach of a contract with defendant railroad company to employ plaintiff to transport across the Mississippi river at St. Louis all persons and property which might be taken either way by defendant, "to or from Bloody Island," the complaint alleged as the breach that defendant transported certain property between St. Louis and its depot in East St. Louis by way of Venice, two miles above East St. Louis, on a rival ferry; and on demurrer judgment was given for defendant, on the ground that the railroad company had the right to extend its tracks to Venice, and transfer from there, and that such transportation was not within the meaning of the contract. Held, that such judgment would not estop plaintiff from showing, in another action, that the traffic was sent to Bloody Island, and from there diverted by tracks of other roads to other ferries than plaintiff's above and below Bloody Island; the rule being applicable that, where judgment is on demurrer to the declaration, the estoppel extends only to the exact point raised by the pleadings or decided, and does not operate as a bar to another suit for other breaches of the same covenant.—Wiggins Ferry Co. v. Ohio & M. Ry. Co., 142 U. S. 396, 12 S. Ct. 188, 35 L. Ed. 1055.

A decree dismissing on demurrer a bill by a municipality to have the court fix reasonable water rates under a state statute, on the ground that the court was without jurisdiction, is not res judicata on the question whether a prior municipal ordinance prescribing a method of fixing water rates could constitutionally be affected by such statute.—Murray v. City of Pocatello, 33 S. Ct. 107, 226 U. S. 318, 57 L. Ed. 239, affirming judgment City of Pocatello v. Murray, 120 P. 812, 21 Idaho, 180.

574. Decision or findings of court without judgment.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1021.

Findings of fact by the judge trying the cause, and an order directing a conveyance "as decreed by this court," filed in different county clerks' offices, do not amount to a judgment and are not admissible in evidence in support of a plea of res judicata. Judgment 73 P. 1012, 12 Okl. 570, reversed.—Oklahoma City v. McMaster, 25 S. Ct. 324, 196 U. S. 529, 49 L. Ed. 587.

576. Erroneous or irregular judgment.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1003, 1004, 1006.

A judgment in a suit is effective as an estoppel in another suit between the same parties, on the same cause of action, whether the decision was right or wrong, so long as it has not been set aside.—Milne v. Deen, 121 U. S. 525, 7 S. Ct. 1004, 30 L. Ed. 980.

A decision rendered in a collusive litigation is not binding in subsequent cases.—Town of Andes v. Ely, 168 U. S. 312, 15 S. Ct. 954, 39 L. Ed. 996.

The final judgment of a federal Circuit Court dismissing a suit after refusing to remand the case to the state court, whence it was removed, must, while unreversed, be given effect by the state court when set up as a bar to the action after the order of the state court granting the petition for removal has been reversed by the highest state court, and the case remanded for trial, although the federal court may have erred in holding the case removable. Judgment (1907) Maysville & B. S. R. Co. v. McCabe's Adm'r, 100 S. W. 219, 30 Ky. Law Rep. 1009, reversed.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. McCabe, 29 S. Ct. 430, 213 U. S. 207, 53 L. Ed. 765.

577. Void judgment.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1006, 1007.

Where a case has been removed to a federal court, appealed to the supreme court, and there decided on the merits, all without objection to the jurisdiction, it is a bar to a subsequent action between the same parties on the same cause of action.—Des Moines Nav. & R. Co. v. Iowa Homestead Co., 123 U. S. 552, 8 S. Ct. 217, 31 L. Ed. 202.

578. Pendency of motion for new trial and grant thereof.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1022.

A motion for a new trial which is subsequently overruled cannot deprive a judgment of its efficacy as a plea in bar.—Hubbell v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 828, 171 U. S. 203, 43 L. Ed. 136.

580. Pendency of appeal.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1024.

Where an application for an appeal is filed, but never allowed or perfected, and no transcript is filed in the appellate court, this does not vacate the judgment so as to affect its operation as a plea in bar.—Hubbell v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 828, 171 U. S. 203, 43 L. Ed. 136.

581. Judgment vacated or reversed.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1026.

Both plaintiff and defendant, in a foreclosure suit, were defendants in a suit brought by judgment creditors of defendant, for a sale of defendant's property, the satisfaction of all valid prior liens, and the payment of their judgment. A decree in favor of plaintiffs in that suit was reversed on appeal of defendant in this, and the bill dismissed. Held not res judicata as to this suit, and plaintiff could foreclose.—Grant v. Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co., 121 U. S. 105, 7 S. Ct. 841, 30 L. Ed. 905.

An order arresting judgment on appeal to the supreme court of the United States, in an action at law, on the ground that the petition did not state a cause of action, is ground for dismissing a cross bill setting up the same cause of action, in a subsequent suit in equity between the same parties in the circuit court of the United States.—Lovell v. Cragin, 136 U. S. 130, 10 S. Ct. 1024, 34 L. Ed. 372.

(B) CAUSES OF ACTION AND DEFENSES MERGED, BARRED, OR CONCLUDED.

582. Nature of merger.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1079, 1082.

A city which has purchased with drainage warrants a plant to perfect its drainage system, under an agreement to collect the drainage assessments and apply the fund to payment of the warrants, does not cease to be a trustee, with respect to the assessments against its own property, because they are reduced to judgments. Decree, Warner v. City of New Orleans, 81 F. 645, 26 C. C. A. 508, modified.—City of New Orleans v. Warner, 20 S. Ct. 44, 175 U. S. 120, 44 L. Ed. 96.

585. Identity of cause of action in general.

Where one who has no title to land sells it with covenant of warranty, the recovery and satisfaction of a judgment obtained by the vendee against the vendor for the purchase price paid is no bar to an action by the real owner against the vendor for fruits and revenues.—City of New Orleans v. Whitney, 138 U. S. 595, 11 S. Ct. 428, 34 L. Ed. 1102, modifying decree (C. C.) Whitney v. City of New Orleans, 43 F. 215.

In a suit to quiet title, the failure of defendant to set up a prior, recorded conveyance from complainant to a third person, of which defendant had constructive notice, precludes him from setting it up as a defense to a supplemental and ancillary bill brought for the purpose of carrying into effect the decree in the original suit, when no reason is given for not setting it up in that suit.—Root v. Woolworth, 150 U. S. 401, 14 S. Ct. 136, 37 L. Ed. 1123, affirming decree Woolworth v. Root (C. C.) 40 F. 723.

A decree entered in a suit brought by a national bank to enjoin the collection of taxes imposed on it by a city establishing the existence of an irrevocable contract between the bank and the state, which exempted it from the taxes in question, cannot constitute an adjudication of the right of the bank to exemption from taxes imposed after the charter under which it was operating when the former taxes were levied and the suit was commenced had expired, and had been renewed.—Third Nat. Bank of Louisville v. Stone, 19 S. Ct. 759, 174 U. S. 432, 43 L. Ed. 1035.

An adjudication that the ownership by a railway carrier of stock in a bona fide corporation manufacturing, mining, producing, or owning the commodity carried is not the interest in such commodity forbidden to the carrier by Hepburn Act June 29, 1906, c. 3591, 34 Stat. 584 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 1149), is not res judicata of the right of such carrier to exert its power as a stock holder so as to deprive the other corporation of all real independent existence, and to make it virtually but an agency, or dependency, or department of the carrier.—United States v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 31 S. Ct. 387, 220 U. S. 257, 55 L. Ed. 458.

586. Identity of subject-matter.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1062-1066, 1093, 1099.

A determination, in a suit to quiet title by the United States against the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, that such railroad, claiming under the grant of March 3, 1871, took no title to lands within the conflicting place limits of the grant to it under that act and of that made to the Atlantic & Pacific Railroad Company by Act July 27, 1866, inasmuch as the latter road had filed an approved map of definite location, is not a bar to a claim in another suit between the same parties that the Southern Pacific Railroad Company by virtue of the construction of a railroad under said Act July 27, 1866, had an equal undivided moiety in all the odd-numbered sections which lie within the conflicting place limits of the grant to it and to the Atlantic & Pacific Railroad Company by that act; such lands not being the same as those involved in the prior suit. Decree 98 F. 27, 38 C. C. A. 619, reversed.—Southern Pac. R. Co. v. United States, 22 S. Ct. 154, 183 U. S. 519, 46 L. Ed. 307.

A decree enjoining the collection of taxes because of a contract exemption from taxation is as controlling on future taxes as on the particular taxes to which the suit related.—Gunter v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 26 S. Ct. 252, 200 U. S. 273, 50 L. Ed. 477.

587. Theory of action or recovery.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1039.

A patentee cannot bring suit against an infringer on a certain state of facts, and, after dismissal of his action, bring another suit against the same party on the same state of facts, and recover upon a different theory. The judgment in the first action is a complete estoppel in favor of the successful party in any subsequent action on the same state of facts.—Hubbell v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 828, 171 U. S. 203, 43 L. Ed. 136.

A judgment against a city in an action to restrain an alleged illegal sale of its property under a judgment against the city is a bar to another action after the sale to declare the sale null and void, although in the meantime the city has discovered that it held the property for public use only, by virtue of a long prior dedication, and therefore claims now to hold it in a capacity different from that in which it formerly sued, since there is in truth no difference in the character of the title by which a municipality holds such property and that by which it holds other property. Judgment, City of New Orleans v. Werlein, 24 So. 232, 50 La. Ann. 1251, reversed.—Werlein v. City of New Orleans, 20 S. Ct. 682, 177 U. S. 390, 44 L. Ed. 817.

588. Grounds of action or recovery.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1062, 1090.

Plaintiff in an action against defendant railroad company sought to charge it as assignee of a former company, whose property and franchises it had purchased, on a contract by the latter with plaintiff for the use of plaintiff's lands for terminal purposes, and on demurrer judgment was given for defendant, on the ground that the covenants in the contract did not run with the land, and there was no averment of an express undertaking by defendant to perform such covenants. Held, that the judgment was no bar to equitable proceedings by plaintiff against defendant to obtain compensation for the use and enjoyment of the property.—Wiggins Ferry Co. v. Ohio & M. Ry. Co., 142 U. S. 396, 12 S. Ct. 188, 35 L. Ed. 1055.

A decree dismissing, because of the bona fides of defendant's purchase, a bill filed by the United States under Act Cong. March 2, 1889, c. 377 (25 Stat. 850), to avoid, by way of forfeiture, certain patents of land issued by the United States in pursuance of the wagon road grant made by Act Cong. July 2, 1864, c. 213 (13 Stat. 355), is a bar to a subsequent suit by the United States against the same defendant to avoid the patents on the ground that the lands were within an Indian reservation, and therefore excepted from the operation of the grant. Decree (C. C.) United States v. Oregon Cent. Military Road Co., 103 F. 549, reversed.—United States v. California & O. Land Co., 24 S. Ct. 266, 192 U. S. 355, 48 L. Ed. 476.

A judgment sustaining a demurrer to the petition in an action by a creditor of a national bank against the directors, because the court was of the opinion that the petition only stated a right to recover for violations of the national bank act, causing damage to the bank as such, the right to recover for which was an asset of the bank, enforceable only by its receiver, is not a bar to a recovery in another action between the same parties under a petition which sets up a right to recover for the individual loss suffered, as distinct from the right of the bank. Judgment, Yates v. Jones Nat. Bank (Neb. 1905) 105 N. W. 287; Outcalt v. Same, Id.; Mosher v. Same, Id.; Outcalt v. Bailey, Id.; Mosher v. Same, Id.; Outcalt v. Bank of Staplehurst, Id.; Mosher v. Same, Id.; Outcalt v. Utica Bank, Id.; Mosher v. Same, Id., modified.—Yates v. Utica Bank, 27 S. Ct. 646, 206 U. S. 181, 51 L. Ed. 1015.

590. Nature and extent of relief sought or granted.

In a suit on a declaration of trust for an accounting, it was shown that plaintiff had theretofore sued defendant at law for alleged breach of contract to invest the sum in question in certain corporate stock, and the declaration contained a count for conversion of the stock. This count was abandoned, and the count refused plaintiff's application to amend the declaration into a bill in equity founded on the declaration of trust. Held, that a judgment for defendant in this action was not a bar to the suit for an accounting.—McComb v. Frink, 149 U. S. 629, 13 S. Ct. 993, 37 L. Ed. 876, affirming decree Snyder's Adm'r v. McComb's Ex'r (O. C.) 39 F. 292.

A master's report of sale was excepted to on the ground that the price reported was not the entire purchase money, but that a further sum had been secretly paid to some of the parties in interest. Exceptors asked that the sale be set aside. Issue was joined, and, after hearing, the sale was confirmed. Held a bar to a subsequent bill to enforce a trust as to the portion of the purchase money alleged to have been suppressed, leaving the sale to stand.—Green v. Bogue, 158 U. S. 478, 15 S. Ct. 975, 39 L. Ed. 1061.

A bill by a director and stockholder of a corporation against one T. and the other directors and stockholders, for the appointment of a receiver, etc., alleged that the stock held by T. and others was fraudulently issued. A new corporation, claiming to own the assets, filed a cross bill charging that the credit for $10,000, for which stock was issued to T., was fraudulently voted for pretended labor and money furnished and performed by him, when no such labor had been performed nor money furnished by him for such company. Such allegations were traversed by answers denying that the company

"fraudulently acknowledged an indebtedness to the said T., or issued paid-up stock to him without a sufficient consideration." There was a final decree that the stock issued to T., for such service was invalid, because nothing was paid for it. Held, that such decree was a bar to an action by T. against plaintiff in such bill, such corporations, and the stockholders to recover for such services.—Townsend v. St. Louis & S. Coal & Mining Co., 159 U. S. 21, 15 S. Ct. 997, 40 L. Ed. 61.

A decree dividing the damage sustained by two vessels held in fault for a collision, but refusing to divide the damages to cargo, because that question was not open under the pleadings, does not prevent the vessel which has been compelled to pay the entire cargo damage from bringing a libel in admiralty against the other vessel to enforce contribution. Decree, Erie & W. Transp. Co. v. Erie R. Co. (C. O. A. 1905) 142 F. 9, 73 C. C. A. 195, reversed.—Erie R. Co. v. Erie & W. Transp. Co., 27 S. Ct. 246, 204 U. S. 220, 51 L. Ed. 450.

6591. Splitting cause of action.

6596. — Several notes or installments.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1111.

The decision in an action on certain coupons is not conclusive on the parties in a subsequent suit on other coupons of the same bond, unless the issues in the former action embraced all the issues in the latter.—Town of Enfield v. Jordan, 119 U. S. 680, 7 S. Ct. 358, 30 L. Ed. 523.

In an action for the amount of several interest coupons of municipal bonds, certain facts touching the validity of the bonds were, by agreement, submitted on demurrer, which was overruled, and plaintiff stood on it. Final judgment was entered and affirmed on appeal. Held, that plaintiff was estopped to bring action on the remaining coupons.—Bissell v. Spring Valley Tp., 124 U. S. 225, 8 S. Ct. 495, 31 L. Ed. 411.

6600. Successive causes of action.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1115-1120.

6604. — Taxes or license fee for successive periods.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1115.

A judgment for defendant in an action for taxes for one year, on the ground that the property is exempt, is not a bar to an action for taxes on the same property for another year.—Keokuk & W. R. Co. v. State of Missouri, 152 U. S. 301, 14 S. Ct. 592, 38 L. Ed. 450.

6616. Defenses concluded.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1062, 1130-1137.

6617. — In general.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1062, 1130, 1134.

A decree rendered on demurrer, dismissing, on the merits, a suit to establish a trust in certain lands in favor of a railway company, which set up, as a basis of its alleged title in fee simple, the railroad land grant act of July 2, 1864, c. 217, 13 Stat. 365, prevents the successor in interest of such railway company from asserting, in an action of ejectment involving the same property, brought by the defendant in the former suit, that such company had acquired title under Act March 3, 1875, c. 152, 18 Stat. 482 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1563], or under the state statute of limitations. Judgment, Slaght v. Northern Pac. Ry. Co. (1905) 81 P. 1062, 39 Wash. 576, affirmed.—Northern Pac. Ry. Co. v. Slaght, 27 S. Ct. 442, 205 U. S. 122, 51 L. Ed. 738; Id., 27 S. Ct. 446, 205 U. S. 134, 51 L. Ed. 742.

6619. — Defenses which might have been urged in former action.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1132, 1667.

All defenses existing to a contract exemption from state taxation asserted in a suit in a federal Circuit Court to enjoin the collection of a tax in aid of a decree in a suit over the validity of the state taxation, whether brought to the attention of the court or waived, were foreclosed by the decree establishing such exemption.—Gunter v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 26 S. Ct. 252, 200 U. S. 273, 50 L. Ed. 477.

6622. Grounds of set-off or counterclaim.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1136.

A judgment upon a promissory note given for the price of fertilizers in an action in which injury to defendant's crops because of their bad quality was not set up as a defense does not preclude a separate suit to recover such damages. Judgment, Kirven v. Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. (1907) 58 S. E. 424, 77 S. C. 493, affirmed.—Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. v. Kirven, 30 S. Ct. 78, 215 U. S. 252, 54 L. Ed. 179.

Where a second suit to enjoin the collection of a tax is against the successors in office of those officers who were defendants in the first suit, by the same party, there is identity of parties.—City of New Orleans v. Citizens' Bank of Louisiana, 17 S. Ct. 905, 167 U. S. 371, 42 L. Ed. 202.

Judgments of Porto Rican courts in favor of the vendors of real property in actions begun by them for the benefit of their vendees after parting with title, to make effective proceedings in French tribunals by annulling a prior "private contract of sale" and a mortgage made by the person claiming under such contract, operate as res judicata in favor of such vendees and those derailing title through them, as fully as if they had been parties to the record.—Souffront v. La Compagnie Des Sucreries De Porto Rico, 30 S. Ct. 608, 217 U. S. 475, 54 L. Ed. 846.

6632. Persons not parties or privies.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1143.

Railway company securing injunction restraining enforcement of state rate-making law as confiscatory cannot avoid final decree of dismissal as an estoppel in subsequent suit by the state to recover excess passenger fares by asserting that as the state was not a party to the prior suit the injunction did not operate against the rate-making power so far as the state was concerned.—State of Missouri v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 36 S. Ct. 715, 241 U. S. 533, 60 L. Ed. 1148.

¶646. — Special proceedings other than actions.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1159.

An ex parte direction to a testamentary trustee to pay over a portion of the income of the trust property to children of the testator, on the theory that they have become legitimate by the subsequent marriage of their parents, is not res judicata where no notice was given of the proceedings, and there was no contest or issue made concerning the legitimacy of the children.—Kealoha v. Castle, 28 S. Ct. 684, 210 U. S. 149, 52 L. Ed. 998.

¶650. Finality of determination.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1162.

Act Cong. July 8, 1886, referred appellees' claims to the court of claims "for adjudication according to law, on the proofs," etc., and required that court to "report the same to congress." Held, that the words "for adjudication according to law" required complete and final judgment by the court of claims, and that the requirement to "report the same to congress" did not affect the conclusiveness thereof.—United States v. Irwin, 127 U. S. 125, 8 S. Ct. 1033, 32 L. Ed. 99.

A decree may not be res judicata as against a third party participating in the defense, unless it be so far final as to be res judicata against the defendant.—G. & C. Merriam Co. v. Saalfeld, 36 S. Ct. 477, 241 U. S. 22, 60 L. Ed. 868.

¶651. Judgment by confession or on consent or offer.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1163.

A judgment entered by consent against an insolvent railway corporation in favor of a contractor for a certain sum, with the stipulation that it should be entitled to a credit for the amount paid by the company to subcontractors and laborers of plaintiff, has the effect, in the absence of proof of such credits, of establishing the debt for the sum named.—Burgess v. Seligman, 107 U. S. 20, 2 S. Ct. 10, 27 L. Ed. 359.

A land grant canal company having given four trust deeds to secure separate issues of bonds, proceedings were instituted to foreclose the first deed, and the trustees in the others were made parties defendant. A decree was entered, without objection, directing the receiver to execute a trust deed creating a paramount lien, and to issue receivership certificates thereunder to complete the canal, in order to prevent the lands from reverting to the government under the terms of the grant. Subsequently a bondholder delivered bonds to his trustee, and received a release of 8,000 acres, according to a provision of the trust deed; but his trustee had, in the meantime, brought a bill of foreclosure, in which he recognized the priority of the receiver's trust deed. The foreclosure suits having been consolidated, a decree was entered for the sale of all the property, and by a clause therein the release was declared void. Held, that the fact that assignees in bankruptcy of the corporation, appointed by a different court, made all of the trustees, the receiver, and plaintiff in this action, defendants in a bill praying that plaintiff's release be declared valid, and that plaintiff stipulated for a decree against him pro confesso, does not establish the validity of the release, as a person cannot create rights for himself, nor cut off the rights of others, by admission.—Kent v. Lake Superior Ship Canal, Ry. & Iron Co., 144 U. S. 75, 12 S. Ct. 650, 36 L. Ed. 352.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1164.

In a suit to determine an adverse claim as to a piece of mining ground lying within the limits of interfering locations, where plaintiff so frames his complaint as to base his right solely on alleged priority of location, a judgment in his favor, though entered by default, is necessarily a decision of the question of priority, not only as to the piece of ground in controversy, but as to the whole of both locations.—Last Chance Min. Co. v. Tyler Min. Co., 157 U. S. 683, 15 S. Ct. 733, 39 L. Ed. 859, reversing judgment 61 F. 557, 9 C. C. A. 613.

A judgment by default, or a judgment entered after defendants have withdrawn their answer on testimony introduced by plaintiff alone, is just as conclusive between the parties on all matters necessary to support the judgment as one rendered after answer and contest.—Id.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1165.

A decree dismissing a suit by a telephone company to restrain a city from placing poles and wires of a municipal electric lighting system in such proximity to the poles and wires of a telephone company as to interfere with its current, defended on the ground that the city had exceeded its authority in granting the telephone franchise, cannot, in another suit by the same parties on different cause of action, be considered an adjudication as to the validity of the telephone franchise, where the court dismissed the bill in the prior suit because the city had constructed its lines before final decree.—City of Owensboro v. Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co., 33 S. Ct. 988, 230 U. S. 58, 57 L. Ed. 1380.

A voluntary dismissal of an action against a carrier for collecting unreasonable freight rates is no bar to a subsequent suit between the same parties to enforce a reparation order of the Interstate Commerce Commission on a finding that such rates were excessive.—Baer Bros. Mercantile Co. v. Denver & R. G. R. Co., 34 S. Ct. 641, 233 U. S. 479, 58 L. Ed. 1055, reversing judgment Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Baer Bros. Mercantile Co., 187 F. 485, 109 C. C. A. 337.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1171.

Where, in a suit by lien creditors of a railroad company, the nonresident trustee in a deed of trust, given by the company to secure its bonds, is ordered to be brought in by publication, he is not estopped by a decree and sale of the road from showing, in a foreclosure suit subsequently brought by him, that, by reason of defective publication, the court acquired no jurisdiction over him.—Guaranty Trust & Safe Deposit Co. v. Green Cove Springs & M. R. Co., 139 U. S. 137, 11 S. Ct. 512, 35 L. Ed. 116.

Where a prior judgment between the same parties would, under the settled rule of res judicata, operate as an estoppel in respect to a certain fact, the court will not be justified in re-examining that matter by any new evidence in respect to it, which is merely cumulative upon the one side or the other.—Southern Pac. R. Co. v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 18, 168 U. S. 1, 42

L. Ed. 355, affirming decree United States v. Southern Pac. R. Co. (C. C.) 46 F. 683.

A judgment is no less conclusive because it is based upon a mistake of law.—American Express Co. v. Mullins, 29 S. Ct. 381, 212 U. S. 311, 53 L. Ed. 525, 15 Ann. Cas. 536.

¶665. Identity of persons in general.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1177-1179.

The Ohio statute relating to the probate and contest of wills (Act Feb. 18, 1831) provides that, if any person interested shall, within two years after probate of a will, appear, and by bill in chancery contest the validity of the will, the issue shall be tried by a jury, "whose verdict shall be final between the parties, but that, if no person appear in that time, the probate shall be forever binding." A citizen of Ohio devised the legal title to lands in that state to his three executors and their successors, in trust, to pay the income to his children and grandchildren until the youngest grandchild, who should live to be 21 years of age, should arrive at that age, and then to convey the remainder to his grandchildren in equal shares. The will was probated, and three executors were appointed and acted as such. Two of them afterwards resigned, and their resignations were accepted by the court of probate. A bill in equity to set aside the will and annul the probate was then filed by one of the children against the other children and all the grandchildren then in being, alleging that they were the only persons specified or interested in the will, and were the only heirs and personal representatives of the deceased. Those grandchildren being infants, one of the children was appointed guardian ad litem of each. The third executor, who was one of the children made defendants in their own right, and who was not made a party as executor or trustee, and did not answer as such, resigned, and the resignation was accepted by the court of probate, pending that suit, and no other executor, trustee, or administrator with the will annexed, was made a party. Held, that a decree annulling the probate was absolutely void, as against grandchildren afterwards born.—McArthur v. Scott, 113 U. S. 340, 5 S. Ct. 652, 28 L. Ed. 1015.

Testator died in 1820, having devised land to his youngest son, subject to contingencies which would carry it successively to his second and eldest sons, and to specified issue of them, respectively. The youngest son occupied the land until his death, and, some of the contingencies having happened, it then passed into the possession of the son of the eldest son, who leased it to the executor of the testator's youngest son. This executor afterwards filed a bill to determine the title under the will, making all the descendants of the three sons parties, and alleging that the title was not in the son of the eldest son. The bill was taken pro confesso against all the parties. Subsequently it was dismissed after hearing, and the decree was not appealed from. Several years later the successor of this executor, being in possession under the lease, was sued in ejectment by the trustees under the will of the testator's second son, and judgment was rendered against him, and affirmed on appeal. Held, that this judgment did not conclude the children of the eldest son's son, who were not parties to the suit.—Bedon v. Davie, 144 U. S. 142, 12 S. Ct. 665, 36 L. Ed. 380.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1184.

A decree annulling a will in proceedings for that purpose, to which the executor, the devisee of a precedent particular estate, and the devisee of the remainder in fee simple, are made parties, is conclusive as against devisees of a contingent interest, by way of executory devise, though they are not made parties, as the persons mentioned are all the necessary parties.—Miller v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 132 U. S. 662, 10 S. Ct. 206, 33 L. Ed. 487.

¶670. — Representative or official capacity.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1181, 1185.

Judgment in an action by a widow individually to recover from an interstate carrier for the death of her husband, tried on the theory that it involved an action under the state law, barring recovery for negligence of a fellow servant, is not a bar to a subsequent action by her as administratrix under Employer's Liability Act April 22, 1908, as amended by Act April 5, 1910, where recovery was asked for negligence of fellow servant.—Troxell v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 33 S. Ct. 274, 227 U. S. 434, 57 L. Ed. 586, reversing judgment Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. v. Troxell, 200 F. 44, 118 C. C. A. 272.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1063, 1186.

A writ of prohibition was brought to prevent the judge of a city court from proceeding in a criminal case to enforce collection of a tax. From the judgment entered, an appeal was taken, to which the city, being the real party in interest, became also a formal party, and the judgment was affirmed. Held, that this judgment was conclusive, in a subsequent proceeding, upon the city itself. Decrees Bank of Kentucky v. Stone (C. C.) 88 F. 383, affirmed.—Stone v. Bank of Kentucky, 19 S. Ct. 881, 174 U. S. 799, 43 L. Ed. 1187.

¶673. — Effect of dismissal or severance as to parties.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1165, 1187.

In an action brought pursuant to Rev. St. §§ 2325, 2326, to determine an adverse claim to certain mining land embraced within the lines of two overlapping claims, defendant withdrew its answer, and afterwards, in its absence, judgment was rendered against it on evidence introduced by plaintiff. In the meantime, and pending the further proceedings, defendant amended its application in the land office so as to leave out of its claim the land in dispute. Held that, by so withdrawing its answer and amending its application, defendant did not take itself out of the court, so as to prevent the judgment from becoming conclusive against it on all matters actually decided.—Last Chance Min. Co. v. Tyler Min. Co., 157 U. S. 683, 15 S. Ct. 733, 39 L. Ed. 859, reversing judgment 61 F. 557, 9 C. C. A. 613.

¶675. Persons participating in or promoting action or defense.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1190, 1191, 1194.

One whose rights were similar to those of parties to a suit interested herself in obtaining a decision favorable to her own interests, as far as involved, and paid part of the expenses. Held that as her lands were separate from those of the actual parties, the decision could be used as a precedent, but not as an estoppel.—Litchfield v. Crane, 123 U. S. 549, 8 S. Ct. 210, 31 L. Ed. 199.

After a debtor had assigned, under Act Minn. March 7, 1881, permitting one whose property is levied on to assign for the equal benefit of his creditors who shall file releases, and the assignee had taken possession of the property, it was attached in an action in the federal circuit court. The assignee obtained leave to become a party to the action, but never did so, and after an unsuccessful motion by him to dissolve the attachment nothing further was done in the action. Held, that the assignee was not estopped to claim the property, since he never was a party to the action, and the motion to dissolve was but a summary proceeding, inconclusive of his right to the property.—Denny v. Bennett, 128 U. S. 489, 9 S. Ct. 134, 32 L. Ed. 491, affirming Bennett v. Denny, 83 Minn. 530, 24 N. W. 193.

The husband of a defendant, who has not been made a party to a foreclosure suit, but who joins his wife in an answer, will be bound by a decree.—Anderson v. Watts, 138 U. S. 694, 11 S. Ct. 449, 34 L. Ed. 1078.

The fact that the receiver of a dissolved corporation employs counsel to argue an appeal in the supreme court in an action instituted against it before its dissolution, and causes the remittitur to be sent to the circuit court, does not make him a party.—Pendleton v. Russell, 144 U. S. 640, 12 S. Ct. 743, 36 L. Ed. 574.

Assistance by one of two joint tort-feasors in defense of a suit against the other will not create an estoppel by judgment as to him.—(1912) Bigelow v. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co., 32 S. Ct. 641, 225 U. S. 111, 56 L. Ed. 1009, Ann. Cas. 1913E, 875, affirming judgment (1909) Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow, 89 N. E. 193, 203 Mass. 159.

677. Persons represented by parties.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1062, 1193.

Although the court of ordinary in Georgia has generally exclusive jurisdiction of the property of infants, a purchase of land by a guardian for his ward on credit, not relating to any part of the ward's estate, is a proper subject for the cognizance of a court of equity, and a decree in a suit in equity, brought in the name of the ward by his next friend, rescinding the purchase as to the ward, is conclusive as against the ward.—Corker v. Jones, 110 U. S. 317, 4 S. Ct. 19, 28 L. Ed. 161.

Where a master's report of sale was excepted to as not reporting the entire price, and the sale was confirmed, it is a bar to a suit to enforce a trust as to the portion of the purchase money alleged to have been suppressed, though the parties were not wholly the same, where the exceptions were brought by their trustees and privies.—Green v. Bogue, 158 U. S. 478, 15 S. Ct. 975, 39 L. Ed. 1061.

After a railroad company had begun to manufacture car truck bolsters, alleged to be an infringement of the patent in suit, one of its employees applied for a patent therefor in his own name. Thereafter an interference was declared between his claims and those of the patent sued on, which interference was decided in favor of the latter without any evidence being offered by either party. It was claimed that these proceedings estopped the railroad company from questioning the novelty of the patent. Practically the only evidence on this point was a statement of said applicant, in answer to a question, that the reason why he did not proceed with the interference was that he had no orders from his superior officers of the railroad company to do so. Held that, in the absence of affirmative evidence that the company had knowledge of the interference proceedings, and assented to the action of the applicant, this testimony was insufficient to produce the certainty to every intent which is necessary to the creation of an estoppel.—McCarty v. Lehigh Val. R. Co., 160 U. S. 110, 16 S. Ct. 240, 40 L. Ed. 358.

Irrigation canal companies and persons claiming under them, made parties to a suit over water rights, whether viewed as appropriators of water, or as mere carriers for others, sufficiently represent the users of the waters of the respective canals to cause such water users to be bound by the judgment.—(1910) Montezuma Canal Co. v. Smithville Canal Co., 31 S. Ct. 67, 218 U. S. 371, 54 L. Ed. 1074, reversing decree (1907) 89 P. 512, 11 Ariz. 99.

Decree in suit by the United States to cancel conveyance by Indian allottees as in violation of existing restrictions on alienation prevents prosecution by allottees of any other suit for a similar purpose.—(1912) Heckman v. United States, 32 S. Ct. 424, 224 U. S. 413, 56 L. Ed. 820, affirming judgment (1910) United States v. Allen, 179 F. 13, 103 O. C. A. 1.

678. Privy in general.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1195-1199, 1221; 25 Cent. Dig. Guard. & W. §§ 624, 625.

A purchaser of a half section of land sued his vendor for damages for failure of title, and obtained judgment. Held, that while it was a precedent in suits between the vendor and other grantees of land under the same title, it was as an estoppel confined to the title of the parties to the suit in that particular half section.—Stryker v. Crane, 123 U. S. 527, 8 S. Ct. 203, 31 L. Ed. 184.

A railroad company assigned to plaintiff's decedent claims against owners of land for taxes paid by the railroad while the title was in dispute. The railroad company sold the land in 1864, and in 1869 the grantee sued to quiet title to the land, and to recover taxes paid by it since 1864, if its title failed. It was decided that it had no title, and could not recover for the taxes paid with knowledge, and voluntarily. The defendants in these suits were defendants in the suit to quiet title, and to suits to recover the taxes of 1861, 1862, and 1863 pleaded the other suit as res judicata. Held that, while the decision in that suit was a judicial precedent that they were not liable, it was no bar.—Id.

In an action by a county against a railroad company for taxes, neither the trustee under a mortgage of its property nor the bondholders secured were parties. Judgment was rendered for the company, on the ground of an exemption in its charter; and thereafter certain stockholders, in a suit against the company, the county, and the county officers, obtained, on the same ground, a decree enjoining the collection of taxes for certain years. Held, that neither the judgment nor the decree was available to a purchaser of the property under foreclosure of the mortgage as a defense to a subsequent action for taxes, because of the lack of privity between the parties.—Keokuk & W. R. Co. v. State of Missouri, 152 U. S. 301, 14 S. Ct. 592, 38 L. Ed. 450.

A decree of a federal court, enjoining a state board of valuation and assessment from assessing bank stock for taxation, which proceeds solely upon the ground that such board is the agent of the local municipalities, and is therefore bound by the prior injunction decree obtained against a county in a suit to which the board was not a party, cannot conclude another county, on any theory of the dependence of the power of the county to collect taxes upon the valuation and apportionment made by the board—especially where the state courts do not adopt this theory of the relation of the board of valuation to the counties and other municipalities of the state. Judgment (1906) 94 S. W. 620, 29 Ky. Law Rep. 643, affirmed.—Bank of Kentucky v. Commonwealth of Kentucky, 28 S. Ct. 82, 207 U. S. 258, 52 L. Ed. 197.

A homestead claimant whose rights attached before any interest in the land was acquired by a railway company under a congressional grant is not concluded by an adjudication against the government in a suit brought by it to cancel certain patents issued to the railway company, including one for the land in question, to which suit he was not made a party, although he may have been an active member of a Settlers' Protective Association, which may have made such representations to, and brought such facts to the attention of, the government, as to induce the government to bring the suit. Judgment (1906) 87 P. 366, 74 Kan. 424, 118 Am. St. Rep. 321, affirmed.—Brandon v. Ard, 29 S. Ct. 1, 211 U. S. 11, 53 L. Ed. 68.

A judgment dismissing a bill by which an unsecured creditor of an insolvent corporation attacks a reorganization plan held not res judicata as to another unsecured creditor not a party.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Boyd, 33 S. Ct. 554, 228 U. S. 482, 57 L. Ed. 931, affirming decree 177 F. 804, 101 C. C. A. 18.

682. Vendor and purchaser.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1203-1206.

Where, in an action on township bonds, it appears that plaintiff became the holder after maturity, she will be bound by a judgment declaring the bonds void for want of authority to issue them, rendered in a proceeding by the owner of real estate, incumbered by a mortgage to secure them against the township trustees and the holders of the bonds, from one of whom plaintiff had purchased.—Louis v. Trustees of Brown Tp., 109 U. S. 162, 3 S. Ct. 92, 27 L. Ed. 892.

In an action on township bonds plaintiff is bound by the judgment in a suit by the former holder from whom she purchased after maturity, refusing a mandamus to compel the levy of a tax to pay interest thereon, on the ground that the bonds were void as issued without authority.—Id.

Plaintiff leased to defendants B. and E. an undivided interest owned by him in a mine. B. and E. remained in possession after the lease expired, and recognized defendant H., who owned an undivided interest in the mine, as the owner of the entire mine, and denied plaintiff's title. Plaintiff brought suit against H., B., and E., and procured a decree recognizing and enforcing his rights. Pending the suit, a corporation organized under the laws of another state took possession of the mine under a deed from H. Afterwards plaintiff sued the corporation and H., B., and E. for partition and for an accounting. Held, that the decree entered in the former suit recognizing plaintiff's rights was res judicata as against the corporation and H., B., and E.—Whiteside v. Haselton, 110 U. S. 293, 4 S. Ct. 1, 28 L. Ed. 152.

A purchaser of county bonds took the same with notice of the pendency in a state court of a suit brought by citizens and taxpayers against the county officers to have the bonds declared invalid. Held, that the judgment in such suit against the validity of the bonds in res judicata, as against such purchaser; and it is immaterial that the supreme court of the United States, in another suit, held differently.—Scotland County v. Hill, 112 U. S. 183, 5 S. Ct. 93, 28 L. Ed. 692.

A foreclosure decree, to which the owner of a tax deed is a party, declaring the lien of the mortgage superior to that of the tax deed and all other liens of defendants, is conclusive in ejectment by plaintiff in foreclosure against the grantees of the owner of the tax deed, which they are estopped to set up.—Hefner v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 123 U. S. 747, 8 S. Ct. 337, 31 L. Ed. 309.

Where plaintiff in an action claiming stock and dividends which had accrued since 1854, before the decision on appeal was announced, attempted to withdraw the suit on the ground that she had assigned her interest before bringing suit, but the court refused to dismiss it, and rendered judgment against her, this judgment is not binding on her transferee or his heirs.—St. Homes v. Levee Steam Cotton Press Co., 127 U. S. 614, 8 S. Ct. 1335, 32 L. Ed. 289.

A purchaser of H.'s interest under the trust deed, after H. had been ordered to appear and plead to the original bill, acquired only H.'s rights, and is bound to the same extent by the final decree.—Mellen v. Moline Malleable Iron Works, 131 U. S. 352, 9 S. Ct. 781, 33 L. Ed. 178.

A grantee of lands is not bound by a judgment rendered in an action commenced against his grantor subsequent to the conveyance. Blackman v. Wright, 65 N. W. 843, 96 Iowa, 541, affirmed.—Dull v. Blackman, 18 S. Ct. 333, 169 U. S. 243, 42 L. Ed. 733.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1206.

A judgment of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, against plaintiffs in an action for damages for breach of a contract with the board of public works, bars an action in the court of claims, for damages for the same alleged breach, brought by an assignee of such plaintiffs.—Brown v. District of Columbia, 127 U. S. 579, 8 S. Ct. 1314, 32 L. Ed. 262.

685. Mortgagor and mortgagee.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1208.

A decree against an electric light and power company in a controversy with a municipality over its franchise does not prevent a trustee in a mortgage by the company from maintaining a similar suit against the municipality where the trustee's rights were acquired long prior to the first suit and the trustee was not a party thereto.—Old Colony Trust Co. v. City of Omaha, 33 S. Ct. 967, 230 U. S. 100, 57 L. Ed. 1410.

686. Decedent and heirs or next of kin or devisees.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1209.

There was, between a person whose life estate was condemned and confiscated under Act Cong. July 17, 1862, and his heirs, such a privity that the heirs are bound by a suit and decree to enforce a mortgage, executed by their ancestor, containing the pact de non alienando, to which the ancestor alone had been made a party defendant.—Avegno v. Schmidt, 113 U. S. 293, 5 S. Ct. 487, 28 L. Ed. 976, affirming 85 La. Ann. 585.

Property confiscated under Act Cong. July 17, 1862, descends, on the death of the former owner, to his heirs by natural inheritance, and is not taken by them as purchasers; and hence they are bound by a suit and decree to enforce a mortgage, executed by their ancestor, containing the pact de non alienando, to which the ancestor alone had been made a party defendant.—Shields v. Shift, 124 U. S. 351, 8 S. Ct. 510, 31 L. Ed. 445, affirming judgment 36 La. Ann. 644.

688. Executors or administrators and devisees, legatees, heirs, or distributees.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1211.

A judgment against an executor and general administrator administering the estates of both his deceased parents, for services rendered to both estates by the wish of all the heirs, in aid of winding up the community business, bound the community estate, under the Spanish law in force in the Philippine Islands.—Enriques v. Go-Tiongco, 31 S. Ct. 423, 220 U. S. 307, 55 L. Ed. 476.

The mother's right to sue in Idaho as an heir under Rev. Codes Idaho, § 4100, for the negligent death of her son, is not barred by a judgment in a Washington court in an action brought by the administratrix under the laws of Tennessee, to which action the mother was not a party.—Spokane & I. R. Co. v. Whitley, 35 S. Ct. 655, 237 U. S. 487, 59 L. Ed. 1060, L. R. A. 1915F, 736, affirming judgment Whitley v. Spokane & I. Ry. Co., 132 P. 121, 23 Idaho, 642.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1212.

A judgment against an ancillary administrator in a suit by him to declare and enforce a lien on certain interests in the distributive shares of the property of a decedent is not a bar to a suit founded on the same cause of action, brought by an ancillary administrator of the estate in another jurisdiction. Decree, Coram v. Ingersoll (1906) 148 Fed. 169, 78 C. C. A. 303, reversed.—Ingersoll v. Coram, 29 S. Ct. 92, 211 U. S. 835, 53 L. Ed. 208.

⚡691. Trustee and cestui que trust.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1214.

One holding the title to lands in trust was made party to a suit concerning the title; the cestui que trust employed counsel, and filed an answer in the name of the trustee. Held, that the decision in that case was res judicata in an action between the same plaintiff and the cestui que trust, on the same subject-matter.—Plumb v. Crane, 123 U. S. 560, 8 S. Ct. 216, 31 L. Ed. 268, reversing Goodnow v. Plumb, 21 N. W. 133.

It seems that, in a suit against a trustee to subject the trust estate, the beneficiaries, though not parties, are bound by the decree, unless it is impeached for fraud.—Manson v. Duncanson, 17 S. Ct. 647, 166 U. S. 533, 41 L. Ed. 1106.

A corporation, which intervened in the proceedings instituted in the Court of Claims under Act Cong. June 21, 1906, c. 3504, § 34 Stat. 377, directing that court to distribute a fee among attorneys who had rendered services to certain Indians in the prosecution of a claim by the Indians against the government, is bound by a finding of that court that it was not entitled to participate in the distribution under a contract with certain of the attorneys, and making awards to such attorneys individually.—(1912) Indian Protective Ass'n v. Gordon, 32 S. Ct. 839, 225 U. S. 698, 56 L. Ed. 1262, affirming decree (1910) 34 App. D. C. 553.

* See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1223, 1224.

In an action against the District of Columbia for injuries caused by the want of a cover on a gas box placed by a gas company in the sidewalk, there was no evidence of actual notice to the District of the absence of a cover, though there was evidence that the box had been uncovered for some time. Held, that a verdict against the District established negligence by the company, which was conclusive in a subsequent suit over against it by the District, where the company had been afforded an opportunity to defend the suit against the District.—Washington Gaslight Co. v. District of Columbia, 161 U. S. 316, 16 S. Ct. 564, 40 L. Ed. 712.

⚡701. Corporations and corporate officers and stockholders.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1226.

The president of a national bank agreed after liquidation that a guaranty of the bank made before liquidation should not be discharged by a change in the security therefor, and the discharge of the principal debtor. Held, that a judgment against the bank, recovered after the making of such agreement, was not binding on the stockholders, who had no knowledge of the agreement, so as to prevent their raising the question whether the guaranty was not discharged by the release of the principal debtor.—Schrader v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 133 U. S. 67, 10 S. Ct. 238, 33 L. Ed. 564.

⚡702. State or municipality and officers, citizens, or taxpayers.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1227.

Defendant is not estopped to set up a want of legislative authority to issue bonds in aid of a railroad by the fact that taxpayers and the mayor and aldermen having filed a bill stating the want of power, and enjoining the original holder from negotiating the bonds, to which suit the railroad company demurred, the parties compromised and agreed that the town should take the stock and issue the bonds; that the court should declare them valid, overrule the demurrer, and dismiss the bill; and that, in pursuance of the agreement, a decree was, by consent, entered on the minutes of the court reciting the agreement, and decreeing according to its terms.—Kelley v. Town of Milan, 127 U. S. 139, 8 S. Ct. 1101, 32 L. Ed. 77, affirming judgment Kelly v. Town of Milan (C. C.) 21 F. 842.

A judgment against state officers for the possession of real property which they claim to hold for the state does not conclude the state.—Tindal v. Wesley, 17 S. Ct. 770, 167 U. S. 204, 42 L. Ed. 137, affirming judgment Tindall v. Wesley, 65 F. 731, 13 C. C. A. 160.

A judgment of ejectment against an officer of the United States in possession of the property, rendered in an action in which the district attorney of the United States, by direction of the Attorney General and the Secretary of the Treasury, appeared on behalf of the United States and conducted the defense, does not estop the United States in a subsequent action from contesting the title to the property.—(1911) Hussey v. United States, 32 S. Ct. 33, 222 U. S. 88, 56 L. Ed. 106, affirming judgment (1909) Crane v. Same, 44 Ct. Cl. 324.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1228.

A sheriff in possession of property under attachment is not bound by a judgment in replevin to which he was not a party, and in which he was not served with process, and did not appear, and which he did not defend, although his undersheriff, as an individual, was a party thereto.—Geekie v. Kirby Carpenter Co., 106 U. S. 379, 1 S. Ct. 315, 27 L. Ed. 157.

⚡707. — In general.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1220; 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, § 608.

Judgments bind only parties and privies, and not strangers or persons not parties to the action.—City of New Orleans v. Warner, 20 S. Ct. 44, 175 U. S. 120, 44 L. Ed. 96, modifying decree Warner v. City of New Orleans, 81 F. 645, 26 C. C. A. 508.

An adjudication in a suit in equity brought by a receiver of mortgaged property against persons claiming the land under an execution sale, that such property was subject to the mortgage, did not so bring the property into the custody of the court as to invalidate a prior sale of the same property on execution to other persons, strangers to the suit. Judgment, Aldridge v. Pardee, 60 S. W. 789, 24 Tex. Civ. App. 254, affirmed.—Pardee v. Aldridge, 23 S. Ct. 514, 189 U. S. 429, 47 L. Ed. 883.

A decree of a federal Circuit Court, dismissing, for want of equity, a bill filed by several holders of railroad equipment bonds "on their own behalf as well as in behalf of all those in like interest who may come in and contribute to the expenses of, and join in the prosecution of, this suit," to obtain a sale of the railroad property to satisfy the lien of such bonds, is not a bar to the claim for a lien of holders of the equipment bonds who were not parties to that suit. Decree (Sup. 1906) 78 N. E. 1141, 74 Ohio St. 483, reversed.—Wabash R. Co. v. Adelbert College of Western Reserve University, 28 S. Ct. 182, 208 U. S. 38, 52 L. Ed. 379, rehearing denied 28 S. Ct. 425, 208 U. S. 609, 52 L. Ed. 642.

(C) MATTERS CONCLUDED.

713. Scope and extent of estoppel in general.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1063, 1066, 1099, 1234-1237, 1239, 1241, 1247.

Where a special partner was made the assignee in bankruptcy of the firm, an adjudication that certain claims which had been assigned to him should not be expunged, nor the dividends thereon disallowed, by reason of his being assignee and special partner with the bankrupts, is not an adjudication that he is a special, and not a general, partner.—Abendroth v. Van Dolsen, 131 U. S. 66, 9 S. Ct. 619, 33 L. Ed. 57.

An administrator appointed in Illinois, being sued in the federal court in Arkansas, appeared and defendant therein, and a final decree was rendered against him as administrator, charging the assets of the estate in his hands. Subsequently he filed a bill of review to reverse such decree on the ground, inter alia, that, being an administrator, not of the courts of Arkansas, but of Illinois, he could not be sued in Arkansas, which bill was dismissed for want of equity. Held, that by filing a bill for review he submitted the question of the binding force of the decree to the court, and its decision of the question was conclusive.—Lawrence v. Nelson, 143 U. S. 215, 12 S. Ct. 440, 36 L. Ed. 130.

When two suits are brought on the same cause of action, and between the same parties, the judgment in the first is conclusive in the second as to every question which was or might have been litigated; but when the second suit is between the same parties, but on a different cause of action, the judgment in the first is conclusive only as to the questions actually litigated and determined, and not as to other matters which might have been litigated.—Nesbit v. Independent Dist. of Riverside, 144 U. S. 610, 12 S. Ct. 746, 36 L. Ed. 562, affirming (C. C.) 25 F. 635, following Cromwell v. Sac County, 94 U. S. 351, 24 L. Ed. 195.

In a suit against a judgment debtor and his two grantees to subject lands alleged to have been fraudulently conveyed, the grantees are bound to set up all the defenses they have; and, after a decree for complainant, one of them cannot, by a subsequent suit, assert title to part of the lands as a bona fide purchaser from the other, under a deed which he had received before the first suit was filed, and which he failed to bring forward therein.—Dowell v. Applegate, 152 U. S. 327, 14 S. Ct. 611, 38 L. Ed. 463, reversing decree Applegate v. Dowell, 15 Or. 513, 16 Pac. 651.

Where an action was brought pursuant to Rev. St. §§ 2325, 2326, to determine an adverse claim to a triangular piece of mining ground embraced within the overlapping limits of interfering locations, held, that the matter in controversy was the aforesaid piece of ground, and that, in a subsequent suit between the same parties to determine the right to an ore body lying outside the triangle, the judgment was conclusive only as to such matters as were actually decided, and not as to all matters which might have been decided.—Last Chance Min. Co. v. Tyler Min. Co., 157 U. S. 683, 15 S. Ct. 733, 39 L. Ed. 859, reversing judgment 61 F. 557, 9 C. O. A. 613.

The rendition of judgment for all the wife's paraphernal claims, without any recognition of a special conventional mortgage to secure them, concludes the fact that no such mortgage exists, or, at least, furnishes persuasive proof thereof.—Nalle v. Young, 160 U. S. 624, 16 S. Ct. 420, 40 L. Ed. 560.

Where a second action is on a different cause of action from that involved in the first action, the first judgment operates as an estoppel only as to those matters actually litigated and determined, and not what might have been litigated.—Dennison v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 57, 168 U. S. 241, 42 L. Ed. 453.

A judgment of dismissal on the merits in a former suit between the same parties, on the same patent, and involving the same facts, operates as an estoppel upon everything actually in issue, if not upon everything which might have been put in issue.—Hubbell v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 828, 171 U. S. 203, 43 L. Ed. 136.

A final decree in a controversy between a judgment creditor of a waterworks company and the latter's mortgagees and their assigns, in which the validity of the mortgage and the foreclosure sale under it was assailed and a mechanic's lien asserted by such creditor, which decree determines that the mortgagees were lawfully in possession of the mortgaged property by virtue of such sale, and that there was no mechanic's lien in favor of such creditor, as against the mortgagees or their assigns, upon the waterworks plant and franchise, arising either from the laws of the state, the recording of the alleged lien, or a decree recognizing such lien as against the waterworks company, is a bar to a claim in a suit between the same parties that by virtue of a sale made under the decree recognizing such lien the judgment creditor became the owner of the waterworks plant, entitled to the possession of the same, or, if not the owner, had been vested with a paramount lien, or that in any event there remained in the judgment creditor a right to redeem from the sale under foreclosure. Judgment 81 N. W. 125, 105 Wis. 48, affirmed.—National Foundry & Pipe Works v. Oconto City Water Supply Co., 22 S. Ct. 111, 183 U. S. 216, 46 L. Ed. 157.

A contention that by reason of the pendency in a federal court of a suit to enforce a mechanic's lien upon the plant of a waterworks company when proceedings to foreclose a mortgage executed by such company were instituted in the state court, the federal court had exclusive jurisdiction of the res, and the state court was without power in the premises, must be raised in a controversy between the lienor and the mortgagees and their assigns in which the validity of title claimed by the latter to have resulted from a sale under foreclosure is an issue and decided, or it will be deemed waived and concluded, and foreclosed by the judgment rendered on such issue.—Id.

The jurisdiction of a territorial court to order a sale of property by a receiver appointed in an earlier action without formally extending the receivership to the suit in which the decree of sale was made cannot be collaterally attacked by a party to such suit after unsuccessful fully prosecuting appeals to both the territorial Supreme Court and the Supreme Court of the United States, in which the jurisdictional question was not presented. Rehearing (1908) 26 S. Ct. 615, 202 U. S. 270, 50 L. Ed. 1023, denied.—Gila Bend Reservoir & Irrigation Co. v. Gila Water Co., 27 S. Ct. 495, 205 U. S. 279, 51 L. Ed. 801.

Any uncertainty or indefiniteness in an act of Congress purporting to validate bonds issued by Santa Fé county, N. M., cannot be urged to defeat mandamus to compel the levy of a tax to pay judgments upon such bonds, since whatever defense could have been set up to prevent the rendition of such judgments is not afterwards available to prevent their enforcement. Judgment, Territory v. Board of Com'rs of Santa Fé County (N. M. 1907) 89 P. 252, affirmed.—Board of Com'rs of Santa Fé County v. Territory of New Mexico ex rel. Coler, 30 S. Ct. 111, 215 U. S. 296, 54 L. Ed. 202.

714. Identity of subject-matter.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1340, 1342, 1343.

Interest coupons attached to municipal bonds form separate causes of action from the bonds themselves; and in an action on coupons cut from two out of a series of five bonds purchased at one time by plaintiff, the two bonds alone being in any way referred to in the suit, a judgment that the recitals of the bonds prevented the defense of a prior indebtedness, beyond the constitutional limit at the time of their issuance, does not, in an action on the five bonds themselves, preclude the defense that their aggregate amount was beyond the constitutional limit, and that they furnished on their face notice of that fact at the time of the purchase.—Nesbit v. Independent Dist. of Riverside, 144 U. S. 610, 12 S. Ct. 746, 36 L. Ed. 652, affirming (C. C.) 25 F. 635.

Act N. C. Jan. 3, 1834, incorporating the W. & W. R. Co., provided in section 19 that such road should be free from taxation. By a subsequent act (2 Rev. St. N. C. pp. 334, 335), the H. & W. R. Co., which had not been exempt from taxation, was absorbed into the W. & W. R. Co., its stockholders taking W. & W. stock in lieu of their own, and it was provided that the property of the absorbed road should be held in the same manner as all other property of the absorbing road. In 1869 a tax was imposed on the franchise and rolling stock of the W. & W. R. Co., and on certain lots belonging to it in Halifax county, where a part of the absorbed road was situated. In a suit to enjoin the collection thereof by the sheriff of that county it was held by the supreme court of the United States (Railroad Co. v. Reid [1871] 80 U. S. [13 Wall.] 264, 20 L. Ed. 568) that the property and franchise were exempt. The question then presented and determined, however, was that the terms of the charter exempting all the company's property included not only its rolling stock and real estate, but its franchise also, and the distinction between the main road and the absorbed road was not adverted to. Held that, even if the latter question might have been litigated in that case, the decision therein was neither an estoppel nor a controlling authority in an action to enjoin the collection of a tax on the absorbed road, as the cause of action was different.—Wilmington & W. R. Co. v. Alsbrook, 146 U. S. 279, 13 S. Ct. 72, 36 L. Ed. 972, affirming judgment (N. C.) 14 S. E. 652.

An exemption of the capital of a corporation from taxation does not, of necessity, include the exemption of the shareholders on their shares, and an adjudication as to the former exemption is not conclusive as to the latter.—City of New Orleans v. Citizens' Bank of Louisiana, 17 S. Ct. 905, 167 U. S. 371, 42 L. Ed. 202.

A judgment enjoining the collection of a tax on the property of a corporation for a certain year, on the ground that the property was exempt, was res judicata as to the right of exemption for succeeding years, where it was claimed on the same grounds.—Id.

A right, question, or fact distinctly put in issue, and directly determined by a court of competent jurisdiction, as a ground of recovery, cannot be disputed in a subsequent suit between the same parties or their privies; and, even if the second suit is for a different cause of action, the right, question, or fact once so determined must, as between the same parties or their privies, be taken as conclusively established, so long as the judgment in the first suit remains unmodified.—Southern Pac. R. Co. v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 18, 168 U. S. 1, 42 L. Ed. 355, affirming decree United States v. Southern Pac. R. Co. (C. C.) 46 F. 683.

In a suit by the United States to quiet title against a land-grant railroad company and its grantees, where the rights of the parties depend upon the question whether certain maps filed with the secretary of the interior by another land-grant railroad company were maps definitely locating the line of its route, a prior adjudication of this question in favor of the government in a suit between the same parties involving other lands appertaining to the same line of road is conclusive, where it is clear that the question was material, was put in issue by the pleadings, and was actually decided in such former suit.—Id.

A decision on a question of title to lands is conclusive in a subsequent suit between the same parties in respect to other lands, when the lands in both suits have a common source of title, and the title depends upon the existence or nonexistence of a fact directly adjudicated in the former case.—Id.

A judgment of the court of claims for compensation for services, based on the ground that the approval of the claimant's account by the district court threw upon the government the burden of disproving the correctness of the several items, held not conclusive in plaintiff's favor in a subsequent suit in the court of claims for compensation for similar services.—Dennison v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 57, 168 U. S. 241, 42 L. Ed. 453.

A judgment in a suit for collection of taxes operates as an estoppel against the state or any agency of the state in a suit for taxes subsequently accruing. Decrees (C. C.) Bank of Kentucky v. Stone, 88 F. 383, affirmed.—Stone v. Bank of Kentucky, 19 S. Ct. 881, 174 U. S. 796, 43 L. Ed. 1187.

A judgment establishing a liability to pay taxes for certain years is res judicata as to the liability for the taxes of a succeeding year, when the facts affecting the liability are identical in the two cases. Judgment, 43 A. 857, 89 Md. 587, affirmed.—Baldwin v. State of Maryland, 21 S. Ct. 105, 179 U. S. 220, 45 L. Ed. 160.

A judgment which determined that certain assessments for taxation on shares of stock in a national bank were illegal because stockholders' debts were not deducted therefrom, and moneyed capital invested in national banks was therefore unlawfully discriminated against by reason of the practical operation of Rev. St. Ohio, § 2730, defining credits, in exempting from taxation moneyed capital in the hands of the individuals, is not conclusive as to the right of the stockholders in such bank to have their debts deducted from the value of their shares in determining their value for taxation in subsequent years. Judgment Mercantile Nat. Bank of Cleveland, Ohio v. Hubbard, 105 F. 809, 45 C. C. A. 56, reversed.—Lander v. Mercantile Nat. Bank of Cleveland, Ohio, 22 S. Ct. 908, 186 U. S. 458, 46 L. Ed. 1247.

☞715. Identity of issues in general.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1244-1246.

Evidence on an issue passed on by decree in a former case between the same parties, remaining in full force, is properly excluded.—Hornbuckle v. Stafford, 111 U. S. 389, 4 S. Ct. 515, 28 L. Ed. 468.

In an action for specific performance of a contract to sell lands, where the issue is whether defendant ratified the unauthorized act of his agent in making the contract, a judgment for defendant in a former action between the same parties for damages caused by recording such contract, and thus placing a cloud on the title, is not conclusive where, under the instructions in that action, the jury might have found for defendant either on the ground that plaintiff had ratified the contract, or that no damage had been sustained by placing it on record, and the verdict does not specify on which ground the jury acted.—De Sollar v. Hanscome, 158 U. S. 216, 15 S. Ct. 816, 39 L. Ed. 956.

A judgment establishing the nonliability of a bank to taxation, on its capital and its banking house and furniture does not embrace immunity from the payment of a license tax.—City of New Orleans v. Citizens' Bank of Louisiana, 17 S. Ct. 905, 167 U. S. 371, 42 L. Ed. 202.

A judgment that a statutory provision exempting "such bank and its shares of stock . . . from all other taxation whatsoever" is an irrevocable contract, which prevents the imposition of a license tax, is conclusive, in a subsequent suit, that no direct tax on the bank's property, tangible and intangible, can be imposed. Decrees (C. C.) Bank of Kentucky v. Stone, 88 F. 383, affirmed.—Stone v. Bank of Kentucky, 19 S. Ct. 881, 174 U. S. 799, 43 L. Ed. 1187.

A decree enjoining a municipality, at the suit of a waterworks company, from building its own waterworks, or denying liability, or refusing to pay the water rentals contracted for, is not conclusive as to the right of the municipality to regulate water rates charged to private consumers under a law passed long after the bill was filed, even if it could be said that the pleadings put in issue the reasonableness of the rates then charged.—City of Vicksburg v. Vicksburg Waterworks Co., 27 S. Ct. 762, 206 U. S. 496, 51 L. Ed. 1155.

A final decree, adverse to a city in a suit by a private waterworks company to enjoin competition by the city during its franchise, is not an adjudication against the right of the city to issue bonds for and construct a plant to be operated after the expiration of the franchise.—City of Vicksburg v. Henson, 84 S. Ct. 95, 231 U. S. 259, 58 L. Ed. 209, reversing judgment 203 F. 1023, 121 C. C. A. 664.

A judgment in favor of a board of education in mandamus to compel reinstatement of a

A decree for the specific performance by a railroad company of a contract by it to convey the lands granted to it was a conclusive adjudication that, at the time the suit for specific performance was commenced, the full equitable title had passed under the contract.—Winona & St. P. Land Co. v. State of Minnesota, 159 U. S. 526, 16 S. Ct. 83, 40 L. Ed. 247.

The validity of certain releases is res judicata as between the parties to a suit in which the question of their invalidity for fraud and undue influence was put in issue by the pleadings, where the decree of the trial court, which could not properly have been rendered without holding the releases valid, was followed by an affirmance on appeal, with an opinion declaring that there was no evidence in the record justifying the contention that they were obtained by fraud and undue influence, with a further affirmance in the court of last resort, whose opinion declared that, upon the state of the record, it was to be presumed that the validity of the releases had been affirmatively found, and that there was sufficient evidence to sustain such a finding, followed by a refusal to frame its remittitur so as to send this question back to the trial court for consideration, although the trial judge made no findings of fact, made no mention in his memorandum of the decision of the contention respecting the releases, and in his opinion failed in terms to pass upon this point. Decree (C. C.) The Fayerweather Will Cases, 118 F. 943, affirmed.—Fayerweather v. Ritch, 25 S. Ct. 58, 195 U. S. 276, 49 L. Ed. 196.

Judgment, 74 P. 284, 140 Cal. 690, reversed.—Harding v. Harding, 25 S. Ct. 679, 195 U. S. 317, 49 L. Ed. 1066.

A judgment dismissing a suit against a city upon drainage warrants issued for work done under compulsion of a statute is not a decisive authority against the right to recover upon other warrants issued under a voluntary agreement by the city for purchase of property, although the owner of certain of the latter warrants intervened in the former suit, where the court did not notice the distinction between the two kinds of warrants, but treated them all as belonging to the former class. Decree, Warner v. City of New Orleans, 81 F. 645, 26 C. O. A. 508, modified.—City of New Orleans v. Warner, 20 S. Ct. 44, 175 U. S. 120, 44 L. Ed. 96.

A city's claim that land which it holds by dedication for public use cannot be legally sold under a judgment against the city is conclusively defeated by a decision against the city in a suit for an injunction against the sale on the ground of its illegality, although in that suit the question of the effect of the dedication was not presented or considered. Judgment, City of New Orleans v. Werlein, 24 So. 232, 50 La. Ann. 1251, reversed.—Werlein v. City of New Orleans, 20 S. Ct. 682, 177 U. S. 390, 44 L. Ed. 817.

An adjudication in bankruptcy that two persons named therein as constituting a firm are bankrupts is not an adjudication that a third person who was not named in the petition, nor in any of the proceedings, otherwise than as a creditor, is not a special partner in the same firm.—Abendroth v. Van Dolsen, 181 U. S. 66, 9 S. Ct. 619, 33 L. Ed. 57.

A judgment of a state supreme court, in quo warranto proceedings, that an agreement between a city and an individual for the conduct of a lottery was valid under the state laws, held not conclusive, as between the state and parties asserting rights under the agreement, that the state could not prohibit all lotteries and thereby prevent the exercise of the rights asserted, without impairing the obligation of a contract.—Douglas v. Commonwealth of Kentucky, 18 S. Ct. 199, 168 U. S. 488, 42 L. Ed. 553.

On a bill to enforce a trust against one as a devisee of an estate which she had fully administered as executrix, and held as distributed under a decree of the probate court, the pleadings did not aver that said court ever construed the will as between defendant and complainants. Held, that there had been no adjudication to bar complainants.—Colton v. Colton, 127 U. S. 300, 8 S. Ct. 1164, 32 L. Ed. 133, reversing decree (C. C.) 21 F. 594.

The fact that, in a suit for the appointment of a trustee in place of trustees named in deeds of trust securing debts due plaintiff, the latter did not include in the property described in the bill certain land, which it is agreed was intended to be included in the deeds of trust, but which was omitted, does not estop him to assert a lien thereon in a subsequent suit to foreclose, where, at the time of the first suit, the mortgagor had no title to such land, but acquires title afterwards.—Shepherd v. Pepper, 133 U. S. 626, 10 S. Ct. 438, 33 L. Ed. 706.

A Wisconsin county sold and conveyed to a railroad company large tracts of land which it had acquired at tax sales, but afterwards made a quitclaim deed of the same lands to an individual. The latter brought suit in a state court against the railroad company to quiet his title as to one of these tracts. Pending this suit, the railroad company brought a bill against him in a federal court to quiet its title to a different tract. The cause in the state court was taken to the state supreme court on appeal from an order overruling a demurrer to the complaint and the order was affirmed, and the cause remanded for further proceedings; the court holding that the county had no authority to donate its lands to a railroad company. In the meantime the suit in the federal court had progressed to final hearing, but defendant therein, by supplemental pleading, set up this decision of the state supreme court, alleging that the questions therein decided were res judicata. Held that, on an appeal to the supreme court of the United States from the decree of the circuit court, the supreme court was not bound to accept the decision of the state court; for, as the subject of controversy was not the same in the two suits, that judgment was conclusive only as to the matters actually litigated, and, it appearing that the state court had assumed that the transaction was a donation by the county to the railroad company, and that its attention was not directed to the question whether it was in reality a donation or a sale, or to the further fact that the grantee was a national corporation, created for national purposes, and subject to important public duties, these questions were still open to litigation, and the doctrine of res judicata did not apply.—Roberts v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 158 U. S. 1, 15 S. Ct. 756, 39 L. Ed. 873, affirming judgment (C. C.) Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Roberts, 42 F. 734.

743. Title or claim to property.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1262, 1263, 1276-1277, 1284.

An association owned certain lands. K. owning all the stock, and using the land as his individual property, agreed to sell the stock to plaintiff, and procure a deed to him of the land. Plaintiff paid the consideration, and went into possession; K. delivering to him the deed executed by all the directors, but not formally authorized by the board. Through inadvertence, plaintiff failed to demand the stock, held as collateral by defendant bank, which had been informed of the agreement by K. In an action in the state court between the bank and plaintiff, the deed was decreed void, and the stock to be plaintiff's subject to the bank's equity. Held that plaintiff's title to the land obtained by his contract and deed was res adjudicata against him.—Minneapolis Agricultural & Mechanical Ass'n v. Canfield, 121 U. S. 295, 7 S. Ct. 887, 30 L. Ed. 962, modifying decree (C. C.) Canfield v. Minneapolis Agricultural & Mechanical Ass'n, 14 F. 801, 4 McCrary, 646.

S. sued defendant corporation to recover the dividends for 1848, 1849, 1852, 1853, on certain shares formerly in her name on the books of the company, and alleged by her to have been transferred without authority in 1853 by one D., pretending to be her agent, and for a judgment declaring her the owner and holder of the stock since 1853, and entitled to all dividends since that time. The court gave judgment in her favor for the dividends prior to 1853, on the ground that D. was not authorized to collect them; but held that she could not be recognized as the present owner, as the alleged transferee had not been made a party. Held, that this judgment determined nothing as to the validity of the sale and transfer by D.—St. Romes v. Levee Steam Cotton Press Co., 127 U. S. 614, 8 S. Ct. 1335, 32 L. Ed. 289.

Testator died in 1820, having devised land to his youngest son, subject to contingencies which would carry it successively to his second and eldest sons, and to specified issue of them respectively. The youngest son occupied the land until his death, and some of the contingencies having happened, it then passed into the possession of the son of the eldest son, who leased it to the executor of the testator's youngest son. This executor afterwards filed a bill to determine the title under the will, making all the descendants of the three sons parties, and alleging that the title was not in the son of the eldest son. The bill was taken pro confesso, against all the parties. Subsequently it was dismissed after hearing, and the decree was not appealed from. Several years later the successor of this executor, being in possession under the lease, was sued in ejectment by the trustees under the will of the testator's second son, and judgment was rendered against him, and affirmed on appeal. Held, in a suit by the children of the eldest son's son to recover the land, that a person claiming title by descent from the second son, through his daughter and her son, who were both parties to the first suit, was precluded thereby from setting up such claim as a defense.—Bedon v. Davis, 144 U. S. 142, 12 S. Ct. 665, 36 L. Ed. 380.

The question whether a corporation organized pursuant to a combination of stockholders in two competing interstate railway companies to acquire a controlling interest in their capital stock holds the same as absolute owner, or as trustee or bailee, was not determined by a decree adjudging the combination to be illegal, enjoining the new corporation from acquiring any further stock, from voting such stock as it then held or might subsequently acquire, and from exercising any control over the railway companies by virtue of its holdings, and restraining the railway companies from permitting or suffering any such action on the part of the new corporation, and from paying any dividends on account of the stock held by it, and providing that nothing therein shall be construed as prohibiting the new corporation from returning the railway shares to the original stockholders, or to the holders and owners of its own stock issued in exchange for these shares.—Harriman v. Northern Securities Co., 25 S. Ct. 493, 197 U. S. 244, 49 L. Ed. 739, affirming decree, Northern Securities Co. v. Harriman, 134 F. 331, 67 C. C. A. 245, which reversed (C. C.) Harriman v. Northern Securities Co., 132 F. 464.

A decree determining the rights of an irrigation canal company in the waters of a river, as against the owners of other irrigation canals taking water from the river at points above the head of its own canal, and against all persons claiming under them, is res judicata as to such canal owners and the water users under such canals in a subsequent controversy over the respective rights of the appropriators of the waters of such river.—(1910) Montezuma Canal Co. v. Smithville Canal Co., 31 S. Ct. 67, 218 U. S. 371, 54 L. Ed. 1074, reversing decree (1907) 89 P. 512, 11 Ariz. 99.

The right of minor ward to obtain relief under the Hawaiian laws against his guardian obtaining in his own name an award of title to his ward's land was not concluded by an affirmation by Supreme Court of a decree of Hawaiian

Supreme Court, where the attack on guardianship was not included in finding of fact certified to federal Supreme Court.—Kapiolani Estate v. Atcherley, 35 S. Ct. 832, 238 U. S. 119, 59 L. Ed. 1229.

A. guaranteed the payment of the rent of a house leased by B. to C., and B. sued A. in the marine court to recover rent due. A. pleaded that the execution of the lease and guaranty were fraudulently obtained, and a judgment was rendered in his favor. Subsequently another action was brought against him in the federal court to recover other installments of rent due under the lease, and he pleaded the judgment of the marine court in bar. Held, that the question of the validity of the lease having been involved and decided in the former suit, the judgment was conclusive on the parties.—Milne v. Deen, 121 U. S. 525, 7 S. Ct. 1004, 30 L. Ed. 980.

A person owning two notes indorsed thereon a guaranty of payment, and transferred them to another in payment of a void grain gambling debt. The latter deposited the same with a bank as collateral security for a valid debt, less in amount than the face of the notes. The bank took them without notice of the gambling transaction, and thereafter recovered a judgment for their full value against the guarantor. Held, that such judgment does not estop the guarantor from showing, as against his immediate transferee, that the guaranty was void, as being based on a gambling consideration; and a subsequent assignee of the guarantor is entitled to the excess of the judgment as against the original transferee.—Pearce v. Rice, 142 U. S. 28, 12 S. Ct. 130, 35 L. Ed. 925.

The claim of the city of San Francisco to four leagues of land previously owned by the Mexican pueblo, which it succeeded, was confirmed by the United States circuit court on appeal from a decision of the commissioners appointed by congress. Pending the appeal, the city passed the Van Ness ordinance, by which it relinquished and granted all its right and claim to the land to persons in the actual continued possession thereof from January 1, 1855, to the date of the ordinance, in June, 1855, but reserved from the grant all lots which it had set apart for public uses. The ordinance was confirmed by the state legislature and by congress. Plaintiffs' grantor, who had acquired title from persons who were in the actual possession during the period provided by the ordinance, sued the city to quiet his title, and obtained a decree on disclaimer of the city, by its attorney, that it had any interest in the land when the suit commenced. Held, that the city is estopped by the decree to set up a claim to any of the land which could have been conveyed by the ordinance, since the title before the suit commenced had passed to plaintiffs' grantor, but it is not estopped to claim such of the land as was reserved by the ordinance for public use, which could not be relinquished by the disclaimer of the city attorney.—City & County of San Francisco v. Le Roy, 138 U. S. 656, 11 S. Ct. 364, 34 L. Ed. 1096.

A decree in partition dismissing the petition because the land was held by defendants adversely and because plaintiff would not maintain partition without establishing his title in ejectment is not a bar to ejectment by the same plaintiff against the same defendants.—Woodward v. De Graffenried, 35 S. Ct. 784, 238 U. S. 284, 59 L. Ed. 1310, affirming judgment 131 F. 162, 38 Okl. 81.

748. Actions relating to personal property.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1063, 1065, 1297-1301.

In an action to recover damages for breach of warranties in the sale of a mill, it appeared that defendants had formerly brought an action of replevin against plaintiffs, to recover possession of the mill, on the ground of breach of conditions in the chattel mortgage given as security for the deferred payments; that in such action the present plaintiffs had introduced evidence of damages for the breaches of warranty constituting the basis of the present suit; that the court had instructed the jury that such alleged damages might be set off against the deferred payments, and that if the damages equaled or exceeded the amount of the notes still due the verdict should be for defendants. It further appeared that at that time the amount of the deferred payments was $1,350, and that the jury found for the plaintiffs in replevin for $1,151.20, thus indicating that they had allowed the difference as a set-off by way of damages. Held, that the replevin suit was a complete bar to the pending suit for damages.—Clement v. Field, 147 U. S. 467, 13 S. Ct. 358, 37 L. Ed. 244.

750. Proceedings for collection of taxes.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1307, 1308.

In an action to restrain the prosecution of a writ of mandamus to the judges of a county court to levy a tax sufficient to pay a judgment against the county, the findings in the judgment that the bonds on which the judgment was rendered were issued by the county under the authority of a statute which prescribed no limit to the rate of taxation for their payment are conclusive.—Knox County v. Harshman, 133 U. S. 152, 10 S. Ct. 257, 33 L. Ed. 586.

Act Tenn. March 26, 1887, authorizes any company having power to receive moneys in trust to do a general banking business. Held, that a judgment in an action brought before the passage of the act of 1887, on an issue of the right of a company's shareholders to exemption from taxation, entered while the company was transacting an insurance business, does not affect the right of the state to recover taxes accruing after the company commenced a banking business under said act.—Memphis City Bank v. State of Tennessee, 161 U. S. 186, 16 S. Ct. 468, 40 L. Ed. 664, affirming judgment Memphis v. Memphis City Bank, 91 Tenn. 574, 19 S. W. 1048.

There is no rule of public policy which prevents the principle of res judicata from applying to controversies between the state and other parties as to taxation.—City of New Orleans v. Citizens' Bank of Louisiana, 17 S. Ct. 905, 167 U. S. 371, 42 L. Ed. 202.

Unpatented lode mining claims are "real property," and as such are subject to the lien of a judgment recovered against their owner when docketed pursuant to Laws Ariz. 1891, Act No. 50, § 4; the term being defined by a territorial statute in force when the judgment in question was rendered and docketed as coextensive with lands, tenements, and hereditaments. Though a judgment at law is not a lien in the District of Columbia on the interest of the judgment debtor in land theretofore conveyed by him to a trustee to secure the payment of other debts, yet the filing of a bill in equity to take an account of the debt secured by the deed of trust, and to have the land sold subject to such debt, and the proceeds applied to the judgment, gives the judgment creditor a lien on the equitable interest of the judgment debtor.—Comrs Freedman's Savings & Trust Co. v. Earle, 110 U. S. 710, 4 S. Ct. 226, 28 L. Ed. 301.

The purchaser of land took possession thereof under a contract by which the legal title was to be conveyed on payment of the purchase money. While thus in possession, the purchaser executed a lease of the premises, and put the lessee in possession. Afterwards the legal title was conveyed to the purchaser. Held, that the legal title inured to the benefit of the lessee, as against a judgment creditor of the purchaser (lessor), whose judgment was recovered after the execution of the lease and the completion of the contract of purchase.—Skidmore v. Pittsburgh, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 112 U. S. 33, 5 S. Ct. 9, 28 L. Ed. 626.

Rev. Code Miss. 1857, c. 57, art. 15, p. 401, which provides that no judgment or decree rendered within the state shall be a lien on the property of defendant for a longer period than seven years from the rendition thereof, does not apply to a decree of a court of chancery establishing the arrears due on a life annuity as a specific lien on land devised, in a suit brought by the life annuitant.—Canal Bank v. Hudson, 111 U. S. 66, 4 S. Ct. 303, 28 L. Ed. 354.

When a statute makes a recorded judgment a lien on real estate for six years, provided an execution is issued within one year, a further proviso that any time during which the issuance of execution may be restrained by injunction or order of any court or judge shall not be counted in computing the six years (Act Colo. 1862) operates to keep the lien alive, although the issuance of execution within a year is prevented by an appeal and supersedeas.—Gottlieb v. One who executes a bond in Maryland, authorizing "any attorney of any court of record in the state of New York or any other state to confess judgment" against him, cannot be held to have in contemplation Laws Pa. 1805-6, p. 347, which provides that upon the application of the holder of an instrument "in which judgment is confessed, or containing a warrant for an attorney at law, or other person, to confess judgment," the prothonotary shall enter judgment according to the tenor thereof, without the agency of an attorney; and an entry of judgment thereon by a prothonotary in Pennsylvania, although valid there, cannot be the foundation of a judgment in Maryland.—Grover & Baker Sewing Mach. Co. v. Radcliffe, 137 U. S. 287, 11 S. Ct. 92, 34 L. Ed. 670, affirming judgment 66 Md. 511, 8 Atl. 265.

Evidence that the entry of discontinuance of an action in a court of another state was not intended by the parties as a release and satisfaction of the cause of action, but was the result of a promissory agreement which was never complied with, is competent in a later action by the same plaintiff to support a replication to a plea that plaintiff had received full satisfaction and payment of the claim. Judgment 56 N. E. 154, 183 Ill. 533, affirmed.—Jacobs v. Marks, 21 S. Ct. 865, 182 U. S. 583, 45 L. Ed. 1241.

Due effect cannot be said to have been denied the decrees of courts of another jurisdiction by the construction placed upon them by a state court, where the construction contended for by those claiming that such decrees were not given the proper effect cannot be given without indulging in conjecture and giving to those making such contention the benefit of the doubts which arise as to the precise meaning of such decrees. Judgment 60 N. E. 642, 167 N. Y. 329, affirmed.—Commercial Pub. Co. v. Beckwith, 23 S. Ct. 382, 188 U. S. 567, 47 L. Ed. 598.

A judgment taken under a warrant of attorney annexed to a promissory note, authorizing confession of judgment "in favor of the holder," is not protected by the federal Constitution and laws when sued on in another state, from collateral attack upon the ground that the party in whose behalf it was rendered was not in fact the holder, because not the real owner of the note. Judgment 92 N. W. 582, 3 Neb. (Unof.) 716, affirmed.—National Exch. Bank of Tiffin v. Wiley, 25 S. Ct. 70, 195 U. S. 257, 49 L. Ed. 184.

The judgment of a state court, if that court had jurisdiction to render it, is entitled to the same full faith and credit in the courts of another state that it has in the state where rendered, as a valid domestic judgment. Judgment, Balk v. Harris, 41 S. E. 940, 130 N. C. 381, reversed.—Harris v. Balk, 25 S. Ct. 625, 198 U. S. 215, 49 L. Ed. 1023, 3 Ann. Cas. 1084.

A judgment enforceable in the state where rendered must be given effect in another state, under the full faith and credit clause of the federal Constitution, although the modes of procedure to enforce its collection may not be the same in both states.—(1910) Sistare v. Sistare, 30 S. Ct. 682, 218 U. S. 1, 54 L. Ed. 905, 28 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1068, 20 Ann. Cas. 1061, reversing judgment 66 A. 772, 80 Conn. 1, 125 Am. St. Rep. 102.

Refusal of Wisconsin courts to permit action to enforce liability of stockholders in an insolvent Minnesota corporation to be maintained by receiver of such corporation, who under Laws Minn. 1899, c. 272, became quasi assignee of creditors and charged with enforcement of stockholders' liability, denies full faith and credit to the laws of Minnesota and the judicial proceedings in that state.—(1912) Converse v. Hamilton, 32 S. Ct. 415, 224 U. S. 243, 56 L. Ed. 749, Ann. Cas. 1913D, 1292, reversing judgment 118 N. W. 190, 136 Wis. 589, and Same v. McCauley, 118 N. W. 192, 136 Wis. 594.

Adoption proceedings in Louisiana are not denied full faith and credit under Const. U. S. art. 4, § 1, by Alabama statute of descents, under which children adopted in other states are denied the right to take realty in Alabama by descent from foster parents.—Hood v. McGehee, 35 S. Ct. 718, 237 U. S. 611, 59 L. Ed. 1144, affirming decree 199 F. 989, 117 C. C. A. 664.

A violation of Const. U. S. art. 4, § 1, results from the refusal of New York courts to hold that the power of a Massachusetts benefit society to increase its assessment rates are to be determined by the Massachusetts law as construed by a judgment of the highest court of that state.—Supreme Council of the Royal Arcanum v. Green, 35 S. Ct. 724, 237 U. S. 531, 59 L. Ed. 1089, L. R. A. 1916A, 771, reversing decrees Green v. Supreme Council of Royal Arcanum, 129 N. Y. S. 791, 144 App. Div. 761, and Id., 100 N. E. 411, 206 N. Y. 591.

The full faith and credit due from the New York courts to a Massachusetts judgment holding that a benefit society of that state could increase its assessment rates requires the courts of New York to recognize the effect of the Massachusetts law as established by that judgment.—Id.

816. — Constitutional and statutory provisions.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1444.

The decision of a state court with reference to the effect which the charter and by-laws of a foreign building and loan association and the statutes of the state of its incorporation, together with the decisions of the courts of that state thereon, have upon the absolute promise of such association to mature its shares in a specified time, can involve no denial of the full faith and credit which, by Const. U. S. art. 4, § 1, must be given by the courts of each state to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of other states. Judgment, Williamson v. Eastern Building & Loan Ass'n, 38 S. E. 616, 1008, 62 S. C. 390, affirmed.—Eastern Building & Loan Ass'n v. Williamson, 23 S. Ct. 527, 189 U. S. 122, 47 L. Ed. 735.

817. — Nature and sufficiency of cause of action.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1456, 1457.

Where defendant fails to plead a discharge in bankruptcy which would have constituted a good defense, and judgment is rendered against him, he is concluded from pleading the discharge in an action on the judgment in another state.—Dimock v. Revere Copper Co., 117 U. S. 559, 6 S. Ct. 855, 29 L. Ed. 994.

Laws N. Y. 1875, c. 611, §§ 21, 37, making the officers of a corporation liable for its debts in case they make any false certificate or report, and also, in the case of limited liability companies, rendering the stockholders liable to the full amount of the stock held by them, respectively, for all debts contracted by the company before the whole amount of capital stock has been paid in, is not a penal statute, in the international sense, so that a judgment recovered thereunder cannot be enforced in another state, and the decision of a court of another state, that the judgment is not enforceable therein is a failure to give such judgment the full faith and credit required by the constitution of the United States (article 4, § 1) and by Rev. St. § 905.—Huntington v. Attrill, 146 U. S. 657, 13 S. Ct. 224, 36 L. Ed. 1123, following Wisconsin v. Pelican Ins. Co., 127 U. S. 266, 8 S. Ct. 1370, 32 L. Ed. 239.

The essential nature and real foundation of a cause of action are not changed by recovering judgment upon it; and the technical rules which regard the original claim as merged in the judgment, and the judgment as implying a promise by the defendant to pay it, do not preclude the courts of another state, when the judgment is sought to be enforced therein, from ascertaining whether the claim is really of such a nature as those courts are authorized to enforce.—Id.

Full faith and credit are not denied an Illinois judgment by Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 1780, which, as construed by the New York courts, precludes the maintenance of an action on such judgment by one foreign corporation against another, because it is not upon a cause of action which arose within the state. Judgment 62 N. E. 587, 160 N. Y. 506, 88 Am. St. Rep. 608, affirmed.—Anglo-American Provision Co. v. Davis Provision Co. No. 1, 24 S. Ct. 92, 191 U. S. 373, 48 L. Ed. 225.

The Mississippi courts cannot deny to a judgment of a Missouri court, based upon an award in arbitration proceedings in Mississippi, the full faith and credit secured by Const. U. S. art. 4, § 1, to the judgments of sister states, because the original controversy grew out of a gambling transaction in futures in Mississippi, which is made a misdemeanor by Ann. Code Miss. 1892, §§ 1120, 1121, 2117, which further provide that contracts of that character shall not be enforced by any court.—Fauntleroy v. Lum, 28 S. Ct. 641, 210 U. S. 230, 52 L. Ed. 1039.

818. — Want of jurisdiction.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1458-1481.

Under Rev. St. § 905, providing that the same faith and credit shall be given to records and judicial proceedings in every court within the United States as they have by law or usage in the courts of the state from which they are taken, a declaration, in an action in a Maryland court on a judgment rendered in Pennsylvania, which alleges that by the law of Pennsylvania a judgment rendered in that state, against two defendants, was valid and enforceable against one who had been served with process, though void against the other, who had not been so served, states a cause of action, and it was error to sustain a demurrer thereto.—Hanley v. Donoghue, 116 U. S. 1, 6 S. Ct. 242, 29 L. Ed. 535.

Although by the common law in force in New Hampshire a joint judgment against two defendants is void as to both, where only one is served with process, yet such a judgment recovered in Louisiana, and valid by the laws of that state, will, under Const. art. 4, § 1, and Act Cong. May 26, 1790, c. 11 (1 Stat. 122; Rev. St. § 905), requiring full faith and credit to be given in each state to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other state, support an action in New Hampshire against the defendant who was served.—Renaud v. Abbott, 116 U. S. 277, 6 S. Ct. 1194, 29 L. Ed. 629.

Const. U. S. art. 4, § 1, requiring that full faith and credit be given in each state to the judgments of other states does not prevent an inquiry into the jurisdiction of the court rendering the judgment.—Cole v. Cunningham, 133 U. S. 107, 10 S. Ct. 269, 33 L. Ed. 538, affirming Cunningham v. Butler, 142 Mass. 47, 6 N. E. 782, 56 Am. Rep. 657.

Where a state court decides that the validity of a clause in a contract between two railway companies was not in controversy or passed on in causes relating to the same contract in which decrees by consent were rendered in the courts of another state, and that, therefore, it has authority to pass on the validity of such clause, it does not refuse to give due effect to the final judgment of a court of another state.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Southern Pac. Ry. Co., 137 U. S. 48, 11 S. Ct. 10, 34 L. Ed. 614, affirming judgment 41 La. Ann. 970, 6 South. 888, 17 Am. St. Rep. 445.

Scire facias to revive a judgment is a substitute for an action of debt, and the judgment is quod recuperet, instead of a mere award of execution. Held, that a judgment so revived in Pennsylvania, without service or appearance, has no binding force as against a defendant, who resides in another state.—Owens v. McCloskey, 161 U. S. 642, 16 S. Ct. 693, 40 L. Ed. 837.

The jurisdiction of the court rendering a judgment or decree is open to inquiry under proper averments, where its conclusiveness is questioned in a court of another state. Judgment (1906) 73 N. E. 703, 164 Ind. 321, reversed.—Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n of Indianapolis, Indiana v. McDonough, 27 S. Ct. 236, 204 U. S. 8, 51 L. Ed. 345.

Want of jurisdiction to set aside a judgment after the term, and render, without notice, a new and different judgment, is available as a defense to an action on such judgment in a foreign jurisdiction, whatever remedy the local practice may afford a person against whom judgment is rendered in his absence and without his knowledge. Judgment (1905) 26 App. D. C. 124, affirmed.—Wetmore v. Karrick, 27 S. Ct. 434, 205 U. S. 141, 51 L. Ed. 745.

A deed to land situated in Nebraska, made by a commissioner under a decree of a court of another state in an action of divorce, in which, in determining the equities of the parties, conformably to the practice in that state, the land was set apart to the wife as her own separate property, need not be recognized in Nebraska, under the full faith and credit clause of the federal Constitution. Judgment, Fall v. Fall (Neb. 1907) 113 N. W. 175, 75 Neb. 120, 121 Am. St. Rep. 767, affirmed.—Fall v. Eastin, 30 S. Ct. 3, 215 U. S. 1, 54 L. Ed. 65, 23 L. R. A. (N. S.) 924, 17 Ann. Cas. 853.

A New Jersey insurance company reinsured the risks of a New York company, took its assets, and assumed its liabilities. After the failure of the New Jersey company, and the appointment of a receiver in New Jersey and an ancillary receiver in New York, suit was brought against the latter in New York, by the holders of policies in the old New York company, seeking only to subject to their claims $100,000 of securities deposited by that company with the superintendent of the insurance department. Judgment was rendered against the receiver and the New Jersey company for $1,000,000. Held, that the judgment was invalid because not responsive to the pleadings, and is not binding on the court in New Jersey.—Reynolds v. Stockton, 140 U. S. 254, 11 S. Ct. 773, 35 L. Ed. 464, affirming decree 43 N. J. Eq. (16 Stew.) 211, 10 Atl. 385.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1486, 1487.

A decree of the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts restraining citizens of that commonwealth from prosecuting attachment suits in New York, brought by them for the purpose of evading the laws of their domicile, is not in violation of Const. art. 4, § 1, requiring full faith and credit to be given in each state to the records and judicial proceedings of other states.—Cole v. Cunningham, 133 U. S. 107, 10 S. Ct. 269, 33 L. Ed. 538, affirming Cunningham v. Butler, 142 Mass. 471, 6 N. E. 782, 56 Am. Rep. 657.

The refusal of the Nebraska courts to permit an action to be maintained on an Ohio judgment denies the full faith and credit guaranteed by Const. U. S. art. 4, § 1, when based on the alleged fraud in acquiring jurisdiction of the defendant in the Ohio suit, in that the service of process therein was only made possible by giving defendant notice in Nebraska that plaintiff's deposition would be taken in Ohio for use in an action for the same cause then pending in Nebraska, in the hope that defendant would attend, and would delay his return to Nebraska after the deposition was taken long enough to permit service. Judgment 94

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1492-1495.

Full faith and credit is not denied a judgment of an Illinois court, taxing the entire inheritance under the will of a resident of that state, by a tax imposed under the New York inheritance tax law on the transfer, under such will, of debts due the decedent by citizens of the latter state. Decree, In re Blackstone's Estate, 64 N. E. 1118, 171 N. Y. 682, affirmed.—Blackstone v. Miller, 23 S. Ct. 277, 188 U. S. 189, 47 L. Ed. 439.

Const. U. S. art. 4, § 1, providing that full faith and credit shall be given in each state to records and judicial proceedings of other states, does not make the judgments of other states domestic judgments to all intents and purposes, but only gives a general validity, faith, and credit to them as evidence.—Cole v. Cunningham, 133 U. S. 107, 10 S. Ct. 269, 33 L. Ed. 538, affirming Cunningham v. Butler, 142 Mass. 471, 6 N. E. 782, 56 Am. Rep. 657.

Testator gave plaintiff certain property, conditioned that she release his estate from all claims for trust property. She sued the executrix in New York for the trust property, and prayed that the condition be declared void, and the devise freed therefrom. Defendant denied the trust, alleged that the funds had been paid to plaintiff, etc., and prayed that plaintiff take the devise with the condition. Both prayers were denied, and judgment was rendered that plaintiff recover the trust money. Held, that the court having jurisdiction of the parties and the subject-matter, and having in effect denied the prayers as to the condition, a court in Tennessee, in a suit where the parties, subject-matter, and issues were the same, could not disregard such judgment, and hold that plaintiff could not recover as a creditor because she had elected to claim under the will.—Carpenter v. Strange, 141 U. S. 87, 11 S. Ct. 960, 35 L. Ed. 640.

The judgment of the New York court in an equitable proceeding, declaring a deed of real estate, made by the testator, of land in Tennessee, was void and inoperative as against plaintiff's claim, is not binding on the courts of the latter state, as a decree in equity operates only in personam.—Id.

Where an objection to a discharge in bankruptcy is overruled on the contention of the bankrupt that objection thereto could not be maintained by the person making it for the reason that, subsequent to commencement of the proceedings in bankruptcy, he had sued and obtained judgment on his claim in a state court, and that such judgment was still in force, and would be unaffected by the discharge, the bankrupt is estopped to claim, in any action thereafter on the judgment in any other state, that the service by publication of the summons in the action in which the judgment had been obtained by default was invalid.—Davis v. Wakelee, 156 U. S. 680, 15 S. Ct. 555, 39 L. Ed. 578.

It will be presumed, in support of a decree rendered by a state court on a supplemental bill, when it is collaterally attacked in another state, that the judge correctly decided that service of a new subpoena upon the defendant was not necessary; no statutory direction or reported decision of the supreme court of the state to the contrary being cited.—Laing v. Rigney, 160 U. S. 531, 16 S. Ct. 386, 40 L. Ed. 525.

A decision by the courts of the domicile of a testatrix that her will worked a conversion into personalty of all her real property, wherever situated, is not conclusive upon the courts of a sister state in respect to the effect of the will upon the title to real property in that state. Judgment, Appeal of Clarke, 39 A. 155, 70 Conn. 195 and 40 A. 111, 70 Conn. 483, affirmed.—Clarke v. Clarke, 20 S. Ct. 873, 178 U. S. 186, 44 L. Ed. 1028.

Full faith and credit to a judgment of another state, consisting of an entry stating that the cause having been settled, it is discontinued by consent, without costs to either party, is not denied by admitting evidence that the discontinuance was not intended as a satisfaction of the cause of action, but was the result of a promissory agreement which was never complied with. Judgment 56 N. E. 154, 183 Ill. 583, affirmed.—Jacobs v. Marks, 21 S. Ct. 865, 182 U. S. 583, 45 L. Ed. 1241.

The full faith and credit due the probate proceedings of the New Jersey courts do not require that the courts of New York shall be bound by the adjudication of the New Jersey courts on the question of domicile. Order, In re Tilt's Estate (1905) 75 N. E. 1134, 182 N. Y. 557, reversed.—Tilt v. Kelsey, 28 S. Ct. 1, 207 U. S. 43, 52 L. Ed. 95.

The conclusiveness attending, under the New Jersey practice, the probate of a will, the settlement of the executors' account, and the final distribution of the estate pursuant to orders which the court made after having decreed that all those who had neglected to bring in their claims were forever barred from their action therefor against the executors, renders repugnant to the full faith and credit clause of the federal Constitution where no attack on the jurisdiction of the New Jersey courts was made, the subsequent assessment, under Laws N. Y. 1896, p. 869, c. 908, upon the personal estate of the decedent as a resident of New York, of a succession tax, which, under section 222 of that act, is made a lien on the property and a personal obligation of the transferees and executors.—Id.

A decree entered, after an order of revivor, against the administrator with the will annexed of a nonresident, who had died pending suit, confirming an award in arbitration proceedings had in the suit under a rule of court, does not bind the nonresident executors and legatees, who did not appear and were not validly served with process, although the stipulation for submission to arbitration provided that the arbitration should continue in case of the death of either party, and that his successors and legal representatives should be bound by the final award. Judgment (1906) 109 N. W. 686, 146 Mich. 401, affirmed.—Brown v. Fletcher's Estate, 28 S. Ct. 702, 210 U. S. 82, 52 L. Ed. 966.

There is no such relation between an executor and administrator with the will annexed, appointed in another state, as will make a decree against the latter binding upon the former or the estate in his possession.—Id.

The judgment of a federal court dismissing an action by a foreign corporation because of its failure to register within the state before entering into the contract in suit is not denied full faith and credit by a decision of a state court holding that such judgment is not a bar to a second action between the same parties upon the same contract, where the corporation has brought itself within the provisions of Act Pa. May 23, 1907 (P. L. 205), legalizing contracts made by foreign corporations, which, after making such contracts, but prior to the passage of the act, have established a known place of business in the state, and designated authorized agents for the transaction of its business, and before commencing suit, have paid all taxes that would have accrued if they had complied with the laws at the time of beginning business.—(1911) West Side Belt R. Co. v. Pittsburgh Const. Co., 31 S. Ct. 196, 219 U. S. 92, 55 L. Ed. 107, affirming judgment Pittsburgh Const. Co. v. West Side Belt R. Co. (1910) 75 A. 1029, 227 Pa. 90.

Decree in home state of life insurance company issuing certificate on assessment plan, in a suit by certificate holders, that company had right to make advances from its mortuary fund to pay death claims and replenish the fund by assessments, held denied full faith and credit, within Const. A judgment of state court against an express company in replevin by the consignee of a C. O. An adjudication of the fact of the domicile of a deceased person, made in the grant of letters of administration, has no probative force upon the question of domicile in a contest in a court outside the state, in proceedings for the administration of assets within that jurisdiction, where the adjudication was made without any contest inter partes, but in a proceeding in rem on an application under Code Ga. 1895, §§ 3393, 3394, under which the statutory notice is given by publication, and is not directed against named individuals, and does not have for its object the obtaining of specific relief against any one, but is general, and for the purpose of warning all persons of the proposal to determine the question of appointing a legal representative. Judgment 13 App. D. C. 392, affirmed.—Overby v. Gordon, 20 S. Ct. 603, 177 U. S. 214, 44 L. Ed. 741.

Holding an express company liable to the consignor of a shipment of intoxicating liquors which were seized and destroyed under a default judgment rendered in a court of another state in a proceeding in the nature of one in rem denies to such judgment the full faith and credit to which it is entitled under the Constitution and laws of the United States, where the company notified the consignor of the seizure in time, and received from him an assurance that he would contest its legality.—American Express Co. v. Mullins, 29 S. Ct. 381, 212 U. S. 311, 53 L. Ed. 525, 15 Ann. Cas. 536.

The rights of a nonresident holder of municipal bonds cannot be concluded by the judgment of a state court in a proceeding in personam to which he is not made a party, and in which there is no personal service or appearance, by the publication of a notice to the "unknown holders and owners of bonds issued by the town of Pana."—Town of Pana v. Bowler, 2 S. Ct. 704, 107 U. S. 529, 27 L. Ed. 424.

A decree of a state court for the removal of a cloud upon the title of land within the state, rendered against a citizen of another state, who has been cited by publication only, as directed by the local statutes, is no bar to an action by him in the circuit court of the United States to recover the land against the plaintiff in the former suit.—Hart v. Sansom, 110 U. S. 151, 3 S. Ct. 586, 28 L. Ed. 101.

That infant defendants, properly served in a suit before a state court, were represented therein, in accordance with the local practice, by a general guardian, instead of a guardian ad litem, is not ground for attacking the jurisdiction of the court on a question as to the effect to be given to its decree in a United States court.—Colt v. Colt, 111 U. S. 566, 4 S. Ct. 553, 28 L. Ed. 520.

The judgment of a state court having probate jurisdiction administering an estate cannot be collaterally attacked in the courts of the United States, on the ground that the administrator was appointed, and a sale by him made, without the public notice required by statute.—Simmons v. Saul, 138 U. S. 439, 11 S. Ct. 369, 34 L. Ed. 1054.

A judgment of the supreme court of New York, holding certain town bonds in aid of a railroad invalid as between the railroad and the town, can be avoided in a federal court, in a collateral proceeding by the town to cancel the bonds, only by showing a total lack of jurisdiction in the state court.—Lytle v. Town of Lansing, 147 U. S. 59, 13 S. Ct. 254, 37 L. Ed. 78, affirming judgment (C. C.) Town of Lansing v. Lytle, 38 F. 204.

The judgment of a state supreme court reversing a judgment in favor of a railway employee for personal injuries, and granting a new trial, does not preclude such employee, on subsequently taking a nonsuit, from maintaining a like suit in a federal court, or from offering therein evidence tending to show a like state of facts to that which was shown by the evidence before the state supreme court.—Gardner v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 150 U. S. 349, 14 S. Ct. 140, 37 L. Ed. 1107.

A county sold and conveyed to a railroad company large tracts of land which it had acquired at tax sales, but afterwards made a quitclaim deed of the same lands to an individual. The latter brought suit in a state court against the railroad company to quiet his title as to one of these tracts, and, pending this suit, the railroad company brought a bill against him in a federal court to quiet its title to a different tract. The cause in the state court was taken to the state supreme court on appeal from an order overruling a demurrer to the complaint, and the order was affirmed, and the cause remanded for further proceedings; the court holding that the county had no authority to donate its lands to a railroad company. In the meantime the suit in the federal court had progressed to final hearing, but defendant therein, by supplemental pleading, set up this decision of the state supreme court, alleging that the questions therein decided were res judicata. Held that, as the land in controversy in the two suits was not the same, the federal court could not be expected, at that time, to suspend its action, or to adopt the conclusion of the state court.—Roberts v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 158 U. S. 1, 15 S. Ct. 756, 39 L. Ed. 873, affirming judgment (C. C.) Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Roberts, 42 F. 734.

Where a state statute gives the owners of lands to be included in an irrigation district a right to be heard on the question whether their lands shall be included and a hearing is given before the tribunal so provided in accordance with the statute, the decision of such tribunal, in the absence of fraud and bad faith, will be conclusive upon the federal courts.—Fallbrook Irr. Dist. v. Bradley, 17 S. Ct. 56, 164 U. S. 112, 41 L. Ed. 360, reversing judgment Bradley v. Fallbrook Irrigation Dist. (C. C.) 68 F. 948.

A property owner having appealed to the supreme court of Indiana from a decree of a circuit court annexing her property to the territory of a city, and been there defeated, the validity of the annexation was res judicata, and could not thereafter be questioned by her in the federal courts. 18 C. C. A. 175, 71 F. 443, reversed.—Forsyth v. City of Hammond, 17 S. Ct. 665, 166 U. S. 506, 41 L. Ed. 1095, reversing decree 71 F. 443, 18 C. C. A. 175.

An appearance in a state court of a claimant against an insolvent's estate, whose claim is denied by the highest court of the state, precludes the claimant from thereafter proceeding against the insolvent in a federal court, in a suit begun before the proceedings were instituted in the state court, although the claimant was compelled to present the claim in the state court in order to be entitled to share in the estate there administered. Judgment, First Nat. Bank v. Mitchell, 92 F. 565, 34 C. C. A. 542, reversed.—Mitchell v. First Nat. Bank of Chicago, 21 S. Ct. 418, 180 U. S. 471, 45 L. Ed. 627.

An adjudication of a state court that a bank has a contract exemption from taxation on its capital stock is not res judicata in the federal courts as to taxes for years other than the one directly involved in the judgment, where, by the settled law of the state, an adjudication in respect of taxes for one year cannot be pleaded as an estoppel in suits involving taxes of other years. Judgment (C. C.) First Nat. Bank v. City of Covington, 129 F. 792, affirmed.—City of Covington v. First Nat. Bank of Covington, 25 S. Ct. 562, 198 U. S. 100, 49 L. Ed. 968.

A judgment of a state court sustaining the exemption claimed by a railway company under its charter from any taxation except one based on its net profits, which, under the local law of the state, is not res judicata as to taxes for other years than the one directly involved, can be accorded no greater efficacy in the federal courts. Decree, Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Wright (C. C. 1904) 132 F. 912, affirmed.—Wright v. Georgia R. & Banking Co., 30 S. Ct. 242, 216 U. S. 420, 54 L. Ed. 544.

The courts of the domicile of the husband have jurisdiction to render a decree of divorce in his favor entitled under Const. U. S. art. 4, § 1, and Rev. St. § 905 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 677), to full faith and credit in the District of Columbia, though the wife has left such jurisdiction.—Thompson v. Thompson, 33 S. Ct. 129, 228 U. S. 551, 57 L. Ed. 347, affirming decree 35 App. D. C. 14.

Acceptance by a state court of an affidavit of nonresidence on information and belief on which to base order for publication must be deemed sufficient on collateral attack in courts of the District of Columbia to confer jurisdiction over the subject-matter.—Id.

Expenses of administration of a decedent's estate allowed to executors by Massachusetts probate court in settling their accounts and turning their property over to trustees appointed under the will by the District of Columbia court in an equity cause, determining that the testator was last domiciled in that district, must be allowed to the trustees by the District of Columbia courts.—Magruder v. Drury, 35 S. Ct. 77, 235 U. S. 106, 59 L. Ed. 151, reversing decree 37 App. D. C. 519.

A judgment of a Michigan court dismissing a suit to set aside as unreasonable a rate order of a state railroad commission is res judicata in a suit in the federal courts on the ground that the rates are confiscatory, since in view of Const. Mich. art. 4, it will be assumed that legislative functions were not imposed on the courts by Pub. Acts Mich. 1909, § 26, under which they have power to permit, or set aside the order and make proper order.—Detroit & M. Ry. Co. v. Michigan Railroad Commission, 35 S. Ct. 128, 235 U. S. 402, 59 L. Ed. 288, affirming decree (D. C.) 203 F. 864.

§829. Effect of judgments of United States courts in state courts.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1510-1515.

It is incumbent on a state court to give to a judgment of a federal court such effect, and only such, as it would be entitled to, if a judgment of a court of the state, rendered in a like case, and under similar circumstances.—Pittsburgh, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Long Island Loan & Trust Co., 19 S. Ct. 238, 172 U. S. 493, 43 L. Ed. 528.

A judgment of a circuit court of the United States must be given the same effect in other states that it is entitled to in the state in which it is rendered, and that is the same as if it were a judgment of a state tribunal of equal authority. Judgment 40 A. 341, 20 R. I. 466, reversed.—Hancock Nat. Bank v. Farnum, 20 S. Ct. 506, 176 U. S. 640, 44 L. Ed. 619.

A suit in a federal court, which the successful plaintiff abandoned pending appeal, in order to bring a new action in a state court, which was unsuccessful, cannot be resuscitated, after the lapse of 16 years, for the purpose of defeating the action of the state court, in which the decree of the federal court was not set up as a bar, and which sustained a defense arising after the federal decree was rendered. Decree 90 F. 690, 33 C. O. A. 236, affirmed.—Bryar v. Campbell, 20 S. Ct. 794, 177 U. S. 649, 44 L. Ed. 926.

A final decree of a federal court enjoining the collection of certain taxes, and adjudging that an irrevocable contract of exemption from taxation which, under the federal constitution, cannot be impaired by subsequent legislation, was constituted by Laws Ky. 1885-86, pp. 140, 144-147, 201, c. 1233, which decree rests upon the effect as res judicata of a similar judgment of an inferior state court respecting taxes of other years, is, while it remains in force, conclusive in the further proceedings had in the state court, notwithstanding the reversal of its original judgment by the highest state court after the decree of the federal court was rendered, and the repudiation both by the highest state court and, in another case, by the federal Supreme Court, of the view that there was a contract exemption, and the fact that by the settled law of Kentucky an adjudication in respect of taxes for one year cannot be pleaded as an estoppel in suits involving taxes of other years. Judgment, Board of Councilmen of City of Frankfort v. Deposit Bank of Frankfort, 65 N. W. 10, 111 Ky. 950, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1285, 98 Am. St. Rep. 444, reversed.—Deposit Bank of Frankfort v. Board of Councilmen of City of Frankfort, 24 S. Ct. 154, 191 U. S. 499, 48 L. Ed. 276.

Full faith and credit are not denied an order of a court of bankruptcy refusing to set aside the sale by an assignee, for inadequacy of price and want of notice of sale, by the refusal to treat such order as res judicata as to the bankrupt's interest in the property, where the order of sale directed the assignee to sell simply "the interest of such bankrupt and of said assignee," without attempting to adjudicate the amount of that interest, if any. Judgment 66 N. E. 869, 202 Ill. 83, affirmed.—Cramer v. Wilson, 25 S. Ct. 94, 195 U. S. 408, 49 L. Ed. 256.

Judgments or decrees of a federal court, whose jurisdiction is invoked on the ground of diverse citizenship, which is alleged and admitted, cannot be collaterally assailed in a state court on the ground that there was in fact no diverse citizenship. Judgment Alabama & G. Mfg. Co. v. Riverdale Cotton Mills, 127 F. 497, 62 C. C. A. 295, reversed.—Riverdale Cotton Mills v. Alabama & G. Mfg. Co., 25 S. Ct. 629, 198 U. S. 188, 49 L. Ed. 1008.

A judgment of the Supreme Court of the United States to the effect that a policy of fire insurance could not be recovered upon as it stood nor be helped out by any doctrine of the common law is not denied full faith and credit by an adjudication of a state court that such judgment is not a bar to a suit in equity to reform the policy so that it will express consent to concurrent insurance, and to recover upon such policy as reformed. Decree, Grand View Bldg. Ass'n v. Northern Assur. Co. (Neb. 1905) 102 N. W. 246, affirmed.—Northern Assur. Co. v. Grand View Bldg. Ass'n, 27 S. Ct. 27, 203 U. S. 106, 51 L. Ed. 109.

A state court cannot, by decree, compel one of two connecting carriers maintaining live stock depots at or near Louisville, as points of delivery for stock having that as their general destination, to transfer and deliver at the point of physical intersection "any and all live stock or other freight coming over its lines in Kentucky," consigned to the other's depot or persons doing business there, and to change destination to such depot on request at any station, and particularly at its "break-up yards" in South Louisville, where a federal court previously dismissed a bill in a similar suit between the parties, dealing only with interstate shipments. Judgment (1906) 97 S. W. 778, 30 Ky. Law Rep. 18, reversed.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Central Stockyards Co., 29 S. Ct. 246, 212 U. S. 132, 53 L. Ed. 441.

Decree of a federal Circuit Court in New York dismissing a suit against one of two joint tort-feasors is not denied full faith and credit by refusal of a Massachusetts court to give it effect as a bar to a suit on the same facts against the other, not a resident of New York and not a party to the suit, where refusal was based on the ground that under the general law, the relationship between the two joint tort-feasors did not make the one not sued a party either by privity or representation.—(1912) Bigelow v. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co., 32 S. Ct. 641, 225 U. S. 111, 56 L. Ed. 1009, Ann. Cas. 1913E, 875, affirming judgment (1909) Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow, 89 N. E. 193, 203 Mass. 159.

The refusal of a state court to treat a decree of dismissal in the federal court as conclusive of a point left open did not deny the full faith to which it was entitled.—Swift v. McPherson, 34 S. Ct. 239, 232 U. S. 51, 58 L. Ed. 499, affirming judgment McPherson v. Swift, 130 N. W. 768, 27 S. D. 296.

§830. Judgments of courts of foreign countries.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1516-1525.

◀831. — In personam.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1519-1522.

When an action is brought in a court of this country by an alien against a citizen, on a foreign judgment which appears to have been rendered by a court having jurisdiction of the cause and the parties, the judgment is prima facie evidence, at least, of the truth of the matter adjudged, and should be held conclusive on the merits unless some special ground is shown for impeaching it.—Hilton v. Guyot, 159 U. S. 113, 16 S. Ct. 139, 40 L. Ed. 95.

A foreign judgment cannot be impeached because one of the plaintiffs was permitted to testify without being put under oath, and was not subjected to cross-examination, or because documents were admitted with which defendants had no connection, and which would not be admissible in the United States, if the practice followed and the method of examining witnesses were according to the law of the foreign country.—Id.

Where there has been opportunity for a fair trial before a foreign court having jurisdiction of the cause and parties, and under a system of jurisprudence likely to secure an impartial administration of justice between the citizens of that country and those of other countries, and there is no special reason why the comity of the United States should not allow it full effect, the merits of the case should not, in an action brought in this country on the judgment, be tried afresh, on the mere assertion that the judgment was erroneous in law or in fact.—Id.

Judgments rendered in France, or in any other foreign country, by the laws of which judgments rendered in the United States are reviewable upon the merits, are not entitled to full credit and conclusive effect when sued upon in the United States, but are prima facie evidence only of the justice of the plaintiff's claim.—Id.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1523-1525.

A decision of the Supreme Court of the Hawaiian Islands construing a will should not be declared invalid by federal courts on grounds of local form and local control.—John II Estate v. Brown, 35 S. Ct. 106, 235 U. S. 342, 59 L. Ed. 259, reversing judgment 201 F. 224, 119 C. C. A. 458.

A decree of the highest court of the Kingdom of Hawaii, given effect by the territorial supreme court as an adjudication of title, is not to be declared invalid by the federal courts on the ground that partition could not be made the means of trying a disputed title.—Hapai v. Brown, 36 S. Ct. 201, 239 U. S. 502, 60 L. Ed. 407.

A municipality cannot assert the dormancy, under 2 Wilson's Rev. & Ann. St. Okl. 1903, §

4635, of certain judgments against it for failure to issue execution thereon within five years, where, during most of that period, the municipality was carrying out its contract arrangement with its judgment creditors to pay such judgments in the order of their rendition, out of the judgment fund, the effect of which was to prevent the judgment creditors from taking such steps as the law permitted to collect their judgments by execution or mandamus. Judgment (1906) 87 P. 292, 17 Okl. 162, reversed.—Beadles v. Smyser, 28 S. Ct. 522, 209 U. S. 393, 52 L. Ed. 849.

◀854. Proceedings to enforce judgment.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1571-1593.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1571-1576, 1579.

On a bill in equity to enforce against a railroad company a judgment rendered on labor or material claims, the fact that the judgment was based on a bill of exchange will not prevent the court, at the instance of other lien claimants, from going behind the same, and determining whether the consideration therefor consisted in fact of labor or material furnished.—Hassall v. Wilcox, 130 U. S. 493, 9 S. Ct. 590, 32 L. Ed. 1001.

A supplemental bill to obtain a personal decree against a nonresident participating in the defense, on the ground that he became bound by the decree, is an original proceeding, not dependent or ancillary, and hence requires original process within the district; mere notice not being sufficient.—G. & C. Merriam Co. v. Saalfeld, 36 S. Ct. 477, 241 U. S. 22, 60 L. Ed. 868.

◀864. Persons who may revive judgment.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1595, 1596.

After the original owner of a judgment had been declared a bankrupt, his executrix revived the judgment by scire facias proceedings. Held that, the assignee in bankruptcy having ratified the action of the executrix, by making himself a party to the proceedings and procuring a decree compelling the transfer of the judgment to him, the judgment defendant could not complain that the executrix had no power to revive the judgment.—Brown v. Wygant, 163 U. S. 618, 16 S. Ct. 1159, 41 L. Ed. 284.

◀866. Jurisdiction, venue, and limitations.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1603-1607.

A scire facias, if it lies at all, under the Code of New Mexico, to revive a judgment, is included in the word "action" as used in section 3086, authorizing execution without an action to revive a judgment; and also as that word is used in the act of February 24, 1891, § 2, providing for actions upon judgments within seven years after their rendition, and that "all actions upon such judgments not commenced within the time limited by this act shall be forever barred." Judgment 54 P. 234, 9 N. M. 318, affirmed.—Browne, Manzanares & Co. v. Chavez, 21 S. Ct. 514, 181 U. S. 68, 45 L. Ed. 752.

XXI. ACTIONS ON JUDGMENTS.

(A) DOMESTIC JUDGMENTS.

- ¶910. Time to sue and limitations.
 See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. ¶ 1732-1737.

Where a claim against heirs is based on a judgment rendered against the ancestor, the statute of limitations begins to run from the time the judgment is actually rendered, and the fact that it is rendered nunc pro tunc does not cause the statute to begin to run from the date as of which it is rendered.—Borer v. Chapman, 119 U. S. 587, 7 S. Ct. 342, 30 L. Ed. 532, affirming decree (C. C.) Chapman v. Borer, 1 F. 274.

(B) FOREIGN JUDGMENTS.

- ¶934. Time to sue and limitations.
 See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. ¶ 1764, 1766-1768.

A state statute (Rev. St. Wis. 1858, c. 138) limiting actions on judgments of courts of the state to a certain time, and on judgments of courts of any state or of the United States to a shorter time, held not to bar an action on a judgment of a federal court within the state by the shorter period of limitation.—Metcalf v. City of Watertown, 153 U. S. 671, 14 S. Ct. 947, 38 L. Ed. 861.

The revival of a judgment by scire facias for purposes of execution, on two returns of nihil, operates merely to keep in force the local lien, and does not stop the running of limitation in another state, where the defendant resides.—Owens v. McCloskey, 161 U. S. 642, 16 S. Ct. 693, 40 L. Ed. 837.

- ¶937. Pleading.
 See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. ¶ 1772-1780.

- ¶939. — Plea or answer, and subsequent pleadings.
 See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. ¶ 1775-1778.

Defendant having admitted his submission to the jurisdiction of the foreign court, allegations in his answer that the judgment was entered "without his knowledge, and in his absence, and without any hearing," and that he was not present at the time of the rendition of the judgment, and that it was irregular and without evidence, and was rendered without any hearing, being consistent with the hypothesis that defendant made default in such action, constitute no defense.—Ritchie v. McMullen, 159 U. S. 235, 16 S. Ct. 171, 40 L. Ed. 133.

If the answer expressly admits that "certain attorneys entered or undertook to enter the appearance of this defendant in said action," without alleging that such attorneys were not authorized to enter defendant's appearance, they will be taken to have been authorized by him to do so.—Id.

An averment in the answer, describing a certain defense on the merits as the one "stated in defendant's answer in said original action in the province of Ontario," without any allegation that defendant appeared or answered in that court under compulsion, or for any purpose except to contest his personal liability, shows a voluntary submission by him to the jurisdiction of the Canadian court.—Id.

In an action on a foreign judgment, where the petition alleges that plaintiff brought in a certain court of Ontario, as a "lawfully constituted court of record, having jurisdiction over all civil matters" in that province, an action on a contract between the parties, and defendant admits that an action was commenced against him in that province for the general purpose stated, the competency of the court must be deemed admitted.—Id.

- ¶941. Evidence.
 See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. ¶ 1781-1783.

- ¶942. — Presumptions and burden of proof.
 See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. ¶ 1781.

The burden of proof is on the plaintiffs, in an action on a judgment of a sister state, where the answer contains a general denial, which, under the local procedure, is sufficient to put plaintiffs upon proof of every fact essential in establishing the cause of action, to show by what authority the court of such other state could legally enter the judgment sued upon, which was one in personam against a corporation, which, according to the complaint itself, was a corporation of another state, and was not alleged to have appeared in person, or by an attorney of its own selection, or to have been personally served with process within the state. Judgment (1905) 73 N. E. 703, 164 Ind. 321, reversed.—Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n of Indianapolis, Indiana v. McDonough, 27 S. Ct. 236, 204 U. S. 8, 51 L. Ed. 345.

- ¶944. — Weight and sufficiency.
 See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. ¶ 1783.

In an action on a foreign judgment rendered for the price of goods sold, a contention that part of the plaintiffs' claim is affected by one of the contracts between the parties having been made in violation of the United States revenue law, requiring goods to be invoiced at their actual value, cannot be sustained, in the absence of any distinct offer to prove that the invoice value of any of the goods sold by the plaintiffs to the defendants was agreed between them to be, or was in fact, lower than the actual market value of the goods.—Hilton v. Guyot, 159 U. S. 113, 16 S. Ct. 139, 40 L. Ed. 95.

Where the defendants in a judgment recovered in France, though citizens and residents of New York state, and having their principal place of business in the city of New York, had a storehouse and an agent in Paris, and were accustomed to purchase large quantities of goods there, evidence that their sole object in appearing and carrying on the litigation in the French court was to prevent property in their storehouse at Paris, belonging to them, and within the jurisdiction, but not in the custody, of the French court, from being taken in satisfaction of any judgment recovered against them, does not show that such court did not acquire jurisdiction of their persons.—Id.

XXII. PLEADING AND EVIDENCE OF JUDGMENT AS ESTOPPEL OR DEFENSE.

 Parol or extrinsic evidence to contradict or vary in general, see Evidence, ¶386.

- ¶948. Pleading in general.
 See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. ¶ 1787-1793; 30 Cent. Dig. Plead. ¶ 445½, 497.

In a suit by the United States to quiet title to lands formerly granted to a railway company, and now alleged to have been forfeited to the government, it was distinctly alleged in the bill, and as distinctly denied by defendant, that certain maps filed by the railroad company sufficiently designated the line of the road. Subsequently it was decided in another suit between the same parties, and involving other lands appertaining to the same line of road, that these maps were sufficient as maps of definite location. Thereupon defendant amended its pleadings by inserting averments that the location by the railroad company "never was or became an actual or definite location," but was only "an attempted or pretended designation of a general route," etc., and was "a colorable and fraudulent location or designation of an unauthorized and impracticable line." Held, that these amendments were unnecessary, since the defendant, under its original answer (if not estopped by the former judgment), could have introduced any evidence tending to show want of any valid definite location, and that the maps in question were accepted only as indicating the general route; hence the making of these amendments did not render it necessary, under Equity Rule 45, for the government to amend its bill by specially pleading the former adjudication as an estoppel, in order to avail itself thereof.—Southern Pac. R. Co. v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 18, 168 U. S. 1, 42 L. Ed. 355, affirming decree United States v. Southern Pac. R. Co. (C. C.) 46 F. 683.

A judgment rendered by a state court against plaintiff in an action of equitable ejectment, sustaining a defense based on title obtained through sales under mortgages, was not without jurisdiction because the plaintiff had obtained a prior decree in a federal court against one of the ejectment defendants before the defense sustained by the state court had arisen, when this decree was not set up in the state court as a bar. Decree 90 F. 690, 33 C. C. A. 236, affirmed.—Bryar v. Campbell, 20 S. Ct. 794, 177 U. S. 649, 44 L. Ed. 926.

◀949. Allegations, admissions, and denials.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1794-1803.

To an action brought in Nevada upon the official bond of a superintendent of Indian affairs for about $6,000 alleged to have been received prior to November 18, 1869, and remaining unaccounted for, and for interest from that date, defendant pleaded a judgment in his favor in a former action, brought in 1871, upon the same bond, to recover about $15,000. Held, that the answer showed a good defense when "liberally construed," as pleadings are required to be, by Gen. St. Nev. 1885, § 3092, although it did not expressly allege that the amount sought to be recovered in the action was a part of the amount sought to be recovered in the prior action.—United States v. Parker, 120 U. S. 89, 7 S. Ct. 454, 30 L. Ed. 601.

◀951. Evidence as to judgment in general.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1808-1812.

The conclusiveness of a decree in regard to the title to land, based on a disclaimer filed in the case, cannot be affected by an unsworn statement, made by one of the parties thereto in a bill subsequently filed by him, though not signed by him, that the attorney making the disclaimer acted without authority.—Dunham v. Jones, 159 U. S. 584, 16 S. Ct. 108, 40 L. Ed. 267.

◀952. Judgment as evidence though not pleaded.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1806.

Where a second suit between the same parties involves a different cause of action, which depends, however, upon the existence or nonexistence of a fact in issue, directly adjudicated in the first suit, the judgment in that suit is not an absolute bar, but is only evidence upon the issue as to the existence of that fact, and hence may be introduced without being specially pleaded as an estoppel.—Southern Pac. R. Co. v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 18, 168 U. S. 1, 42 L. Ed. 355, affirming decree United States v. Southern Pac. R. Co. (C. C.) 46 F. 683.

If a former judgment between the same parties, which has not been specially pleaded, is admissible in evidence at all, it is as conclusive of the matters put in issue, and actually determined by it, as if it were specially pleaded as an estoppel.—Id.

An act of congress submitted to the court of claims certain claims for the additional cost incurred in the construction of two vessels caused by changes required by the government which delayed the completion of the work beyond the contract term. Held, that a judgment of the court of claims, from which no appeal was taken, in a suit to recover the additional compensation for the construction of one vessel, could not be taken as res judicata as to a question of the construction of the act, in a subsequent suit to recover the additional compensation for the construction of the other vessel, where such judgment was neither pleaded nor proved, but merely introduced in the record on appeal by stipulation of counsel.—United States v. Bliss, 19 S. Ct. 216, 172 U. S. 321, 43 L. Ed. 463.

◀956. Evidence as to identity of issues or matters decided.

See 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1822-1826.

A decree absolute on its face, and purporting to adjudicate the merits of the controversy, bars further litigation of the same subject between the same parties, and cannot be shown by evidence dehors the record to have been intended as a dismissal without prejudice.—Lyon v. Perlin & Gaff Mfg. Co., 125 U. S. 698, 8 S. Ct. 1024, 31 L. Ed. 839.

In determining what was in fact decided, findings of fact filed by the court are not to be ignored, even though the state statutes do not provide for such findings. On the contrary, the findings, if not conclusive as against all testimony, are at least to be regarded as very persuasive evidence of what the court did decide.—Last Chance Min. Co. v. Tyler Min. Co., 157 U. S. 683, 15 S. Ct. 733, 39 L. Ed. 859, reversing judgment 61 F. 557, 9 C. C. A. 613.

When it appears that the petition in the former suit was dismissed upon an opinion filed and certain findings of fact, it will be presumed, in the absence of the record in such case, that the dismissal was upon the merits, and that it covered every question put in issue by the pleadings, including the validity of the patent sued on.—Hubbell v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 828, 171 U. S. 203, 43 L. Ed. 136.

The effect as res judicata of a decree in a case in which the validity of certain releases was put in issue by the pleadings, and in which no judgment could properly have been rendered without a determination of that question, cannot be limited by the oral testimony of the trial judge, some six years after his decision, to the effect that, in deciding the case, he did not consider the validity of the releases. Decree (C. C.) The Fayerweather Will Cases, 118 F. 943, affirmed.—Fayerweather v. Ritch, 25 S. Ct. 58, 195 U. S. 276, 49 L. Ed. 193.

In the absence of the record of an adverse suit, there is no presumption that subterranean rights under lode mining locations were therein considered and determined. Judgment, United States Min. Co. v. Lawson (1904) 134 F. 769, 67 C. C. A. 587, affirmed.—Lawson v. United States Min. Co., 23 S. Ct. 15, 207 U. S. 1, 52 L. Ed. 65.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. § 24.

On the expiration of a mining company's charter a party of the stockholders desired to organize a new company, while another party desired a sale of the mine and a division of the proceeds. The controversy was carried to the courts, and after seven years' litigation an order of sale was affirmed by the United States supreme court. The date of sale was fixed at about nine months thereafter, but was twice postponed, and the sale was finally made more than a year after the affirmance, and after ample advertisement. Held, that there could be no pretense of undue haste.—Pewabic Min. Co. v. Mason, 145 U. S. 349, 12 S. Ct. 887, 36 L. Ed. 732.

On the expiration of a mining company's charter a party of the stockholders desired to organize a new company, while another party desired a sale of the mine and a division of the proceeds. The purpose of the complaining party was to convey the mine to their proposed new corporation for $50,000, and the decrees ordering the sale contained the provision that no sale should be made for less than $50,000 in excess of the company's debts at the time of the sale, and also directed that the cause should be referred to a master to report upon the amount of assets and debts before making the sale. Held, that the purpose of the reference was merely to ascertain the debts in order to fix the upset price, and, it appearing that all the debts due up to the expiration of the charter had been paid, it was not necessary to delay the report and sale until various claims arising afterwards, and which were in course of litigation, were determined. The sale having been made for an amount far in excess of $50,000 above all pending claims, no complaint could be made on this ground.—Id.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. §§ 25-30.

On the expiration of a mining company's charter, a party of the stockholders desired to organize a new company, while another party desired a sale of the mine and a division of the proceeds. The controversy was carried to the courts, and after seven years' litigation an order of sale was affirmed by the United States supreme court. The date of sale was fixed at about nine months thereafter, but was twice postponed, and the sale was finally made more than a year after the affirmance, and after ample advertisement. Held, that there could be no pretense of lack of personal and general notice.—Pewabic Min. Co. v. Mason, 145 U. S. 349, 12 S. Ct. 887, 36 L. Ed. 732.

§17. Persons who may purchase.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. § 40.

A sale by a special master under the direction of a court of chancery of corporate property in the course of litigation between stockholders is not a sale by either of the parties to the litigation, and they stand in no such fiduciary relation to the property as will prevent them from becoming purchasers either for themselves or others.—Pewabic Min. Co. v. Mason, 145 U. S. 349, 12 S. Ct. 887, 36 L. Ed. 732.

On the expiration of a mining company's charter a party of the stockholders desired to organize a new company, while another party desired a sale of the mine and a division of the proceeds. The controversy was carried to the courts, and a sale was adjudged. Held, that the facts that the parties who advocated the sale were acting in the interest of a company owning an adjacent mine, and that they finally purchased the property and conveyed to it, constituted no objection to the sale, especially when their adversaries had full knowledge of their purposes.—Id.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. §§ 41-43, 45, 46.

Where a decree required that a judicial sale should be made for cash on the day of the sale, payment in cash on that day is a condition precedent to the right of the purchaser to demand a confirmation.—Camden v. Mayhew, 129 U. S. 73, 9 S. Ct. 246, 32 L. Ed. 608, affirming (C. C.) Mayhew v. West Virginia Oil & Oil Land Co., 24 F. 205.

§20. — Acceptance or rejection.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. § 44.

The acceptance or rejection of a bid at a sale under a chancery decree is within the sound discretion of the court, to be exercised with due regard to the special circumstances of the case.—Camden v. Mayhew, 129 U. S. 73, 9 S. Ct. 246, 32 L. Ed. 608, affirming (C. C.) Mayhew v. West Virginia Oil & Oil Land Co., 24 F. 205.

§21. Payment of bid.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. §§ 47, 48.

§23. — Purchase by creditor.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. § 43.

Where a judicial sale is directed to be for cash, and the property is purchased by a trustee of part of the creditors, the court is not bound to depart from the terms of the sale and apply their claims in payment of the purchase money.—Camden v. Mayhew, 129 U. S. 73, 9 S. Ct. 246, 32 L. Ed. 608, affirming (C. C.) Mayhew v. West Virginia Oil & Oil Land Co., 24 F. 205.

§24. Failure to comply with bid.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. §§ 49-56, 97-99.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. §§ 50, 51, 53.

Where the bidder at a judicial sale refuses to pay the amount of his bid, the court may, without confirming the sale by a formal rule, order a resale at his risk both in respect to the expenses of the resale and any deficiency resulting therefrom.—Camden v. Mayhew, 129 U. S. 73, 9 S. Ct. 246, 32 L. Ed. 608, affirming (C. C.) Mayhew v. West Virginia Oil & Oil Land Co., 24 F. 205.

§27. — Liabilities of bidders.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. §§ 52, 54, 97-99.

At a sale under order of court for the benefit of creditors, the sale to be for "cash in hand," C's bid was accepted, but, instead of paying cash, he offered a contract between himself and certain of the creditors, whereby he was to buy the land, apply their claims in payment of the price, and hold the land as trustee. The sale was reported, and the court offered to confirm it, provided C. would pay the amount of his bid in cash. This he refused to do, relying upon his contract with the creditors, whereupon the court ordered a resale, and subsequently entered a decree against C. for the deficiency between his bid and the proceeds of the resale, and for the extra costs. Held, that a formal confirmation of the sale to C. was not necessary in order to fix his liability for the deficiency.—Camden v. Mayhew, 129 U. S. 73, 9 S. Ct. 246, 32 L. Ed. 608, affirming Mayhew v. West Virginia Oil & Oil Land Co. (C. C.) 24 F. 205.

It is not necessary that a judicial sale should have been confirmed in order to render a purchaser liable for a deficiency arising on a resale because of his failure to comply with his bid.—Id.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. § 55.

Where a purchaser at judicial sale refuses without cause to make his bid good, he may be compelled to do so by an attachment issuing from the court under whose decree the sale was had.—Camden v. Mayhew, 129 U. S. 73, 9 S. Ct. 246, 32 L. Ed. 608, affirming (C. C.)

Mayhew v. West Virginia Oil & Oil Land Co.
24 F. 205.

31. Confirmation.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. §§ 59-67.

On the filing of a master's report of a sale it is proper to enter an order that, unless cause to the contrary is shown within eight days, the sale will be confirmed.—Pewabic Min. Co. v. Mason, 145 U. S. 349, 12 S. Ct. 887, 36 L. Ed. 732.

Where, on the filing of a master's report of a sale, an order was entered on February 7th that, unless cause to the contrary was shown within eight days, the sale would be confirmed, and exceptions were filed on February 13th, and heard after due notice on March 2d, at which time the sale was confirmed, no objection could be made on the ground of undue haste.—Id.

General equity rule 83, allowing one month for filing exceptions to a master's report, applies only to matters heard and determined by the master, and not to a report of a sale under direction of the court.—Id.

32. Persons who may question validity.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. § 69.

A railway company and its receiver did not, by building outside its right of way through the Indian Territory, lose the right to assert that a sheriff's sale to enforce a forfeiture to the Choctaw Nation, so incurred, was invalid because made on credit, in clear violation of the Choctaw law of October 30, 1888, under which the sheriff assumed to sell. Decree (1905) 138 F. 394, 70 C. C. A. 534, affirmed.—Walker v. McLoud, 27 S. Ct. 293, 204 U. S. 302, 51 L. Ed. 495.

33. Ratification of invalid sale.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. § 70.

Ratification by the general council of the Choctaw Nation of a sheriff's sale to enforce a forfeiture incurred by a railway company by reason of its erection of buildings outside its right of way through the Indian Territory, which sale, because made on credit, was a clear violation of the law under which the sheriff assumed to sell, was not accomplished by subsequent legislation which appropriates money to defend the Nation in all suits "in any manner relative to the full and complete execution of the laws of the Choctaw Nation by the sheriffs of each and every county in the confiscation of the property of noncitizens who are now occupying lands or buildings, or who may hereafter occupy, not in conformity to the laws of the Choctaw Nation." Decree (1905) 138 F. 394, 70 C. C. A. 534, affirmed.—Walker v. McLoud, 27 S. Ct. 293, 204 U. S. 302, 51 L. Ed. 495.

34. Opening or vacating.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. §§ 72-82, 84.

35. — Grounds in general.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. §§ 72, 73.

Mere informalities or irregularities in a judicial sale are not sufficient ground for setting it aside.—Nalle v. Young, 160 U. S. 624, 16 S. Ct. 420, 40 L. Ed. 560.

39. — Inadequacy of price.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. § 77.

Where a sale has been made after prolonged litigation it will not be set aside on the ground that it was ordered at a time of financial depression in the particular industry, when it appears that it was once postponed on this ground at the instance of the complaining party, and there are controverting affidavits which render the fact of depression doubtful.—Pewabic Min. Co. v. Mason, 145 U. S. 349, 12 S. Ct. 887, 36 L. Ed. 732.

40. — Inadequacy of price in connection with other objections.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. § 78.

While mere inadequacy of price is not sufficient of itself to set aside a judicial sale, yet where the inadequacy is gross, slight additional circumstances only are required to authorize setting it aside; and where defendant, by casualty or misfortune, has been prevented from appearing in the action, and preventing a sacrifice of the property, it should be set aside.—Schroeder v. Young, 161 U. S. 334, 16 S. Ct. 512, 40 L. Ed. 721.

41. — Advance on bid.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. § 79.

A master's sale of a mine having been set for Saturday, January 24th, the master received, on the night of the 23d, a telegram from a stranger in a distant city, requesting a postponement, at his expense, saying that he was a large stockholder; that he had but just received notice of the sale, and wished to bid, but was a Jew, and could do no business on Saturday. The mine was sold for $710,000, and two days later the stranger telegraphed offering $720,000. The sale was confirmed on March 2d, and on the following day the stranger filed an intervening petition to set it aside, setting up these facts, offering to pay the expenses of a resale, and to bid $900,000. Held, that the master properly ignored the telegrams; that it was the stranger's duty to intervene before confirmation; and that, as the selling price was not grossly inadequate, the sale should not be set aside.—Pewabic Min. Co. v. Mason, 145 U. S. 349, 12 S. Ct. 887, 36 L. Ed. 732.

49. Title and rights of purchasers.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. §§ 90-110.

50. — In general.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. §§ 90-94, 96.

Where one who buys land, which is subject to a mortgage, at a probate sale under an order directing it to be sold "clear and discharged of all liens," pays only the amount of his bid in excess of the mortgage, and accepts a deed reciting that fact, he is estopped from denying that he took title subject to the mortgage, on the ground that it is provided by statute (Act Pa. April 18, 1853; 2 Brightly's Purd. Dig. [10th Ed.] p. 1242, § 5) that at "public sale the premises sold shall be discharged from all liens."—Gibson v. Lyon, 115 U. S. 439, 6 S. Ct. 129, 29 L. Ed. 440.

53. — Defects or irregularities in judgment, decree, order, or sale.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jud. S. §§ 104-107.

Technical objections to the regularity of a judicial sale had during the Spanish control of Florida will not be permitted to defeat the operation of the sale and the conveyance thereunder to pass title—especially where a sale of the lands has been made under the title undertaken to be passed by the proceedings, and this sale has subsequently been held sufficient to convey the title by the commissioners appointed under Act Cong. May 8, 1822, c. 129, § Stat. 709, for ascertaining titles to lands within the territory of Florida. Judgment, 121 F. 1020, 56 C. C. A. 682, affirmed.—McGuire v. Blount, 26 S. Ct. 1, 199 U. S. 142, 50 L. Ed. 125.

Purchasers at a judicial sale intended to dispose of the entire beneficial interest of the judgment debtor in certain land leased for 99 years with a renewal forever on payment of the price were owners in equity of his reversionary interest, where the deeds fail to convey what was intended because they denominated the interest sold as ground rents.—Camp v. Boyd, 33 S. Ct. 785, 229 U. S. 530, 57 L. Ed. 1317, affirming decree 35 App. D. C. 159.

A jury within the meaning of the federal Constitution is a jury constituted as it was at common law, of 12 persons.—Thompson v. State of Utah, 18 S. Ct. 620, 170 U. S. 343, 42 L. Ed. 1061, reversing judgment State v. Thompson, 50 P. 409, 15 Utah, 488.

6. Special or struck juries.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 9-11.

In a civil action in the court for the Indian Territory, the court is bound, on request of either party, to have drawn a list of 18 competent jurors, from which the jury is to be selected by each party striking three names, in accordance with Mansf. Dig. Ark. §§ 4013-4015, which are expressly put in force in the territory by act of congress (26 Stat. 81); and a refusal to grant such a request on the ground that, according to the rule established by the court since its organization, exceptions should be taken to the 12 men called into the box, is reversible error.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shane, 157 U. S. 348, 15 S. Ct. 641, 39 L. Ed. 727.

Act Cong. March 1, 1823, c. 24 (3 Stat. 743), entitled "An act to extend the jurisdiction of justices of the peace in the recovery of debts in the District of Columbia," provided that actions might be tried by a jury of 12 men before a justice of the peace, where over $20 was involved. Section 16 directs the manner of impaneling and swearing the jury, and provides that, after all the evidence has been given, the justice shall then administer the oath to the officer in charge of the jury, and, when a verdict has been agreed on, it shall be delivered to the judge, who is then required to forthwith give judgment thereon. Held, that the jury are to decide both the law and the facts, and the justice is bound to render judgment on the verdict, and has no authority to arrest the judgment or to order a new trial, so that such a jury is not a common-law jury, and a trial by such a jury is not a trial by a jury, within the seventh amendment of the federal constitution, providing that no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of the United States than according to the rules of the common law.—Capital Traction Co. v. Hof, 19 S. Ct. 580, 174 U. S. 1, 43 L. Ed. 873.

The constitutional right to a "trial by jury" means a trial by a jury of 12 men, in the presence of, and under the superintendence of, a judge empowered to instruct them on the law and to advise them on the facts, and to set aside their verdict, in a civil case, if, in his opinion, it is against the law and the evidence.—Id.

Const. art. 3, § 2, providing that "the trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury, and such trial shall be held in the state where the said crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any state the trial shall be at such place or places as the congress may by law have directed;" and the sixth amendment, declaring that "in all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the state and district," etc.—extend the guaranty of jury trial to the District of Columbia equally with the states.—Callan v. Wilson, 127 U. S. 540, 8 S. Ct. 1301, 32 L. Ed. 223.

The constitution of the United States, securing to citizens the right of trial by jury, and requiring an indictment by a grand jury, does not give a citizen or a temporary subject the right to claim the guaranty when tried before a consul or tribunal, in accordance with a treaty for offenses committed in a foreign country.—Ross v. McIntyre, 140 U. S. 453, 11 S. Ct. 897, 35 L. Ed. 531, affirming order (C. C.) in re Ross, 44 F. 185.

The general provisions for a jury trial as to issues of fact in the federal circuit courts, contained in Rev. St. U. S. § 643 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 525], do not, in view of Act April 12, 1900, c. 191, § 8, 31 Stat. 77, containing local laws in force in Porto Rico, prevent the district court for the District of Porto Rico, when exercising, under section 34 of that act, the jurisdiction of a circuit court, from enforcing the express provisions of Code Civ. Proc. Porto Rico, arts. 1409-1415, for the recovery and assessment of damages for wrongful attachment.—Fernandez y Perez v. Perez y Fernandez, 28 S. Ct. 561, 202 U. S. 80, 50 L. Ed. 942.

State courts are not bound by Const. Amend. 7, that no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of the United States than according to the rules of the common law.—St. Louis & Kansas City Land Co. v. Kansas City, 36 S. Ct. 647, 241 U. S. 419, 60 L. Ed. 1072, affirming judgment Kansas City v. St. Louis & Kansas City Land Co., 169 S. W. 62, 260 Mo. 395.

◀12. Nature of cause of action or issue in general.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 27-34, 32, 36, 101, 103.

In an action against a collector to recover duties paid under protest, the importer has no constitutional right to trial by jury as to the value of the goods, since the government has authority to prescribe the terms upon which it may be sued, through its collector, to recover duties paid.—Auffmordt v. Hedden, 137 U. S. 310, 11 S. Ct. 103, 34 L. Ed. 674, affirming judgment (C. C.) 30 F. 360.

Code Iowa 1873, § 1543, provides that any building, etc., where intoxicating liquors are manufactured, sold, or given away, contrary to law, shall be a nuisance, and may, along with the vessels and contents, fixtures, etc., be abated by "an action in equity." The person proceeded against is also made liable to fine and imprisonment. Held, in a proceeding under this statute, where the defendant removed the case to the federal court on the grounds that, inasmuch as the supreme court of the state had declared the law to be valid, he was virtually deprived of his right to a trial by jury, and that he had at a large expense established the place sought to be declared a nuisance prior to the passage of the act, and that it was only fit for a saloon and brewery, that no federal question was involved, and that the case should be remanded to the state court.—Schmidt v. Cobb, 119 U. S. 286, 7 S. Ct. 1373, 30 L. Ed. 321.

A civil suit, instituted, under Act Feb. 25, 1885 (23 St. p. 321), in the name of the United States, against persons inclosing public lands, for the destruction of such inclosure, is a summary proceeding in the nature of a suit in equity for abatement, and defendant is not entitled to a jury trial.—Cameron v. United States, 148 U. S. 301, 13 S. Ct. 595, 37 L. Ed. 459, reversing judgment (Ariz.) United States v. Cameron, 21 P. 177.

Act March 3, 1881, providing that if, in any action brought pursuant to Rev. St. § 2326, to settle claims to mining locations, title shall not be established by either party, the jury shall so find, and judgment shall be entered accordingly, does not absolutely require a jury trial.—Perego v. Dodge, 163 U. S. 160, 16 S. Ct. 971, 41 L. Ed. 113.

A proceeding under Act June 29, 1906, § 15, for cancellation of a naturalization certificate illegally procured is a suit in equity and not at common law, within Const. Amend. 7, preserving the right to trial by jury.—Luria v. United States, 34 S. Ct. 10, 231 U. S. 9, 58 L. Ed. 101, affirming decree (D. C.) United States v. Luria, 184 F. 643.

19. Civil proceedings other than actions.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 104-133; 1 Cent. Dig. Action, § 119; 5 Cent. Dig. Atty. & C. § 73.

A proceeding to disbar an attorney is one within the proper jurisdiction of the court of which he is an attorney, and does not violate the constitutional provisions which require an indictment and trial by jury in criminal cases, as it is not a criminal proceeding to punish the attorney, but intended to protect the court from the ministrations of persons unfit to practice as attorneys.—Ex parte Wall, 107 U. S. 265, 2 S. Ct. 569, 27 L. Ed. 552.

Section 12 of the interstate commerce act, in authorizing Circuit Courts to make orders enforcing subpoenas issued by the interstate commerce commission, is not unconstitutional, as failing to accord a trial by jury.—Interstate Commerce Commission v. Brimson, 154 U. S. 447, 14 S. Ct. 1125, 38 L. Ed. 1047; Id., 15 S. Ct. 19, 155 U. S. 3, 39 L. Ed. 49, reversing judgment (C. C.) In re Interstate Commerce Commission, 53 F. 476.

Laws Okl. 1890, c. 14, authorizing certain commissioners created thereby to hear and determine claims which arose against certain municipalities therein before they were legally created, is not violative of Const. U. S. 7th Amend., declaring that in suits at common law the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, for failure to provide for such trial, if demanded, since the proceeding authorized was not in the nature of a suit at law.—Guthrie Nat. Bank v. City of Guthrie, 19 S. Ct. 513, 173 U. S. 528, 43 L. Ed. 796.

The ascertainment of the damages in the special proceeding provided by Code Civ. Proc. Porto Rico, arts. 1409-1415, where an attachment has wrongfully been issued, does not encroach upon the right to a jury trial, secured by the federal Constitution—conceding that such guaranty is applicable and in force in Porto Rico.—Fernandez y Perez v. Perez y Fernandez, 26 S. Ct. 561, 202 U. S. 80, 50 L. Ed. 942.

The right to trial by jury in suits at common law, secured by Const. U. S. Amend. 7, is not infringed by the proceeding authorized by Bankr. Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 60d, 30 Stat. 562 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3446), to re-examine and reduce payments and transfers of property to counsel, made by a bankrupt, in contemplation of bankruptcy proceedings, for services to be rendered.—In re Wood, 28 S. 21. — Offenses in general.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 184-142.

The fact that the offense is committed on an American vessel does not give the offender, when tried before a consular tribunal, the right to invoke the constitutional guaranty of trial by jury, on the ground that the deck of the vessel is territory of the United States.—Ross v. McIntyre, 140 U. S. 453, 11 S. Ct. 897, 35 L. Ed. 581, affirming order (C. C.) In re Ross, 44 F. 185.

In the absence of congressional legislation to that end, there is no right to demand trial by jury in criminal cases in the Philippine Islands.—Dowdell v. United States, 31 S. Ct. 590, 221 U. S. 323, 55 L. Ed. 753.

Proceedings under Act Feb. 20, 1907, § 3, for deportation of aliens for practicing prostitution within three years after entry, are not criminal within guaranty of Const. U. S. Amend. 6, providing for trial by jury.—Zako- naite v. Wolf, 33 S. Ct. 31, 226 U. S. 272, 57 L. Ed. 218.

23. — Violations of municipal ordinances.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 152, 153.

The breach of ordinance No. 478 of the city of New Orleans, prohibiting the keeping of a private market within six blocks of a public market, is an offense against municipal police regulations, which may be punished by summary proceedings before a magistrate without trial by jury.—Natal v. State of Louisiana, 139 U. S. 621, 11 S. Ct. 636, 35 L. Ed. 288, affirming judgment State v. Natal, 39 La. Ann. 439, 1 South. 923.

To secure a trial by jury in a civil case a jury must be demanded.—Perego v. Dodge, 163 U. S. 160, 16 S. Ct. 971, 41 L. Ed. 113.

Where, after the passage of the act of March 3, 1887 (24 St. p. 554), authorizing suits against receivers without leave of the courts appointing them, a person seeks damages for personal injuries by intervening in the suit wherein the receiver was appointed, he cannot afterwards complain that the matter was determined by a master instead of a jury.—Furrer v. Ferris, 145 U. S. 132, 12 S. Ct. 821, 36 L. Ed. 649.

29. — In criminal cases.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 197-203.

Persons prosecuted by information in a federal District Court, under Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, § 11, 24 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 2228), imposing a penalty of $50 for the knowing purchase or receipt for sale of oleomargarine which has not been branded or stamped according to law, may waive the jury to which they are entitled by Const. U. S. Amend. 6, since the mandate of article 3, § 2, cl. 3, that "the trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury," does not include such petty offenses, and there is no congressional legislation or rule of public policy requiring a jury in such cases.—Schick v. United States, 24 S. Ct. 826, 195 U. S. 65, 49 L. Ed. 99, 1 Ann. Cas. 585.

30. Denial or infringement of right.

31. — In general.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 204-219.

The exaction, as a condition of refusing a new trial, that the prevailing party shall remit a portion of the amount of the verdict, does not impair the constitutional right of trial by jury.—Arkansas Val. Land & Cattle Co. v. Mann, 130 U. S. 69, 9 S. Ct. 458, 32 L. Ed. 854.

Code Miss. 1880, § 1845, providing that, in an action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance and subject the property to a simple contract debt, the creditor shall have a lien on the property from the filing of his bill, does not deprive the defendant of his right of trial by jury to determine the amount of the demand against him.—Scott v. Neely, 140 U. S. 106, 11 S. Ct. 712, 35 L. Ed. 358.

Act Cong. Feb. 19, 1895, c. 100, §§ 1-3 (28 Stat. 668), extending the jurisdiction of the justices of the peace in the District of Columbia from $100 to $300, and providing that either party, on appealing from the judgment of a justice to the supreme court of the District of Columbia, in which a trial by a common-law jury may be had for the first time, shall enter into an undertaking to pay and satisfy whatever judgment may be rendered in the latter court, does not unreasonably obstruct the right of trial by jury, so as to be unconstitutional.—Capital Traction Co. v. Hof, 19 S. Ct. 580, 174 U. S. 1, 43 L. Ed. 873.

The constitutional right of trial by jury is not denied by rule 73 of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, authorizing judgment for plaintiff for want of a sufficient affidavit of defense in actions ex contractu in which plaintiff has filed a supporting affidavit.—Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. United States, 23 S. Ct. 120, 187 U. S. 315, 47 L. Ed. 194, affirming judgment 20 App. D. C. 376.

Rebuttable presumption established by Act Feb. 4, 1887, § 16, as amended by Act June 29, 1906, § 5, that findings and order of the Interstate Commerce Commission shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated, does not infringe on the right of trial by jury.—Meeker v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 35 S. Ct. 328, 236 U. S. 412, 59 L. Ed. 644, reversing judgment Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Meeker, 211 F. 785, 128 C. C. A. 311.

—32. — Number of jurors.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 221-225.

The statute of the territory of Utah (Comp. Laws, § 3371, as amended by Laws Utah 1892, p. 46) authorizing a verdict in all civil cases on the concurrence of nine members of the jury, was invalid, because it impaired the common-law right of trial by jury secured to litigants by the act of congress extending the constitution and laws of the United States over that territory (9 Stat. 458, § 17), and by the act providing that in territorial courts no party shall be deprived of the right of trial by jury in cases cognizable at common law (18 Stat. 27, c. 80).—American Pub. Co. v. Fisher, 17 S. Ct. 618, 166 U. S. 464, 41 L. Ed. 1079.

The Utah territorial act of March, 1892 (Laws 1892, p. 46), providing for verdicts by less than the whole number of jurors, is invalid under the seventh amendment to the federal constitution, preserving the right of trial by jury. Tucker v. City of Salt Lake City, 37 P. 261, 10 Utah, 173, reversed.—Springville City v. Thomas, 17 S. Ct. 717, 166 U. S. 707, 41 L. Ed. 1172.

Requirement of Const. Amend. 7, that trials by jury be by unanimous verdict, does not control state courts when enforcing rights under Employers' Liability Act, and such courts must give effect to a local practice permitting less than unanimous verdict.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Stewart, 36 S. Ct. 586, 241 U. S. 261, 60 L. Ed. 989, affirming judgment Same v. Stewart's Adm'x, 174 S. W. 744, 163 Ky. 823; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Bombolis, 36 S. Ed. 1124, reversing judgment Same v. Dwyer's Adm'x, 172 S. W. 918, 162 Ky. 427.

A party to an action in a state court under the Employers' Liability Act, as amended by Act April 5, 1910, is not entitled to a jury of twelve men, because of Const. Amend. 7, where local practice permits jury of less.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Carnahan, 36 S. Ct. 594, 241 U. S. 241, 60 L. Ed. 979, affirming judgment (Va.) 86 S. E. 863.

—33. — Constitution and selection of jury.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 226-232.

Rev. St. Ill. c. 78, § 14, providing that a juror shall not be disqualified because he has formed an opinion based upon rumor, or upon newspaper statements about the truth of which he has expressed no opinion, if on oath he states that he believes he can fairly and impartially render a verdict in accordance with the law and the evidence, does not violate either Const. U. S. Amend. 6, or Const. Ill. art. 2, § 9, which guaranty to the accused party in every criminal prosecution "a speedy public trial by an impartial jury."—Ex parte Spies, 123 U. S. 131, 8 S. Ct. 21, 22, 31 L. Ed. 80.

A rule that a juror shall be challenged or accepted and sworn as soon as his examination is completed is not objectionable, as embarrassing the exercise of the right of peremptory challenge.—St. Clair v. United States, 154 U. S. 134, 14 S. Ct. 1002, 38 L. Ed. 936.

The provision of Revision N. J. p. 532, that no exception to a juror in a criminal case on account of his citizenship or age or other disqualification shall be allowed after he has been sworn or affirmed, is not in violation of the provisions of the state constitution that the right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate.—Kohl v. Lehlback, 160 U. S. 293, 16 S. Ct. 304, 40 L. Ed. 432.

—34. — Restriction or invasion of functions of jury.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 233-235.

Without a waiver of the right of trial by jury in a United States circuit court, by consent of parties, the court errs if it substitutes itself for the jury, and, passing upon the effect of the evidence, finds the facts involved in the issue and renders judgment thereon.—Baylis v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 113 U. S. 316, 5 S. Ct. 494, 28 L. Ed. 989, following Randall v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 109 U. S. 478, 3 S. Ct. 322, 27 L. Ed. 1008.

A territorial statute providing that in trials at common law the court may require the jury, in addition to the general verdict, to answer special interrogatories, and, when there is a conflict between the two, may render such judgment as the answers require (Laws N. M. 1880, c. 45), is not in conflict with the seventh amendment to the federal constitution, or the act of April 7, 1874, preserving the right of trial by jury in the territories.—Walker v. New Mexico & S. P. R. Co., 17 S. Ct. 421, 165 U. S. 593, 41 L. Ed. 837.

The court does not usurp the province of the jury in rendering judgment upon the pleadings, which present the questions whether, upon the facts appearing in certain judgments pleaded as res judicata or averred in the answer, the defendants were, as a matter of law, in privity with the complainants in the cause in which the judgments were rendered, or whether these judgments could be collaterally attacked for the alleged insanity of the defendant when entered.—Souffront v. La Compagnie Des Sucreries De Porto Rico, 30 S. Ct. 608, 217 U. S. 475, 54 L. Ed. 846.

A federal court cannot, consistently with the provisions of Const. U. S. Amend. 7, preserving the right of trial by jury, enter judgment for defendant notwithstanding a verdict for plaintiff on the ground that the latter was not sustained by the evidence.—Pedersen v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 33 S. Ct. 648, 229 U. S. 146, 57 L. Ed. 1125, Ann. Cas. 1914C, 153, reversing judgment 197 F. 507, 117 C. C. A. 83.

A Circuit Court of Appeals denies the right of trial by jury, where on reversal of the judgment of the District Court entered on verdict for plaintiff it directs judgment be entered for the defendant.—Young v. Central R. Co. of New Jersey, 84 S. Ct. 451, 232 U. S. 602, 58 L. Ed. 750, modifying judgment Central R. Co. of New Jersey v. Young, 200 F. 359, 118 O. C. A. 465.

§35. — Effect of provision for other remedy.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 238-241.

One charged with the offense of criminal conspiracy is entitled to a jury trial in the first instance; and it is not sufficient that by the local statutes (Rev. St. Dist. Col. §§ 773, 1073-1077) he would be entitled to an appeal from a conviction by the police court to the supreme court, upon giving recognizance, and to a jury trial on such appeal.—Callan v. Wilson, 127 U. S. 540, 8 S. Ct. 1301, 32 L. Ed. 223.

The right of trial by jury in suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed $20, as secured by the seventh amendment to the federal constitution, is preserved by allowing a common-law trial by jury in a court of record on an appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace, on giving bond, with surety, to prosecute the appeal, and to abide the judgment of the appellate court.—Capital Traction Co. v. Hof, 19 S. Ct. 580, 174 U. S. 1, 43 L. Ed. 873.

The right to a trial by jury in the circuit court of the United States, on appeals from the courts of justices of the peace of the District of Columbia, as allowed by Act Cong. March 1, 1823 (3 Stat. 744), § 7, where the demand exceeds $5, is a trial by a common-law jury, within the seventh amendment to the federal constitution, providing that in suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed $20, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved.—Id.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, § 220.

Const. U. S. Amend. 7, providing that no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of the United States than according to the rules of the common law, refers to the common law of England, the rules of which allow a re-examination only by a new trial granted by the trial court, or when ordered by an appellate court for error in law.—Capital Traction Co. v. Hof, 19 S. Ct. 580, 174 U. S. 1, 43 L. Ed. 873.

The Circuit Court of Appeals reversing a judgment of the Circuit Court entered on a verdict for plaintiff, for refusing to instruct the jury that the evidence was insufficient to sustain a verdict for plaintiff, cannot direct though in accordance with the practice defined in Act Pa. April 22, 1905 (P. L. 286), that judgment on the evidence be entered contrary to the verdict, but must award a new trial to conform to the provisions of Const. U. S. Amend. 7, providing for the right of trial by jury.—Slocum v. New York Life Ins. Co., 33 S. Ct. 523, 228 U. S. 364, 57 L. Ed. 879, Ann. Cas. 1914D, 1029, modifying judgment New York Life Ins. Co. v. Slocum, 177 F. 842, 101 C. C. A. 56.

A federal Circuit Court of Appeals cannot consistently with the right to trial by jury reverse the judgment on a verdict for plaintiff on the ground that he has not made out the right to recover, without directing a new trial.—Myers v. Pittsburgh Coal Co., 34 S. Ct. 559, 233 U. S. 184, 58 L. Ed. 906, reversing judgment Pittsburgh Coal Co. v. Myers, 203 F. 221, 121 C. C. A. 427.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, § 266.

Act Cong. June 30, 1879, c. 52, § 2 (21 Stat. 43), providing for the drawing of jurors, and repealing certain sections of the Revised Statutes respecting the selection, qualifications, and oath of jurors, does not affect the power of the court to call in talesmen to supply a deficiency in the panel, or repeal Rev. St. § 804, providing that "when, from challenges or otherwise, there is not a petit jury to determine any civil or criminal cause, the marshal or his deputy shall, by order of the court in which such defect of jurors happens, return jurymen from the bystanders sufficient to complete the panel."—Lovejoy v. United States, 128 U. S. 171, 9 S. Ct. 57, 32 L. Ed. 389; St. Clair v. Same, 154 U. S. 134, 14 S. Ct. 1002, 38 L. Ed. 936.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 291-302, 306.

A venire for a jury may properly be issued after a term has begun, and it need not recite that the jurors are summoned for the trial of any particular case.—Andersen v. United States, 18 S. Ct. 689, 170 U. S. 481, 42 L. Ed. 1116.

The judge of the Third Division of the District Court of the United States for the territory of Alaska, assigned by Act March 3, 1909, to the Fourth Division provided for by that act, could, before the act went into effect, issue a call for a jury for its first term.—Matheson v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 355, 227 U. S. 540, 57 L. Ed. 631.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 310-330, 340, 350.

Where, under Act Cong. June 23, 1874 (18 Stat. 254) § 4, "in relation to courts and judicial officers in the territory of Utah," in the trial of an indictment, the names in the jury box of 200 jurors, provided for by that section, are exhausted, when the jury is only partly impaneled, the district court may issue a venire to the United States marshal to summon jurors from the body of the district, and the jury may be completed from persons thus summoned. The provisions of section 4 are not exclusive of the ordinary methods of obtaining a jury.—Clawson v. United States, 114 U. S. 477, 5 S. Ct. 949, 29 L. Ed. 179, affirming United States v. Clawson, 4 Utah, 34, 5 P. 689.

Where, after discharge of the regular panel for the term, an indictment is found, a special venire may issue for jurors for the trial thereof.

—St. Clair v. United States, 154 U. S. 134, 14 S. Ct. 1002, 38 L. Ed. 936.

—72. Talesmen or additional jurors.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 333-347.

Rev. St. § 804, provides that when, from challenges or otherwise, there is no petit jury to determine any civil or criminal case, the court may order the marshal to summon sufficient bystanders to complete the panel. Held, that where the court had summoned a special venire to try an indictment found after the regular panel had been discharged for lack of business, and had exhausted such special venire without obtaining a jury, the court properly ordered talesmen to be called from the bystanders.—St. Clair v. United States, 154 U. S. 134, 14 S. Ct. 1002, 38 L. Ed. 936.

—83. Competency for trial of issues in general.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 400, 402-404.

A druggist, whose store is a subpostal station, and who is paid by the government for taking charge of the substation, is disqualified by reason of his relation as employé of the government from acting as juror in a prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the United States. Judgment (1907) 30 App. D. C. 1, reversed.—Crawford v. United States, 29 S. Ct. 260, 212 U. S. 183, 53 L. Ed. 465, 15 Ann. Cas. 392.

The qualifications prescribed for jurors in the District of Columbia by Code of Laws 1901, § 215, do not furnish the only test of the juror's competency, but leave in force the common-law rule under which an employé of the government cannot sit as a juror in a criminal proceeding instituted by the government.—Id.

—85. Discretion of court.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, § 405.

Exclusion of certain jurors on preliminary examination is in discretion of trial court.—Texas & P. R. Co. v. Hill, 35 S. Ct. 575, 237 U. S. 208, 59 L. Ed. 918.

—98. Formation and expression of opinion as to cause.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 432-473, 497.

—103. — Influence of opinion on verdict.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 444 456, 460, 461-473, 497.

Evidence, or what purports to be evidence, in a criminal case, printed in a newspaper, is "a statement in a public journal," within the meaning of the act of Utah declaring that no person shall be disqualified as a juror by reason of his having formed or expressed an opinion upon the matter or cause to be submitted to him, founded upon public rumor, statements in public journals, or common notoriety, provided it appear to the court, upon his declaration under oath or otherwise, that he can and will, notwithstanding such an opinion, act impartially and fairly upon the matters submitted to him.

—Hopt v. People of Territory of Utah, 120 U. S. 430, 7 S. Ct. 614, 30 L. Ed. 706, affirming judgment People v. Hopt, 4 Utah, 247, 9 P. 407.

The trial court's refusal to sustain a challenge to a juror for cause will not be disturbed by an appellate court, where it appears from the examination of such juror that he had not talked with any one who purported to know about the case of his own knowledge, but that he had taken newspaper statements for facts, that he had no opinion other than that derived from the newspapers, and that evidence would change it very easily, although it would take some evidence to remove it, and he testified that, if the evidence failed to prove the facts alleged in the newspaper, he would decide according to the evidence or lack of evidence at the trial, and thought he could try the case solely upon the evidence, fairly and impartially.—(1910) Holt v. United States, 31 S. Ct. 2, 218 U. S. 245, 54 L. Ed. 1021, 20 Ann. Cas. 1138, affirming judgment (C. C. 1909) United States v. Holt, 168 F. 141.

—104. Personal opinions and conscientious scruples.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 480-496.

—105. — Subject-matter of cause.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 480-484, 492, 493, 515.

On an indictment under Rev. St. § 5511, for violation of the election laws, questions asked a juror on his voir dire as to his political affiliations, partisanship, etc., are properly refused.—Connors v. United States, 158 U. S. 408, 15 S. Ct. 951, 39 L. Ed. 1033.

On the trial of a saloon keeper for murder a juror is not disqualified by the fact that he has a prejudice against the business of saloon keeping, the matter at issue having no reference to such business.—Thiede v. People of Territory of Utah, 159 U. S. 510, 16 S. Ct. 62, 40 L. Ed. 237, affirming judgment People of Territory of Utah v. Thiede, 11 Utah, 241, 39 P. 837.

—108. — Punishment prescribed for offense.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 489-491, 496.

On the trial of defendant for a crime punishable by death, where the jury is to find the punishment, jurors who state on their voir dire that they have "conscientious scruples in regard to the infliction of the death penalty for crime" may be challenged for cause by the government.—Logan v. United States, 144 U. S. 263, 12 S. Ct. 617, 36 L. Ed. 429, reversing judgment (C. C.) United States v. Logan, 45 F. 872.

—110. Waiver of right to object or challenge.

The objection to a juror, on the ground of alienage, comes too late, if made in the first instance after verdict.—Kohl v. Lehlback, 160 U. S. 293, 16 S. Ct. 304, 40 L. Ed. 432.

The right of defendant to object that a juror was disqualified because it appeared during the trial that he had been convicted of a felony, contrary to his statement on his voir dire, is waived by failure to raise the question until after verdict. Judgment 71 P. 218, 11 Okl. 261, 61 L. R. A. 324, affirmed.—Queenan v. Territory of Oklahoma, 23 S. Ct. 762, 190 U. S. 548, 47 L. Ed. 1175.

—122. Requiring juror to stand aside.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, § 501.

There has been no unreasonable exercise of the conditional or qualified right of challenge on behalf of the federal government in a criminal case, which has the effect of setting aside a juror until the panel is exhausted, without assigning cause, where neither the government nor the defendants had exhausted all their peremptory challenges when the jury was obtained.—Sawyer v. United States, 26 S. Ct. 575, 202 U. S. 150, 50 L. Ed. 972, 6 Ann. Cas. 269.

The conditional or qualified right of challenge on behalf of the federal government in a criminal case, which has the effect of setting aside a juror until the panel is exhausted, without assigning any cause, still exists in those states where such practice obtains, notwithstanding the enactment of Act March 3, 1865, c. 86, 13 Stat. 500, and Act June 8, 1872, c. 338, 17 Stat. 282, giving peremptory challenges to the government, if such practice has, conformably to Act July 20, 1840 (5 Stat. 394, c. 47; Rev. St. U. S. § 800 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 623]), been adopted by a court rule in the federal courts.—Id.

124. Challenges for cause.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 561-598.

131. — Examination of juror.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 561-582.

The trial court has a large discretion in conducting the voir dire examination of jurors, and an abuse of discretion is not shown merely because the court states in the bill of exceptions that it would have allowed a certain question if its attention had been called to it at the time, where the court nevertheless refused a new trial.—Connors v. United States, 158 U. S. 408, 15 S. Ct. 961, 39 L. Ed. 1033.

It was not error to refuse to permit a juror to be asked if he had ever belonged to the Committee of One Hundred, where there was nothing to show any such connection between that committee and the prosecution as would disqualify a member of the committee from sitting as a juror.—Id.

On an indictment, under Rev. St. § 5511, for violation of the election laws, the refusal to permit a juror to be asked on his voir dire whether his political affiliations would bias his judgment was not error, in the absence of any statement tending to show a special reason for asking it.—Id.

Permitting the district attorney to ask a juror whether he has any conscientious scruples which would preclude him from rendering a verdict of guilty on circumstantial evidence, "in a case where the penalty prescribed by law is death," is not error on the theory that the question should state, "where the penalty prescribed by law may be death," because of a statutory provision which permits a jury finding a party guilty of murder in the first degree to add, "without capital punishment."—Hardy v. United States, 22 S. Ct. 889, 186 U. S. 224, 46 L. Ed. 1137.

133. — Trial and determination.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 586-598.

Where an impartial jury is secured, error cannot be predicated on the rejection of persons who may have been qualified.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Herbert, 116 U. S. 642, 6 S. Ct. 590, 29 L. Ed. 755, affirming Herbert v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 3 Dak. 38, 13 N. W. 349.

Where the question of the competency of a juror is submitted to the court, the finding of the court is conclusive.—Hopt v. People of Territory of Utah, 120 U. S. 430, 7 S. Ct. 614, 30 L. Ed. 708, affirming judgment People v. Hopt, 4 Utah, 247, 9 P. 407.

134. Peremptory challenges.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 599-630; 23 Cent. Dig. Forg. § 122.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 607-618; 23 Cent. Dig. Forg. § 122.

Where actions by one plaintiff against different defendants, in which the defenses are the same, are consolidated, each of the several defendants in such a consolidated action is entitled to the three peremptory challenges allowed each party by statute, since Rev. St. § 819, in stating that the "parties on each side shall be deemed a single party for the purposes of all challenges," does not refer to consolidated actions.—Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Hillmon, 145 U. S. 285, 12 S. Ct. 909, 36 L. Ed. 708.

The offense of receiving smuggled goods, described in Rev. St. § 3082, is not to be classed as a felony, so as to entitle defendant, under Rev. St. § 819, to 10 peremptory challenges, although it is punishable by fine and two years' imprisonment, which imprisonment may, under Rev. St. § 5541, be inflicted in a state penitentiary; for the offense is subordinate to that of smuggling itself, which is expressly declared by Rev. St. § 2865, to be a misdemeanor, though the penalty is substantially the same as for receiving smuggled goods.—Reagan v. United States, 157 U. S. 301, 15 S. Ct. 610, 39 L. Ed. 709.

Rev. St. § 5472, imposing penalties for robbing the mails, uses the word "rob" in its common-law sense; and hence the crime specified is a felony, within Rev. St. § 819, giving defendant on a trial for felony the right to 10 peremptory challenges.—Harrison v. United States, 163 U. S. 140, 16 S. Ct. 961, 41 L. Ed. 104.

Where, on the trial of two consolidated actions, one who was the sole defendant in one of the actions and a joint defendant in the other had the benefit of the full number of peremptory challenges allowed in a single case, he cannot complain on an appeal in the case against himself alone that an additional challenge was not allowed in the joint case.—Stone v. United States, 17 S. Ct. 778, 167 U. S. 178, 42 L. Ed. 127, affirming judgment 64 F. 667, 12 C. C. A. 451, 29 U. S. App. 32.

139. — Making and sufficiency.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, § 627.

In the trial of a capital case it is the right of the accused to be confronted with the panel of jurors, and to be present during the challenges, and it is therefore reversible error for a federal judge to direct special challenges to be made from separate jury lists, each side being ignorant of the challenges the other has made.—Lewis v. United States, 146 U. S. 370, 13 S. Ct. 136, 36 L. Ed. 1011.

VI. IMPANELING FOR TRIAL AND OATH.

Conformity to state practice, see Courts, 352.

See 31 Cent. Dig. Jury, §§ 640-648; 39 Cent. Dig. Plead. §§ 608, 736.

Statements in the record that there came a jury, "who, being * * * sworn well and truly to try the issue joined herein," the trial proceeded, and that "a jury was impaneled and sworn to well and truly try the issues joined herein," are not attempts to give the form of oath administered, and do not show that the jury were not sworn "to well and truly try the matters submitted to them in the case in hearing, and a true verdict give according to the law and the evidence," as required by Comp. Laws Kan. c. 82, art. 11, § 208, and chapter 80, art. 15, § 274.—Baldwin v. State of Kansas, 129 U. S. 52, 9 S. Ct. 193, 32 L. Ed. 640.

(C) EXTENSIONS, RENEWALS, AND OPTIONS TO PURCHASE OR SELL.

87. Number of renewals.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. § 265.

A covenant in a lease to renew at its expiration with the same covenants and privileges as contained in the original lease is satisfied by one renewal without the insertion of another covenant to renew. Decree, Baltimore & O. Ry. Co. v. Winslow, 18 App. D. C. 438, reversed.—Winslow v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 23 S. Ct. 443, 188 U. S. 646, 47 L. Ed. 635.

(D) TERMINATION.

102. Breach of covenant or condition.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 321-342.

104. — Assigning or subletting.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. § 323.

A sale by a trustee in bankruptcy, under order of court, of his bankrupt's interest as lessee in a lease of real property, is not a breach of a condition in such lease, imposing a forfeiture if the lessee assigned the lease, or the lessee's interest should be sold under execution or other legal process without the lessor's written consent. Judgment (1906) 147 F. 678, 77 C. C. A. 682, affirmed.—Gazlay v. Williams, 28 S. Ct. 687, 210 U. S. 41, 52 L. Ed. 950.

107. — Nonpayment of taxes or assessments.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 332, 338.

A court of equity cannot, in the exercise of its general power to relieve from a forfeiture, endow a tenant with the right to create, at the risk of the owner, a contest involving the validity of an irredeemable tax sale, for the purpose of giving such tenant the right, if the tax title be held invalid, to pay the taxes, and thus be relieved of a forfeiture for his breach of his covenant to pay such taxes. Decree (1905) 25 App. D. C. 182, reversed.—Kann v. King, 27 S. Ct. 213, 204 U. S. 43, 51 L. Ed. 360.

The act of the landlord in accepting as a new tenant the purchaser of an irredeemable tax title to the property is not such a fraud on the tenant in possession as entitles him to relief in equity from a forfeiture of the lease for his breach of his covenant to pay the taxes, especially where the landlord offered to condone the forfeiture if the tenant would commence proceedings to have the outstanding tax title declared invalid, and would secure the landlord from loss in the event that such title should be sustained, which offer the tenant declined.—Id.

The purchase of an irredeemable tax title with a view to securing a lease of the property is not such a fraud on the tenant in possession as entitles him to relief in equity from a forfeiture of the lease for a breach of his covenant to pay the taxes.—Id.

Relief from a forfeiture of a lease, incurred by a tenant because of his breach of his covenant to pay the taxes, cannot be given by a court of equity on the ground of accident or mistake, where the relief sought cannot be afforded without subjecting the lessor to the peril of contesting the validity of an outstanding prima facie irredeemable tax title.—Id.

Equity will not relieve from the forfeiture of a lease for the breach by a tenant of his covenant to pay the taxes on any theory that his default was due to the misleading conduct of the landlord or to his own temporary oversight, where the testimony conclusively demonstrates the tenant's gross negligence.—Id.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 333-335, 339.

A written demand for rent by a grantee of the lessor, describing the land correctly, but describing the lease as given by himself instead of by his grantor, does not lay the foundation for a decree of forfeiture.—Henderson v. Carbondale Coal & Coke Co., 140 U. S. 25, 11 S. Ct. 691, 35 L. Ed. 332.

In a suit by a lessor against the lessee and its receiver, to cancel the lease for nonpayment of rent, the petition alleged that demand in writing had been mailed to the receiver, and exhibited a copy of the letter addressed to him, and a registered letter receipt signed by him, "per C. M. Pierce." No reason was given why personal service was not made, and there was no other evidence as to who "C. M. Pierce" was, or whether the receiver lived where the letter was addressed, or received it. Held, that no demand was shown to entitle the lessee to a forfeiture.—Id.

In a suit by a lessor against the lessee and its receiver to cancel the lease for nonpayment of rent, the petition alleged that a demand in writing had been mailed to the receiver, and exhibited a copy of the letter intrusted to him, and a registered letter receipt, signed by him, "per C. M. Pierce." No reason was given why personal service was not made, and there was no other evidence as to who "C. M. Pierce" was, or whether the receiver lived where the letter was addressed, or received it. Held, that the fact that the receiver, in his answer to the petition, did not deny receipt of the letter, did not help complainant, in so far as it was necessary to show a demand to entitle him to a forfeiture, since the allegation of demand in the petition was insufficient to call for a denial, and in equity proceedings a party must prove all the facts necessary to his right, except so far as they are admitted by the adverse party.—Id.

(A) DESCRIPTION, EXTENT, AND CONDITION.

[No paragraphs or references in this Digest. But see 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 434-443.]

(B) POSSESSION, ENJOYMENT, AND USE.

127. Right of entry and possession of tenant.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 446, 447.

When a lessee has entered into possession under a contract making its rights dependent on a condition precedent, its possession is subject to that condition, and the lessor will not be estopped to set it up by accepting rent.—City of New Orleans v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 18 S. Ct. 875, 471 U. S. 312, 43 L. Ed. 178.

140. Injuries to premises.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 508-515.

142. — By third persons.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 509-515; 37 Cent. Dig. Nuis. § 120; 46 Cent. Dig. Tresp. §§ 25, 36.

A party wall contract which authorizes entry on the demised premises and an undermining of the tenant's wall is an approval of the trespass on the tenant's possession, committed by the adjoining owner in the performance of the contract, rendering the landlord liable with the adjoining owner in an action for resulting damage.—Weinman v. De Palma, 34 S. Ct. 370, 232 U. S. 571, 58 L. Ed. 733, affirming judgment Di Palma v. Weinman, 121 P. 38, 16 N. M. 302.

Loss of reasonably certain profits is a proper element in awarding damages for trespass resulting in the destruction of a leased building with interruption of a going business.—Id.

(C) INCUMBRANCES, TAXES, AND ASSESSMENTS.

148. Covenants and agreements as to taxes and assessments.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 520-532.

The covenant of a perpetual leaseholder with his municipal lessor to pay the public taxes which shall become due on the land embraces municipal taxes, whenever they can thereafter be lawfully assessed on the land or the improvements which are part of the land, although when the lease was made the municipality had no power of taxation.—(1911) J. W. Perry Co. v. City of Norfolk, 31 S. Ct. 463, 220 U. S. 472, 55 L. Ed. 548, affirming judgment, City of Norfolk v. J. W. Perry Co. (1908) 61 S. E. 867, 108 Va. 28 and Same v. White (1908) 61 S. E. 870, 108 Va. 35.

(D) REPAIRS, INSURANCE, AND IMPROVEMENTS.Ⓔ156. Covenants to insure.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 567-570.

The fact that a lessee was told by two or three insurance agents, to whom it applied for insurance on the property, that such property was not insurable, does not show such impossibility of performance of its contract to insure as to excuse its nonperformance thereof.—Jacksonville, M., P. Ry. & Nav. Co. v. Hooper, 160 U. S. 514, 16 S. Ct. 379, 40 L. Ed. 515.

Where, in consideration of the lessor's agreement to rebuild in case of fire, and a stipulation for the suspension of the rent so long as the premises remain uninhabitable, the lessee agrees to keep the premises insured in a certain sum, the extent of his liability in case he fails to do so, and the property is wholly destroyed by fire, is the amount for which he agreed to insure.—Id.

(E) INJURIES FROM DANGEROUS OR DEFECTIVE CONDITION.Ⓔ162. Nature and extent of landlord's duty to tenant.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. § 639.

Under the rule that there is no implied warranty on the part of a landlord that the demised premises are safe or reasonably fit for occupation, a landlord letting a house situated upon a mountain side, where snow slides sometimes occur, is not bound to notify the lessee of the danger therefrom, though the lessor has knowledge thereof, and the lessee has not and has never before lived in a region where snow slides occur. Doyle v. Union Pac. R. Co., 147 U. S. 413, 13 S. Ct. 333, 37 L. Ed. 223.

Where a railroad company leases to an individual a house situated near its railroad track under an agreement that the lessee shall board its section hands therein at a specified price to be paid by the hands, the company agreeing to aid her in collecting the same by retaining the amount from their wages, the relation thus created, in so far as concerns the company's duty in respect to the leased premises, is merely that of landlord and tenant, and not that of master and servant.—Id.

Ⓔ164. Injuries to tenants or occupants.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 630-637, 639, 641.

Under the rule that there is no implied warranty on the part of a landlord that the demised house is a safe or reasonably fit for occupation, a railroad company which lets a house situated upon a mountain side where snowslides sometimes occur is not bound to notify the lessee of the danger therefrom, though the company has knowledge thereof, and the lessee has not, and has never before lived in a region where snowslides occur; and in the absence of any deceit or misrepresentation the company is not liable for personal injuries to the lessee, or for the death of members of her family, occasioned by the destruction of the house by a snowslide.—Doyle v. Union Pac. R. Co., 147 U. S. 413, 13 S. Ct. 333, 37 L. Ed. 223.

Ⓔ198. Recovery of possession by landlord.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. § 763.

Rent after re-entry cannot be recovered by the lessors unless a reasonable effort has been made to relet the premises, where the lease provides that after re-entry for breach of any covenant the lessors "may, at their discretion, relet the premises, at the risk of the lessee, who shall remain, for the residue of said term, responsible for the rent herein reserved, and shall be credited with such amounts only as shall be, by the lessors, actually realized." Judgment (C. C. A. 1905) 139 F. 5, affirmed.—International Trust Co. v. Weeks, 27 S. Ct. 69, 203 U. S. 364, 51 L. Ed. 224.

Ⓔ211. Abatement.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 840-845.

The inundation of a sugar plantation in Louisiana by the Mississippi river, caused by the giving way of a levee, resulting, not only in the loss of the crop, but also in the destruction of all the stubble and plant cane, putting the plantation under water for three months, filling up the canals and ditches, sweeping away the bridges, and leaving a deposit, from three to six inches deep, over the whole land, and requiring, in order to raise a crop again, the canals and ditches to be dug out, the bridges to be rebuilt, and seed cane to be obtained, amounts to a partial destruction of the premises by an unforeseen event, or making them unfit for the purpose for which leased, if leased for a sugar plantation, within Rev. Civ. Code La. arts. 2697 (2667) and 2699 (2669), entitling a lessee, in case of such a destruction or impairment of the thing leased to an abatement of the rent or an annulment of the lease; and the injury is of so grave a character as to entitle him to an annulment, and he will not be required to be satisfied with an abatement of rent merely.—Viterbo v. Friedlander, 120 U. S. 707, 7 S. Ct. 962, 30 L. Ed. 776, reversing decree (C. C.) 24 F. 320.

(C) LIEN.

Limitation of action, see Limitation of Actions, Ⓔ32.

Ⓔ241. Statutory provisions.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 977, 978.

The owners of several sugar plantations leased a sugar house on one of them at a rental of $2,000 per annum. In the same writing there were further provisions whereby the parties agree mutually "to sell and purchase, respectively," all the cane to be raised by the lessors upon their plantations, a certain sum to be paid at the beginning of each week on each ton of cane delivered the preceding week, and the balance to be secured by a "lien and privilege" on the first bounty money received by the lessees on sugar produced at the sugar house. By a separate article, provision was made for terminating the contract relating to the cane, without affecting the lease; and by a final article it was declared that "this is an entire contract, each stipulation and obligation herein being a part of the consideration for every other." Held, that the contract of sale and purchase of the cane was in fact a separate contract from the lease, and that no privilege arose for a balance of the purchase money, under Civ. Code La. 2705, which provides that the lessor has for the payment "of his rent, and other obligations of the lease, a right of pledge" on the movable effects of the lessee found upon the premises. Burdon Cent. Sugar-Refining Co. v. Ferris Sugar Mfg. Co. (C. C.) 78 F. 417, reversed.—Burdon Cent. Sugar-Refining Co. v. Payne, 17 S. Ct. 754, 167 U. S. 127, 42 L. Ed. 105.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 976, 979-981.

Rev. St. Ark. 1884, § 4453, provides that every landlord shall have a lien on the crop grown on the demised premises in any year for rent accruing during such year, and such lien shall continue for six months after the rent becomes due. Rev. Code La. arts. 2705, 2709, limits the landlord's lien to "the movable effects of the lessee which are found on the property leased," and he must exercise his right by seizing the movables before the lessee takes them away, or within 15 days thereafter, if they remain his, and can be identified. The owner of cotton raised on leased premises in Arkansas, the rent for which was unpaid, shipped it to defendants, brokers in Louisiana, who sold it to pay advances. Sess. Acts La. 1874, p. 114, § 2, giving a lien therefor. Held, that the law of Louisiana, and not that of Arkansas, must govern, and that defendants were not liable to the owners of the premises.—Walworth v. Harris, 129 U. S. 355, 9 S. Ct. 340, 32 L. Ed. 712.

248. Priorities.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 1003-1008, 1010-1012, 1017; 3 Cent. Dig. Agric. § 35.

Rev. Civ. Code La. §§ 2705, 2709, declare that the lessor, for the payment of his rent, has a right of pledge on the movable effects of his lessee, which he may seize under certain conditions. Act La. March 21, 1874, provides that, by special contract, a factor furnishing supplies to carry on a plantation may obtain a right of pledge on the crops produced, but that this shall be subordinate to the right of pledge for the rent of the land. Plaintiff and defendant's lessees entered into such a contract, and defendant became a party thereto, and agreed that plaintiff's claim for supplies should have preference over his own claim for rent. Held, that defendant might still seize and sell the crops produced for payment of his rent, as Code Prac. La. arts. 679, 683, provide for sales by the sheriff subject to the rights of those having prior liens or privileges.—Saloy v. Bloch, 136 U. S. 338, 10 S. Ct. 996, 34 L. Ed. 668.

290. — Right of action and defenses.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 1207-1215; 32 Cent. Dig. Forcl. E. & D. § 1.

Where a tenant, after the expiration of his original term, claims a right to hold the premises under a subsequent lease by his landlord to a third person, and such lease, for defects in its inception, has been decreed void, to the tenant's knowledge, before he acquired any claim thereunder, the facts that an appeal is pending from such decree, and that a supersedeas bond has been given thereon, do not impart any validity to such lease, that may make it available to the tenant as a defense to an action of unlawful detainer.—Lehnen v. Dickson, 148 U. S. 71, 13 S. Ct. 481, 37 L. Ed. 373, affirming judgment (C. C.) Dickson v. Lehnen, 37 F. 319.

Good faith of a tenant in holding over is not a defense to an action against him for unlawful detainer under the Missouri statutes, as, by Rev. St. Mo. § 5102, the complainant is not compelled to make further proof of the detainer than that he was lawfully possessed of the premises, and that defendant unlawfully detained the same.—Id.

291. — Jurisdiction and proceedings.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 1217-1241, 1243-1269; 3 Cent. Dig. App. & E. § 4768.

Evidence of the invalidity of a lease under which defendant claims in an action of unlawful detainer does not involve an inquiry into the merits of the title, prohibited by 2 Rev. St. Mo. 1889, § 5111, but is a proof of right under a derivative title, within section 5123, allowing proof of such rights.—Lehnen v. Dickson, 148 U. S. 71, 13 S. Ct. 481, 37 L. Ed. 373, affirming judgment (C. C.) Dickson v. Taylor, 37 F. 319.

293. Summary proceedings.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 1270-1248; 1 Cent. Dig. Action, § 111.

303. — Petition, complaint, or affidavit.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. §§ 1303-1309.

Under Rev. St. D. C. § 684, requiring the complaint to be "on oath of the person entitled to the premises," the oath may be taken anywhere before an officer authorized to administer oaths.—Harris v. Barber, 129 U. S. 366, 9 S. Ct. 314, 32 L. Ed. 697, affirming Barber v. Harris, 6 Mackey (17 D. C.) 586.

The landlord and tenant act (Rev. St. D. C. §§ 680, 681, 684, 686, 688), which provides that all tenancies at sufferance may be determined by 30 days' written notice to quit, and which does not require the relation of landlord and tenant to be set forth in the complaint, is satisfied, at least so far as to support the jurisdiction of the justice, by allegations that complainant is entitled to the possession of the premises, that they are detained from him and held without right by defendant, that defendant is his tenant at sufferance, and that his tenancy has been terminated by due notice to quit.—Id.

An allegation that the complainant is "entitled to the possession" of the premises, instead of that he is "entitled to the premises," is sufficient.—Harris v. Barber, 129 U. S. 366, 9 S. Ct. 314, 32 L. Ed. 697, affirming Barber v. Harris, 6 Mackey (17 D. C.) 586.

②. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Levees, § 2.

The work of constructing a great levee along the bank of a river subject to overflow, and independent of a system of drainage, is not embraced within Act III. April 24, 1871, authorizing the construction of drains and ditches for agricultural and sanitary purposes, and of levees if deemed necessary for drainage. Decree 95 F. 883, 37 C. C. A. 309, affirmed.—O'Brien v. Wheelock, 22 S. Ct. 354, 184 U. S. 450, 46 L. Ed. 636.

②13. Location.

See 22 Cent. Dig. Levees, § 4.

Land in Louisiana bordering on a navigable stream is subject to the state law allowing the public to impose servitudes on such land without compensation for the making and repairing of levees, even though the title to the land is derived from the United States.—Eldridge v. Trezevant, 160 U. S. 452, 16 S. Ct. 345, 40 L. Ed. 490.

②14. Construction.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Levees, § 4.

②16. — Contracts.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Levees, § 6.

A board of commissioners, authorized to make contracts for the building of levees, and to borrow money, issue bonds, and sell and negotiate them, but not at a greater rate of discount than 10 per cent., may make a contract at certain prices, payable in such bonds, and may afterwards amend that contract by inserting "at the rate of 90 cents on the dollar," and issue bonds accordingly, upon being satisfied that such was the agreement really made between the parties, although the work is actually done by subcontractors for lower prices in cash.—Hemingway v. Stansell, 106 U. S. 399, 1 S. Ct. 473, 27 L. Ed. 245.

②19. Damages from construction or maintenance.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Levees, § 10.

Levees may be erected on natural banks of the Mississippi as protection against extraordinary floods without liability to riparian owners whose lands are damaged by subsequent raising of the flood level.—Cubbins v. Mississippi River Commission, 36 S. Ct. 671, 241 U. S. 351, 60 L. Ed. 1041.

Riparian owner may not complain of levees along banks of the Mississippi in times of flood, though resulting increase in volume of waters raises flood level so as to overflow his land.—Id.

②21. Assessments and special taxes.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Levees, §§ 21-23.

②24. — Exemptions.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Levees, § 23.

A provision in the charter of a railroad company exempting its property from taxation generally does not exempt it from special assessments for the construction of levees.—Ford v. Delta & Pine Land Co., 17 S. Ct. 230, 164 U. S. 662, 41 L. Ed. 590, affirming decree (C. C.) 43 F. 181.

certain lands forfeited to the state for unpaid taxes, and directed that levee boards claiming any of such lands for nonpayment of levee taxes should accept in payment of such taxes any bonds of the levee boards. Held, that the auditor's deed reciting the payment of a certain sum by the company "in full of all state and county taxes" was not evidence of payment of the levee taxes.—Ford v. Delta & Pine Land Co., 17 S. Ct. 230, 164 U. S. 662, 41 L. Ed. 590, affirming decree (C. C.) 43 F. 181.

—28. — Sale of land for nonpayment.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Levees, §§ 26, 27.

A recital in a decree for the sale of lands for unpaid levee taxes that the nonresident defendants were "severally constructively summoned by publication, * * * proof of which has been previously filed herein," is conclusive as against a collateral attack based on the objection that there was no sufficient proof of publication of the warning order or notice filed or produced in court when the decree was made, where, under the local procedure, the entry of a warning order, even if required, is not jurisdictional. Decree (1905) 85 S. W. 252, 74 Ark. 174, affirmed.—Ballard v. Hunter, 27 S. Ct. 261, 204 U. S. 241, 51 L. Ed. 461.

—30. District or other levee funds, debts, and securities.

—34. — Bonds and other securities.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Levees, § 19.

Act Miss. Feb. 13, 1867, provided for the issuance of bonds for debts incurred by the levee board, and for an assessment upon lands benefited by the construction of levees, for the payment of the bonds. Held, that taxes received and lands forfeited under the act became a trust fund for the payment of the bonds, which could not be diverted by subsequent act of the legislature.—Ford v. Delta & Pine Land Co., 17 S. Ct. 230, 164 U. S. 662, 41 L. Ed. 590, affirming decree (C. C.) 43 F. 181.

The refusal to instruct the jury in an action for libel in publishing newspaper articles charging the United States attorney for Porto Rico with carrying on a private practice and acting as lawyer on behalf of persons bringing suit against the local government, which the articles characterize as a monstrous immorality, a scandal, etc., that so far as the publication of facts disapproved by the community was concerned, the plaintiff could not recover, however technically lawful his conduct might have been, unless there was express malice, or the comment went beyond reasonable limits, is reversible error where there is evidence that the people of Porto Rico considered the acts charged as immoral, and where, had the plaintiff been a local officer, such conduct would have been forbidden by the local law.—Gandia v. Pettingill, 32 S. Ct. 127, 222 U. S. 452, 56 L. Ed. 267.

A statement that at a meeting of enemies of a candidate for office, a district attorney, in discussing "what ammunition was needed to defeat him" inquired, "Where does the money come from in the contest? The publication in an advertisement for a brand of whisky of the portrait of a woman, in connection with a signed statement purporting to have been made by her, that she is a nurse, and has used the whisky for herself and patients, and recommends it, cannot be said as a matter of law not to be libelous, because such publication may not injure her standing with the general public. In an action for libel, in which a corporation and individuals are joined as defendants, and each defendant is liable for the full amount of any judgment recovered, without the right of enforcing contribution from the others, as against the individual defendants it is error to admit evidence of the wealth of the corporation, on the theory that it may be material to affect the amount of punitive damages recoverable against the corporation.—Washington Gas-Light Co. v. Lansden, 19 S. Ct. 296, 172 U. S. 534, 43 L. Ed. 543.

110. — Justification.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Libel, § 307-314.

Evidence that a prosecuting attorney neglected to investigate the character of the prosecuting witness is inadmissible on the cross-examination of that officer under a plea of the general issue, as tending to rebut the allegation in the declaration in an action for libel in charging him with using his office to procure an indictment as part of a conspiracy to blackmail, that he was upright, honest, just and faithful in the performance of his official duties. Judgment (1906) 28 App. D. C. 498, affirmed.—Pickford v. Talbott, 29 S. Ct. 75, 211 U. S. 109, 53 L. Ed. 146.

An ordinance fixing the amount of a license fee for the privilege of doing business high enough to make it partake of the character of an excise or privilege tax, as well as to provide a means for the regulation of the business, is not for that reason in violation of any provision of the federal constitution as an improper and illegal interference with the rights of the citizen. The reasonableness of a municipal license charge of $1 per telegraph pole and $2.50 for each mile of overhead telegraph wires within the city limits must be submitted to the jury, where there is testimony that the actual cost of maintenance, repairs and supervision by the telegraph company was less than one-half the sum thus charged by the city for supervision alone, and that an additional charge of $1 per mile for underground wires had been removed as an inducement to the removal of all overhead wires.—Atlantic & Pacific Telegraph Co. v. City of Philadelphia, 23 S. Ct. 817, 190 U. S. 160, 47 L. Ed. 995.

A judgment of a state court in an action to recover license fees on poles and wires of an interstate telegraph company, which awards to a municipality a considerably less sum than was due if the ordinance imposing such fees was valid, being for the same sum found to be due by the verdict of the jury to whom the question of the reasonableness of the ordinance had been submitted for the court's guidance, with directions to give a verdict for the full sum if they thought the ordinance was reasonable, otherwise to find for defendant, will, on writ of error from the Supreme Court of the United States, be held illegal and void because based upon an exercise of the police power which the court and jury by their action must be deemed to have determined to be unreasonable, and therefore invalid.—Postal Telegraph Cable Co. v. Borough of New Hope, 24 S. Ct. 204, 192 U. S. 55, 48 L. Ed. 338.

An ordinance imposing a license fee on the poles and wires of an interstate telegraph company is not a valid exercise of the police power, where the municipality has made no inspection, and has neither paid out any money nor incurred any expense for that purpose, and the fee is 20 times the amount of any expense that might have been reasonably and fairly incurred to make the most careful, thorough, and efficient inspection and supervision possible, and for all measures and precautions that possibly could be required to be taken by the municipality for the safety of its citizens and the public. Judgment, Borough of Taylor v. Postal Telegraph Cable Co., 52 A. 128, 202 Pa. 583, reversed.—Postal Telegraph Cable Co. v. Borough of Taylor, 24 S. Ct. 203, 192 U. S. 64, 48 L. Ed. 342.

The discrimination between the district of Honolulu and other districts in the amount of fees imposed by Rev. Laws Hawaii, § 1343, for licenses to sell at auction, held not unreasonable.—Toyota v. Territory of Hawaii, 33 S. Ct. 47, 226 U. S. 184, 57 L. Ed. 180.

Grading of a municipal license fee for theaters according to the price asked for the highest priced seats held constitutional.—Metropolis Theater Co. v. City of Chicago, 33 S. Ct. 441, 228 U. S. 61, 57 L. Ed. 730, affirming judgment 92 N. E. 597, 246 Ill. 20.

The exemption of merchants selling sewing machines at their regular places of business from the license tax imposed by Act Ala. March 31, 1911 (Laws 1911, p. 180) §§ 32, 33f, on the business of selling sewing machines, held valid.—Singer Sewing Mach. Co. v. Brickell, 34 S. Ct. 493, 233 U. S. 304, 58 L. Ed. 974.

Pub. Acts Mich. 1913, No. 301, providing for licensing of private employment agencies and prescribing reasonable regulations, held a proper exercise of the police power.—Brazee v. People of State of Michigan, 36 S. Ct. 561, 241 U. S. 340, 60 L. Ed. 1034, affirming judgment People v. Brazee, 149 N. W. 1053, 183 Mich. 259.

A corporation engaged in selling sewing machines at its established places of business and by traveling salesmen is, as to the itinerant sales, subject to the license tax which Act Ala. March 31, 1911 (Laws 1911, p. 180) §§ 32, 33f, imposes annually on the business of selling sewing machines, with an additional tax for each wagon used, though merchants selling machines at their regular places of business are exempted from such tax.—Singer Sewing Mach. Co. v. Brickell, 34 S. Ct. 493, 233 U. S. 304, 58 L. Ed. 974.

⚡18. — Corporate franchises and privileges.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Licens. § 47.

The requirement of a state that foreign corporations shall pay a license for the privilege of keeping an office within its limits is not a tax upon the franchise of the corporation, its business or its property.—Pembina Consol. Silver Min. & Mill. Co. v. Commonwealth of Penn- sylvania, 125 U. S. 181, 8 S. Ct. 737, 31 L. Ed. 650.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Licens. § 48-54.

The contract exemption from any tax on the capital stock of the Citizens' Bank of Louisiana, created by the provisions of its charter, as amended by Acts La. 1836, p. 17, § 4, that "the capital of said bank shall be exempt from any tax," must be deemed to include an exemption from the imposition of a license tax for the carrying on of the banking business, especially since the bank was incorporated to aid the agricultural interests of the state, and the state assisted by a loan of its credit, and retained partial control of the bank's directorate. Judgment, State v. Citizens' Bank of Louisiana, 27 So. 709, 52 La. Ann. 1086, reversed.—Citizens' Bank of Louisiana v. Parker, 24 S. Ct. 181, 192 U. S. 73, 48 L. Ed. 346.

Laws Tenn. 1873, c. 44, p. 71, provides an ample remedy at law upon the levy of a distress warrant for an illegal license tax by payment of the tax under protest, and an action within 30 days thereafter against the officers who collected the same for the recovery thereof, in case of which recovery the treasurer's warrant, based thereon, is entitled to be paid in preference to other claims on the treasury.—Shelton v. Platt, 139 U. S. 591, 11 S. Ct. 646, 35 L. Ed. 273, reversing decree (C. C.) United States Exp. Co. v. Allen, 39 F. 712.

⚡35. — Remedies for wrongful assessment or collection.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Licens. § 69.

A bill to restrain the levy of a distress warrant for the collection of an alleged illegal license tax, which merely alleges that the property of the plaintiff, an express company, is employed in interstate commerce, and that its seizure will greatly embarrass the company and result in heavy loss and damage to it and to the public, shows no ground for equitable interference.—Shelton v. Platt, 139 U. S. 591, 11 S. Ct. 646, 35 L. Ed. 273, reversing decree (C. C.) United States Exp. Co. v. Allen, 39 F. 712.

Injunction will not lie to restrain the sale of the property of a sleeping car company to collect a privilege tax or license on the ground of the unconstitutionality of such tax, where no independent ground of equitable jurisdiction is shown, and the consequences sought to be prevented may be avoided by complying with the provision of the state laws in the case of alleged illegal taxes.—Allen v. Pullman's Palace Car Co., 139 U. S. 658, 11 S. Ct. 682, 35 L. Ed. 303.

7. Equitable Liens.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Liens, §§ 26-28.

One B., for the purpose of enabling the firm of L. & Co. to borrow money to take up notes on which B. was indorser, loaned L. & Co. $15,000 of bonds, on which they obtained the desired loan. Subsequently, L. & Co. desiring to obtain credit from the firm of W. & Co., who knew these facts, B., at W. & Co.'s request, wrote them a letter saying: " * * * The loan of $15,000 Memphis bonds, made by me * * * for the use of L. & Co., * * * is with the understanding that any indebtedness they may be owing you at any time shall be paid before the return to me of these bonds or the value thereof, and that these bonds or the value thereof are at the risk of the business of L. & Co. so far as any claim you may have against L. & Co. is concerned." Held, that an equitable lien upon the bonds was thereby created in favor of W. & Co., and that B. became bound not to assert, as against W. & Co., a claim upon the assets of L. & Co. for the value of the bonds. 11 C. C. A. 136, 63 F. 204, reversed.—Walker v. Brown, 17 S. Ct. 453, 165 U. S. 654, 41 L. Ed. 865.

Shortly after the making of such contract between B. and W. & Co., the loan secured by the bonds was paid, and the bonds returned to B.; the money for the payment of the loan being derived in part from the assets of L. & Co., and in part from discounts of their paper indorsed by B., for which they afterwards, at

B.'s request, and immediately before their failure, gave security to the holders by mortgages of their stock of goods, by which, with other mortgages given to parties holding their paper indorsed by B., all L. & Co.'s assets were exhausted, and W. & Co. remained unpaid. Held, that the return of the bonds to B., under these circumstances, was in violation of his contract with W. & Co., and the bonds remained subject to the lien, in his hands or in those of his voluntary assignee.—Id.

Land in the possession of the true owners, as established by their successful prosecution of ejectment actions, which were pending when the defendant executed a deed of trust of the property, duly recorded, to secure a loan of money to be used in erecting improvements thereon, cannot be subjected, at the suit of the mortgagee, to an equitable lien for the value of such improvements, on the theory that such owners were charged with the duty of active investigation to discover from what source the money used in the improvements was obtained, and on what security, where the mortgagee, even if unaware of the pendency of the ejectment actions, had knowledge that a suit in equity, raising the question of the mortgagor's title to the premises, had been begun, and dismissed for want of prosecution, without prejudice. Decree (1903) 22 App. D. C. 368, affirmed.—Armstrong v. Ashley, 27 S. Ct. 270, 204 U. S. 272, 51 L. Ed. 482.

A contract, whereby one party was to receive a 10 per cent. interest in a concession for securing it and aiding in the plans, gives him an equitable interest to the extent of securing his share of the profits, if any, attaching to the profits when they come into being.—Valdes v. Larrinaga, 34 S. Ct. 750, 233 U. S. 705, 58 L. Ed. 1163.

⚡17. Enforcement.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Liens, §§ 30-32.

⚡18. — In general.

See 32 Cent. Dig. Liens, § 30.

Defendant's intestate agreed that, if plaintiff would pay a certain sum toward the building of a house on a lot belonging to the former, and superintend the erection of the house, she would convey to him a half interest in the house and lot. Plaintiff paid the agreed sum and superintended the erection of the house, but the intestate incumbered the property by deed of trust to another person. Held, that plaintiff's right to have the property sold to satisfy the lien in his favor was not affected by the fact that he might have filed a bill for specific performance and recovered damages for the deficiency caused by the existence of the trust deed.—Townsend v. Vanderwerker, 160 U. S. 171, 16 S. Ct. 258, 40 L. Ed. 383.

I. STATUTES OF LIMITATION.

Interstate commerce regulations, see Commerce, 8.

(A) NATURE, VALIDITY, AND CONSTRUCTION IN GENERAL.

2. What law governs.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. 4-8; 12 Cent. Dig. Corp. 1086; 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. 1768.

The federal rather than the state statute of limitation governs an action to recover money alleged to have been illegally exacted by the collector of customs duties, though the action be originally brought in the state court.—Arnson v. Murphy, 109 U. S. 238, 3 S. Ct. 184, 27 L. Ed. 920.

Where an act of congress, authorizing the removal to the courts of the United States of any class of actions of which the United States might assume exclusive jurisdiction, prescribes in general terms the time within which such actions must be brought, the limitation binds the state courts as well as the federal courts.—Mitchell v. Clark, 110 U. S. 633, 4 S. Ct. 170, 312, 28 L. Ed. 279.

The lex fori governs the question of limitations but where an action is brought in Mississippi on a note executed several years before in Louisiana, where, according to statute, benefit of the usury laws must be sought within one year, it cannot be pleaded by defendants that the total amount of usurious interest paid within these several years has extinguished the debt. The right claimed under the law of Louisiana must be taken as it is given, and is not divisible.—Walsh v. Mayer, 111 U. S. 31, 4 S. Ct. 260, 28 L. Ed. 338.

The law of the state creating the corporation governs the rights of its stockholders and creditors: and the statute of another state, prescribing a different period of limitation, can have no application to an action brought in that state to enforce the decree ordering the assessment.—Glenn v. Liggett, 135 U. S. 533, 10 S. Ct. 867, 34 L. Ed. 262, reversing (C. C.) Same v. Priest, 28 F. 907.

The three-year statute of limitations prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 394, for actions against directors or stockholders of a moneyed corporation to enforce a common-law or statutory liability is applicable to actions of that character brought within the state against directors and shareholders of foreign corporations. Judgment 118 F. 1019, 54 C. C. A. 683, affirmed.—Platt v. Wilmot, 24 S. Ct. 542, 193 U. S. 602, 48 L. Ed. 809.

3. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. 9, 12.

In the act of March 3, 1887, providing for suits against the United States, the unqualified limitation of six years did not repeal the provision in Rev. St. § 1069, giving to persons under disability or beyond the seas an additional three years after removal thereof.—United States v. Greathouse, 17 S. Ct. 701, 166 U. S. 601, 41 L. Ed. 1130.

5. Construction of limitation laws in general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. 13-15.

Rev. St. § 1069, providing that "every claim against the United States cognizable by the court of claims shall be forever barred unless the petition is filed * * * within six years after the claim first accrues," applies as well to causes of action thereafter created as to those then existing.—Rice v. United States, 122 U. S. 611, 7 S. Ct. 1377, 30 L. Ed. 793.

6. Retroactive operation.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. 16-31; 23 Cent. Dig. Forel. E. & D. 83; 27 Cent. Dig. Indem. 40; 29 Cent. Dig. Int. Liq. 203.

The limitation of 10 years, prescribed by Rev. St. Ariz. 1901, par. 2938, for actions to recover lands adversely held, has no application to such an action brought between the date when such statute was enacted and the date when, by its terms, the revision of the statutes was to take effect. Judgments, Curtis v. Boquillas Land & Cattle Co., 71 P. 924, 8 Ariz. 258, and 76 P. 612, affirmed.—Herrick v. Boquillas Land & Cattle Co., 26 S. Ct. 192, 200 U. S. 96, 50 L. Ed. 388.

②11. Limitation as against state, municipality, or public officers.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 35-39.

The United States having in 1852 purchased as trustee for the Chickasaw Indians, under and pursuant to treaties with that tribe, certain bonds of the state of Tennessee, the right of action of the government on the coupons of such bonds could not be barred by the statute of limitations of Tennessee, either while it held them in trust for the Indians, or since it became the owner of such coupons.—United States v. Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co., 118 U. S. 120, 6 S. Ct. 1006, 30 L. Ed. 81.

Laches will not bar a bill filed by the United States to redeem from a mortgage property purchased by it at a sale under execution in its favor, as it holds the title to such property, as it does to all other property, for public, and not for private purposes.—United States v. Insley, 130 U. S. 263, 9 S. Ct. 485, 32 L. Ed. 968.

The statute of limitations in force in the District of Columbia being enacted "for the peace and tranquillity" of the public, and providing that all actions "sued or brought by any person or persons" shall be commenced within a certain time, is applicable to municipal corporations.—Metropolitan R. Co. v. District of Columbia, 132 U. S. 1, 10 S. Ct. 19, 33 L. Ed. 231; Washington & G. Ry. Co. v. Same, 136 U. S. 653, 10 S. Ct. 1075, 34 L. Ed. 549.

The defense of laches cannot be made to claims of the United States.—United States v. Dalles Military Road Co., 140 U. S. 599, 11 S. Ct. 988, 35 L. Ed. 560.

Where lands within the sections donated by congress to a railroad company by grant in present were listed by the land department to a state as indemnity school lands according to selections alleged to have been made before the filing of the maps of either general or definite location, and afterwards the United States sues the state's grantees to cancel the listings, in order that patents may be issued to the railroad company for the benefit of its grantees, such suit is practically one brought by the government in behalf of private parties who might sue in their own names; and the rule that limitation and laches do not run against the sovereign is inapplicable.—Curtner v. United States, 149 U. S. 662, 13 S. Ct. 985, 1041, 37 L. Ed. 890.

②12. Persons who may rely on limitation.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 40-50, 52-55.

When a suit against the sovereign is not permitted, a protest or a proper application for redress will prevent the running of the statute of limitations in its favor, as a suit would in the case of an individual.—Stanley v. Schwalby, 147 U. S. 508, 13 S. Ct. 418, 37 L. Ed. 259.

(B) LIMITATIONS APPLICABLE TO PARTICULAR ACTIONS.

②16. Limitation as affected by nature or form of remedy in general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 66-68.

The property of the lessor of premises in St. Louis was confiscated while the city was under military law, and the lessee was compelled to pay the rent to the military authorities for the public use. Held, that an action by the lessor against the lessee to recover such rents was for acts done by authority derived from an order of the president, within Act Cong. March 3, 1863 (12 Stat. 755), and Act Cong. May 11, 1866 (14 Stat. 46), an action for which must be brought within two years.—Mitchell v. Clark, 110 U. S. 633, 4 S. Ct. 170, 312, 28 L. Ed. 279.

The prescription of 20 years generally applicable to personal actions under the Spanish law prior to the promulgation of the Civil Code is the prior law which, under the provision of that Code that a prescription which began to run before its publication shall be governed by the prior laws, must govern an action in Porto Rico for a loss under a policy of insurance occurring before the royal decree of 1899, extending the Civil Code to that island.—Royal Ins. Co. v. Miller, 26 S. Ct. 46, 199 U. S. 353, 50 L. Ed. 226, followed Amadeo v. Northern Assur. Co., 26 S. Ct. 507, 201 U. S. 194, 50 L. Ed. 722.

②18. Particular forms of action.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 70-72.

An action arising out of defendant's failure to perform a certain duty, in consequence of which plaintiff was compelled to perform it, is based on an implied assumpsit, to which the statute of limitations concerning actions on simple contracts is applicable, and is not based on the statute, though the duty which defendant failed to perform was statutory.—Metropolitan R. Co. v. District of Columbia, 132 U. S. 1, 10 S. Ct. 19, 33 L. Ed. 231; Washington & G. Ry. Co. v. Same, 136 U. S. 653, 10 S. Ct. 1075, 34 L. Ed. 549.

②19. Recovery of real property.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 73-85; 22 Cent. Dig. Ex. & Ad. § 1553.

Where lands within the sections donated by congress to a railroad company by grant in present were listed by the land department to a state as indemnity school lands, a right of action against the state's grantees accrued to the railroad company at the date of the filing of its map of definite location, and a lapse of 13 years thereafter before the bringing of the suit to cancel the listings was fatal to the case, both on the ground of laches, and under the California statute of limitations, which, in actions to recover lands, bars the claim in 5 years.—Curtner v. United States, 149 U. S. 662, 13 S. Ct. 985, 1041, 37 L. Ed. 890.

An action to set aside a conveyance made under a power of attorney, and to vest title in complainants, on the ground that the donee of the power had fraudulently exercised it for his own benefit, brought by the heirs of the donor of the power in 1889, 31 years after execution of the deed, is barred by Act Cal. April 22, 1850, § 19, providing that actions for equitable relief must be brought within four years after accrual of the cause of action, and Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 338, subd. 4, requiring actions for relief from fraud to be brought within four years after discovery of the fraud, where both the power and the deed were on record, and the donee claimed to be and acted as owner during the entire time.—Teall v. Schroder, 158 U. S. 172, 15 S. Ct. 768, 39 L. Ed. 938.

The three-years possession which may be pleaded in bar to an action for forcible entry and detainer under Hill's Code Or. § 3524, does not bar an action of ejectment.—Malony v. Adsit, 20 S. Ct. 115, 175 U. S. 281, 44 L. Ed. 163.

②20. Recovery of personal property.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 86-89.

Civ. Code La. art. 3506 (3472), declaring that three years' possession in good faith of a movable—which corporate stock is declared to be (Id. art. 474 [466])—gives good title, does not apply to a suit by a stockholder against a corporation to compel it to replace in his name certain shares of stock alleged to have been negligently canceled, and the certificates therefor unlawfully issued to a third person; defendant in such case never having been in possession.—St. Romes v. Levee Steam Cotton Press Co., 127 U. S. 614, 8 S. Ct. 1335, 32 L. Ed. 289.

21. Contracts in general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 90-99; 27 Cent. Dig. Indem. § 40; 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1540; 44 Cent. Dig. Ship. § 403.

Where a bank pays a check to one presenting it with a forged indorsement of the payee's name, both parties supposing the indorsement to be genuine, the right of action of the bank to recover the money from the person so obtaining it accrues immediately and is barred in six years by Code N. Y. 1877, § 382, limiting actions on a contract, obligation, or liability, expressed or implied, except a judgment or sealed instrument to six years after cause accrues.—Leather Mfrs. Nat. Bank v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 128 U. S. 26, 9 S. Ct. 3, 32 L. Ed. 342.

An agreement by the grantee, in a deed signed by the grantor only, to assume an existing mortgage on the land conveyed, is, in the District of Columbia, only a simple contract, and an action for its enforcement is therefore barred in three years.—Willard v. Wood, 17 S. Ct. 176, 164 U. S. 502, 41 L. Ed. 531.

The personal liability of shareholders in a national bank, under Rev. St. U. S. § 5151 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3465], for the contracts, debts, and engagements of the bank, cannot be regarded as a contract liability, for the purpose of making applicable the limitation prescribed by Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. Wash. § 4800, subd. 3, for an "action upon a contract or liability, express or implied, which is not in writing, and does not arise out of any written instrument." Judgment 119 F. 110, 56 C. C. A. 160, reversed.—McClaine v. Rankin, 25 S. Ct. 410, 197 U. S. 154, 49 L. Ed. 702, 3 Ann. Cas. 500.

Right to enforce agreement by holder of option on realty to grant a corporation easement of way over the entire property held not barred by refusal to grant easement over property embraced in option not included in corporation's purchase by limitation prescribed by Code Porto Rico 1913, § 4481, applicable only to actions for lesion on sale embraced by section 4480.—Parker v. Monroig, 36 S. Ct. 42, 239 U. S. 83, 60 L. Ed. 159.

23. Written contracts.

25. — Instruments for payment of money.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 112, 112-131; 7 Cent. Dig. Bills & N. § 76; 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1732.

Plaintiff, a manufacturing company, entered into a written agreement with defendant C., whereby C. agreed to receive and sell on commission sewing machines, consigned to him by plaintiff, and that the machine attachments should be sold to C., who gave bond, with the other defendants as sureties, conditioned that C. should account to plaintiff for all moneys that should become due under the written agreement. Held, that the liability of the sureties arose on the bond, and that the liability of C. arose either on the bond or on the written agreement, and not on a sale of goods to him, and hence the statute of limitations in regard to written instruments governed the case.—Streep v. Victor Sewing Mach. Co., 112 U. S. 670, 5 S. Ct. 327, 28 L. Ed. 852.

In the District of Columbia, where Act Md. 1715, c. 23, § 2, is in force, an action on a note Held, that this section includes checks, and that they do not fall within the terms, "other evidence of indebtedness in writing," as to which the limitation is fixed by section 1 at 10 years.—Rogers v. Durant, 140 U. S. 298, 11 S. Ct. 754, 35 L. Ed. 481.

Warrants drawn by the administrator of accounts upon the administrator of finance of a city, payable to the order of a third person out of any funds in the city treasury to the credit of a particular corporation, are not within the provisions of a statute limiting the time for bringing actions on bills of exchange, notes payable to order or bearer, those on all effects negotiable or transferable by indorsement or delivery, and those on all promissory notes, whether negotiable or otherwise. Decree Warner v. City of New Orleans, 81 F. 645, 26 C. C. A. 508, modified.—City of New Orleans v. Warner, 20 S. Ct. 44, 175 U. S. 120, 44 L. Ed. 96.

The property of the lessor of premises in St. Louis was confiscated while the city was under military law, and the lessee was compelled to pay the rent to the military authorities for the public use. Held, that an action by the lessor against the lessee to recover such rents was for acts done by authority derived from an order of the president, within Act Cong. March 3, 1863 (12 Stat. 755), and Act Cong. May 11, 1866 (14 Stat. 46), an action for which must be brought within two years.—Mitchell v. Clark, 110 U. S. 633, 4 S. Ct. 170, 312, 28 L. Ed. 279.

Held that, where one-fourth of the value of cotton was exacted from the owners under Act Cong. July 2, 1864 (13 Stat. 375), and paid under protest, an action to recover such sum must be brought within two years.—Cutler v. Kouns, 110 U. S. 720, 4 S. Ct. 274, 28 L. Ed. 305.

One-year limitation prescribed by Porto Rico Civil Code 1902, § 1869, on obligations arising from fault or negligence mentioned in section 1803, governs an action under section 1804 against a principal as to acts of representatives by which owner of realty seeks to recover from the government of Porto Rico damages sustained by him through deprivation of his right to enjoy property by unauthorized registry of the land by authorities in the name of the people of Porto Rico whereby his tenants refused to pay rent.—People of Porto Rico v. Emmanuel, 35 S. Ct. 33, 235 U. S. 251, 59 L. Ed. 215.

34. Liabilities created by statute.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 151-157.

Proceedings to enforce collection of personal property taxes from property of a decedent are within St. Minn. 1894, § 5136, providing that actions "upon a liability created by statute shall be barred by the lapse of six years."—Bristol v. Washington County, 20 S. Ct. 585, 177 U. S. 133, 44 L. Ed. 701.

An action brought by a receiver of a national bank under Rev. St. U. S. § 5234 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3507], to enforce the individual liability of a shareholder prescribed by section 5151 [Id. p. 3465], is not an action upon a "contract or promise in writing," within the meaning of the Nebraska statute of limitations, but is governed by the provision of that statute requiring actions "upon a contract not in writing, express or implied," or "upon a liability created by statute," to be begun within four years. Judgment 100 F. 1002, 40 C. C. A. 685, affirmed.—McDonald v. Thompson, 22 S. Ct. 297, 184 U. S. 71, 46 L. Ed. 437, affirming decree 101 F. 183, 41 C. C. A. 290.

A Kansas trust company, which is empowered to receive deposits and to loan money on real estate and personal security, must be deemed a "moneyed corporation" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 394, prescribing a three-year limitation for actions to enforce stockholders' liabilities, in view of the definition of that term in 1 Rev. St. N. Y. p. 598, § 51, as one having the power to make loans upon pledges or deposits, and of the further definition of a moneyed corporation in the revised corporation act of 1890, as one formed under, or subject to, the banking or insurance law. Judgment 118 F. 1019, 54 C. C. A. 683, affirmed.—Platt v. Wilmot, 24 S. Ct. 542, 193 U. S. 602, 48 L. Ed. 809.

The double liability of a stockholder in a Kansas corporation is one created by common law or statute within the meaning of the three-year statute of limitations prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 394, for actions to enforce a liability of that character against corporate directors or stockholders, since such liability while contractual in its nature, arises out of the Kansas Constitution or statutes, or from a combination of both by virtue of the application of general principles of law to the facts in the case.—Id.

§35. Penalties and forfeitures.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 109, 158-167.

The limitation of five years prescribed by Rev. St. U. S. § 1047 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 727], for any "suit or prosecution for any penalty or forfeiture, pecuniary or otherwise, accruing under the laws of the United States," does not apply to the action for threefold damages for injury to "business or property," authorized by Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, § 7, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3202], in cases of violations of that act.—Chattanooga Foundry & Pipe Works v. City of Atlanta, 27 S. Ct. 65, 203 U. S. 390, 51 L. Ed. 241.

The five years' limitation prescribed by Rev. St. § 1047, for prosecutions for a penalty, does not govern a reparation action under Interstate Commerce Act, Feb. 4, 1887, § 16, as amended by Act June 29, 1906, § 5, to recover from carrier damages awarded by the Interstate Commerce Commission.—Meeker v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 35 S. Ct. 328, 236 U. S. 412, 59 L. Ed. 644, reversing judgment Lehigh Val. R. Co. v. Meeker, 211 F. 785, 128 C. C. A. 311.

After the lapse of five years from the entry of a decree declaring a tax levied by a county illegal, and enjoining their collection, the county is estopped to sue to set the decree aside for fraud, under Gen. St. Neb. 1873, c. 57, tit. 2, § 12, requiring an action for relief on the ground of fraud to be commenced within four years after the cause of action, which shall not be until after the fraud is discovered.—Boone County v. Burlington & M. R. R. Co., 139 U. S. 684, 11 S. Ct. 687, 35 L. Ed. 319.

§39. Actions or proceedings not specially provided for.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 172, 190-211; 23 Cent. Dig. Ex. & Ad. § 2015.

The 10-year limitation prescribed by Code Tenn. § 2776, for "all other cases not expressly provided for," rather than the one-year limitation prescribed by section 2772 for "statute penalties," or the three-year limitation prescribed by section 2773 for injuries to personal or real property, governs an action for threefold damages for injury to "business or property" brought under Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, § 7, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3202], in which the right of recovery is based on the excessive price for iron water pipe which a municipality was led to pay by reason of an illegal arrangement between the members of a trust or combination formed in violation of that act.—Chattanooga Foundry & Pipe Works v. City of Atlanta, 27 S. Ct. 65, 203 U. S. 390, 51 L. Ed. 241.

II. COMPUTATION OF PERIOD OF LIMITATION.

(A) ACCRUAL OF RIGHT OF ACTION OR DEFENSE.

§44. Title to or possession of real property.

Where complainant has sold real property to a county, and to secure payment received a mortgage and notes, which are void for want of power to make them, he has a right to rescind the contract, which accrues at the very date of the deed; but his right of action does not accrue, and the statute of limitations does not begin to run against it, until he has exercised his right of rescission, and demanded a reconveyance.—Chapman v. Board of County Com'rs, Douglas County, 107 U. S. 348, 2 S. Ct. 62, 27 L. Ed. 378.

The statute of limitations will run against the purchaser of land from the United States in favor of one holding adversely only from the issuance of the patent.—Redfield v. Parks, 132 U. S. 239, 10 S. Ct. 83, 33 L. Ed. 327.

The statute of limitations begins to run against persons claiming land under a patent from the government, and in favor of persons previously in full and peaceable possession, at least from the issuing of the patent.—Miller v. Texas & P. R. Co., 132 U. S. 662, 10 S. Ct. 206, 33 L. Ed. 487.

Where lands within the sections donated by congress to a railroad company by grant in present were listed by the land department to a state as indemnity school lands, a right of action against the state's grantees accrued to the railroad company at the date of the filing of its map of definite location.—Curtner v. United States, 149 U. S. 662, 13 S. Ct. 985, 1041, 37 L. Ed. 890.

A state statute of limitations for the recovery of real property does not begin to run in favor of a railway company as against a settler, under the homestead laws of the United States, until patent has issued. Judgment, Slaght v. Northern Pac. Ry. Co. (1905) 81 P. 1062, 39 Wash. 576, affirmed.—Northern Pac. Ry. Co. v. Slaght, 27 S. Ct. 442, 205 U. S. 122, 51 L. Ed. 738; Id., 27 S. Ct. 446, 205 U. S. 134, 51 L. Ed. 742.

The sisters of a decedent, who, under Porto Rico Civ. Code, art. 811, are entitled to any part of their brother's estate which his widow may inherit through her daughter, who was his sole heir, had a sufficient interest, upon the death of the daughter intestate and without descendants, to enable them to bring an action to set aside a so-called partition of their brother's estate between the widow and the daughter, so as to start running the four years' limitation prescribed by articles 1076 and 1301 for rescissory actions and actions for nullity.—Maytin v. Vela, 30 S. Ct. 439, 216 U. S. 598, 54 L. Ed. 632.

48. Instruments for payment of money.

In a suit on warrants, brought seven years after they had been presented to the county treasurer, and payment demanded, and he had indorsed thereon "Not paid for want of funds," held that, under the law in Nebraska, the cause of action did not accrue when payment was refused, but only when the money for their payment is collected, or time sufficient for the collection of the money has elapsed.—King Iron Bridge & Manufacturing Co. v. Otoe County, 124 U. S. 459, 8 S. Ct. 582, 31 L. Ed. 514.

St. Nev. 1877, p. 46, provided that certain overdue coupons of Lincoln county should be registered and paid by the treasurer, as money came into his possession applicable thereto, in the order of their registry; and coupons, having been presented and payment refused as the interest fund was exhausted, were accordingly registered by the treasurer. Held, that the statute of limitations does not begin to run against such coupons until money is received by the treasurer which is applicable to their payment.—Lincoln County v. Luning, 133 U. S. 529, 10 S. Ct. 363, 33 L. Ed. 766.

51. Severable contracts and installments.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 280-284.

Notes, made in the state of Texas, severally provided that, "in default of payment of interest when due, the principal is to become due and collectible." The deed of trust referred to in the notes, and given to secure same, provided that, "if at any time said interest shall remain unpaid for as much as 90 days after the same shall become due and payable, then the whole debt, as well as the interest, shall become and be due and payable; and further, it is understood and agreed that, if said note first falling due shall remain unpaid thereafter for as much as six months, then the whole debt is to be and become due and payable, and this trust, in either event, to be executed and foreclosed, at the option of said third party." Held, that under the law of the state, when the notes were executed, the creditor was without a remedy by foreclosure as soon as the debt was barred by the statute of limitations, and that, therefore, the parties intended in this case to give the holder of the notes an option, after default in the payment of interest, not only to declare the principal due, but to foreclose the deed of trust, in advance of the dates of maturity named in the notes and deed; and that, that option not having been exercised when or after the several defaults occurred, limitation began to run on the several notes only from their respective dates of maturity.—Moline Plow Co. v. Webb, 141 U. S. 616, 12 S. Ct. 100, 35 L. Ed. 879.

52. Accounts.

54. — Mutual accounts.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 295-298.

The vice president of a corporation sued the corporation in a territorial court of Utah to recover for services as general manager, for money paid out for it, and for feeding and care of its stock. The corporation counterclaimed for pasturage of cattle, for horses sold and delivered, and for a balance on an account for money loaned and expended. Held, that plaintiff's claim for services was but one item in a "mutual, open, and current account," on which suit could be brought within two years from the date of the last item, and therefore his claim for services was not barred as to services rendered more than two years prior to the commencement of the action. Comp. Laws Utah 1888, §§ 3145, 3149.—Corinne Mill, Canal & Stock Co. v. Toponce, 182 U. S. 405, 14 S. Ct. 632, 38 L. Ed. 493, affirming judgment *Toponce v. The action of a state in the court of claims to recover moneys received by the United States from sales of swamp lands granted to the state by the act of September 28, 1850, is not barred by the statute of limitations until six years after the amount is ascertained from proofs of the sales, before the commissioner of the general land office.—United States v. State of Louisiana, 123 U. S. 32, 8 S. Ct. 17, 31 L. Ed. 69; Same v. State of Alabama, 123 U. S. 39, 8 S. Ct. 21, 31 L. Ed. 73.

The objection that the statute of limitations does not bar the right of the creditors of a national bank, under Act June 30, 1876, c. 156, § 2, 19 Stat. 63 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3509], to enforce the individual liability of its shareholders, prescribed by Rev. St. U. S. § 5151 [Id. p. 3465], so long as there are any outstanding claims against the bank, cannot be raised by the receiver of a national bank, in an action brought by him under section 5234 [Id. p. 3507], to recover an assessment upon a stockholder, with interest from the date when payable, in which a demurrer to the bill on the ground that it sets forth a cause of action barred by the statute of limitations has been sustained.—McDonald v. Thompson, 22 S. Ct. 297, 184 U. S. 71, 46 L. Ed. 437, affirming decree 101 F. 183, 41 C. C. A. 290.

A state statute of limitations does not begin to run against the right to enforce the individual liability of stockholders in a national bank until the amount of such liability has been ascertained and assessed by the Comptroller of the Currency. Judgment 77 P. 531, 69 Kan. 629, reversed.—Rankin v. Barton, 26 S. Ct. 29, 199 U. S. 228, 50 L. Ed. 163.

59. Penalties and forfeitures.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 329-332; 6 Cent. Dig. Banks, § 1049; 47 Cent. Dig. Usury, § 430.

The inclusion of usurious interest as principal in notes given to a national banking association does not constitute a payment of the interest within the meaning of Rev. St. U. S. §§ 5197, 5198, so as to start the running of the statute against a right of action to recover twice the amount of the interest paid; but "the usurious transaction" from the date of which the statute begins to run is the time when the usurious interest is actually paid. Judgment 51 S. W. 661, affirmed.—National Bank of Daingerfield v. Ragland, 21 S. Ct. 536, 181 U. S. 45, 45 L. Ed. 738.

A petition to recover back usurious interest from a national bank, under Rev. St. U. S. §§ 5197, 5198 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3493], which shows on its face that the action was not "commenced within two years from the time the usurious transactions occurred," as required by the latter section, cannot withstand a demurrer because of an allegation that the charge and reservation of the usurious interest were without plaintiff's knowledge or consent, since, even if the period of limitation of the statute does not begin until discovery of the wrong, the court will not indulge the presumption that plaintiff's consciousness of the wrong was not aroused until some time within two years before the commencement of the action. Judgment 82 N. W. 963, 111 Iowa, 583, affirmed.—

Talbot v. Sioux Nat. Bank, 22 S. Ct. 621, 185 U. S. 182, 46 L. Ed. 862.

Usurious transaction, from the date of which the two years' limitation prescribed by Rev. St. § 5198 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3493), for actions to recover back twice the amount of interest paid a national bank, begins to run, occurs on date of payment of the usurious interest.—(1912) McCarthy v. First Nat. Bank, 32 S. Ct. 240, 223 U. S. 493, 56 L. Ed. 523, affirming judgment (1909) 121 N. W. 853, 23 S. D. 269, 23 L. R. A. (N. S.) 335, 21 Ann. Cas. 487.

(B) PERFORMANCE OF CONDITION, DEMAND, AND NOTICE.

65. Conditions precedent in general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 261, 346-350; 28 Cent. Dig. Insurance, §§ 88, 97, 446.

Act Me. Aug. 10, 1848, provided that a judgment creditor of a corporation, which had made an unlawful division of its property, or which had undivided property not readily to be come at to be attached, or not attachable, might make complaint, setting forth his judgment, "and alleging the same to be unsatisfied by reason of inability to find corporate property wherewith to satisfy the same." Rev. St. Me. 1857 and 1871 contain the same provision, except as to the allegation of "inability to find corporate property." The revision of 1857 was intended to revise and condense the public laws, without making any change therein by mere change of phraseology, unless such was the evident intention of the Legislature. Hughes v. Farrar, 45 Me. 72. Held, that the statute of limitations did not begin to run against the judgment creditor's right to maintain such suit until his inability to find corporate property is shown by the return of execution unsatisfied.—Taylor v. Bowker, 4 S. Ct. 397, 111 U. S. 110, 28 L. Ed. 368.

66. Demand.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 353-375; 1 Cent. Dig. Action, § 708; 6 Cent. Dig. Banks, §§ 506, 510, 536; 12 Cent. Dig. Corp. §§ 371, 404; 43 Cent. Dig. Schools, § 273.

Where a bank pays a check to one presenting it with a forged indorsement of the payee's name, both parties supposing the indorsement to be genuine, the right of action of the bank to recover the money from the person so obtaining it accrues immediately, and does not depend on a demand by the bank.—Leather Mfrs. Nat. Bank v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 128 U. S. 26, 9 S. Ct. 3, 32 L. Ed. 342.

Where no call has ever been made by the corporation for a stock assessment for the benefit of creditors, the statute of limitations does not begin to run against the stockholder's liability on his subscription until the date of a decree of a court of equity ordering the assessment.—Hawkins v. Glenn, 131 U. S. 319, 9 S. Ct. 739, 33 L. Ed. 184; Glenn v. Liggett, 135 U. S. 533, 10 S. Ct. 867, 34 L. Ed. 262, reversing (C. C.) Same v. Priest, 28 F. 907.

A corporation made an assignment, transferring to the trustees thereunder, among other property, all moneys payable "on calls or assessments on the stock of the company." Subsequently a receiver was appointed, with directions to collect "any sums due upon the shares of the capital stock of the company." The trustees under the deed of assignment possessed no authority to make a call upon the stockholders, and none in fact was made until long after the appointment of the receiver. Held, that no money was due from the stockholders until the call was in fact made; and hence limitation did not begin to run in their favor until that time.

—Glenn v. Marbury, 145 U. S. 499, 12 S. Ct. 914, 36 L. Ed. 790.

A demand which starts the running of the statute of limitations against the right of a receiver of a national bank to enforce the statutory liability of its shareholders is shown by the allegations of the bill, filed by the receiver to enforce such liability, that on a specified date the comptroller of the currency made an assessment upon the shareholders of such bank, and "did thereby make demand upon each and every share of the capital stock of the said association," and directed the receiver to take proceedings by suit to enforce the individual liability of the shareholders.—McDonald v. Thompson, 22 S. Ct. 297, 184 U. S. 71, 46 L. Ed. 437, affirming decree 101 F. 183, 41 C. C. A. 290.

(C) PERSONAL DISABILITIES AND PRIVILEGES.

72. Infancy.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 390-398.

Under Comp. Laws N. M. § 1863, which prescribes four years as the period of limitations for personal actions, and under section 1869, which extends the time, in favor of minors, for one year after the termination of the disability, a judgment of a probate court admitting a will to probate cannot be annulled in a proceeding instituted by an heir more than twenty years after the original judgment was rendered, and more than four years after he became of age.—Bent v. Thompson, 133 U. S. 114, 11 S. Ct. 238, 34 L. Ed. 902, affirming judgment 5 N. M. 408, 23 P. 234.

74. Insanity or other incompetency.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 413, 414; 27 Cent. Dig. Ins. Per. § 158.

The provision suspending, in favor of idiots, lunatics, insane persons, and persons beyond seas, the operation of the six-year statute of limitations in respect to claims cognizable in the court of claims (Rev. St. § 1069), is restricted to persons laboring under such disabilities at the time their claims accrued, and cannot be invoked by one whose disabilities subsequently arose.—De Arnaud v. United States, 151 U. S. 483, 14 S. Ct. 374, 38 L. Ed. 244.

76. Disability intervening after accrual of cause of action.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 417-420.

The provision suspending, in favor of idiots, lunatics, insane persons, and persons beyond seas, the operation of the six-year statute of limitations in respect to claims cognizable in the court of claims (Rev. St. § 1069), is restricted to persons laboring under such disabilities at the time their claims accrued, and cannot be invoked by one whose disabilities subsequently arose.—De Arnaud v. United States, 151 U. S. 483, 14 S. Ct. 374, 38 L. Ed. 244.

78. Tacking successive disabilities.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 422, 423.

The limitation prescribed by Act Tex. Feb. 5, 1841, § 16, which provides that any one having peaceable possession of real estate for five years, claiming under a deed duly registered, shall have full title, saving coverture and other disabilities, begins to run from the death of a married woman, by whose coverture the statute has been prevented from running against her, as against her heirs, though some of the latter are married women, as disabilities cannot be tacked to extend the period of limitation.—Miller v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 132 U. S. 662, 10 S. Ct. 206, 33 L. Ed. 487.

Under the statute of limitations in force in the District of Columbia, which limits the time within which action to recover real property may be brought to 20 years, but provides that, if the person to whom the title or right of entry accrues or descends shall be at the time under coverture or other disability, the action may be brought at any time within 10 years after the death of such person or the removal of the disability, the disabilities of successive owners of the right of action cannot be cumulated, to prevent the running of the statute, and where a right of action accrued in favor of a married woman, who remained under coverture until her death, but action was not brought until more than 20 years after the accrual of the right, and more than 10 years after her death and that of her husband, the action was barred, notwithstanding the fact that her daughter, to whom the right descended, was also under coverture, and remained so until within less than 10 years before the action was brought.—Davis v. Coblenz, 19 S. Ct. 832, 174 U. S. 719, 43 L. Ed. 1147.

(D) DEATH AND ADMINISTRATION.

—80. Death of person entitled to sue.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 424-430.

In case of a grant of letters testamentary in New York, the state of testator's domicile, and of ancillary letters in another state, where a separate probate is not required, but only the filing of a certified copy of the original probate, the period prescribed for the suspension of the statute of limitations pending the grant of letters, by Act Sept. 13, 1883 (2 Rev. St. N. Y. c. 8, tit. 3, art. 1, § 9), will be reckoned with reference to the original grant of letters alone.—Kirby v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co., 120 U. S. 130, 7 S. Ct. 430, 30 L. Ed. 569.

—83. Death of person liable.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 426, 431-433.

The operation of the Kansas statute of limitations is suspended after the death of the debtor for the 60 days, only, during which the creditor, under Comp. Laws Kan. c. 37, § 12, could not apply for the appointment of an administrator, or, at most, for a reasonable time after the expiration of the 60 days.—Bauserman v. Blunt, 147 U. S. 647, 13 S. Ct. 466, 37 L. Ed. 316.

Delay by a creditor in applying for appointment of an administrator of his debtor until more than 5 months and 20 days have passed after the expiration of the 60 days in which he could not make such application is unreasonable, when there is no suggestion of ignorance of the death of the debtor, or other excuse.—Id.

(E) ABSENCE, NONRESIDENCE, AND CONCEALMENT OF PERSON OR PROPERTY.

—84. Absence at time of accrual of cause of action.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 439-448.

Under Comp. Laws Kan. c. 80, § 21, which provides that if, when a cause of action accrues against a person, "he be out of the state," the period limited for the commencement of the action shall not begin to run "until he comes into the state," and if, after the cause of action accrues, "he depart from the state," "the time of his absence" shall not be computed as part of the period within which the action must be brought, the statute of limitations does not run in favor of a debtor while he is personally absent from the state, notwithstanding that he continued to have a usual place of residence in the state, where service of a summons could be made on him, in accordance with section 64 of the same chapter.—Bauserman v. Blunt, 147 U. S. 647, 13 S. Ct. 466, 37 L. Ed. 316, following Railway Co. v. Cook, 43 Kan. 83, 22 P. 988.

—85. Departure after accrual of cause of action.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 449-455.

Under Code Proc. N. Y. 1849, c. 438, § 100, which provides that if, after a cause of action accrues, the person against whom it accrues shall "depart from and reside out of the state," the running of the statute of limitations shall be suspended during such absence, mere temporary absences for business and pleasure varying in length from 1 to 50 days, and averaging 2 months in each year, do not operate to suspend the statute.—Barney v. Oelrichs, 138 U. S. 529, 11 S. Ct. 414, 34 L. Ed. 1037.

—86. Nonresidence.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 456-463.

—87. — In general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 456-463.

Code Va. 1873, p. 1002, c. 146, § 20, relating to limitations of certain actions provides that where such a cause of action shall accrue against a person who had before resided in that state, if such person shall be departing from the same, obstruct the prosecution of such cause, the time that such obstruction may have continued shall not be computed in determining the time within which the action ought to have been prosecuted. Held, that this section does not apply where defendant has removed from the state before he made the contract sued on.—Embrey v. Jemison, 131 U. S. 336, 9 S. Ct. 776, 33 L. Ed. 172.

One who retains his residence in another state for purposes of business is not rendered a resident of New York, within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 390, which provides that, where a cause of action accrues against a nonresident, an action cannot be brought thereon in the state after the expiration of the time limited by the laws of his residence, except, inter alia, "where, before the expiration of the time so limited, the person in whose favor it originally accrued was or became a resident of the state," by the fact that his wife and family make their home in New York with his consent.—Penfield v. Chesapeake, O. & S. W. R. Co., 134 U. S. 351, 10 S. Ct. 566, 33 L. Ed. 940, affirming (C. C.) 29 F. 494.

—90. Concealment of person or residence.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 468, 469.

—91. — In general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 468.

Conspiracy on the part of city officials to prevent the service of process in an action against the city furnishes no excuse for not commencing the action within the time limited by statute, in the absence of a statute creating it an exception.—Amy v. City of Watertown, 130 U. S. 320, 9 S. Ct. 537, 32 L. Ed. 953, affirming (C. C.) 22 F. 418; Spalding v. Same, 130 U. S. 327, 9 S. Ct. 539, 32 L. Ed. 946.

—94. Effect as to parties jointly or severally liable, guarantors, and sureties.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 471, 472.

When a cause of action against the agent of an undisclosed principal is barred by the statute of limitations, no action can be brought against the principal when discovered.—Ware v. Galveston City Co., 111 U. S. 170, 4 S. Ct. 337, 28 L. Ed. 393.

(F) IGNORANCE, MISTAKE, TRUST, FRAUD, AND CONCEALMENT OF CAUSE OF ACTION.

Fraud affecting limitation in bankruptcy proceedings, see Bankruptcy, —298.

⚡98. Fraud as ground for relief.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 323, 477-493; 1 Cent. Dig. Action, § 708; 23 Cent. Dig. Fraud, § 34; 24 Cent. Dig. Fraud. Conv. §§ 733, 734; 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 864.

⚡100. — Discovery of fraud.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 323, 480-493; 24 Cent. Dig. Fraud. Conv. §§ 733, 734; 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 864.

The statute of limitation begins to run against a bill charging that defendant had fraudulently induced complainant to convey certain land only from the discovery of the fraud.—Jones v. Van Doren, 130 U. S. 684, 9 S. Ct. 685, 32 L. Ed. 1077.

⚡101. Existence of trust.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 494-510; 47 Cent. Dig. Trusts, § 570.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 494-505; 26 Cent. Dig. Guard. & W. § 483; 47 Cent. Dig. Trusts, § 570.

A member of a partnership who by the agreement could terminate the partnership at any time, made an assignment for the benefit of creditors. The partnership agreement provided that, on a dissolution by such member, the other partner, who had charge and control of the partnership property, should "wind up their affairs, and sell the stock to the best advantage for all parties concerned." Held, that after the dissolution the partner remaining in possession held the partnership property by the terms of the agreement, under a continuing trust for the other partner, and the statute of limitations would not begin to run against the latter's right to an account of the partnership dealings so long as the former did not repudiate the trust.—Riddle v. Whitehill, 135 U. S. 621, 10 S. Ct. 924, 34 L. Ed. 283.

Where a deed under which a trustee holds creates an active and express trust, the law of the territory of Utah, where the property was situated, barring an action on a mortgage when the debt which it was given to secure is barred, does not apply.—Gisborn v. Charter Oak Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, 142 U. S. 326, 12 S. Ct. 277, 35 L. Ed. 1029, affirming decree Charter Oak Life Ins. Co. v. Gisborne, 5 Utah, 319, 15 P. 253.

The statute of limitations will not run against the liability of a city under its agreement, upon voluntarily purchasing with drainage warrants a plant for perfecting its drainage system, to facilitate the collection of assessments, and not to divert such collections from payment of the warrants, until it repudiates the trust, although judgments are substituted for the warrants against its own property. Decree Warner v. City of New Orleans, 81 F. 645, 26 C. C. A. 508, modified.—City of New Orleans v. Warner, 20 S. Ct. 44, 175 U. S. 120, 44 L. Ed. 96.

The 10-year statute of limitations is no bar to a suit by judgment creditors of a city school board, whose claims are payable out of the school taxes, to require the city to account for the amount of such taxes collected and held in trust by it for the payment of the expenses of the public schools, where the bill was filed within 10 years after the judgments were rendered. Decree, 91 F. 574, 34 C. C. A. 15, modified.—City of New Orleans v. Fisher, 21 S. Ct. 347, 180 U. S. 185, 45 L. Ed. 485.

⚡103. — Repudiation or violation of trust.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 500, 506-510; 47 Cent. Dig. Trusts, § 570.

Where defendant held his brother's estate in trust during the latter's absence in Europe for many years, and invested and reinvested the income thereof in real estate, taking the title in his own name, though from time to time he rendered an account, but on the return of his brother failed and refused to surrender any portion of the property, such conduct amounted to a repudiation of the trust, and from that time the statute of limitations began to run in his favor.—Philippi v. Philippe, 115 U. S. 151, 5 S. Ct. 1181, 29 L. Ed. 336.

A mere change in the course of studies, contrary to the condition on which a Protestant Mission was transferred by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions to the Hawaiian government, viz., that the government should continue the same as an institution for the cultivation of sound literature and solid science, and should teach no religious tenet or doctrine contrary to those theretofore inculcated by the mission, as set forth in a confession of faith, the institution, in case of breach of such condition, to revert to the mission with an alternative, at the election of the government, to pay a stipulated sum, does not instantly operate to make the grantor of the property a claimant for money against whom the statute of limitations immediately begins to run.—Lowrey v. Territory of Hawaii, 30 S. Ct. 209, 215 U. S. 554, 54 L. Ed. 325.

The six years' limitation prescribed by Rev. Laws Minn. 1905, § 4076, for actions to enforce a trust, does not begin to run against the suit by a monastic brotherhood to enforce its ownership under the constitution of the order in the gains of a member until the latter's death, where there has been no repudiation of the trust.—Order of St. Benedict of New Jersey v. Steinhäuser, 34 S. Ct. 932, 234 U. S. 640, 58 L. Ed. 1512, 52 L. R. A. (N. S.) 459, affirming decree (C. C.) 179 F. 137, and reversing decree Steinhäuser v. Order of St. Benedict of New Jersey, 194 F. 289, 114 C. C. A. 249.

⚡104. Concealment of cause of action.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 511-513.

Where defendant, by fraudulently concealing from the trustee of a bankrupt estate the fact that large dividends had been declared and were due on certain stock of a corporation in which defendant was a director and manager, and which was among the assets of the bankrupt estate, and was thereby enabled to purchase it at much less than its real value, the two years' limitation of the bankrupt act (Rev. St. U. S. § 5057) does not begin to run in his favor, against a suit by an assignee of the trustee, until the discovery of the fraud.—Traer v. Clews, 115 U. S. 528, 6 S. Ct. 155, 29 L. Ed. 467, affirming Clews v. Traer, 10 N. W. 838.

(G) PENDENCY OF LEGAL PROCEEDINGS, INJUNCTION, STAY, OR WAR.

⚡105. Pendency of action or other proceeding.

See 23 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 514, 515; 23 Cent. Dig. Ex. & Ad. § 1762.

The cancellation and transfer of stock complained of occurred in 1853. The owner brought suit to recover her rights in 1861, which was not terminated until 1868. Complainant, claiming under the owner, commenced a second action for the same purpose in 1876, which was not terminated until 1882, and instituted the present action in the same year. Held, that the prescription of 10 years, applicable to personal actions generally (Civ. Code La. arts. 3536 [3501], 3544 [3508]), had not run.—St. Romes v. Levee Steam Cotton Press Co., 127 U. S. 614, 8 S. Ct. 1335, 32 L. Ed. 289.

Where lands within the sections donated by congress to a railroad company by grant in present were listed by the land department to a state as indemnity school lands, a right of action against the state's grantees accrued to the railroad company at the date of the filing of its map of definite location; and the running of the statute of limitations was not interrupted by the fact that during the delay the railroad company made many ineffectual efforts to induce the land department to reconsider and annul its action in listing the land to the state.—Curtner v. United States, 149 U. S. 662, 13 S. Ct. 985, 1041, 37 L. Ed. 890.

108. Pendency of arbitration.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 518.

The reference by the senate to the court of claims of a bill for the relief of a claimant does not invest that court with jurisdiction, relieved from the limitations prescribed by Rev. St. § 1069, or that of two years established by the captured and abandoned property act of March 12, 1863.—Ford v. United States, 116 U. S. 213, 6 S. Ct. 360, 29 L. Ed. 608.

114. Suspension of statute of limitations.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 524.

Act Cong. June 11, 1864 (13 Stat. 123), suspending the statute of limitations during the Rebellion as to any action accruing against a person who, because of the conflict, was beyond the reach of process, is not unconstitutional as applied to actions in the state courts as well as in the federal courts.—Mayfield v. Richards, 5 S. Ct. 1187, 115 U. S. 137, 29 L. Ed. 334.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 527, 528.

Running of limitations under Act March 3, 1891, § 8, for suits to annul patents to public lands, was interrupted by filing of bill and delivery of subpoenas to the marshal before the statute had run.—Linn & Lane Timber Co. v. United States, 35 S. Ct. 440, 236 U. S. 574, 59 L. Ed. 725, affirming decrees 196 F. 593, 116 C. O. A. 267, and 203 F. 394, 121 C. C. A. 498.

119. — Issuance and service of process.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 529-535.

Under Act Cong. June 30, 1864 (13 Stat. 215, c. 171, § 14), an action to recover duties illegally exacted must be "brought within 90 days after the decision of the secretary." Action was brought in the state court of New York, the summons being delivered to the sheriff within the 90 days, but not actually served until after their expiration. Held, that the state statute must control as to when the suit was "brought"; and that under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 99, providing that "an attempt to commence an action is deemed equivalent to the commencement thereof, * * * when the summons is delivered, with intent that it shall be actually served, to the sheriff," the action was not barred by the limitation of the federal statute.—Goldenberg v. Murphy, 108 U. S. 162, 2 S. Ct. 388, 27 L. Ed. 686.

122. Defects or irregularities in process or service.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 527, 533.

Rev. St. Wis. 1878, §§ 4239, 4240, relating to the commencement of an action so as to stop the running of the statute, provide that an action shall be deemed commenced as to each defendant when the summons is served on him, and that an attempt to commence an action shall be deemed equivalent to the commencement thereof, when the summons is delivered, with the intent that it shall be actually served, to the sheriff or other proper officer of the county in which defendant usually or last resided, or in case of a corporation to the proper officer of the county where its general business is transacted, but such an attempt must be followed by the first publication of summons, or the service thereof, within 60 days. Held, that the commencement of an action against a city by service of summons on an officer not authorized to receive it does not stop the running of the statute.—Knowlton v. City of Watertown, 130 U. S. 327, 9 S. Ct. 539, 32 L. Ed. 956; Id., 130 U. S. 334, 9 S. Ct. 542, 32 L. Ed. 956.

124. Intervention or bringing in new parties.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 541.

Where, in case of a bill in equity, brought by a judgment creditor of a bank, the litigation was conducted after the bill had been once amended, on the theory that all the creditors of the bank was included, although it was only by a second amendment, afterwards made, that the bill was made to allege expressly that it was brought on behalf of all the creditors, held, that the statute of limitations ceased to run, as against creditors becoming parties after the first amendment, from the time of that amendment.—Richmond v. Irons, 121 U. S. 27, 7 S. Ct. 788, 30 L. Ed. 864, affirming decree (C. C.) Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 27 F. 591.

Suit by United States to cancel patents to public lands for fraudulent entries is not barred because the statutory period elapsed after date of the patent before steps were taken to implead a corporation, the real owner of the land to which defendant secretly transferred the property.—Linn & Lane Timber Co. v. United States, 35 S. Ct. 440, 236 U. S. 574, 59 L. Ed. 725, affirming decrees 196 F. 593, 116 C. C. A. 267 and 203 F. 394, 121 C. C. A. 498.

125. Substitution of parties.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 542.

Amendment of petition in action by sole surviving parent in individual capacity to recover for death of her unmarried son, without stating new facts, setting up right to sue as personal representative under Employer's Liability Act April 22, 1908, is not the commencement of a new action within the two-year limitation prescribed by that statute.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wulf, 33 S. Ct. 135, 226 U. S. 570, 57 L. Ed. 355, Ann. Cas. 1914B, 134, affirming judgment 192 F. 919, 113 C. C. A. 665.

127. Amendment of pleadings.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 543-547; 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. § 663; 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, § 466; 39 Cent. Dig. Plead. § 688.

That a bill was not amended, so as to set forth matter taking the cause of action out of the prescription, until the period of prescription had expired, is not material, where defendant's answer states and admits the facts so set forth.—Johnson v. Waters, 111 U. S. 640, 4 S. Ct. 619, 28 L. Ed. 547.

A bill by a surviving partner to settle the partnership affairs is a separate and distinct proceeding from a suit subsequently brought by the same party to subject real estate of the deceased partner in the hands of his heirs to the payment of debts, and the statute of limitations cannot be avoided by styling the second bill a supplemental bill.—White v. Miller, 158 U. S. 128, 15 S. Ct. 788, 39 L. Ed. 921.

A petition in an action under Indian Depredation Act March 3, 1891, c. 538, 26 Stat.

851 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 758], in which the wrong was alleged to have been committed by a particular Indian tribe, cannot be amended after the three years' limitation prescribed by that act has expired, by stating another and different tribe as the wrongdoer, since it is manifestly intended by the statute, taken as a whole, that the tribe by whom the depredation was committed shall be joined in the petition where it can be identified, though it does not in terms provide for service of process upon such tribe.—United States v. Martinez, 25 S. Ct. 80, 195 U. S. 469, 49 L. Ed. 282.

Allegations in complaint in North Carolina court by employé for injuries by negligence of railroad operating interstate railway by defect in right of way in Virginia held to set forth cause of action under Employers' Liability Act, so that amendment stating defendant was engaged in interstate commerce did not introduce new cause of action barred by two years' limitation prescribed by section 6.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Renn, 36 S. Ct. 567, 241 U. S. 290, 60 L. Ed. 1006, affirming judgment (N. C.) Renn v. Seaboard Air Line Ry., 86 S. E. 964.

⚡130. New action after dismissal or nonsuit or failure of former action.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 539, 545, 553-566; 22 Cent. Dig. Ex. & Ad. § 1768.

Where a suit on a sealed contract is dismissed because, at the commencement thereof, the right of action was not in plaintiff, but in his assignee in bankruptcy, and it appears that the contract was bought at assignee's sale by a third person for plaintiff, but not assigned to him until after the suit thereon was commenced, such dismissal is not within the saving clause of the Mississippi statute of limitations (Code 1871, § 2163), providing that, if an action begun within the time allowed shall be abated "for any matter of form," plaintiff may commence a new suit within one year thereafter.—Meath v. Board of Mississippi Levee Com'rs, 109 U. S. 268, 3 S. Ct. 284, 27 L. Ed. 930.

A judgment in an action begun in the federal court within the seven years prescribed by the statute of limitations (Code Tenn. art. 2765), and dismissed because of the omission to plead a jurisdictional fact which actually existed, is a judgment against plaintiff, "not concluding his right of action," within the saving clause of Id. art. 2765, and a new action may be brought within one year thereafter.—Smith v. McNeal, 109 U. S. 426, 3 S. Ct. 319, 27 L. Ed. 966.

Act Cong. July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 19 (14 Stat. 152), declares that no suit shall be brought to recover taxes illegally exacted until an appeal has been made to the commissioner, and decided by him, "unless such suit shall be brought within six months from the time of said decision"; provided, that if the commissioner delays his decision more than six months, suit may be brought at any time within twelve months from the date of the appeal. Held, that the decision contemplated by the statute "is a decision on the merits, and not on the mere formal accuracy of the appeal; and where an appeal to the commissioner was dismissed for irregularity in the papers, and a second appeal was taken, the action could be brought within six months after the decision thereon.—James v. Hicks, 110 U. S. 272, 4 S. Ct. 6, 28 L. Ed. 144.

Although the proceeding by bill in equity, under Rev. St. U. S. § 491b, on the refusal of the commissioner of patents and the supreme court of the District of Columbia, on appeal, to grant an application for a patent, intends a suit, and is not a technical appeal from the patent office, yet the proceeding is necessarily a part of the application for the patent. Such a suit, therefore, not brought within two years after the dismissal of the petition on appeal from the commissioner to the supreme court of the District, is barred by the limitation provided by Rev. St. U. S. § 4894, for completing applications, where no excuse for the delay is set up in the bill, and none is shown in the proof, and it is not alleged in the bill that the delay was unavoidable.—Gandy v. Marble, 122 U. S. 432, 7 S. Ct. 1290, 30 L. Ed. 1223.

An amendment to a pleading which sets up a new and different cause of action does not relate back to the commencement of the suit, and such new cause is barred if the amendment is not made within the period fixed by the statute from the time it accrued.—Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. Wyler, 158 U. S. 285, 15 S. Ct. 877, 39 L. Ed. 983.

III. ACKNOWLEDGMENT, NEW PROMISE, AND PART PAYMENT.

⚡140. Acknowledgment or new promise.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 575-613, 630; 22 Cent. Dig. Ex. & Ad. § 801; 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 634.

⚡143. — Persons by whom made.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 578-583, 587; 22 Cent. Dig. Ex. & Ad. § 801; 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 634.

A letter, signed by the partnership name containing an acknowledgment of liability on a note made by the individual members, is sufficient, where the note, though in form that of the individual partners, is in reality a partnership obligation, and the firm is the agent of all the members.—Walsh v. Mayer, 111 U. S. 31, 4 S. Ct. 260, 28 L. Ed. 338.

A letter signed by a business firm, acknowledging a debt evidenced by a promissory note signed originally by the several members as individuals, is sufficient to take it out of the statute.—Id.

Gen. St. Kan. c. 80, art. 3, § 24, p. 634, providing that, in a case founded on contract, when "an acknowledgment of an existing liability, debt, or claim" shall have been made, an action may be brought within the period prescribed for the same, after such acknowledgment, if such acknowledgment was in writing, signed by the party to be charged thereby, requires, as interpreted by the Supreme Court of Kansas, that the acknowledgment, to be ineffective, be made, not to a stranger, but to the creditor, or to some one acting for or representing him.—City of Ft. Scott v. Hickman, 112 U. S. 150, 5 S. Ct. 56, 28 L. Ed. 636.

Acknowledgments, otherwise sufficient, under Rev. Civ. Code La. § 3520, to interrupt prescription when made by a possessor, may have that effect as against mortgagors by whose agent they are made, although made in connection with payments by him with money of one only on the joint mortgage debt.—Groves v. Sentell, 153 U. S. 465, 14 S. Ct. 898, 38 L. Ed. 785.

⚡145. — Form and requisites in general.

S. being indebted to T. on a promissory note secured by a deed of trust, executed an instrument to the following effect, after the note was barred by the statute of limitations: The writing began with a reference, by way of consideration only, to the original debt, designating it as "the indebtedness described in the deed of trust." A pledge then followed of a certain claim of S. against the national government, and its proceeds, to secure the payment of "said indebtedness, with interest thereon," etc.; the interest being mentioned, not as a part of the consideration, or of the original debt, or as anything for which S. was liable, but only as something to the payment of which the claim pledged should be applied. The writing concluded with a promise of S. that the proceeds of the claim pledged should "be applied to the payment of said indebtedness, with interest as aforesaid," etc. Held, that the instrument was not an express promise of S. to pay the note, nor an express acknowledgment of the note from which a promise to pay it might be inferred.—Shepherd v. Thompson, 122 U. S. 231, 7 S. Ct. 1229, 30 L. Ed. 1156.

146. — Requirement of writing.
See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 593-596.

Under the Code of Mississippi, declaring that in actions founded on contract no acknowledgment shall take any case out of the provisions of the limitation act, unless made in some writing signed by the party chargeable thereby, when the holder of a note wrote to the maker requiring security by insurance and the maker wrote the holder in answer, "We think you will run no risk in that time, as the property would be worth the amount due you if the building was to burn down," held, that the two letters contain sufficient acknowledgment under such Code.—Walsh v. Mayer, 4 S. Ct. 280, 111 U. S. 31, 28 L. Ed. 338.

148. — Sufficiency of acknowledgment or promise in general.
See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 597-603.

The holder of a note which was outlawed wrote to the makers, asking for insurance on the buildings mortgaged to secure the note, saying: "The amount you owe me on the $7,500 note is too large to be left in such an unprotected situation. I cannot consent to it." To which the makers replied: "We think you will run no risk, * * * as the property would be worth more than the amount due you if the building were to burn down." Held a sufficient acknowledgment to take the case out of the statute.—Walsh v. Mayer, 111 U. S. 31, 4 S. Ct. 280, 28 L. Ed. 338.

149. — Qualifications and conditions.
See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 604-605.

A committee of a city council, appointed to consider the city indebtedness, made a report containing a statement of the assets and liabilities of the city, and including among the latter a certain issue of bonds called "M. bonds." The report further proposed a plan of compromise to be made with the holders of city bonds, the proposal being made in the form of a circular, which the committee recommended "to be sent to each person holding city bonds, except M. bonds, as to which we make no report." The circular, by its terms, purported to be addressed "to each person holding bonds of the city," and requested "each bondholder to express his views fully." The city council adopted the report of the committee and ordered the circular to be sent to the holders of the city bonds; and it was so sent to holders of bonds other than M. bonds, but not to holders of the latter. Held, that neither the report nor the circular was an acknowledgment, under Gen. St. Kan. c. 80, art. 3, § 24, of the M. bonds as a debt of the city, so as to take them out of the statute of limitations.—City of Fort Scott v. Hickman, 112 U. S. 150, 5 S. Ct. 56, 28 L. Ed. 636.

150. — Certainty and definiteness.
See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 610-612.

An acknowledgment cannot be regarded as an admission of indebtedness, where the accompanying circumstances are such as to repel that inference, or to leave it in doubt whether the party intended to prolong the time of legal limitation.—City of Ft. Scott v. Hickman, 112 U. S. 150, 5 S. Ct. 56, 28 L. Ed. 636.

152. Part payment.
See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 622-643; 33 Cent. Dig. Ex. & Ad. § 801; 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 634.

155. — Persons by whom made.
See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 623-630; 33 Cent. Dig. Ex. & Ad. § 801, 1754; 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 634.

Where the wife of a member of the firm who were makers of the note sued on, on the death of her husband, incurred a liability for one-half the community debts, and among them the note in question, under Code La. arts. 2409, 2410, by failing to renounce the community of gains, nevertheless, as she is chargeable with a portion only of the debt, her liability is not an obligation in solido (articles 2082, 2091, 2092); and the provision of article 3552, that the acknowledgment of debt by one debtor in solido interrupts the prescription with regard to all the others, does not apply, and she may successfully plead the statute, notwithstanding partial payments by the surviving partners.—Henderson v. Wadsworth, 115 U. S. 264, 6 S. Ct. 40, 29 L. Ed. 377.

Where a wife in Oregon mortgages her separate property to secure a note given by her husband alone, and thereby, under the law of that state, becomes his surety in respect to the mortgaged lands, though not bound personally, and then dies before the debt matures, subsequent payments of interest by the husband before the statute of limitations has run against the note will keep the debt alive as to the surety.—Cross v. Allen, 141 U. S. 528, 12 S. Ct. 67, 35 L. Ed. 843, affirming decree (C. C.) Allen v. O'Donald, 28 F. 846.

157. — Sufficiency in general.
See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 631-634, 636.

Where a mother, indebted to her children, invests $45,000 for them, this act, taken in connection with the presumption that an advancement by a parent to a child to whom he is indebted is a payment of the debt pro tanto, constitutes a payment which will take the children's claims out of the statute of limitations.—Glover v. Patten, 17 S. Ct. 411, 165 U. S. 394, 41 L. Ed. 760.

IV. OPERATION AND EFFECT OF BAR BY LIMITATION.

State laws as rules of decision in federal courts, see Courts, 375.

167. Bar of debt as affecting security.
See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 651-653; 33 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1599.

Although a debt for unpaid purchase money is barred by limitation under the local law, the lien thereon on the land is not barred if there is no such open, adverse possession, for the period within which actions for the recovery of real estate must be brought, as will cut off the right to enforce the equitable lien for purchase money.—Hardin v. Boyd, 113 U. S. 756, 5 S. Ct. 771, 28 L. Ed. 1141.

171. Persons to whom bar is available.
See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 657, 658.

172. — In general.
See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 657.

A mortgage is simply an incident of the debt which it secures, and, where the debt has been withdrawn from the bar of the statute of limitations by being reduced to judgment, a grantee of the mortgaged property, who is not privy to the debt, cannot plead the statute against foreclosure proceedings.—Ewell v. Dags, 108 U. S. 143, 2 S. Ct. 408, 27 L. Ed. 682.

☞173. — Personal nature of defense.
See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 653.

The plea of the statute of limitations is personal, and in Georgia, where a first mortgage has been foreclosed, the second mortgagee, who was never in possession, never had the legal title, was not a party to the foreclosure proceedings, and stands simply on such rights as his mortgage gives him, cannot have the foreclosure and sale set aside, on the ground that the foreclosure proceedings were barred, if the mortgagor did not plea the bar of the statute in the foreclosure suit.—Sanger v. Nightingale, 122 U. S. 176, 7 S. Ct. 1109, 30 L. Ed. 1105.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. § 667; 23 Cent. Dig. Ex. & Ad. § 1810.

The allegation in a pleading that the defendant was absent from the state "for more than five years" cannot be treated as definitely describing a longer period than five years and one day.—Bauserman v. Blunt, 147 U. S. 647, 13 S. Ct. 466, 37 L. Ed. 316.

☞180. Demurrer or motion raising defense.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 670-675, 681; 23 Cent. Dig. Ex. & Ad. § 1855.

Rule that defendant cannot raise a question of limitations by general demurrer does not apply where shipper failed to file his claim within two years, allowed by Act June 29, 1906, § 5, and brought reparation suit against a carrier based on finding of Interstate Commerce Commission that an increase in freight rates was unreasonable.—A. J. Phillips Co. v. Grand Trunk Western Ry. Co., 35 S. Ct. 444, 236 U. S. 662, 59 L. Ed. 774, affirming judgment 195 F. 12, 115 C. C. A. 94.

☞182. — Necessity.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 676-680, 682, 695, 705; 17 Cent. Dig. Eject. § 232; 23 Cent. Dig. Ex. & Ad. § 1855.

Act Ga. March 16, 1869 (Pamph. Laws 1869, p. 133) § 6, which provides "that all other actions on contracts, express or implied, or on any debt or liability whatsoever to the public or a corporation, or a private individual or individuals, which accrued prior to June 1, 1865, and are not now barred, shall be brought by January 1, 1870, or both the right and right of action to enforce it shall be forever barred," is not a peremptory discharge of the debt, but is a mere statute of limitations, which, to be available, must be pleaded.—Sanger v. Nightingale, 122 U. S. 176, 7 S. Ct. 1109, 30 L. Ed. 1105.

The general rule that limitation does not operate by its own force as a bar, but is a defense, and that the party making such a defense must plead the statute if he wishes the benefit of its provisions, has no application to suits in the court of claims against the United States.—Finn v. United States, 123 U. S. 227, 8 S. Ct. 82, 31 L. Ed. 128.

Where the defense of prescription is not pleaded, in an action to foreclose a mortgage, by a party in whose favor it exists, he will thereafter be estopped from setting up any claim by virtue of the prescription law.—Shields v. Shift, 124 U. S. 351, 8 S. Ct. 510, 31 L. Ed. 445, affirming judgment 36 La. Ann. 644.

Prescription of an action to claim filiation under limitations imposed by Civ. Code Porto Rico 1889, art. 137, and Act March 1, 1902, § 199, must be pleaded.—Burnet v. Desmornes y Alvarez, 38 S. Ct. 63, 226 U. S. 145, 57 L. Ed. 159.

☞183. — Sufficiency of denials and allegations.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 683-695; 5 Cent. Dig. Assumpsit, § 75.

Where the complaint does not state any facts to show the application of the limitation of the statute set up in the plea, and the plea itself does not state such facts, it is bad on demurrer.—Alexander v. Bryan, 110 U. S. 414, 4 S. Ct. 107, 28 L. Ed. 195.

☞193. Issues, proof, and variance.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 704-710; 17 Cent. Dig. Eject. § 232.

After a defendant has been refused leave to plead the statute of limitations, the statute cannot be shown in evidence, since it only constitutes a defense when pleaded.—Gormley v. Bunyan, 138 U. S. 623, 11 S. Ct. 453, 34 L. Ed. 1086.

☞199. Questions for jury.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 737-739.

Rev. St. Wis. 1858, c. 138, § 27, provides that "an attempt to commence an action shall be deemed equivalent to the commencement thereof, within the meaning of this chapter" (the statute of limitations) "where the summons is delivered, with intent that it shall be actually served, to the sheriff, or other proper officer." On May 11th the attorney filed with the clerk the præcipe in an action which would be barred after May 13th, and immediately went to the marshal's office, in the same building, and told him that there was a summons in the case in the clerk's office for service. The summons was dated May 11th, and the clerk testified that he presumed it was made on the day of its date, and knew nothing to the contrary; that his custom was to issue the summons the same day the præcipe was filed, and he had no recollection of ever having neglected to do so; that there was a box in his office in which he usually placed writs waiting for the marshal, and the latter usually got them therefrom on his way to and from his office; that the practice was to put writs in the box on the day of issuance, but witness sometimes delivered them to the attorney to take them to the marshal, and sometimes, if the marshal did not come in immediately, took them to him. Held, that the questions whether the box was duly designated by the marshal for the deposit of process to be served by him, and whether the summons was either deposited in the box or was delivered to the marshal within the statutory period, were for the jury.—Michigan Ins. Bank v. Eldred, 130 U. S. 693, 9 S. Ct. 690, 32 L. Ed. 1080.

☞201. Verdict and findings.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lim. of Act. §§ 733, 734.

In the absence of a statutory rule to the contrary, the defense of a statute of limitations, which is not raised either in pleading or on the trial, or before judgment, cannot be availed of; and a finding by the court that the action is barred is erroneous.—Retzer v. Wood, 109 U. S. 185, 3 S. Ct. 164, 27 L. Ed. 900.

In an action by a creditor to set aside a trust deed given to secure three persons by a corporation, two of the three filed a cross-bill praying that the trust deed might be held valid as to them but void as to the third. The defendant in the cross-bill, being nonresident, was served with an order to appear and plead to the original and cross-bills, and thereafter assigned his interest in the trust deed. Held, that the purchaser was bound by the decree.—Mellen v. Moline Malleable Iron Works, 131 U. S. 352, 9 S. Ct. 781, 33 L. Ed. 178.

The pendency of a suit in a federal court to foreclose a second mortgage on railroad property, to which neither the trustee under the first mortgage nor the bondholders were parties, though the property was in the custody of the court through its receivers, did not operate by way of lis pendens to prevent the acquiring of a lien on the property under the first mortgage by a bona fide purchaser of bonds secured thereby; nor will a sale in such suit divest the lien of the bond purchaser, where the decree is expressly without prejudice to the rights of prior lienholders.—Pittsburgh, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Long Island Loan & Trust Co., 19 S. Ct. 238, 172 U. S. 493, 43 L. Ed. 528.

◀4. Property subject to lis pendens.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lis Pen. §§ 9-11.

The pendency of a suit for an injunction and the issue therein of a temporary injunction, afterwards made permanent, against the issue of negotiable municipal bonds by officers of the municipality, does not affect the title of a bona fide holder of the bonds for value, taking them after issue of the temporary injunction.—Carroll County Sup'rs v. Smith, 111 U. S. 556, 4 S. Ct. 539, 28 L. Ed. 517.

The doctrine of lis pendens does not apply to negotiable paper, transferred before due, in due course of business, for value.—Town of Enfield v. Jordan, 119 U. S. 680, 7 S. Ct. 358, 30 L. Ed. 523.

The owner of land conveyed it to his nephew in fraud of creditors, and the nephew conveyed it to I. without consideration. I. mortgaged the land to plaintiff, who foreclosed and bought in the property at the foreclosure sale. Shortly after the original owner conveyed, one of his creditors attached the land, and, having obtained judgment, bought in the land at the sheriff's sale. This purchase was after the execution of plaintiff's mortgage, but before the foreclosure sale. Held that, since the local law declared conveyances in fraud of creditors absolutely void, the attachment was properly levied on the land as the property of the original owner, and plaintiff, having purchased during the pendency of the attachment proceedings, took title subject to the result of that suit, and was cut off by the sale therein.—Thompson v. Baker, 141 U. S. 648, 12 S. Ct. 89, 35 L. Ed. 889.

Code Iowa 1873, § 1940, provides that no vendor's lien shall be recognized or enforced, after a conveyance by the vendee, unless such lien is reserved by an instrument duly acknowledged and recorded, or unless such conveyance is made after suit brought by the vendor to enforce such lien. Section 2628 provides that, when a petition has been filed affecting real estate the action is pending so as to charge third persons with notice of its pendency, and while pending no interest can be acquired by third persons, as against the plaintiff's title, if the real estate affected be situated in the county where the petition is filed. Held that, where a petition to establish and enforce a vendor's lien was filed in the county where the land was situated, the lien was not defeated by a conveyance made by the vendee subsequent to such filing in pursuance of an agreement of purchase made prior thereto, although delivery of process to the sheriff, and service thereof, were not made until after such conveyance, especially as it was apparent that the grantee therein was not deprived, against his will, of protection for purchase money paid by him before notice of the lien.—Fisher v. Shropshire, 147 U. S. 133, 13 S. Ct. 201, 37 L. Ed. 109.

Where the attorney for plaintiff, in an action to enforce a decree in partition, purchases an interest in the property from his client, after a default decree against defendant, he takes subject to the liability of having the decree opened and defendant allowed to defend, and to any judgment that may be rendered on such defense.—Gay v. Parpart, 106 U. S. 679, 1 S. Ct. 456, 27 L. Ed. 258.

Plaintiff, in an action to quiet title, conveyed the premises, pending the suit to a purchaser for value, who had no knowledge that the suit was pending. No notice of the pendency of the suit was filed, as required by the local statute. Held, that the purchaser was not chargeable with notice of defendant's claims.—Smith v. Gale, 144 U. S. 509, 12 S. Ct. 674, 36 L. Ed. 521, affirming judgment Gale v. Shillock, 29 N. W. 661, 4 Dak. 182, and Same v. Frazier, 130 N. W. 138, 4 Dak. 196.

◀15. — Actions in which notice is authorized.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lis Pen. § 24.

A suit in equity to enforce a judgment upon real property which, though standing upon the public records in the name of another than the judgment debtor, is alleged to have been paid for with his money, resulting in a decree that such judgment debtor is the owner of the equitable and beneficial title, is within the scope of the Mortgage Law Porto Rico, art. 42, which, in order to protect innocent purchasers pendente lite, provides for the giving of a cautionary notice in suits for the ownership of real property, or for the creation, declaration, modification, or extinction of any property right.—Romeu v. Todd, 27 S. Ct. 724, 206 U. S. 358, 51 L. Ed. 1093.

The local statutory law of real property, requiring the giving and recording of cautionary notice of a pending suit in order to affect innocent third parties dealing with the recorded owner, is applicable to a suit brought on the equity side of the United States District Court of Porto Rico, in view of the provision of Act April 12, 1900, c. 191, § 8, 31 Stat. 79, continuing in force the local laws not inconsistent with the laws of the United States, although by section 34 the District Court of the United States for Porto Rico is given, in addition to the ordinary jurisdiction of Federal District Courts, jurisdiction of all cases cognizant in the Federal Circuit Courts, with power to proceed therein in the same manner as a Circuit Court.—Id.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lis Pen. §§ 33-40, 42-46.

The state of Florida placed in the hands of trustees certain of its public lands to be pledged as security for bonds of a railroad which the state desired to aid. Subsequently, a bondholder obtained an injunction forbidding the trustees from conveying certain of the lands to the defendant corporation, alleging such action would be waste. The trustees made the conveyance in spite of the injunction, and the corporation mortgaged the lands to plaintiff. Held, that the deed of the trustees being pendente lite, the grantee therein, and its mortgagee, the plaintiff, were bound by the decree avoiding the deed.—Union Trust Co. v. Southern Inland Nav. & Imp. Co., 130 U. S. 565, 9 S. Ct. 606, 32 L. Ed. 1043.

The pendency of a suit to subject real property registered in the name of an alleged fraudulent grantee to the payment of a judgment against the grantor does not create a defect in the title, or engender a lien on the property, so as to make applicable the doctrine of the Spanish and Porto Rican courts that one who acquires a right in or to property with knowledge of a defective title or of an existing lien is not an innocent third party, and is not entitled to rights which depend for their existence upon that relation.—Todd v. Romeu, 80 S. Ct. 474, 217 U. S. 150, 54 L. Ed. 705.

Knowledge of the pendency of a suit to subject real property registered in the name of an alleged fraudulent grantee to the payment of a judgment against the grantor, and of the right to apply to the court for the statutory cautionary notice, does not deprive a purchaser having such knowledge of the attitude of an innocent third party, and subject the property in his hands to a responsibility for the result of the suit to the extent which would have been the case had such notice been demanded and recorded.—Id.

A purchaser of real property pendente lite stands in no better position than its vendor, the complainant in such suit.—Lewers & Cooke v. Atcherly, 32 S. Ct. 94, 222 U. S. 285, 56 L. Ed. 202.

625. — Persons bound by judgment or decree.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Lis Pen. §§ 47-57.

Under Code, art. 2453, forbidding the alienation of property pending a suit in reference thereto, one who obtains a sheriff's deed through the enforcement of a mortgage, pending an action by a third person to recover the lands from the mortgagor, takes subject to the result of such action, and may be ejected by a writ of possession, notwithstanding that his mortgage was on record at the commencement of the action, and that he was not made a party thereto.—Lacassagne v. Chapuis, 144 U. S. 119, 12 S. Ct. 659, 36 L. Ed. 368.

A purchaser of negotiable county bonds in good faith and for value after a suit on the interest coupons attached thereto has been brought, not having notice of that suit, will not be concluded by the judgment, although the issue as to the validity of the coupons may have incidentally involved inquiry as to the validity of the bonds.—Presidio County v. Noel-Young Bond & Stock Co., 29 S. Ct. 237, 212 U. S. 58, 53 L. Ed. 402.

The doctrine of lis pendens applies to a corporation to which the defendant, in a suit brought in a federal court sitting in another state, conveys his water rights within the state in an interstate stream, which are the subject of the litigation, with the intent to evade the jurisdiction of that court.—(1910) Rickey Land & Cattle Co. v. Miller & Lux, 31 S. Ct. 11, 218 U. S. 258, 54 L. Ed. 1032, affirming decrees (1907) 152 F. 11, 22, 81 C. C. A. 207, 218.

In an action to establish a lost deed, alleged to have been executed by A. to B., it appeared that A. had contracted to deed a large tract of land to B., but, on the title being alleged to be defective to the larger part thereof, he gave B. a deed only of the other part, estimated to be 200 acres; that subsequently B. sold the whole tract to C., A. joining in the conveyance of the larger part, and B., in A.'s presence, executing a deed of the part previously conveyed by A., which B. testified contained the same description as in the prior deed from A. to B.; that C. took possession of the land, which was unimproved, by ranging his cattle thereon; and that A. for 30 years did not dispute C.'s title. Held, that the lost deed was sufficiently established, the circumstances being irreconcilable with the view that the title was left outstanding Acts La. 1868, No. 25, established the Louisiana State Lottery Company as a corporation, declaring that it should pay the state $40,000 per annum, and be exempt from all other taxes and licenses from the state, parish, or municipal authorities, and that it should have the sole and exclusive privilege of establishing and authorizing a lottery, selling tickets, and disposing of property by lottery. This was repealed by Acts La. 1879, No. 44, which took effect March 31st. Article 167, Const. La. 1879, which went into operation in December, 1879, assuming that the charter of 1868 was still in force, gave the general assembly authority to grant lottery charters and privileges, and declared that "the charter of said company is recognized as a contract binding on the state, * * * except its monopoly clause, which is hereby abrogated." Held, that the constitution repealed the act of 1879, so far as that act repealed the act of 1868, and revived the act of 1868, except the monopoly abrogated.—City of New Orleans v. Houston, 119 U. S. 285, 7 S. Ct. 198, 30 L. Ed. 411.

The monopoly abrogated was the exclusive lottery franchise only, and not the exemption from taxation, even if that exemption from taxation might be practically operative as a monopoly, since the monopoly by reason of the exemption, is not one derived from any clause of the charter as granted in the year 1868, but is one created by the constitution itself.—Id.

C. § 1177, making it a crime in any manner to engage in any gift enterprise business in the District, by the provisions of section 1176, disapproving and repealing the earlier legislation for the licensing of gift enterprises, and declaring it thereafter to be unlawful for any person or persons to engage in said business in any manner, as defined in the re-

The A. Company, having by its charter a monopoly of the slaughtering business in and around New Orleans, brought suit in the United States circuit court against the B. Company, to restrain it from carrying on the same business, which the latter claimed a right to do under the provisions of Const. La. 1879, §§ 248, 258, vesting the regulation of the business in municipalities, and abolishing the monopoly features thereof. The circuit court gave judgment in favor of the A. Company, but, upon appeal to the United States supreme court, this judgment was reversed. Held, that the judgment of the circuit court was sufficient evidence of probable cause for the suit to prevent the maintenance of an action for malicious prosecution on account thereof, brought by the B. Company, against the A. Company in the state courts; and that the fact that, before the beginning of the suit in the United States circuit court, the state courts had decided against the A. Company in a suit brought by it against the city of New Orleans, to restrain the city from proceeding under the new constitutional provisions, did not alter the case.—*Crescent City Live Stock Landing & Slaughter House Co. v. V. ACTIONS.

56. Presumptions and burden of proof.

In action for malicious prosecution, the burden of proving malice and want of probable cause rests on plaintiff.—(Sup., D. C., 1912) Brown v. Selfridge, 32 S. Ct. 444, 224 U. S. 189, 56 L. Ed. 727, affirming judgment (1910) 34 App. D. C. 242; (C. C., Mo., 1899) Ambs v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 114 F. 317.

I. NATURE AND GROUNDS IN GENERAL.

❧1. Nature and scope of remedy in general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 1-3; 1 Cent. Dig. Action, § 115.

Mandamus is not a writ of right. It issues to remedy a wrong, not to promote one, and will not be granted in aid of those who do not come into court with clean hands.—(1911) United States ex rel. Turner v. Fisher, 32 S. Ct. 37, 222 U. S. 204, 56 L. Ed. 165, affirming judgment (1909) Same v. Garfield, 33 App. D. C. 195.

❧3. Existence and adequacy of other remedy in general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 8, 10, 11, 16-24.

A mandamus should not be granted to compel an officer of the state of Virginia to receive, in payment of taxes due to the state, coupons of bonds of the state made receivable for taxes by Act Va. March 30, 1871, under which they were issued; as Act Va. Jan. 14, 1882, affords an adequate remedy to taxpayers required to pay money instead of such coupons.—Moore v. Greenhow, 114 U. S. 338, 5 S. Ct. 1020, 29 L. Ed. 240.

Plaintiff had judgment in the supreme court of the District of Columbia for damages and costs, but nothing was said of interest. On appeal the supreme court of the United States affirmed the judgment, and its mandate directed "that such execution and proceedings be had as, according to right and justice and the laws of the United States, ought to be had." On motion of plaintiff in the court below, judgment was entered up for interest on the original judgment from its date. Held that, the interest not being sufficient in amount for the appellate jurisdiction of the supreme court of the United States, mandamus will lie to the supreme court of the District to compel it to vacate the judgment therefor.—Ex parte Washington & G. R. Co., 140 U. S. 91, 11 S. Ct. 673, 35 L. Ed. 339.

On petition for a writ of mandamus by a board of county commissioners to compel the clerk of the board to recognize them as such and to perform his duties, the clerk's answer that petitioners were not duly elected commissioners, but that other persons were, does not so involve their title to office as that the writ should be refused on the ground that there is an adequate remedy at law in quo warranto proceedings.—Delgado v. Chavez, 140 U. S. 586, 11 S. Ct. 874, 35 L. Ed. 578, affirming judgment 5 N. M. 646, 25 P. 948.

Right to require by mandamus that petitioner have access to depositions and exhibits containing material evidence on file in an action in the federal District Court which was sealed by order of that court is not defeated by an order not appealed from rejecting motion for leave to inspect on the ground that it was made in the original case, and that he was not a party to it, nor by denial of government's motion to vacate the order to which denial exceptions were taken, which have not yet been heard.—Ex parte Uppercu, 36 S. Ct. 140, 239 U. S. 435, 60 L. Ed. 368.

❧4. Remedy by appeal or writ of error.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 9-21, 24-24.

A writ of mandamus cannot be used to bring up for review an order of the circuit court vacating and dismissing a writ of replevin on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction. Such order is a final judgment, and subject to review only on a writ of error.—Ex parte Baltimore & O. R. Co., 108 U. S. 566, 2 S. Ct. 876, 27 L. Ed. 812.

The owners of a steamship which had collided with and sunk a steam yacht instituted proceedings in the district court for Massachusetts for limitation of liability in accordance with Rev. St. § 4284, and an order issued restraining the prosecution of suits by damage claimants "except in these proceedings." Thereafter the master of the steam yacht libeled the steamship company and the steamship in the district court of the Southern district of New York, which court dismissed the libel as "improperly filed." Held, that the libel was dismissed after a hearing on the merits, and that the supreme court would not by mandamus direct the district court to vacate the order of dismissal, to reinstate the cause, and to proceed on the libel, since the decision of the lower court could not be controlled by mandamus, nor could mandamus be used as a writ of error.—Morrison v. District Court of United States for Southern District of New York, 147 U. S. 14, 13 S. Ct. 246, 37 L. Ed. 60.

Mandamus should not be granted to vacate the order of dismissal, and reinstate and try the cause when the libel was dismissed for want of jurisdiction, since the libelant had a remedy by direct appeal to the supreme court on the question of jurisdiction, under Act March 3, 1891, c. 517, § 5 (26 Stat. 827), if the jurisdiction of the district court was in issue in that court, or by appeal to the circuit court of appeals, under section 6, if such jurisdiction was not in issue.—Id.

The action of a district judge discharging, on habeas corpus, a person held under state process to answer for acts done in pursuance of a law of the United States, though reviewable on appeal, cannot be controlled by mandamus.—Commonwealth of Virginia v. Paul, 148 U. S. 107, 13 S. Ct. 536, 37 L. Ed. 386.

Although an appeal might be taken from the circuit court because of its error in treating the decision of the supreme court, reversing the decree for error in certain items of the accounting, as a reversal in all respects, and in admitting new testimony on questions other than the accounting, yet where such remedy is inadequate, because of the unavoidable delay, the supreme court may correct the error by mandamus to the circuit court.—Gaines v. Caldwell, 148 U. S. 228, 13 S. Ct. 611, 37 L. Ed. 432.

Though the judiciary act of 1789, § 13 (Rev. St. § 688), empowers the supreme court to issue writs of mandamus "in cases warranted by the principles and usages of law to any courts appointed under the authority of the United States," such writ cannot be used to perform the office of an appeal or writ of error to review the judicial action of an inferior court, especially when it is an interlocutory order of which a review is sought.—American Const. Co. v. Jacksonville, T. & K. W. Ry. Co., 148 U. S. 372, 13 S. Ct. 758, 37 L. Ed. 486.

Mandamus will lie from the supreme court of the United States to compel a circuit court to take cognizance of a cause in which proper service has been made, but which it has wrongfully dismissed for want of service or power to make service in the district, when the order of dismissal is not appealable because it does not dispose of the case as to all the defendants.—In re Hohorst, 150 U. S. 653, 14 S. Ct. 221, 37 L. Ed. 1211.

Mandamus will not issue to an inferior court to dismiss a bill for want of jurisdiction where the petitioner will have a remedy by appeal should a decree pass against him.—In re Atlantic City R. Co., 17 S. Ct. 208, 164 U. S. 633, 41 L. Ed. 579.

Writ of error, and not mandamus, is the proper remedy to correct the action of a state court in failing to give full effect to a mandate from the supreme court of the United States by mistaking or misconstruing its judgment.—In re Blake, 20 S. Ct. 42, 175 U. S. 114, 44 L. Ed. 94, denying leave to file petition for mandamus, McClung v. Embreeville Freehold, Land, Iron & Railway Co., 52 S. W. 1001, 103 Tenn. 399.

The decision by an inferior court upon any matter left open by the mandate and opinion of the higher court can be reviewed only upon a new appeal, and not by mandamus.—Ex parte Union Steamboat Co., 20 S. Ct. 904, 178 U. S. 317, 44 L. Ed. 1084.

A writ of mandamus will not be granted to compel the dismissal of a suit by the circuit court of the United States for want of jurisdiction, where the writ of prohibition is denied on the ground that there is an adequate remedy by appeal.—In re Huguley Mfg. Co., 22 S. Ct. 455, 184 U. S. 297, 46 L. Ed. 549.

Mandamus cannot be used as a substitute for an appeal or writ of error to correct the error, if any, committed by a federal Circuit Court in denying a motion to remand, which presented for decision the question whether there was in the case a controversy wholly between citizens of different states, to the complete determination of which the state, though named as a party plaintiff, was not a necessary party.—Ex parte State of Nebraska, 28 S. Ct. 581, 209 U. S. 436, 52 L. Ed. 876.

The refusal of a federal Circuit Court to remand a civil cause to the state court whence it had been removed as presenting a separable controversy between citizens of different states cannot be reviewed by mandamus, which may not be used to perform the office of an appeal or writ of error.—Ex parte Harding, 31 S. Ct. 324, 219 U. S. 363, 55 L. Ed. 252, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 392.

Mandamus is the proper remedy where a single Federal judge, in violation of Act June 18, 1910, c. 309, § 17, 36 Stat. 557, vacates a temporary restraining order suspending on constitutional grounds the enforcement of a state statute by restraining the action of a state officer thereunder, and denies an application for an interlocutory injunction, since this section makes no provision for any appeal from an order of this character made by a single judge, and a right of appeal is not otherwise given by statute.—Ex parte Metropolitan Water Co. of West Virginia, 31 S. Ct. 600, 220 U. S. 539, 55 L. Ed. 575.

Mandamus will not issue to revise a ruling of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, sustaining on a hearing on the merits a motion to strike out the bill of exception because not prepared in conformity with the rules of the court, because its action if erroneous is an error committed in the exercise of judicial discretion, reviewable only by writ of error.—Ex parte First Nat. Bank of Dexter, N. Y., 33 S. Ct. 591, 228 U. S. 516, 57 L. Ed. 946.

Mandamus will not lie to review the ruling of a federal Circuit Judge designating under Judicial Code (Act March 3, 1911, c. 231) § 14, 36 Stat. 1089 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1911, p. 132), another judge in place of a District Judge, who certified his withdrawal from bankruptcy proceedings on filing of an affidavit under section 21 charging him with personal bias and prejudice.—Ex parte American Steel Barrel Co., 33 S. Ct. 1007, 230 U. S. 35, 57 L. Ed. 1379.

Refusal of a federal district judge to remand to the state court a suit against a federal corporation involving the requisite amount, and removable, unless made otherwise by the fact that it arose under the Employers' Liability Act of April 22, 1908, cannot be reviewed by mandamus.—Ex parte Roe, 34 S. Ct. 722, 234 U. S. 70, 58 L. Ed. 1217.

◀10. Nature and existence of rights to be protected or enforced.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 37.

An adjudication of bankruptcy against a tunnel company on a petition alleging that such company was "engaged in the business of building and contracting" calls for a decision of a question of fact, or of mixed law and fact, as to whether the principal business of such company was that of manufacturing, and contracting for such manufacturing, so as to be within the purview of Bankr. Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 4b, 30 Stat. 547 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3423), as amended by Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 3, 32 Stat. 797 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1907, p. 1025), which decision cannot be reviewed by mandamus.—In re Riggs, 29 S. Ct. 598, 214 U. S. 9, 53 L. Ed. 887.

Proof that the enrollment of certain persons as Creek freedmen was procured by fraud defeats the right to compel the Secretary of the Interior by mandamus to restore their names to the rolls; even though such names have been arbitrarily stricken therefrom without the notice and opportunity for hearing essential to due process of law.—(1911) United States ex rel. Turner v. Fisher, 32 S. Ct. 37, 222 U. S. 204, 56 L. Ed. 165, affirming judgment (1909) Same v. Garfield, 33 App. D. C. 195.

14. Demand and default.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 44-45.

A demand is not necessary before bringing suit by mandamus to compel a board of county commissioners to levy a tax to satisfy judgments on county bonds, where it is averred that it is clearly the purpose of the board not to perform the duty imposed upon it by such judgments. Judgment, Territory v. Board of Com'rs of Santa Fé County (N. M. 1907) 89 P. 252, affirmed.—Board of Com'rs of Santa Fé County v. Territory of New Mexico ex rel. Coler, 30 S. Ct. 111, 215 U. S. 296, 54 L. Ed. 202.

15. Defenses and grounds of opposition in general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 47, 49.

Mandamus will not lie to compel a public officer to do a particular thing which his superior in authority has lawfully ordered him not to do.—Butterworth v. United States, 112 U. S. 50, 5 S. Ct. 25, 28 L. Ed. 656.

16. Mandamus ineffectual or not beneficial.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 48, 50, 60.

Defendant railroad company, having a discretion as to the location of the route of its road, constructed its road through Y., an established county seat, and stopped its trains there, but did not build a station. After completing its road four miles further, to North Y., it there erected a station, and ceased to stop its trains at Y. On an application for a mandamus to compel defendant to erect and maintain a station at Y., and stop its trains there, it appeared that North Y. had become by far the most important town in the county, and that the surrounding community were better accommodated by a station at that place; that a station at Y. would not pay expenses; that there were other stations on the road furnishing sufficient facilities for the country south of North Y.; and that North Y. had been made the county seat by act of the legislature. Held, mandamus being predicated upon the facts existing at the time of rendering judgment, that it was erroneously issued; the facts not bringing the case within the power of the court to grant relief.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Territory of Washington, 142 U. S. 492, 12 S. Ct. 283, 35 L. Ed. 1092, reversing judgment 8 Wash. T. 303, 13 P. 604.

21. Persons entitled to relief.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 54-55.

23. — Interest in subject-matter.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 55-58.

After the giving of a supersedeas in the usual form, a judgment of the circuit court was affirmed by the United States supreme court. On the coming down of the mandate, which was also in the usual form, a motion was made, on notice, for judgment against the defendant and his sureties, and a demurrer thereto by the sureties was overruled. The sureties then offered a plea of partial payment, but the court refused to allow it to be filed, and entered judgment against both principal and sureties. The sureties thereupon obtained a writ of error from the circuit court of appeals, but the same was dismissed because the principal did not join in it, and there was no summons and severance, or equivalent proceeding. The sureties then applied to the supreme court for a writ of mandamus to review the action of the circuit court. Held that, as they were not parties to the original judgment or the writ of error thereon, they were not so concerned in the mandate as to be entitled to have it reviewed by writ of mandamus.—Ex parte Humes, 149 U. S. 192, 13 S. Ct. 836, 37 L. Ed. 698.

II. SUBJECTS AND PURPOSES OF RELIEF.

(A) ACTS AND PROCEEDINGS OF COURTS, JUDGES, AND JUDICIAL OFFICERS.

26. Exercise of judicial powers and functions in general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 62.

Where a circuit court dismisses an action of replevin for want of jurisdiction on account of the amount involved, and orders a return of the property, and renders judgment for damages, the supreme court cannot grant mandamus to reverse such judgment and order; the amount in controversy being too small for a writ of error.—In re Burdett, 127 U. S. 771, 8 S. Ct. 1394, 32 L. Ed. 321.

Mandamus will not lie to compel a federal Circuit Court to remand to a state court a cause which the Circuit Court has refused to remand to the state court because of the opinion that the case presents a controversy between the removing defendant and the plaintiff which can be fully determined between them without the presence of the other defendants.—In re Pollitz, 27 S. Ct. 729, 206 U. S. 323, 51 L. Ed. 1081.

The denial by a federal Circuit Court of a motion to remand a cause to a state court, because of the opinion that the grounds of the motion, viz., that the suit was to recover a penalty, and was not therefore one of a civil nature, that the petition and record did not show that the suit was sought to be removed to the circuit court for the district in which either plaintiff or defendant resided, and that the defendant did not specifically pray for the removal of the cause, are not well founded, cannot be reviewed by mandamus.—Ex parte Gruetter, 30 S. Ct. 690, 217 U. S. 586, 54 L. Ed. 892.

28. Matters of discretion.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 64.

On an application for a writ of mandamus to compel a circuit judge to pay to petitioner a sum of money deposited in court, petitioner alleged that such money was paid into court as attorney's fees in a certain suit in which he was attorney for plaintiff, and that, by the terms of the decree rendered in said suit, he was the absolute and unconditional owner of said attorney's fees. The return stated that, upon application for such money, it had been adjudged that neither by the terms of the decree nor the justice of the case was petitioner entitled to the money until he had prosecuted said suit to a final decree. Held, that the petitioner was not entitled to the writ.—Ex parte Hughes, 114 U. S. 147, 5 S. Ct. 823, 29 L. Ed. 184.

Mandamus will not lie to compel a lower court to decide a matter before it in a particular way, or to review any action taken by it in the exercise of a legitimate jurisdiction.—In re Parsons, 150 U. S. 150, 14 S. Ct. 50, 37 L. Ed. 1034.

Though the discretion of a judge in a matter intrusted to his judicial discretion cannot be controlled by mandamus, yet, if he declines to exercise his discretion, or to act at all, mandamus will lie to compel him to act.—Hudson v. Parker, 156 U. S. 277, 15 S. Ct. 450, 39 L. Ed. 424.

33. Intervention or substitution of parties.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 76.

Mandamus is the proper remedy to compel a court to bring in a party to an action, when it has erroneously declined to make him a party on the ground that it has no jurisdiction to do so.—Ex parte Connaway, 20 S. Ct. 951, 178 U. S. 421, 44 L. Ed. 1134.

The federal supreme court will not revise by mandamus the exercise by a District Court of its discretion when retaining a case for an actual experiment with telephone rates fixed by a municipality after its decree enjoining such ordinance as confiscatory had been reversed without prejudice in refusing to permit a telephone subscriber to intervene as representative of a class under Equity Rule 38; he acting for all other subscribers as to restitution of the sums collected in excess of the rates fixed pending the injunction.—In re Engelhard & Sons Co., 34 S. Ct. 258, 231 U. S. 646, 58 L. Ed. 416.

638. Receivers and sequestration.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 83.

Mandamus will not lie to compel a circuit judge to decide in a particular way an application by receivers of a railway company for authority to enter into an agreement for the partial readjustment of the affairs of the company.—In re Rice, 155 U. S. 396, 15 S. Ct. 149, 39 L. Ed. 198.

A decree made by the circuit court on a summary application by receivers of a railway company, after proper notice to the parties interested, will not be interfered with by mandamus.—Id.

643. Dismissal or nonsuit, and reinstatement.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 83, 89.

Mandamus will not issue to compel a federal judge to dismiss, for lack of jurisdiction, a suit which he certifies that he is satisfied involves a controversy within the jurisdiction of the court, brought by a nonresident transferee of shares in an insolvent corporation, for the benefit of all the shareholders, to have a receiver appointed and the company wound up, although the transfer, while absolute, was made when the corporation was insolvent, and for the purpose of bringing the suit.—In re Cleland, 30 S. Ct. 647, 218 U. S. 120, 54 L. Ed. 962.

644. Change of venue and transfer of causes.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 90, 91; 43 Cent. Dig. Rem. of C. §§ 196, 233.

Petitioner had caused a suit to be removed from a state court, and, the case having been remanded, asked leave to file a petition for mandamus to the circuit court to set aside its order remanding the case, on the ground that the complaint on which he relied to show his right to a removal was not before the court. Held, that the supreme court had no power to grant the mandamus.—In re Sherman, 124 U. S. 364, 8 S. Ct. 505, 31 L. Ed. 423.

When a federal circuit court has unlawfully taken jurisdiction of a prosecution commenced in a state court against a federal revenue officer, the supreme court of the United States will award a writ of mandamus directing the judge of the circuit court to remand the same.—Commonwealth of Virginia v. Paul, 148 U. S. 107, 13 S. Ct. 536, 37 L. Ed. 386.

Mandamus will lie to compel a federal Circuit Court to remand a cause to the state court whence it was removed, where it is apparent as a matter of law from the record itself that the federal court was without jurisdiction.—In re Winn, 29 S. Ct. 515, 218 U. S. 458, 53 L. Ed. 873.

651. Signing or entry of judgment or order.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 96-100.

A writ of mandamus may lie to compel a court to enter judgment by default, where it erroneously declines to take jurisdiction of the case after sufficient service on the defendant, who does not appear, except specially to contest the jurisdiction.—In re Grossmayer, 20 S. Ct. 535, 177 U. S. 48, 44 L. Ed. 665.

652. Modification of judgment or order.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 101.

Where a motion is made to amend a judgment so as to make it conform to the finding, a denial of the motion, on the ground that the judgment was correctly recorded, is a judicial action, and cannot be reviewed by mandamus.—Ex parte Morgan, 114 U. S. 174, 5 S. Ct. 825, 29 L. Ed. 135.

653. Vacation of judgment or order.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 102-107.

Mandamus will not lie from the United States supreme court to a circuit court to compel the vacation of orders by which the latter court, in a summary proceeding and after hearing, but without undertaking to determine the title, recognizes, as the proper incumbents, a district attorney and marshal who have been commissioned by the president during a vacation of the senate, and requiring the former incumbents, who refuse to surrender their offices, to turn over the property and prisoners under their control, respectively.—In re Parsons, 150 U. S. 150, 14 S. Ct. 50, 37 L. Ed. 1034.

Mandamus is the proper remedy where a federal Circuit Court has exceeded its power by vacating a judgment after the term.—In re Metropolitan Trust Co. of City of New York, 31 S. Ct. 18, 218 U. S. 312, 54 L. Ed. 1051.

657. Proceedings for review.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 68, 114-120.

A writ of mandamus will not lie to compel the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to reinstate an appeal from the Supreme Court of the District, in an action originally brought before a justice of the peace, where such appeal was dismissed by the court of appeals for want of jurisdiction, although the decree of dismissal cannot be reviewed on appeal or writ of error.—In re Key, 23 S. Ct. 624, 189 U. S. 84, 47 L. Ed. 720.

658. Enforcement of decision on review.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 121; 12 Cent. Dig. Costs, § 326.

Where a case is sent to the lower court by mandate from the United States supreme court, and the court does not proceed to execute the mandate, or disobeys and mistakes its meaning, the party aggrieved may, by motion for a mandamus, at any time bring the errors or omissions of the lower court before the supreme court for correction.—In re Sanford Fork & Tool Co., 160 U. S. 247, 16 S. Ct. 291, 40 L. Ed. 414.

(B) ACTS AND PROCEEDINGS OF PUBLIC OFFICERS AND BOARDS AND MUNICIPALITIES.

Matters concluded by judgment, see Judgment, 6713.

663. Officers subject to mandamus in general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 127.

While the head of a governmental department is not subject to mandamus in matters involving the exercise of discretion, yet such writ may be issued against the Secretary of the Interior, where he attempts, without authority of law, to annul the action of his predecessor in office, approving the location of a railroad's right of way over public lands.—Noble v. Union River Logging R. Co., 147 U. S. 165, 13 S. Ct. 271, 37 L. Ed. 123, affirming decree Union River Logging R. Co. v. Noble, 20 D. C. 555.

64. State or national boards and officers.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 123, 123.

The Secretary of the Interior will not be compelled by mandamus to approve the relator's selection, as an adopted member of the Wichita Tribe, or certain lands out of those ceded to the United States by the Wichita and affiliated bands of Indians, under the agreement of June 4, 1891, ratified by Act March 2, 1895, c. 188, 28 Stat. 876, 895-897, where the Secretary's answer, though not in terms denying the averments of the petition as to the relator's membership in the tribe, alleges that he had, on a specified date, reached and announced a decision that such relator was not a member of the tribe, and therefore was not entitled to an allotment. Judgment (1905) 26 App. D. C. 290, affirmed.—United States v. Hitchcock, 27 S. Ct. 423, 205 U. S. 80, 51 L. Ed. 718.

71. Ministerial acts in general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 133.

Courts will not compel executive officers to perform their official duties, even though such duties require an interpretation of the law, unless they refuse to act at all, or the act which it is sought to compel them to perform is purely ministerial.—United States v. Windom, 137 U. S. 636, 11 S. Ct. 197, 34 L. Ed. 811.

While the head of a governmental department is not subject to mandamus in any matter involving the exercise of discretion, these writs may yet be issued against him in relation to matters wherein he performs a mere ministerial duty, or is without power to act at all.—Noble v. Union River Logging R. Co., 147 U. S. 165, 13 S. Ct. 271, 37 L. Ed. 123, affirming decree Union River Logging R. Co. v. Noble, 20 D. C. 555.

72. Matters of discretion.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 134.

The courts have no power to compel, by mandamus, an executive officer to perform an act which is discretionary with him.—United States v. Black, 128 U. S. 40, 9 S. Ct. 12, 32 L. Ed. 354.

73. Specific acts.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 115, 126, 144-149.

Where, on application for an increased pension, the commissioner rerates the applicant, mandamus will not lie to the commissioner to assign him to a different class; the decision rerating the applicant is an exercise of official discretion.—United States v. Black, 128 U. S. 40, 9 S. Ct. 12, 32 L. Ed. 354.

Where an application for an increased pension has been adjudicated on appeal to the secretary of the interior, and the applicant's right to an increase established, and the commissioner of pensions refuses to carry out the order of the secretary, a court may interfere by mandamus.—Id.

On application for an increased pension, the secretary of the interior decided that relator "came under the meaning of the law granting pensions to those persons who require regular aid and attendance." The pension commissioner issued a certificate to relator at $50 a month from January 14, 1885, the date of his last medical examination. Rev. St. § 4698, provides that all persons who shall have been so totally disabled in the service as to require the regular personal aid and attendance of any other person shall be entitled to a pension of $50 a month. Section 4698½ provides that, "except in cases of permanent specific disabilities, no increase of pension shall be allowed to commence prior to the date of the examining surgeon's certificate establishing the same, made under the pending claim for increase, * * * subject to the approval of the commissioner of pensions." Relator claimed $72 a month from June 17, 1878, under Act Cong. June 16, 1880 (21 Stat. 281), the operation of which is limited to "all soldiers and sailors who are now receiving a pension of $50 per month." Held that, whether or not the commissioner was right in construing this act to apply only to those receiving $50 at the date thereof, the court would not interfere, as the decision of the secretary left the matter open, and the allegation on which the application for mandamus was based, that the commissioner refused to obey the decision of the secretary, was unfounded.—United States v. Raum, 135 U. S. 200, 10 S. Ct. 820, 34 L. Ed. 105.

Mandamus will lie, in the absence of other controlling facts, to compel the Secretary of the Interior to restore to the freedmen rolls of the Creek Nation the names of those who have been arbitrarily stricken from such rolls without the notice and opportunity to be heard essential to due process of law.—(1911) United States ex rel. Turner v. Fisher, 32 S. Ct. 37, 222 U. S. 204, 58 L. Ed. 165, affirming judgment (1909) Same v. Garfield, 33 App. D. C. 195.

Mandamus lies to compel Interstate Commerce Commission to take jurisdiction of a petition alleging violation of the interstate commerce act by a railway in Alaska, where the Commission refused to entertain the petition on the ground that Alaska was not a territory of the United States.—(1912) Interstate Commerce Commission v. United States ex rel. Humbolt S. S. Co., 32 S. Ct. 556, 224 U. S. 474, 58 L. Ed. 849, affirming judgment United States v. Interstate Commerce Commission (1911) 37 App. D. C. 266.

The decision of the Secretary of the Interior revoking his prior approval of a proposed adjustment of a contest over a Cherokee allotment will not be revised by mandamus, where such revocation was made in the exercise of a discretion confided to the Secretary by the act of July 1, 1902, and before title had passed under Act April 26, 1906, § 5.—United States ex rel. Knight v. Lane, 33 S. Ct. 407, 228 U. S. 6, 57 L. Ed. 709, affirming judgment Same v. Ballinger, 35 App. D. C. 429.

Order of Secretary of Interior recognizing the adopted children of deceased Indian allottee as his heirs, though made final and conclusive by Act June 25, 1910, did not exhaust his power so as to permit mandamus to interfere with his action in reopening the matter for further consideration.—Lane v. United States ex rel. Mickadiet, 36 S. Ct. 599, 241 U. S. 201, 60 L. Ed. 956, reversing judgment United States of America ex rel. Mickadiet v. Lane, 43 App. D. C. 414.

A decree of adoption by a state court is no reason for interfering by mandamus with determination of Secretary of Interior under Act June 25, 1910, as to the legal heirs of a deceased Indian allottee.—Id.

77. Title to and possession of office.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 161-169.

The action of the secretary of the interior in discharging a clerk in his department for incompetency is not subject to review in the courts, either by mandamus to reinstate the clerk, or by compelling payment of salary as though he had not been removed, in the absence of any specific provision therefor by act of congress. Decree 33 Ct. Cl. 174, affirmed.—Keim v. United States, 20 S. Ct. 574, 177 U. S. 290, 44 L. Ed. 774.

82. Public records.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 123, 177-179; 19 Cent. Dig. Clerks of C. § 91.

Mandamus will not lie to compel the production and correction, in accordance with allegations of the petition, of documents filed with the secretary of a territory, purporting to be a record of the proceedings of a session of the territorial legislature, in a case not involving private rights.—Clough v. Curtis, 134 U. S. 361, 10 S. Ct. 573, 33 L. Ed. 945, affirming 2 Idaho (Hasb.) 523, 22 P. 8.

◀84. Contracts in general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 180-183.

Mandamus will lie to an officer to do only such ministerial duty as existed when application for mandamus was made, and will not lie to him to sign a contract in accordance with an advertisement for public work and a bid therefor, where, before the application, the work was readvertised, and the same person made a lower bid, under which he obtained a contract for the work.—United States ex rel. International Con. Co. v. Lamont, 155 U. S. 308, 15 S. Ct. 97, 39 L. Ed. 160.

Nor will mandamus lie to the officer to furnish evidence that the contract had been entered into.—Id.

◀85. Proceedings relating to public lands.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 184-188.

Whether Arsenal Island, in the Mississippi river, which is of a shifting nature, constantly changing its position, and upon which the government is operating with a view of rendering it permanent, and to which the city of St. Louis has a claim dependent upon whether or not it is the same as Quarantine Island, which was surveyed and set apart to the city under Act Cong. June 13, 1812, and Act Cong. May 26, 1824, and was carried down the river by action of the current, shall be surveyed and opened to pre-emption, is a question of executive discretion, and mandamus will not lie to control the decision thereof by the secretary of the interior.—United States v. Lamar, 116 U. S. 423, 6 S. Ct. 424, 29 L. Ed. 677.

Mandamus will not lie against the Secretary of the Interior to compel him to vacate his decision that a selection of public land, under Act June 4, 1897, c. 2, 30 Stat. 36 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1541], in lieu of land relinquished in a forest reservation, must be rejected because of the failure of the selector to show in due and proper form that the land was, at the date of selection, subject to selection as "vacant land open to settlement," which the Secretary construed as meaning to exclude land in the actual possession of any person under the local acts or rules of miners which are by statute incorporated into and have become part of the laws of the United States.—United States v. Hitchcock, 23 S. Ct. 698, 190 U. S. 316, 47 L. Ed. 1074.

Mandamus is a proper remedy where the Secretary of the Interior, wholly without authority of law, has summarily erased from the approved rolls of citizenship in the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations the name of one who has received an allotment certificate and is in possession of the land. Judgment (1907) 30 App. D. C. 177, affirmed.—Garfield v. United States ex rel. Goldsby, 29 S. Ct. 62, 211 U. S. 249, 53 L. Ed. 168; Garfield v. United States ex rel. Allison, 29 S. Ct. 67, 211 U. S. 264, 53 L. Ed. 176.

Mandamus to compel the Secretary of the Interior to undo his action in summarily striking from the approved rolls of citizenship in the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations the name of one who has received an allotment certificate and is in possession of the land will not be refused on the theory that his case comes within the provisions of Act July 1, 1902 (32 Stat. 641, c. 1302), establishing a citizenship court, as one of the claimants whose judgment in the court of the Indian Territory was annulled by the subsequent procedure in the citizenship court, leaving him the remedy of appealing to that court, and that, having failed to appeal, he lost all right to enrollment, where it does not appear whether or not his name was on the original or other tribal rolls.—Id.

Mandamus will lie to compel the Secretary of the Interior to perform the purely ministerial duty to see that a patent is duly executed and delivered to an enrolled member of the Choctaw Nation, entitled to share in the allotment of tribal lands. Judgment, Garfield v. United States (1907) 30 App. D. C. 165, affirmed.—Ballinger v. United States ex rel. Frost, 30 S. Ct. 338, 216 U. S. 240, 54 L. Ed. 464.

Decision of Secretary of Interior as to sufficiency of application for purchase of land under timber and stone act June 3, 1878, § 2, held not so arbitrary or discretionary as to be controllable by mandamus.—(1912) United States ex rel. Ness v. Fisher, 32 S. Ct. 356, 223 U. S. 683, 56 L. Ed. 610, affirming judgment (1909) Ballinger v. United States, 33 App. D. C. 302.

◀86. Proceedings to procure and issuance of patents.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 141.

Where the commissioner of patents has fully exercised his judgment and discretion in deciding that relators are entitled to a patent, the duty to prepare it, and lay it before the secretary of the interior for his signature, and to countersign it, is purely ministerial, which a court has power to enforce by mandamus.—Butterworth v. United States, 112 U. S. 50, 5 S. Ct. 25, 28 L. Ed. 656.

Mandamus lies to compel the Commissioner of Patents to require the primary examiner to forward to the board of examiners in chief the appeal to which an inventor is entitled, under Rev. St. U. S. § 4909 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3390], upon a second rejection of any of his claims by the primary examiner, where such examiner has twice denied his right to unite in one application process and apparatus claims which are essentially the same invention.—United States ex rel. Stienmetz v. Allen, 24 S. Ct. 416, 192 U. S. 543, 48 L. Ed. 555.

No appeal lies to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia from the Commissioner of Patents to review his refusal to require the primary examiner to forward to the board of examiners in chief the appeal to which an inventor is entitled upon a second refusal of the primary examiner to permit the union in one application of process and apparatus claims which are related and dependent inventions. Mandamus to the Commissioner of Patents is the proper remedy.—Ex parte Frasch, 24 S. Ct. 424, 192 U. S. 566, 48 L. Ed. 564.

◀98. Establishment, vacation, regulation, and use of highways and streets.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 142, 149.

Mandamus will not issue to require a street commissioner to issue a permit for the laying of electric wires in a street, when the relator, by virtue of its charter, claims the right to lay the same without complying with the reasonable police regulations on the subject adopted by the city, and has not in fact offered to comply with such of the regulations as are lawful.—State of Missouri v. Murphy, 18 S. Ct. 505, 170 U. S. 78, 42 L. Ed. 955.

Mandamus will not issue to compel a street commissioner to issue a permit for the laying of electric wires in the streets, when he has no authority to do so without the assent of a board of public improvements, having general control of the matter.—Id.

101. Audit and allowance of accounts and claims.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 211-216.

A duty enforceable by mandamus, and not one involving the exercise of judgment and discretion, was imposed upon the Secretary of the Treasury by Act Feb. 17, 1903, 32 Stat. 1612, c. 559, referring to him the Parish claim, under a contract to furnish ice to the government at a fixed price, to "determine and ascertain the full amount which should have been paid" to the contractor "if the said contract had been carried out in full, without change or default made by either of the parties," under the ruling of the measure of damages laid down by the federal Supreme Court, and in "accordance with the evidence in the case collected by the court of claims," and, after determining the full amount thus due, to deduct all payments, and pay over the balance to the claimant. Judgment (1907) United States v. Cortelyou, 30 App. D. C. 45, reversed.—United States v. MacVeagh, 29 S. Ct. 556, 214 U. S. 124, 53 L. Ed. 936.

104. Payment of debts and claims.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 223-227.

105. — In general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 223.

The duty of the treasurer of the United States to pay interest on audit certificates, pursuant to the act of congress of August 13, 1894, is plain, imperative, and entirely ministerial, and therefore may be enforced by mandamus, although it requires, in some degree, a construction of a statute by the officer. Judgment, 13 App. D. C. 33, affirmed.—Roberts v. United States, 20 S. Ct. 376, 178 U. S. 221, 44 L. Ed. 443.

106. — Appropriations and special funds.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 224, 225, 226.

The treaty between the United States and Mexico, of July 4, 1838 (15 Stat. 679), for the adjudication of claims of citizens of either country, provides (articles 2 and 5) that the decision of the commissioners or of the umpire shall be conclusive upon each claim decided upon, and that the presidents of both nations will give "full effect to such decisions, without any objection, evasion, or delay whatsoever." An award was made in favor of W. The Mexican government afterwards complained that this award was made on a fraudulent claim, and requested the United States to have it retried, though the finality of the award, as between the governments, was not questioned, and the installments due upon it were paid by Mexico. Act Cong. June 18, 1878, § 1, 5 (20 Stat. 144), provided that the secretary of state should receive all moneys paid by Mexico in pursuance of the treaty, and should pay the same to the parties in whose favor the awards had been made, but that (section 5), there being charges of fraud as to the award in favor of W., the president was requested to investigate the same, and that if, in his opinion, the case should be retried, he was authorized to withhold the payment of that award until the case "shall be retried and decided, in such manner as the governments of the United States and Mexico may agree, or until congress shall otherwise direct." Congress never directed otherwise, nor was the case retried, although on July 13, 1882, the president negotiated a convention with Mexico for the rehearing of the case by a joint commission, which convention was rejected by the senate. In 1889 the assignee of the award to W. petitioned in the supreme court of the District of Columbia for a mandamus to compel the secretary of state to pay him the moneys paid by Mexico on the W. award. Held, that the political department still had control of the matter, and that the judicial department had no power to grant a mandamus.—United States v.

Blaine, 139 U. S. 306, 11 S. Ct. 607, 35 L. Ed. 183.

111. — Judgments.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 231, 232, 234.

Where, in a proceeding for mandamus by a judgment creditor against a county, it appears that the defendant's powers of taxation are limited to a tax of six mills on each dollar of taxable property, and it is admitted by complainant's demurrer to the answer that all the funds arising from that tax are required for the proper maintenance of the county government, the court cannot assume the functions of municipal administration, and direct that they be diverted from that purpose, and the writ must be denied.—Clay County v. United States, 115 U. S. 616, 6 S. Ct. 199, 29 L. Ed. 482.

112. Levy of taxes.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 233-243.

114. — Payment of claims, warrants, or orders.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 241, 244-246, 248.

A constitutional obligation of a city to provide for the collection of a tax sufficient to pay indebtedness incurred is not fulfilled by the enactment of an ordinance providing for the necessary taxation, but extends to the actual levy and collection of the tax; and such levy and collection may be compelled by mandamus.—City of East St. Louis v. United States, 120 U. S. 600, 7 S. Ct. 739, 30 L. Ed. 798.

115. — Payment of bonds or other securities.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 242, 244-246, 248.

Under Dass. Comp. Laws, p. 977, § 1 (5965), making it the duty of the township trustee to "superintend all the pecuniary concerns of his township," and with the advice and consent of the county commissioners to levy township taxes, and providing that, upon the failure of the commissioners to concur, the taxes shall be levied by the board, it becomes the duty of the board, in case of a vacancy in the office of township trustee, to levy the taxes required by Act Feb. 25, 1870, § 6, and Act March 9, 1874, §§ 7, 13, to meet its bonded indebtedness, and a mandamus will lie to compel them to do so.—Cherokee County Com'rs v. Wilson, 109 U. S. 621, 3 S. Ct. 352, 27 L. Ed. 1053.

116. — Payment of judgments.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 243-248.

Where a judgment is rendered against a municipal corporation, and a decree made that a tax be levied to pay it, according to the assessment of a certain year, the party obtaining it is entitled to a writ of mandamus commanding the levy and collection of the tax at any time, according to the roll of that year, until the judgment is satisfied; the right to demand the tax not depending upon the valuation of the property for any year for general purposes.—State of Louisiana v. Police Jury of the Parish of St. Martin, 111 U. S. 716, 4 S. Ct. 648, 28 L. Ed. 574.

Upon an absolute judgment against a municipal corporation, and a decree that taxes sufficient to pay it be assessed and collected, upon failure of the proper public officers to do so, a writ of mandamus against them should be granted, under Code Prac. La. art. 384, providing for the issue of the writ to compel public officers to fulfill their duties.—Id.

Where the owner of bonds which are void because the election authorizing their issue was held after the statute authorizing them had been abrogated by the adoption of a new state constitution has obtained judgments on them, he is not entitled to mandamus to compel the city to levy a tax to pay such judgments, under the provision of Act Tenn. Feb. 8, 1870, authorizing the city to tax to pay the interest on and create a sinking fund for the redemption of the bonds. The judgments do not estop the city to assert the abrogation of that act, particularly where the judgment creditor goes behind his judgments as such, and seeks to obtain a remedy provided by the abrogated act, and pertaining merely to the bonds.—Taxing District of Brownsville v. Loague, 129 U. S. 483, 9 S. Ct. 327, 32 L. Ed. 780, reversing (C. C.) Loague v. Taxing Dist. of Brownsville, 86 F. 149.

Act Ky. Feb. 24, 1869, § 15 (1 Laws 1869, c. 1578, p. 470), and Act March 11, 1873, § 1 (1 Laws 1873, c. 375, p. 478), authorize the county court to levy annual taxes to pay the interest on bonds issued by a county in payment of its subscription to the stock of a railroad company; and provide that such tax shall be collected by the sheriff in the same manner that other taxes are collected, unless the court shall appoint special collectors, and that the special collectors shall have the same powers, and proceed in the same way, as the sheriff. Petitioner applied for mandamus to compel the presiding judge of the county court to levy and collect a tax to pay a judgment recovered against the county on the interest coupons of such bonds. Held, that it was a sufficient answer to the alternative writ that respondent had levied the tax, and appointed a collector, as that exhausted his authority under these statutes.—Bass v. Taft, 137 U. S. 458, 11 S. Ct. 154, 34 L. Ed. 752.

County auditors and treasurers, who are the instruments employed by the state Legislature to assess and collect taxes, may be compelled by mandamus to levy a tax to pay a judgment on township bonds, although the corporate existence of the township has been abolished by the state Constitution, and its corporate agents removed. Judgment (C. C.) Ex parte Folsom, 131 F. 496, affirmed.—Graham v. Folsom, 26 S. Ct. 245, 200 U. S. 248, 50 L. Ed. 464.

Mandamus to compel the county authorities through whom taxes are assessed and collected to levy a tax to pay a judgment on township bonds cannot be denied on the theory that, because the Legislature might, under Const. S. C. art. 9, § 8, have vested in the township authorities the power to assess and collect taxes for corporate purposes, it could not vest such power in county officers.—Id.

Mandamus to compel the board of county commissioners of Santa Fé county, N. M., to levy a tax to satisfy judgments on county bonds, will not be denied because portions of that county have since been annexed to two adjoining counties, where the territorial Supreme Court has construed Laws N. M. 1903, p. 30, c. 20, as authorizing Santa Fé county to compel contribution from the two other counties which have received a portion of its territory, in proportion to the amount of taxable property received. Judgment, Territory v. Board of Com'rs of Santa Fé County (N. M. 1907) 89 P. 252, affirmed.—Board of Com'rs of Santa Fé County v. Territory of New Mexico ex rel. Coler, 30 S. Ct. 111, 215 U. S. 296, 54 L. Ed. 202.

A tax levy cannot be deemed sufficient to pay the judgments on county bonds, so as to defeat the right to mandamus to compel the levy of an additional tax for that purpose, where the original levy was with the purpose only, and was sufficient only, to pay the then amount of the judgments with accrued interest, and no provision was made for the interest to accrue, which amounted to a large sum when the mandamus issued.—Id.

The tax levy ordered by mandamus to satisfy the accrued interest, amounting to more than $30,000, on judgments on county bonds, cannot be said to be excessive when, upon the presumed assessed valuation of the property in the county, it would produce, if collected in full, an excess of little more than $100, and where, since the writ issued, additional interest to the amount of $10,000 has accrued.—Id.

◀119. Collection of taxes.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 251-253.

A constitutional obligation of a city to provide for the collection of a tax sufficient to pay indebtedness incurred, is not fulfilled by the enactment of an ordinance providing for the necessary taxation, but extends to the actual levy and collection of the tax, and such levy and collection may be compelled by mandamus.—City of East St. Louis v. United States, 120 U. S. 600, 7 S. Ct. 739, 30 L. Ed. 798.

A writ of mandamus to compel a railroad corporation to do a particular act in constructing its road or buildings or in running its trains can be issued only when there is a specific legal duty on its part to do that act, and clear proof of a breach of that duty.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Territory of Washington, 142 U. S. 492, 12 S. Ct. 233, 35 L. Ed. 1092, reversing judgment 3 Wash. T. 303, 13 P. 604.

◀141. Jurisdiction and authority.

By force of Rev. St. § 716 (section 14 of the judiciary act of 1789), providing that the United States circuit courts shall have "power to issue all writs not specifically provided for by statute which may be necessary for the exercise of their respective jurisdictions, and agreeable to the usages and principles of law," those courts have no jurisdiction to award a mandamus except as ancillary to some other proceeding establishing a demand, and reducing it to judgment; and their jurisdiction in this respect, either original or by removal, is not enlarged by Act March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. 470).—Rosenbaum v. Bauer, 120 U. S. 450, 7 S. Ct. 633, 30 L. Ed. 743.

A judgment creditor of a railroad company claimed to be equitably entitled to be substituted for the railroad company in its rights against a county that had subscribed to the stock of the company and agreed to issue bonds in payment thereof, but had failed to issue such bonds. Held, that this claim does not change the creditor's remedy, so as to enable a court of equity to entertain proceedings in mandamus.—Smith v. Bourbon County, 127 U. S. 105, 8 S. Ct. 1043, 32 L. Ed. 73.

The supreme court of the United States has no jurisdiction to issue a writ of mandamus to the circuit court of appeals, to compel it to receive and consider new proofs in an admiralty appeal, in a cause which is within the legitimate jurisdiction of that court.—In re Hawkins, 147 U. S. 486, 13 S. Ct. 512, 37 L. Ed. 251.

The supreme court of the United States has no jurisdiction to control, by mandamus, the discretion of the circuit court in granting or refusing a supersedeas, upon an appeal to the circuit court of appeals from an interlocutory order granting or continuing an injunction.—In re Haberman Mfg. Co., 147 U. S. 525, 13 S. Ct. 527, 37 L. Ed. 266.

¶143. Time to sue, limitations, and laches.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 282-285.

Delay in applying for a mandamus requiring a circuit court to take jurisdiction of a cause does not constitute laches when mainly due to the failure of the opposite party to move in the supreme court for dismissal of an appeal taken by the petitioner from an order dismissing his bill, such order not being appealable, because it did not dispose of the case as to all the defendants.—In re Hohorst, 150 U. S. 653, 14 S. Ct. 221, 37 L. Ed. 1211.

A proceeding in mandamus cannot be deemed to be governed by the limitations prescribed by Code Okl. §§ 18, 23, for civil actions, in view of the provision of section 694 of such Code, that pleadings in mandamus are to be construed and may be amended and issues joined and the proceedings had in the same manner as in a civil action, and of the declaration in section 687, that writs of mandamus may not be issued where there is a plain and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law. Judgment, Barnes v. Turner (1904) 78 P. 108, 14 Okl. 284, affirmed.—Duke v. Turner, 27 S. Ct. 318, 204 U. S. 623, 51 L. Ed. 652, 9 Ann. Cas. 842.

Mandamus to compel the levy of a tax to satisfy municipal warrants will not be refused on the theory that the relators have slept upon their rights for an unreasonable time, to the prejudice of the rights of respondents, or of other interested persons, where, in some form, legal proceedings for the collection of these warrants have been prosecuted by various holders in different courts up to the commencement of the mandamus proceedings, without beneficial results.—Id.

A delay of more than three years after the Court of Claims decreed, with all the parties before it, that the mandate of the federal Supreme Court modifying a prior decree of the Court of Claims, awarding the Cherokee Indians the amounts due from the United States under treaty stipulations, required a distribution per capita, is such laches as bars mandamus to require the Court of Claims to conform to such mandate, which, it is contended, directed a per stirpes distribution, and such delay is not excused on the theory that the remedy by mandamus was only available when the roll of those Indians entitled to share in the award, prepared in accordance with the order of the Court of Claims, was approved, because until that time there was uncertainty as to what the court might do.—In re Eastern Cherokees, 81 S. Ct. 373, 220 U. S. 83, 55 L. Ed. 379.

¶144. Parties plaintiff or petitioners.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 286-290.

¶146. — Use of name of state.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 287.

A mandamus to compel a railroad company to erect and maintain a station at a certain place, and stop its trains there for the accommodation of the public, founded upon an alleged breach of public duty required of it by law, is properly brought in the name of the state at the relation of the prosecuting attorney of the county in which the place is located.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Territory, 142 U. S. 492, 12 S. Ct. 283, 35 L. Ed. 1062, judgment reversed 3 Wash. T. 303, 13 P. 604.

¶150. Parties defendant or respondents.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 291-292.

¶151. — In general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 291, 292.

Counties which have received a portion of the territory of Santa Fé county, N. M., are not necessary parties to proceedings by mandamus to compel the levy of a tax to satisfy judgments on bonds issued by the latter county, where, under Laws N. M. 1903, p. 30, c. 20, as construed by the territorial Supreme Court, the county of Santa Fé can compel contribution from the other counties which have received a portion of its territory in proportion to the amount of taxable property received. Judgment, Territory v. Board of Com'rs of Santa Fé County (N. M. 1907) 89 P. 252, affirmed.—Board of Com'rs of Santa Fé County v. Territory of New Mexico ex rel. Coler, 30 S. Ct. 111, 215 U. S. 296, 54 L. Ed. 202.

¶153. New parties.

The death of an officer pending proceedings in mandamus against him abates the proceedings, and the court has no authority, in the absence of statute, to substitute as respondent his successor in office, even with the latter's consent; and no such authority is given in the District of Columbia by the Maryland statute of 1785 (chapter 80, § 1), declaring that no action shall abate by the death of a party, but shall be continued, and "the heir, devisee, executor or administrator * * * or other person interested on the part of defendant" may become a party.—United States v. Butterworth, 18 S. Ct. 441, 169 U. S. 600, 42 L. Ed. 873.

The successor in office of a judge of a territorial court may be substituted in the place of his predecessor on appeal from a final judgment denying mandamus to compel the latter to take jurisdiction of an action attempted to be brought in his court, since the case may properly be considered one in which there is a necessity for such action in order to obtain a settlement of the question involved, within the meaning of Act Feb. 8, 1899, c. 121, § 30 Stat. 822 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 697], authorizing substitution in actions brought by or against federal public officers in their official capacity, or in relation to the discharge of their official duties. Judgment, 78 P. 624, 12 N. M. 458, affirmed.—Territory of New Mexico ex rel. Caledonian Coal Co. v. Baker, 25 S. Ct. 375, 196 U. S. 432, 49 L. Ed. 540.

¶154. Petition or complaint, or other application.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. § 296-316.

A mandamus to compel a circuit judge to allow a writ of error to the supreme court of the United States will not be granted where the petitioner does not show that an application has been made to have the security approved, or the citation signed, as required by law.—Ex parte Commissioners of Sinking Fund of State of Virginia, 112 U. S. 177, 5 S. Ct. 421, 28 L. Ed. 601.

◀157. Notice or rule to show cause.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 317-323, 371.

Where the petition for mandamus to the commissioner of pensions to grant an increase of pension avers that, on appeal to the secretary of the interior, the claim was adjudicated, and claimant's right to the increase established, but that the commissioner refuses to carry out the order of the secretary, a prima facie case is made for at least a rule to show cause why mandamus should not issue.—United States v. Black, 123 U. S. 40, 9 S. Ct. 12, 32 L. Ed. 354.

◀164. Return or answer.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 344-360.

A petition for mandamus to the secretary of the treasury to deliver to respondent a treasury draft for $12,536, which had been assigned to him by the payee, alleged that the payee had performed certain work under a contract with the United States; that his accounts had been settled as shown by a letter from the accounting officer to the payee stating the amount due to be $12,536, and that "draft will be remitted"; that the draft was issued, but was sent to one M., with instructions not to deliver it until the payee should pay certain claims which had been presented against him at the treasury department for material furnished to be used in performing his contract with the United States. Respondent alleged in his return that the payee, by certain defaults in performing his contract, had incurred penalties and forfeitures to a large amount; that on the settlement of his accounts the penalties and forfeitures were waived on condition that he should pay the claims against him, and that the draft should be sent to M., to be delivered on payment of such claims; and that the payee refused to perform the condition. Held, that the return raised disputed questions of law and fact as to the amount of the actual indebtedness of the United States, and the mandamus was properly denied.—United States v. Windom, 137 U. S. 686, 11 S. Ct. 197, 34 L. Ed. 811.

◀165. Demurrer to return or answer.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 360½-364.

Mandamus to compel the Secretary of the Interior to restore to the freedmen rolls of the Creek Nation the names of those who had been arbitrarily stricken therefrom without due process of law was properly refused where a general demurrer to the answer, setting up that the original enrollment was procured by fraud, was overruled, and the relators, instead of replying, elected to stand on their demurrer.—(1911) United States ex rel. Turner v. Fisher, 32 S. Ct. 37, 222 U. S. 204, 56 L. Ed. 165, affirming judgment (1909) Same v. Garfield, 33 App. D. C. 195.

◀167. Issues, proof, and variance.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 369, 370.

The question of the right to implead the town of Las Vegas under the designation "unknown claimants" in a suit to quiet title to land within the Las Vegas land grant was not withdrawn from the consideration of the court in mandamus to compel the town trustees to execute a conveyance to the successful plaintiff in the earlier suit by an answer alleging neither at the time of the confirmation of the grant, nor at any other time, did the town have a representative on whom service could be had.—Priest v. Board of Trustees of Town of Las Vegas, 34 S. Ct. 443, 232 U. S. 604, 58 L. Ed. 751, affirming judgment 120 P. 894, 16 N. M. 692.

◀168. Evidence.

The evidence is insufficient to justify a refusal to enforce an order of a state railroad commission fixing local rates for carrying phosphates on any objection based on the due process of law and equal protection of the laws clauses of the fourteenth amendment to the federal Constitution, where there is no evidence from which a reasonable deduction can be made as to the cost of transportation, the amount of phosphates transported, or the effect which the rate established by the commission will have upon the income of the carrier. Judgment. State v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. (1904) 37 So. 657, 48 Fla. 146, affirmed.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. State of Florida, 27 S. Ct. 108, 203 U. S. 256, 51 L. Ed. 174.

◀172. Scope of inquiry and powers of court.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 381-385; 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. § 1074.

In a proceeding by mandamus to compel the levy by a county court of a tax sufficient to pay a judgment obtained against the county, the return of the respondents to the alternative writ of mandamus admitted that the judgment of the relator was recovered upon bonds and coupons issued by the county, but alleged that the said coupons were not issued in pursuance of law, making them the valid obligations of the county. Held, that the return was insufficient in law, the respondents being estopped to deny the validity of the bonds by the judgment in favor of the relator against the county, and that said judgment was none the less conclusive because rendered by default.—United States v. Knox County Court, 122 U. S. 306, 7 S. Ct. 1171, 30 L. Ed. 1152.

◀176. Scope and extent of relief in general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 392-394.

Under Const. Ill. 1870, art. 9, § 12, providing that any municipal corporation incurring indebtedness "shall . . . provide for the collecting of a direct annual tax sufficient to pay" the interest as it falls due and the principal in 20 years, if a sufficient tax is not levied annually to pay accruing interest, the court may, in its discretion, order the levy of a single tax to pay an entire judgment obtained for arrears of interest and a balance of the principal.—City of East St. Louis v. United States, 120 U. S. 600, 7 S. Ct. 739, 30 L. Ed. 798.

A peremptory writ of mandamus may by the express provisions of Comp. Laws N. M. 1897, § 2764, issue without hearing when the right to require the performance of the act is clear, and it is apparent that no valid excuse can be given for not performing it. ◀187. Appeal and error.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Mand. §§ 427-437; 3 Cent. Dig. App. & E. § 570.

The successor in office of a judge of a territorial court may be substituted in the place of his predecessor on appeal from a final judgment denying mandamus to compel the latter to take jurisdiction of an action attempted to be brought in his court, since the case may properly be considered one in which there is a necessity for such action in order to obtain a settlement of the question involved, within the meaning of Act Feb. 8, 1899, c. 121, § 30 Stat. 822 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 697], authorizing substitution in actions brought by or against federal public officers in their official capacity, or in relation to the discharge of their official duties. Judgment 78 P. 624, 12 N. M. 456, affirmed.—Territory of New Mexico ex rel. Caledonian Coal Co. v. Baker, 25 S. Ct. 375, 196 U. S. 432, 49 L. Ed. 540.

Power to modify, on appeal, a judgment of a district court in mandamus, is included in the grant to the New Mexico Supreme Court by Comp. Laws N. M. 1897, § 897, of the authority to render such other judgment as may be right and just and in accordance with law in cases which may have been tried by the equity side of the court, or which may have been tried by a jury on the common-law side of the court, or in which a jury may have been waived and the case tried by the court or judge. Judgment, Territory v. Board of Com'rs of Santa Fé County (N. M. 1907) 89 P. 252, affirmed.—Board of Com'rs of Santa Fé County v. Territory of New Mexico ex rel. Coler, 30 S. Ct. 111, 215 U. S. 296, 54 L. Ed. 202.

Writ of error is proper to review judgment of federal District Court refusing writ of mandamus which the United States undertook to obtain under Act Feb. 4, 1887, § 20, as amended by Act June 29, 1906, § 7, requiring carriers to permit examination of their accounts by agents of the Interstate Commerce Commission.—United States v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 35 S. Ct. 363, 236 U. S. 318, 59 L. Ed. 598, affirming judgment (D. C.) 212 F. 486.

Order of District Court properly refusing to grant a petition for a writ of mandamus sought by United States under Act Feb. 4, 1887, § 20, as amended by Act June 29, 1906, § 7, for inspection of accounts, etc., by agents of the Interstate Commerce Commission, will not be reversed to permit a grant of relief within the limits which the statute allows.—Id.

Ct. 135, 164 U. S. 458, 41 L. Ed. 512, affirming decree (D. C.) 56 F. 614.

One who furnishes supplies to a vessel, upon order of the charter, under circumstances charging him with knowledge of the fact that by the terms of the charter party the charterer is to furnish supplies, acquires no lien on the vessel under the maritime law.—Id.

One furnishing supplies, on the order of a person or corporation having control and possession of a vessel under a charter party requiring the charterer to provide supplies at his own expense, acquires no lien, when the circumstances are such as to put him on inquiry as to the existence and terms of the charter party, and he fails to make such inquiry, and chooses to act on a mere belief that the vessel will be liable.—The Valencia v. Ziegler, 17 S. Ct. 323, 165 U. S. 284, 41 L. Ed. 710.

§ 57. — Liens under maritime law.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mar. Liens, §§ 58-70.

The lien upon a vessel for damages caused by her fault to another vessel takes precedence of a maritime lien for supplies previously furnished to the offending vessel.—The John G. Stevens, 18 S. Ct. 544, 170 U. S. 113, 42 L. Ed. 989.

§ 58. — Statutory liens.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mar. Liens, §§ 71-77.

A claim arising under a mortgage of a vessel is not superior to a lien, under the local statute, for supplies and necessities to the vessel in her home port, although they were furnished after the mortgage was recorded in conformity with Rev. St. § 4192.—The J. E. Rumbell, 148 U. S. 1, 13 S. Ct. 498, 37 L. Ed. 345.

III. ENFORCEMENT.

Stipulations for release of property to United States, see United States, § 58½.

(A) IN ADMIRALTY.

Conflicting jurisdiction of state and federal courts, see Courts, § 502.

§ 60. Jurisdiction.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mar. Liens, § 98; 1 Cent. Dig. Adm. § 150.

A lien under a state statute for repairs or supplies furnished in the home port is a right of property in the vessel, and a maritime lien, to secure the performance of a maritime contract. It is therefore enforceable by process in rem exclusively in the federal district courts, and then state courts are without jurisdiction. Atlantic Works v. Tug Glide, 33 N. E. 163, 157 Mass. 525, 34 Am. St. Rep. 305, reversed.—The Glide, 17 S. Ct. 930, 167 U. S. 606, 42 L. Ed. 296.

Admiralty has jurisdiction of a libel in rem by the master for his wages, where a lien therefor is claimed under a state statute.—The William H. Hoag, 18 S. Ct. 114, 168 U. S. 443, 42 L. Ed. 537.

An unlawful interference with the exclusive jurisdiction of admiralty and maritime cases, vested by the federal Constitution in the courts of the United States, is made by the attempt by 2 Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. Wash. §§ 5953, 5954, to create a preferred lien on ocean-going vessels owned in other states or countries for work done and materials furnished on the order of a contractor, which lien may be enforced at any time within three years, although such contractor has been paid in full by the owner without knowledge of any unpaid claims.—The Roanoke, 23 S. Ct. 491, 189 U. S. 185, 47 L. Ed. 770.

An unconstitutional infringement upon the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal courts over admiralty and maritime cases is made by Laws N. Y. 1897, pp. 526, 528, c. 418, §§ 30, 35, so far as such statute is construed by the courts of that state to provide for the enforcement in a state court by proceedings in rem of a lien for repairs made in dry dock to a canal boat engaged in navigating the Erie Canal and Hudson river. Judgment, In re Haines, 60 N. E. 1112, 168 N. Y. 586, reversed.—Perry v. Haines, 24 S. Ct. 8, 191 U. S. 17, 48 L. Ed. 73.

Proceedings in rem to enforce a lien for repairs furnished to a vessel which was at the time engaged in navigating the Erie Canal are no less within the exclusive admiralty jurisdiction of the federal courts because such repairs were made in dry dock.—Id.

The exclusive admiralty jurisdiction of the federal courts extends to the enforcement by proceedings in rem of a lien for repairs furnished to a vessel engaged in navigating the Erie Canal, although such vessel was employed wholly in commerce between ports in the same state.—Id.

A contract for the building of a ship is not maritime, or within admiralty jurisdiction, and a lien given by a local statute for materials furnished in the building may be enforced in state courts.—Iroquois Transp. Co. v. Delaney Forge & Iron Co., 27 S. Ct. 509, 205 U. S. 354, 51 L. Ed. 836.

(B) STATUTORY REMEDIES.

§ 74. Actions against vessels or owners.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mar. Liens, §§ 111, 121-125.

The enforcement of a lien given by a state statute upon a vessel for materials furnished after she was launched is within the jurisdiction of a state court, where such materials were really furnished for the completion of the vessel, and were fairly a part of her original construction.—Iroquois Transp. Co. v. De Laney Forge & Iron Co., 27 S. Ct. 509, 205 U. S. 354, 51 L. Ed. 836.

A contract to build a ship not being a maritime contract, which can only be enforced in a court of admiralty, a lien given by a state statute for materials furnished in her construction may be enforced against the vessel in a state court.—Id.

Persons whose alleged marriage in Virginia might have been invalid for want of a license had they remained there, and might also, for want of a religious ceremony, have been invalid in Maryland, where they afterwards resided, must be deemed married in New Jersey, when, as husband and wife, they took up their permanent residence there, and lived together in that relation continuously, in good faith, and openly up to the time of the man's death, being regarded by themselves and in the community as husband and wife, since their conduct toward each other in the eye of the public while in New Jersey, taken in connection with their previous association, was equivalent in law to a declaration by each that they did, and during their joint lives were to occupy the relation of husband and wife, which was as effective to establish the status of marriage in New Jersey as if it had been made in words of the present tense after they became domiciled in that state. See 34 Cent. Dig. Marshaling, § 4.

A railroad hotel was built upon property of the railroad company, under a contract reserving a ground rent, and providing that upon surrender of the leasehold and improvements the company would pay the value of the latter as fixed by arbitration. The lessee, a married woman, mortgaged her interest in both leasehold and improvements. After surrender and a decree in her favor for the value of the improvements pursuant to the award of arbitrators, a cross-bill was filed by the mortgagee to subject the decree to his lien. The defense being made by the lessee that she was a married woman, and incompetent to encumber her property, the mortgage was held by the state supreme court on appeal to be a good lien on the income of the property covered thereby. No application was made of the income represented by the interest until final decree, when there were two funds,—the principal and interest. Held proper to so marshal the assets as to pay the mortgagee's lien from the interest.—Matt-hews v. Memphis & C. R. Co., 108 U. S. 368, 2 S. Ct. 780, 27 L. Ed. 756.

A workman injured in the service of a corporation, and claiming damages therefor, made a compromise agreement with it, whereby he was to receive certain supplies and "regular wages while he was disabled." By a subsequent agreement, made after he had resumed work, the corporation was "to give him work, such as he could do, paying him therefor the wages paid before said accident (that is, $60 a month)," in addition to house rent, etc. By a still later and final agreement, which recited his claim for damages, and the two former agreements, his wages were increased to $65 a month, with certain supplies, etc., and he expressly released the corporation from all claims for damages. Held, that this was not a mere hiring from month to month, terminable at the will of the corporation, but was a contract to pay him at the agreed rate so long as his disability to do full work continued, he being bound to do such work as he could. Forbidding women student nurses in a hospital school to work for longer than certain hours under St. Cal. 1911, p. 437, as amended by St. Cal. 1913, p. 713, held constitutional.—Bosley v. McLaughlin, 35 S. Ct. 345, 236 U. S. 385, 59 L. Ed. 632.

Workmen's Compensation Acts.

Owing to the great increase of matter heretofore classified to this section, we have made a new subdivision, consisting of ¶ number sections 846-420, at the end of this topic, where the matter will be found in this and future digests.

¶17. Penalties and actions therefor.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. § 16.

A separate penalty is incurred for each railway employe kept on duty for more than sixteen consecutive hours contrary to Act March 4, 1907, by reason of the same delay of a train.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. United States, 34 S. Ct. 26, 231 U. S. 112, 58 L. Ed. 144.

A carrier sued under Act March 4, 1907, for keeping employes on duty for more than sixteen hours, cannot urge upon certiorari that the delay was caused by a defective injector not known to the carrier, and that by section 3 the act does not apply, where the question was raised only by a request to direct a verdict for defendant.—Id.

The judge, and not the jury, is to determine the penalty to be imposed under Act March 4, 1907, when a carrier keeps employes on duty for more than sixteen hours.—Id.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 12, 41.

Where a corporation in whose service a workman is injured, in consideration of a release of all claims for damages, and an agreement to do such work as he is able, agrees to pay him certain wages and furnish him certain supplies, etc., so long as his disability to do full work shall continue, but afterwards discharges him from its service, he is not confined to successive actions for damages as the right to wages, etc., accrued under the contract, but may treat the contract as finally broken, and sue at once to recover all that he would have received in the future, as well as in the past, if the contract had been kept. Judgment, Tennessee Coal, Iron & R. Co. v. Pierce, 81 F. 814, 26 C. C. A. 632, reversed.—Pierce v. Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., 19 S. Ct. 335, 173 U. S. 1, 43 L. Ed. 591.

◀ 40. — Evidence.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 47-49.

Where a company agrees to pay an injured employé certain wages as long as his disability to do full work shall continue, he may, in an action for wrongful discharge, where it is shown that the injury is permanent, introduce evidence as to his expectancy of life. Judgment, Tennessee Coal Iron & R. Co. v. Pierce, 81 F. 814, 26 C. C. A. 632, reversed.—Pierce v. Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., 19 S. Ct. 335, 173 U. S. 1, 43 L. Ed. 591.

Laws N. Y. 1897, c. 415, § 10, as amended by Laws 1908, c. 442, passed in the exercise of the reserved power of the state over corporations, that railway employes shall be paid semi-monthly, prohibiting carrier and employes from contracting otherwise is valid.—Erie R. Co. v. Williams, 34 S. Ct. 761, 233 U. S. 685, 58 L. Ed. 1155, 51 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1097, affirming judgment 92 N. E. 1084, 199 N. Y. 525.

Act Va. Feb. 13, 1888 (Laws 1887-88, c. 118 [Code 1904, § 3657d]), amending and reenacting Laws 1887 (Ex. Sess.) c. 391, § 3, forbidding any person, firm, or corporation engaged in mining or manufacturing from issuing for the payment of labor any order unless redeemable in lawful money of the United States, held valid.—*Keokee Consol. There is such a reasonable relation to the object to be attained, as to justify as an exercise of the police power, the so-called Ohio "run-of-mine" or "anti-screen" law.—Rail & River Coal Co. v. Yaple, 35 S. Ct. 859, 236 U. S. 338, 59 L. Ed. 607, affirming decree (D. C.) 214 F. 273.

The authority of the Legislature under Const. Ohio, art. 2, § 36, to pass laws relating to mining, weighing, measuring, and marketing minerals, extends to the enactment of the so-called Ohio "run-of-mine" or "anti-screen" law.—Id.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 123-134.

One who puts up telegraph wires on poles for a telegraph company, under a contract with it whereby he is to be paid a certain sum per mile, is not an employé within the meaning of Rev. See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 125, 126, 129, 140.

The damages recoverable from an employer for the death of his employé caused by his negligence are controlled by the law of the place where the contract of employment was made and the accident occurred, although the death took place and action is brought in another state.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Babcock, 154 U. S. 190, 14 S. Ct. 978, 38 L. Ed. 958.

◀ 87. Statutory provisions.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. § 123.

Retroactive effect will not be given to Employers' Liability Act April 22, 1908, so as to make it applicable to an action for death accruing before the passage of the statute.—Winfree v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 33 S. Ct. 273, 227 U. S. 296, 57 L. Ed. 518, affirming judgment 173 F. 65, 97 C. C. A. 392.

Existing as well as future contracts intended by carriers to relieve from liability fall within the condemnation in Employer's Liability Act April 22, 1908, § 5.—(1912) Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co. v. Schubert, 32 S. Ct. 589, 224 U. S. 603, 56 L. Ed. 911, affirming judgment (1911) 36 App. D. C. 565.

88. Relation of parties.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 144-151; 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1561.

Where a railroad company leases to an individual a house near its track under an agreement that the lessee shall board its section hands the company agreeing to retain the amount of the board from the wages of its employes, the relation created, in so far as respects the duty of the company toward the leased premises, is merely that of landlord and tenant, and not that of master and servant.—Doyle v. Union Pac. R. Co., 147 U. S. 413, 13 S. Ct. 333, 37 L. Ed. 223.

A railway fireman killed while employed in interstate commerce, by a lessee interstate railway carrier, must be regarded as employed also by the lessor railway, within Act April 22, 1908, though the leased railway is an intrastate one, where the lessor by law is responsible for the negligence of its lessee.—North Carolina R. Co. v. Zachary, 34 S. Ct. 305, 232 U. S. 248, 58 L. Ed. 591, Ann. Cas. 1914C, 159, reversing judgment Zachary v. North Carolina R. Co., 72 S. E. 858, 156 N. C. 496.

A contract by which an interstate railway carrier employs another to handle the coal required for its engines, and which provides that the carrier reserves no control over such person except as to the results to be accomplished, does not create the relation of master and servant so as to render the Employers' Liability Act applicable to the employes of such contractor.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Bond, 36 S. Ct. 403, 240 U. S. 449, 60 L. Ed. 735, reversing judgment 148 P. 103.

Violation of train order by motorman of interstate interurban railway does not suspend relation of employer and employe so as to absolve the former from his duty toward him under safety appliance acts.—Spokane & I. E. R. Co. v. Campbell, 36 S. Ct. 683, 241 U. S. 497, 60 L. Ed. 1125, affirming judgment 217 F. 518, 133 C. C. A. 370.

89. Scope of employment.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 153-156.

A hostler's helper is not acting outside of his duties in seating himself beside the regular helper in a cab window of an engine moving out of the roundhouse, where it is customary for the helpers to get upon an engine and look out of the window to give and receive signals.—Texas & P. R. Co. v. Harvey, 33 S. Ct. 518, 228 U. S. 319, 57 L. Ed. 852, affirming judgment 184 F. 990, 106 C. C. A. 668.

100. Contracts limiting or releasing liability.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 166-170; 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1561.

Stipulations making acceptance of benefits for injury or death of an employe because of membership in a railway relief department equivalent to a release of liability fall within the condemnation in Employer's Liability Act April 22, 1908, § 5, when a contract or device intended to enable a common carrier to exempt himself from liabilities created by the act.—(1912) Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co. v. Schubert, 32 S. Ct. 589, 224 U. S. 603, 56 L. Ed. 911, affirming judgment (1911) 36 App. D. C. 565.

Under Employers' Liability Act, § 5, every release of damages is invalid in an action by an employe against another railroad company seeking to escape on the ground that it was a joint tort-feasor and that such release would release all joint tort-feasors.—Chicago & A. R.

Co. v. Wagner, 36 S. Ct. 135, 239 U. S. 452, 60 L. Ed. 379, affirming judgment Wagner v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 106 N. E. 809, 265 Ill. 245.

A contract by which an interstate railway carrier employs a person to handle the coal used in its engines was not an evasion of the Employers' Liability Act, notwithstanding section 5 thereof.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Bond, 36 S. Ct. 403, 240 U. S. 449, 60 L. Ed. 735, reversing judgment 148 P. 103.

(B) TOOLS, MACHINERY, APPLIANCES, AND PLACES FOR WORK.

101, 102. Nature of master's duty and liability and care required in general.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 135, 171, 174, 173-184, 192.

While it is the master's duty to use reasonable and proper care and diligence in furnishing appliances to his servant, he is not an insurer against accidents that may arise from the use of such appliances.—Washington & G. R. Co. v. McDade, 135 U. S. 554, 10 S. Ct. 1044, 34 L. Ed. 235, affirming McDade v. Washington & G. R. Co., 5 Mackey, 144; Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 157 U. S. 72, 15 S. Ct. 491, 39 L. Ed. 624.

In all occupations attended with great and unusual danger there must be used all appliances readily attainable known to science for the prevention of accidents, and the neglect to provide such readily attainable appliances is proof of culpable negligence.—Mather v. Rillston, 156 U. S. 391, 15 S. Ct. 464, 39 L. Ed. 464, affirming judgment (C. C.) Rillston v. Mather, 44 F. 743.

105. Custom and usage.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 185-191.

In an action by a servant against his master for injuries sustained by reason of dangerous machinery furnished by the master, an instruction that "defendant was not a guarantor of the safety of its machinery, and was only bound to use ordinary care and prudence in the selection and arrangement thereof, and had a right to use and employ such as the experience of trade and manufacture sanctioned as reasonably safe," is not erroneous.—Washington & G. R. Co. v. McDade, 135 U. S. 554, 10 S. Ct. 1044, 34 L. Ed. 235, affirming McDade v. Washington & G. R. Co., 5 Mackey, 144.

It is not negligence to use unblocked frogs in a railroad freight yard, whereby the feet of employes coupling cars are liable to be caught, it appearing that unblocked frogs are generally used in the same section of the country, and that it is doubtful whether they are not the better kind.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Seley, 152 U. S. 145, 14 S. Ct. 530, 38 L. Ed. 391, reversing judgment Seley v. Southern Pac. Co., 6 Utah, 319, 23 P. 751; Kilpatrick v. Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co., 25 S. Ct. 789, 195 U. S. 624, 49 L. Ed. 349, affirming judgment 121 F. 11, 57 C. C. A. 255.

106. Appliances or places owned, controlled, or provided by third persons.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 193-196.

A railroad company is not negligent in receiving into its yards and passing over its line cars containing different couplings from those owned by itself.—Kohn v. McNulta, 147 U. S. 238, 13 S. Ct. 298, 37 L. Ed. 150.

107. Defects in tools, appliances, and places for work in general.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 199-202, 212, 204, 255.

The obligation of a master to provide reasonably safe places and structures for his servants to work upon does not oblige him to keep a building, which they are employed in erecting, in a safe condition at every moment of their work, so far as its safety depends on the due performance of that work by them and their fellow servants.—Armour v. Hahn, 111 U. S. 313, 4 S. Ct. 433, 28 L. Ed. 440.

Plaintiff was employed by defendants in handling dynamite and fulminating caps, kept in an engine house, where they were in continuous danger of explosion from great heat and constant jarring, and their confused and disorderly position. Held, that defendants were negligent in failing to take measures to lessen the heat or jarring, which resulted in an explosion of the caps and dynamite, which injured plaintiff.—Mather v. Rillston, 156 U. S. 391, 15 S. Ct. 464, 39 L. Ed. 464, affirming judgment (C. C.) Rillston v. Mather, 44 F. 743.

—110. Locomotives.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 214, 214½.

The standard height of drawbars prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission under Safety Appliance Act, § 5, if originally confined to freight cars, was made applicable to engines by the amendatory Act March 2, 1903, providing that the requirements of Acts March 2, 1893, and April 1, 1896, relating to height of drawbars shall apply to all locomotives except those exempted by earlier acts and those used on street railways.—Southern R. Co. v. Crockett, 34 S. Ct. 897, 234 U. S. 725, 58 L. Ed. 1564.

—111. Railroad cars.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 215-217, 254.

Automatic couplers which will both couple and can be uncoupled without the necessity of men going between the cars are what are meant by the provision of Act March 2, 1893, c. 196, § 2, 27 Stat. 531 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3174], prohibiting common carriers from using any car in moving interstate commerce not equipped with "couplers coupling automatically by impact, and which can be uncoupled without the necessity of men going between the ends of the cars." Judgment 117 F. 462, 54 C. C. A. 508, reversed.—Johnson v. Southern Pac. Co., 25 S. Ct. 153, 196 U. S. 1, 49 L. Ed. 363.

The equipment of a locomotive and a dining car with automatic couplers, but of such different types as not to couple with each other automatically, does not satisfy the provision of Act March 2, 1893, c. 196, § 2, 27 Stat. 531 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3174], prohibiting common carriers from using any car in moving interstate commerce not equipped with couplers coupling automatically by impact, and which can be uncoupled without the necessity of men going between the ends of the cars.—Id.

A shovel car is a "car" within the meaning of Act March 2, 1893, c. 196, § 2, 27 Stat. 531 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3174], requiring any car used in moving interstate traffic to be equipped with an automatic coupler. Judgment (1903) 56 A. 417, 207 Pa. 198, reversed.—Schlemmer v. Buffalo, R. & P. Ry. Co., 27 S. Ct. 407, 205 U. S. 1, 51 L. Ed. 631.

An absolute duty to provide every car used in moving interstate traffic with automatic couplers, and to maintain them in proper condition at all times and under all circumstances, is imposed upon interstate carriers by Safety Appliance Act March 2, 1893, c. 196, 27 Stat. 531 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3174], which was not discharged by properly equipping the car with automatic couplers, and using due diligence to keep them in good working order.—(1911) Delk v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., 31 S. Ct. 617, 220 U. S. 580, 55 L. Ed. 590, reversing judgment (1908) St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Delk, 153 F. 931, 86 C. C. A. 95, 14 A. & E. Cas. 233.

Carrier's failure to have a freight car equipped with an automatic coupler under Acts March 2, 1893, April 1, 1896, and April 14, 1910, was not an actionable breach of duty toward an employé injured in a collision between such car and the switch engine on which he was riding, where there was no attempt to couple the car.—St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Conarty, 35 S. Ct. 785, 238 U. S. 243, 59 L. Ed. 1290, reversing judgment 155 S. W. 93, 106 Ark. 421.

Interstate railway companies are liable, irrespective of negligence, to maintain the safety appliances which under the acts of March 2, 1893, March 2, 1903, and April 14, 1910, must be installed on railway cars used on an interstate railroad.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Rigsby, 36 S. Ct. 432, 241 U. S. 83, 60 L. Ed. 874, affirming judgment 222 F. 221, 138 C. C. A. 51.

A violation of the federal Safety Appliance Act by interstate carrier is negligence rendering railroad liable for resulting injury to employes under the Employers' Liability Act.—San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wagner, 36 S. Ct. 626, 241 U. S. 476, 60 L. Ed. 1110, affirming judgment (Tex. Civ. App.) 166 S. W. 24.

Electric motors and trains on interstate interurban electric railroad held brought within Safety Appliance Act by Amendatory Act March 2, 1903, § 1, providing that provisions as to train brakes shall apply to all trains used on interstate commerce, and section 2, requiring trains operated with train brakes to have their brakes operated by the engineer of the locomotive.—Spokane & I. E. R. Co. v. Campbell, 36 S. Ct. 683, 241 U. S. 497, 60 L. Ed. 1125, affirming judgment 217 F. 518, 133 C. C. A. 370.

Duty as to power and train brakes under Safety Appliance Acts was owed by interstate interurban electric railroad to a motorman who had exposed himself to danger by taking out his train in violation of orders.—Id.

—112. Railroad tracks and roadbeds.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 212, 213, 213-223.

A ground switch, of a form in common use, was placed in a railroad yard, in a space six feet wide between two tracks. The lock of the switch was in the middle of the space; and the handle, when lying flat, extended to within a foot of the adjacent rail, and could be safely and effectively worked by standing in the middle opposite the lock, using reasonable care. The brakeman of a train on one of the tracks, while working at the switch, standing at the end of the handle, was struck by an engine on the other track. Held, that there was no such proof of fault on the part of the railroad corporation, in the construction and arrangement of the switch, as would support an action against it for the injury.—Randall v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 109 U. S. 478, 3 S. Ct. 322, 27 L. Ed. 1003.

A railroad company is bound, as respects its employes, to exercise the care which the exigency reasonably demands in furnishing proper roadbed, track, and other structures, including sufficient culverts for escape of water collected and accumulated by its embankments and excavations.—Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. O'Brien, 161 U. S. 451, 16 S. Ct. 618, 40 L. Ed. 766.

—113. Obstructions or erections on, over, or near railroad tracks.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 212, 224-227.

It is negligence as matter of law for a railroad company to maintain an iron spout so attached to a water tank as to be a constant menace to the lives and limbs of brakemen on its trains where it might readily have been so constructed and hung as to be safe. Judgment, 112 F. 888, 50 C. C. A. 591, affirmed.—Choc-taw, O. & G. R. Co. v. McDade, 24 S. Ct. 24, 191 U. S. 64, 48 L. Ed. 96.

124. Inspection and test.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 235-242.

A railroad company is under a legal duty not to expose its employes to dangers arising from such defects in foreign cars as may be discovered by reasonable inspection before such cars are admitted into its train.—Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 157 U. S. 72, 15 S. Ct. 491, 39 L. Ed. 624.

A railroad company is not required to adopt extraordinary tests to discover defects in machinery, but fulfills its duty if it adopts such tests as are ordinarily used by prudently conducted roads under like circumstances.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Barrett, 17 S. Ct. 707, 166 U. S. 617, 41 L. Ed. 1136, affirming judgment 67 F. 214, 14 C. C. A. 373.

The general duty which rests upon a railroad company to exercise reasonable care in the inspection of cars to be handled by its employes is not restricted in the case of foreign cars to such as are to be sent out over its own road, but governs as to all such cars which its employes are required to handle, though only in its switch yards, and for the purpose of being loaded and returned to another road.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Archibald, 18 S. Ct. 777, 170 U. S. 665, 42 L. Ed. 1188, affirming judgment 75 F. 802, 21 C. C. A. 520.

129. Proximate cause of injury.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 257-262.

The absence of a brake from an engine, the presence of which would have prevented a collision with a horse on the track, is the proximate cause of the resulting derailment. Judgment, 114 F. 458, 52 C. C. A. 260, affirmed.—Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. Holloway, 24 S. Ct. 102, 191 U. S. 334, 48 L. Ed. 207.

Retention of interstate railway employe on duty for more than 16 hours contrary to Act March 4, 1907, § 2, does not make the company unqualifiedly liable for negligent injury irrespective of his contributory negligence, unless the retention contributed to the injury, since the statute excluding such elements is not such act, but the subsequent Employers' Liability Act, §§ 3, 4.—Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Swearingen, 36 S. Ct. 121, 239 U. S. 339, 60 L. Ed. 317.

The use by a railway engineer of a water gauge without a guard glass instead of the gauge cocks was not the proximate cause of an injury from the bursting of the water tube, where the gauge cocks themselves are not safe because of their liability to clog.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Horton, 36 S. Ct. 180, 239 U. S. 595, 60 L. Ed. 453, affirming judgment Horton v. Seaboard Air Line Ry., 85 S. E. 218, 169 N. C. 108.

(C) METHODS OF WORK, RULES, AND ORDERS.

130. Methods of work and duty to protect servant in general.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 264, 266, 276.

A railroad company is not bound to protect employes engaged in shifting cars in its yard further than by providing competent co-servants, and prescribing such regulations as experience shows may be best calculated to secure their safety.—Central R. Co. of New Jersey v. Keegan, 160 U. S. 259, 16 S. Ct. 269, 40 L. Ed. 413.

131. Statutory regulations.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 265, 278.

St. W. Va. 1873, c. 88, § 31, providing that a bell or whistle shall be placed on every locomotive engine, and shall be rung or sounded by the engineman or fireman 60 rods from any highway crossing, and until the highway is reached, and that the "corporation owning the railroad shall be liable to any person injured for all damages sustained" by reason of neglect so to do, does not make the corporation liable for an injury, caused by negligence of the engineman or fireman in this respect, to a fellow servant.—Randall v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 109 U. S. 478, 3 S. Ct. 322, 27 L. Ed. 1003.

A violation of the prohibition of Hours of Service Act March 4, 1907, against requiring more than 16 hours consecutive service from railroad employes, does not create an unconditional liability for all accidents to employes happening during the period of service beyond the statutory limit.—St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. McWhirter, 33 S. Ct. 858, 229 U. S. 265, 57 L. Ed. 1179, reversing judgment 140 S. W. 672, 145 Ky. 427.

135. Customary methods.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 271, 281, 293.

Whether a freight train was handled with ordinary care, and not whether it was handled in the usual and ordinary way, is the test by which to determine the liability of a railroad company for injuries received by a brakeman because of a sudden bump or jerk while he was standing, in obedience to orders, on the icy roof of a car in such train. Judgment, 112 F. 35, 50 C. C. A. 106, affirmed.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Behymer, 23 S. Ct. 622, 189 U. S. 468, 47 L. Ed. 905.

137. Particular operations.

Where a switching engine is constantly engaged in moving to and fro making up trains in a railroad yard, there is no obligation upon the company to ring the bell or sound the whistle, for the purpose of notifying employes who are familiar with the operation of the yard.—Aerkfetz v. Humphreys, 145 U. S. 418, 12 S. Ct. 835, 36 L. Ed. 753.

The promulgation by a train dispatcher of special orders, sufficient, if obeyed, to insure the safe operation of two passenger trains approaching each other on the same track, is not a complete discharge of the railway company's duty to furnish safe places and appliances for its employes, if the dispatcher afterwards becomes aware of the danger of a collision, growing out of a disobedience of such orders, which he may guard against by issuing new orders. Judgment 136 F. 66, 68 C. C. A. 634, affirmed.—Santa Fé Pac. R. Co. v. Holmes, 26 S. Ct. 676, 202 U. S. 433, 50 L. Ed. 1094.

A railway employe, injured by a head-on collision which would not have occurred if the train having the right of way had not passed a station six minutes ahead of schedule time, as fixed by special orders from the train dispatcher, may hold the railway company accountable, where the dispatcher failed to issue orders to intercept the train at that point after being informed that it was two minutes ahead of time in passing a point but a few miles away.—Id.

It is actionable negligence under the Employers' Liability Act for a railway company to switch cars on a private switch obstructed so as to endanger brakemen.—Kanawha & M. Ry. Co. v. Kerse, 36 S. Ct. 174, 239 U. S. 576, 60 L. Ed. 448.

Running a switch engine on the main track through a deep and curved cut within the yard limits at such a speed as to endanger an "extra" train is negligence under the federal Employers' Liability Act, though such running is not prohibited by the company's rules.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Wright, 36 S. Ct. 185, 239 U. S. 548, 60 L. Ed. 431, affirming judgment Wright v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 143 N. W. 220, 94 Neb. 317 and 146 N. W. 1024, 96 Neb. 87.

◀138. Acts in emergencies.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. § 264, 292.

In an action against a railroad company for personal injuries to a servant it appeared that plaintiff was employed with others under the direction of a foreman, in loading rails on a construction train which had left a station at a time when one of defendant's regular trains was overdue there, as the foreman knew, and which was standing on the main track about two miles from such station; that the length and weight of the rails was such that concert of action was necessary to lift and throw them on the car safely, and to that end the foreman gave the word of command for such actions until but three or four of the rails remained, and the regular train was seen rapidly approaching; that plaintiff and others were waiting for the command to lift and throw on the car the rail they were holding, when the foreman, with violent language, ordered them to get it on the best way they could, and in the excitement one end of the rail was thrown with more force than the other, so that the rail struck the side of the car, fell back, and, before plaintiff could get out of its way, crushed his leg and foot. Held, that it was proper to direct a verdict for defendant, the only negligence shown being that of plaintiff or his fellow servants, and not of the foreman.—Coyne v. Union Pac. Ry. Co., 133 U. S. 370, 10 S. Ct. 382, 33 L. Ed. 651.

(D) WARNING AND INSTRUCTING SERVANT.

◀150. Duty to warn and instruct in general.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. § 297, 299-302, 305-307.

If laborers engaged in hazardous occupations are not informed of the accompanying dangers by their employers, and they remain in ignorance of the dangers, and suffer in consequence, the employers are chargeable for the injuries sustained.—Mather v. Rillston, 156 U. S. 391, 15 S. Ct. 464, 39 L. Ed. 464, affirming judgment (C. C.) Rillston v. Mather, 44 F. 743.

A master does not discharge his duty to employes working in a dimly lighted stable, where he does not inform them of the dangers to them from the customary use of a hole in the ceiling to pass or drop hay or feed to the floor below.—(1910) Standard Oil Co. v. Brown, 30 S. Ct. 669, 218 U. S. 78, 54 L. Ed. 939, affirming judgment (1908) 31 App. D. C. 371.

◀153. Inexperienced or youthful employé.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. § 314-317.

Plaintiff was employed by defendants in handling dynamite and fulminating caps, kept in an engine house, where they were in continuous danger of explosion from great heat and constant jarring and their confused and disorderly position; but defendants did nothing to lessen the heat or jarring, nor did they inform plaintiff of the danger incurred in handling the dynamite and caps, or of the danger of explosion from heat or concussion, although he was ignorant thereof. Held, that defendants were guilty of negligence, and therefore liable for injuries to plaintiff from an explosion of the caps and dynamite.—Mather v. Rillston, 156 U. S. 391, 15 S. Ct. 464, 39 L. Ed. 464, affirming judgment (C. C.) Rillston v. Mather, 44 F. 743.

An employé of a railroad corporation was injured in the state of Iowa under such circumstances as to give him a right of action under a statute of that state making railroad companies liable for injuries to their servants caused by the negligence of fellow servants. Held, that such cause of action might be enforced in Minnesota; the statute not being contrary to public policy, although differing from the common-law rule which prevails in Minnesota.—Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Herrick, 127 U. S. 210, 8 S. Ct. 1176, 32 L. Ed. 109.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. § 334-351.

◀170. — Care required of master.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. § 336.

In an action by a brakeman for injuries received in a collision, caused by the negligence of a telegraphic night operator, there was evidence tending to show the latter's incompetence and inexperience, and that he was employed without any investigation as to his capacity on the recommendation of the day operator. Held, that the company was obliged to use that degree of diligence and precaution in the selection and retention of its servants and agents that the exigencies of the particular service require, and that, in view of the great responsibility of the position of night operator, and the consequences which might result from negligence, it was not error to instruct that the company must use "proper and great care" to select competent persons.—Wabash Ry. Co. v. McDaniels, 107 U. S. 454, 2 S. Ct. 932, 27 L. Ed. 606.

◀177. Negligence as ground of liability.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. § 307, 352, 353; 2 Cent. Dig. Anim. § 256.

A master is not liable for injuries to a servant, caused by the negligence of a fellow servant engaged in the same general business, where the master has furnished proper appliances, and has not been negligent in the selection of fellow employes.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Peterson, 162 U. S. 348, 16 S. Ct. 843, 40 L. Ed. 994, reversing judgment 51 F. 182, 2 C. C. A. 157.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. § 359-361, 363-368.

A statute which provides "that a bell or whistle shall be placed on every locomotive engine, and shall be rung or sounded by the engineer or fireman 60 rods from any highway crossing, and until the highway is reached, and that the corporation owning the railroad shall be liable to any person injured for all damages sustained" by reason of neglect so to do, does not make the corporation liable for an injury caused by the negligence of the engineer or fireman in this respect to a fellow servant.—Randall v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 109 U. S. 478, 3 S. Ct. 322, 27 L. Ed. 1003.

A brakeman is not the fellow servant of a car inspector appointed to look after the condition of the machinery and appliances of the railroad, and see that it is in good and safe working order, within Civ. Code Dak. § 1130, providing that an employer is not bound to indemnify an employé for injuries caused by the negligence of another person employed in the same general business.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Herbert, 116 U. S. 642, 6 S. Ct. 590, 29 L. Ed. 755, affirming Herbert v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 3 Dak. 38, 13 N. W. 349.

A section hand, injured by the fault of a fellow employé while returning home with the section crew upon a hand car, after repairing the track, is entitled to recover under Code Iowa, § 1307, making the company liable for injuries caused by the negligence or mismanagement of fellow employes, "when such wrongs are in any manner connected with the use and operation of any railway about which they shall be employed."—Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. v. Artery, 137 U. S. 507, 11 S. Ct. 129, 34 L. Ed. 747.

A common laborer, working under the direction of a section foreman on a culvert on the line of a railroad, and the engineer and conductor of a passenger train on the road, are employes engaged "in the same general business," within Comp. Laws Dak. § 3753, exempting the employer from liability for losses suffered by his employé in consequence of negligence of another employed in the same general business.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Hambly, 154 U. S. 349, 14 S. Ct. 983, 38 L. Ed. 1009.

A person regularly employed by a railroad company as a bridge carpenter, but engaged at the time of his injury in loading timbers on a car for transportation to another point on the company's road, is entitled to the benefits of Gen. St. Kan. 1889, c. 23, § 93, making every railroad company liable for damages to one of its employes through the negligence of a co-employé.—Chicago, K. & W. R. Co. v. Pontius, 157 U. S. 209, 15 S. Ct. 585, 39 L. Ed. 675, affirming judgment 52 Kan. 264, 34 P. 739.

Rev. St. 1899, § 2873, is not limited in its application to servants of the railroad company actually engaged in the operation of trains thereon, but includes all servants whose work is directly necessary for the running of trains over a track, and therefore it includes section hands engaged in repairing the road. Judgment, Calahan v. St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal Ry. Co., 71 S. W. 208, 170 Mo. 473, 60 L. R. A. 249, 94 Am. St. Rep. 746, affirmed.—St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal Ry. Co. v. Callahan, 24 S. Ct. 857, 194 U. S. 628, 48 L. Ed. 1157.

Where a section hand was stationed in the street below defendant's railroad track to warn other members of the section gang when it was safe for them to throw ties taken from the railroad into the street, and to warn pedestrians, and to remove the ties from the street, and such section hand was injured by being struck by a tie negligently thrown by the gang without being notified that it was safe to do so, while he was engaged in removing a child from a place of danger in the street, such section hand "was engaged in the work of operating such railroad," within Mo. Rev. St. 1899, § 2873.—Id.

Act Ark. March 8, 1907, p. 162, abolishing the fellow servant rule as to corporations operating railroads within the state is not unconstitutional.—Aluminum Co. of America v. Ramsey, 32 S. Ct. 76, 222 U. S. 251, 56 L. Ed. 185, affirming judgment (1909) 117 S. W. 568, 89 Ark. 522.

A yard foreman controlling the movements of trains in the yards and the distributing of cars is in charge of the train within the meaning of Laws Ind. 1893, c. 130, abolishing the fellow-servant rule in actions by railroad employes for injuries caused by negligence of any person having charge of any switchyard, locomotive, or train.—Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. v. Hackett, 33 S. Ct. 581, 228 U. S. 559, 57 L. Ed. 966, affirming judgment Hackett v. Chicago, I. & L. R. Co., 170 Ill. App. 140.

182. — Persons engaged in superintendence.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 371, 372.

The neglect, by the foreman of a railway bridge gang, of his special duty to see that the workmen under him performed their duty to leave a clear track for an approaching train, is the neglect of a duty which he owes, not as a fellow servant with such workmen, but as a vice principal of the railroad company, under Sayles' Rev. Civ. St. Tex. 1897, art. 4580g. Judgment 111 F. 777, 49 C. C. A. 605, 60 L. R. A. 462, affirmed.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Carlin, 23 S. Ct. 585, 189 U. S. 354, 47 L. Ed. 849.

184. — Persons performing duties of master.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. § 374.

Code Dak. § 1131, providing that an employer is responsible for injuries to his employes caused by his own want of ordinary care, does not change the common-law rule that a master is liable for injuries to a servant caused by the negligence of a fellow servant to whom the master has intrusted the duty of furnishing appliances and employing competent servants.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Herbert, 116 U. S. 642, 6 S. Ct. 590, 29 L. Ed. 755, affirming Herbert v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 3 Dak. 38, 13 N. W. 349.

185. Nature of act and performance of duties of master.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 386-421.

A railroad company cannot avoid liability for injuries to a servant, caused by its failure to furnish safe materials and structures to be used by the latter, by showing that it had delegated the duty of keeping such appliances in safe repair to a fellow servant.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Herbert, 116 U. S. 642, 6 S. Ct. 590, 29 L. Ed. 755, affirming Herbert v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 3 Dak. 38, 13 N. W. 349.

In an action against a steamship company for personal injuries, it appeared that at the gangways of the vessel the rods forming the railing around the deck were secured at one end to the stanchion by rings, in which the rods could swing, the other ends being formed into hooks, that fitted into eyes on another stanchion; that after one of these gangways was opened for the passage of baggage, the carpenter and porter undertook to secure the rods, but went away before the hooks had been properly fitted into the eyes; that plaintiff, the stewardess of the ship, who had never noticed the hooks, came to this gangway to empty slops, as was her custom, and the usual course of her employment; and that, as she leaned against the railing, the rods gave way, and she fell into the water, and received the injuries complained of. Held, that plaintiff's injuries were occasioned solely by the negligence of fellow servants, and she is not entitled to recover.—Quebec S. S. Co. v. Merchant, 133 U. S. 375, 10 S. Ct. 397, 33 L. Ed. 656.

In determining the liability of a master to his servant for injuries caused by the negligence of another servant, the question does not turn merely on the matter of subordination and control, but rather on the character of the alleged negligent act. If that act is done in the discharge of some positive duty of the master to the servant, then negligence in the act is the negligence of the master, irrespective of the gradations of service as between the servants themselves. If the act is not one in the discharge of such positive duty, then there should be some personal wrong on the part of the master before he can be held liable.—Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Baugh, 149 U. S. 368, 13 S. Ct. 914, 37 L. Ed. 772.

The rule exempting a master from liability for injuries caused to a servant by a fellow servant is subject to the exception that the master is bound to use due care in furnishing safe instrumentalities for performing the work, and is liable for an omission to fulfill this obligation, although it arises from the negligence of a co-servant of the person injured.—Gardner v. Mich- igan Cent. R. Co., 150 U. S. 349, 14 S. Ct. 140, 37 L. Ed. 1107.

The duty of a railroad company to exercise reasonable care in furnishing adequately safe trains for the use of its employes is not discharged by simply using reasonable care to employ and retain only competent and diligent inspectors, but it is liable if its inspectors in fact fail to discover a defect which a reasonable examination would have disclosed.—Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. Snyder, 152 U. S. 684, 14 S. Ct. 756, 38 L. Ed. 597, affirming judgment Daniels v. Union Pac. Ry. Co., 6 Utah, 357, 23 P. 762.

The failure of the repairer to step out from under the car, upon seeing that the caboose was being slowly backed down upon it, and to give warning to the engineer in charge of the engine moving the caboose, cannot be excused by the fact that he relied on a car repairer, who was on the side of the track, to give warning, since, if the car repairer was his agent, the latter's negligence gave him no right to recover against the company, and, if the car repairer was to be regarded as the servant of the company, his negligence was that of a fellow servant.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Pool, 160 U. S. 438, 16 S. Ct. 338, 40 L. Ed. 485.

A railroad company is bound to use ordinary care to furnish safe machinery and appliances for the use of its employes, and to keep them in repair, and the neglect of its agents in that regard is its neglect.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Barrett, 17 S. Ct. 707, 166 U. S. 617, 41 L. Ed. 1136, affirming judgment 67 F. 214, 14 C. C. A. 373.

Where a fireman in charge of a switch engine in a railroad company's yard was injured by the explosion of another engine, which had been placed by the foreman of the roundhouse on a track in the yard with steam up, to take out a train, the company was liable if the boiler exploded by reason of defects of which its servants, whose duty it was to repair such machinery, knew, or by reasonable care might have known.—Id.

The mere fact that a train was a "wild" train, not running on schedule time, does not justify the inference that the conductor was relieved by special orders from observing a rule governing the distance at which one train should follow another, so as to make the company liable for an injury to a fellow servant of the conductor resulting from a failure to observe the rule. 15 C. C. A. 52, 67 F. 881 reversed.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Poirier, 17 S. Ct. 741, 167 U. S. 48, 42 L. Ed. 72.

As construed by state courts, Laws Wash. 1897, c. 45, imposes a nondelegable duty on owners or operators of coal mines to prevent accumulation of gas, so that a fire boss is not a fellow servant of the miners.—Brown v. Pacific Coast Coal Co., 36 S. Ct. 701, 241 U. S. 571, 60 L. Ed. 1177, reversing judgment Pacific Coast Coal Co. v. Brown, 211 F. 869, 128 C. C. A. 247, and 214 F. 255, 130 C. C. A. 625.

When the business of the master is of such great and diversified extent that it naturally and necessarily separates itself into departments of service, the persons placed by the master in charge of these separate branches and departments, with entire control therein, may properly be considered, with respect to employes under them, as vice principals and representatives of the master, as fully as if the entire business of the master were placed under one superintendent.—Northern Pac. The foreman of a drill crew, who works with the rest of the crew in moving cars in a railroad yard and placing them on floats, and who is subordinate to the yard master, who employs and discharges all employes in the yard, is a fellow servant of the other members of the crew.—Central R. Co. of New Jersey v. Keegan, 160 U. S. 259, 16 S. Ct. 269, 40 L. Ed. 418.

The boss of a gang of 10 or 15 men engaged in making repairs on a railroad, wherever the same may be necessary, over a distance of three sections, aiding and assisting the regular section gangs, is not a superintendent of a separate department, or in control of a distinct branch of the master's work, so as to make the master liable for an injury to one of the gang by his neglect, although he has power to employ and discharge his men and direct them in their work.—Northern Pac. A mere foreman of a gang of laborers employed by a corporation, who is not the manager or superintendent of any department of its business, is a fellow servant of the men working under him, and it is immaterial whether or not he has power to employ and discharge them. 12 C. Negligence of a section foreman in running at dangerous speed the hand car upon which he is going with his gang to their place of work, so that an accident occurs, resulting in injury to one of the employes on the car, is negligence of a fellow servant, for which the company is not liable; and it is error to submit to the jury the question of such negligence.—Northern Pac. A railroad employe, who, after finishing his employment for the day, and leaving the workshop and grounds of the company, is injured while moving along a public highway in the city, by negligent acts of other employes of the company on its moving trains, is not their fellow servant. Judgment 6 App. D. C. 385, reversed.—Fletcher v. Baltimore & P. R. Co., 18 S. Ct. 35, 188 U. S. 135, 42 L. Ed. 411.

195. Nature of common service.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 375-378, 486-514.

196. — In general.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 375-378, 486-488.

Carpenters, under charge of a foreman, and bricklayers, all employed by the owner through his superintendent, were erecting a building, with a cornice supported by sticks of timber passing through the wall (which was 18 inches thick) and projecting 16 inches, and to be bricked up at the sides and ultimately over the top of the timbers. When the wall had been bricked up on a level with, but not yet over, the timbers, the foreman of the carpenters directed two of them to take a joist for the edge of the cornice, and to push it out to the ends of the projecting timbers. In so arranging the joist, a carpenter stepped on the projecting part of one of the timbers, which tipped over, whereby he fell and was hurt. Held, that the owner of the building was not liable to him for the injury.—Armour v. Hahn, 111 U. S. 313, 4 S. Ct. 433, 28 L. Ed. 440.

The general rule is that those entering the service of a common master become thereby engaged in a common service, and are fellow servants; and, prima facie, the common master is not liable for the negligence of one of his servants which has resulted in an injury to a fellow servant.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Peterson, 162 U. S. 346, 16 S. Ct. 843, 40 L. Ed. 994, reversing judgment 51 F. 182, 2 C. C. A. 157.

A person consenting to aid in hauling a boiler to a sugar mill, whether a volunteer or not, is a fellow servant with the driver of the millowner's automobile during a trip taken for the purpose of doing the work.—Brooks v. Central Sainte Jeanne, 33 S. Ct. 700, 228 U. S. 688, 57 L. Ed. 1025.

198. — Operation of railroads.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 493-514.

A brakeman, working a switch for his train on one track in a railroad yard, is a fellow servant with the engineman of another train of the same corporation upon an adjacent track, and cannot maintain an action against the corporation for injury caused by the negligence of the engineman in driving his engine too fast, and not giving due notice of its approach, without proving negligence of the corporation in employing an unfit engineman.—Randall v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 109 U. S. 478, 3 S. Ct. 322, 27 L. Ed. 1003.

The conductor of a railroad train is not the fellow servant of the engineer, but represents the company, and the company is liable for injuries to the engineer caused by the negligence of the conductor.—Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Ross, 112 U. S. 377, 5 S. Ct. 184, 28 L. Ed. 787, affirming Ross v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 8 F. 544, 2 McCrary, 235.

An engineer in charge of a locomotive, which is running detached from any train, cannot be regarded as in control of a department of the company's business, so as to render him a vice principal in his relation to the fireman of the locomotive; but the two are fellow servants, although the company's rules declare that under such circumstances the engineer shall also be regarded as a conductor.—Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Baugh, 149 U. S. 368, 13 S. Ct. 914, 37 L. Ed. 772.

A common laborer, employed by the company owning and operating a railroad, and working, under direction of a section foreman, on a culvert thereon, is a fellow servant with the engineer and conductor of a passenger train on the road, in such sense as exempts the company from liability for an injury to him through negligence of such conductor and engineer in operating the train.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Hambly, 154 U. S. 349, 14 S. Ct. 983, 38 L. Ed. 1009.

The employes of an extra freight train are the fellow servants of section hands going to their work upon a hand car, so that the negligence of the former in failing to give proper signals, whereby a collision results, does not render the company liable for injuries to one of the section men.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Charles, 162 U. S. 359, 16 S. Ct. 848, 40 L. Ed. 999, reversing judgment 51 F. 562, 2 C. C. A. 380.

One operating a locomotive on one train, and the conductor on another train of the same road, are fellow servants, and the former cannot recover for injuries caused by the negligence of the latter. Mr. Justice Harlan dissenting.—Oakes v. Mase, 17 S. Ct. 345, 165 U. S. 363, 41 L. Ed. 746, reversing judgment Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Mase, 63 F. 114, 11 C. C. A. 63.

Where a common railroad laborer, going to work on a hand car with his section foreman, is injured through the negligence of the servants in charge of a train, and of the foreman in failing to watch for its approach, the company is not liable, as the negligence is that of his fellow servants.—Martin v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co., 17 S. Ct. 603, 166 U. S. 399, 41 L. Ed. 1051.

The conductor and engineer of one train are fellow servants of a brakeman on another who is injured by a collision between them.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Poirier, 17 S. Ct. 741, 167 U. S. 48, 42 L. Ed. 72.

The conductor of a freight train is not a vice principal, unless special and unusual powers have been conferred upon him, but is a fellow servant of the engineer and brakemen, within the meaning of the rule which exempts the railroad company, their common employer, from liability to one of them for injuries caused by the negligence of another.—New England R. Co. v. Conroy, 20 S. Ct. 85, 175 U. S. 323, 44 L. Ed. 181.

Negligence of a local telegraph operator and station agent of a railway company in observing and reporting by telegraph to the train dispatcher the movement of trains past his station, which causes the death of a fireman on such railway, without any fault or negligence of the train dispatcher, is the negligence of a fellow servant of the fireman, the risk of which the latter assumes.—Northern Pac. Ry. Co. v. Dixon, 24 S. Ct. 683, 194 U. S. 338, 48 L. Ed. 1006.

A fireman employed on a locomotive and engaged in the movement of a train is not a fellow servant with the superintendent of construction and the foreman of a bridge gang, who are present and engaged in supervising and directing the work on the bridge. Judgment (1903) 87 P. 320, 17 Okl. 355, affirmed.—McCabe & Steen Const. Co. v. Wilson, 28 S. Ct. 558, 209 U. S. 275, 52 L. Ed. 788.

A railway engineer and a section foreman are both fellow servants of a section hand, so that the latter cannot recover from the company for injuries resulting from their negligence. Judgment (C. C. A. 1907) 160 F. 452, 87 C. C. A. 440, reversed.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Bourman, 29 S. Ct. 319, 212 U. S. 536, 53 L. Ed. 641.

An employe working in the repair yard of a railroad is a fellow servant of members of an engine and switching crew, by whose negligence he was killed.—Beutler v. Grand Trunk Junction R. Co., 32 S. Ct. 402, 224 U. S. 85, 56 L. Ed. 679.

←200. — Shipping.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. § 492.

The carpenter, the porter, and the stewardess of a steamship, all of whom have signed shipping articles, are fellow servants, though the former belongs to that division of the ship's company known as the "deck department," and the two latter to the "steward's department"; such divisions being made merely for convenience of administration, and the captain of the ship being in command of the whole.—Quebec S. S. Co. v. Merchant, 133 U. S. 375, 10 S. Ct. 397, 33 L. Ed. 658.

←201. Concurrent negligence of master and fellow servant.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 515-534.

In action for injuries received by an engineer in a railway collision, an instruction that, if its negligence had a share in producing the injury, the company was liable, though the negligence of a fellow servant contributed thereto also, was not error.—Grand Trunk R. Co. v. Cummings, 106 U. S. 700, 1 S. Ct. 493, 27 L. Ed. 268.

Concurring negligence does not exclude the master's liability if his negligence in failing to provide and maintain a safe place to work contributed to the injury. Judgment (1907) 152 F. 120, 81 C. C. A. 338, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 684, reversed.—Kreigh v. Westinghouse, Church, Kerr & Co., 29 S. Ct. 619, 214 U. S. 249, 53 L. Ed. 984.

The negligence of a fellow servant does not exclude the master's liability if the latter's failure to warn an employé working on the floor of a dimly lighted stable of the danger to him from the customary use of a hole in the ceiling to toss or drop hay or feed to the floor below contributed to the injury.—(1910) Standard Oil Co. v. Brown, 30 S. Ct. 669, 218 U. S. 78, 54 L. Ed. 939, affirming judgment (1908) 81 App. D. C. 371.

(F) RISKS ASSUMED BY SERVANT.

←204. Statutory provisions.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 544-546.

Federal statutes only were included by the phrase "any statute enacted for the safety of employes" under the Employers' Liability Act April 22, 1906, §§ 3 and 4, abolishing defense of assumption of risk, where the violation of any statute enacted for the safety of employes contributed to the injury.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Horton, 34 S. Ct. 635, 233 U. S. 492, 58 L. Ed. 1062, L. R. A. 1915C, 1, Ann. Cas. 1915B, 475, reversing judgment Horton v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 78 S. E. 494, 162 N. C. 424.

The elimination of the defense of assumption of risk by Employers' Liability Act April 22, 1906, § 4, shows the legislative intent that in other cases than those provided by the law such assumption of risk shall have its former effect as a bar to the action.—Id.

The defense of assumption of risk is available to an interstate carrier under the Employers' Liability Act, as at common law, except in cases mentioned in section 4 of that act.—Southern R. Co. v. Crockett, 34 S. Ct. 897, 234 U. S. 725, 58 L. Ed. 1564.

A railway employé's knowledge of a violation of the safety appliance acts does not bar his right to recover for injuries, in view of section 8 of the earlier act, abrogating the defense of assumption of risk, and of section 5 of the later act.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Rigsby, 36 S. Ct. 482, 241 U. S. 33, 60 L. Ed. 874, affirming judgment 222 F. 221, 138 C. C. A. 51.

Express declaration by Employers' Liability Act, § 4, that employé does not assume risk of violation by carrier of any statute as to the safety of employes, leaves in force in all other cases the defense of assumption of risk, notwithstanding provisions of sections 3 and 5.—Jacobs v. Southern Ry. Co., 36 S. Ct. 588, 241 U. S. 229, 60 L. Ed. 970.

Express declaration by Employers' Liability Act, § 4, as to assumption of risk, leaves that defense in force in all other cases but that named, notwithstanding provisions of sections 3 and 5 of the act.—Baugham v. New York, P. & N. R. Co., 36 S. Ct. 592, 241 U. S. 237, 60 L. Ed. 977.

←205. Reliance on care of master.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 547-549.

A servant has a right to assume that the master has used proper diligence and care in the employment and retention of his fellow servants.—Northern Pac. Ry. Co. v. Mares, 123 U. S. 710, 8 S. Ct. 321, 31 L. Ed. 296, affirming judgment Mares v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 3 Dak. 336, 21 N. W. 5.

←207. Defective or dangerous tools, machinery, appliances, or places.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 551-553.

←209. — Use of machinery or appliances.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 552, 553.

An experienced operator of full age as a matter of law assumes the risk of injury from the excessive height above the feed board at which the guard rail of a laundry mangle is adjusted, where she has worked for some months at this machine, during which time the guard rail has remained in the same position. Judgment (1905) 25 App. D. C. 392, affirmed.—Butler v. Frazee, 29 S. Ct. 136, 211 U. S. 459, 53 L. Ed. 281.

←210. — Operation of railroads.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 554-556.

Experienced railway engineer aware of dangers incident to lubricator having tubular glasses does not assume increased risk of explosion of glasses attributable to the railroad's negligence in maintaining such a lubricator on a high-pressure engine.—Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Bower, 36 S. Ct. 624, 241 U. S. 470, 60 L. Ed. 1107, affirming judgment Bower v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 148 N. W. 145, 96 Neb. 419.

←213. Dangerous operations and methods of work.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 559-564.

Plaintiff's intestate was killed while coupling certain cars standing on a sharp curve, the drawheads of the cars having failed to meet, and passed each other, allowing the cars to come so close together that he was crushed to death. Deceased was standing on the inside of the drawbar, while coupling, and the outside was free from danger. Held, that deceased had wantonly assumed the risk of remaining upon the inside of the drawbar when he should have gone to the other side; and that, having assumed the risks of the employment, he was bound to look out for and avoid the dangers arising from the sharpness of the curve, to which, as an experienced brakeman, deceased must have known he was exposed.—Tuttle v. Detroit, G. H. & M. R. Co., 122 U. S. 189, 7 S. Ct. 1166, 30 L. Ed. 1114.

←217. Knowledge by servant of defect or danger.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 574-600; 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1560.

An experienced railroad employé, familiar with a certain freight yard, and knowing that unblocked frogs are in use there, assumes the risk incident thereto; and where the evidence shows that in attempting to make a coupling he put his foot into a frog, and was warned of the danger thereof, but persisted until his foot was caught, the court should instruct the jury to return a verdict for defendant company.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Seley, 152 U. S. 145, 14 S. Ct. 530, 38 L. Ed. 391, reversing judgment Seley v. Southern Pac. Ry. Co., 6 Utah, 319, 23 P. 751.

A locomotive engineer is not chargeable with knowledge of possible danger resulting from a rush of water on the railway from a gully, which is narrow, crooked, and concealed by the hills on the side of the railway.—Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. O'Brien, 161 U. S. 451, 16 S. Ct. 618, 40 L. Ed. 766.

It being the duty of a railroad company to exercise reasonable care by inspection to discover any dangerous defects in foreign cars which its employes are required to handle, an employe does not assume the risk arising from defects discoverable by such inspection, but which are unknown to him, though he might have ascertained by reasonable diligence that it was the custom of the employer not to make such inspection, or even though he knows of such custom.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Archibald, 18 S. Ct. 777, 170 U. S. 665, 42 L. Ed. 1188, affirming judgment 75 F. 802, 21 C. C. A. 520.

An employe does not assume the risk of a defect in an appliance, unknown to him, and which the employer knows of, or for which he is responsible.—Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. McDade, 24 S. Ct. 24, 191 U. S. 64, 48 L. Ed. 591, affirming judgment 112 F. 888, 50 C. C. A. 591.

Knowledge of the increased hazard resulting from the dangerous proximity to the rails of a railway scale box cannot be imputed to a switchman simply because he was aware of the existence and general location of the box. Judgment 122 F. 193, 59 C. C. A. 31, affirmed.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Swearingen, 25 S. Ct. 164, 196 U. S. 51, 49 L. Ed. 382.

An employe is not chargeable with assumption of risk from the defective appliance, unless he knew of the defect and also knew that it endangered his safety.—Gila Valley, G. & N. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 34 S. Ct. 229, 232 U. S. 94, 58 L. Ed. 521, affirming judgment 112 P. 845, 13 Ariz. 270.

In an action for injuries to a railway engineer, facts held to show that decedent did not know of the danger and hence that the doctrine of assumption of risk did not apply.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Wright, 35 S. Ct. 130, 235 U. S. 376, 59 L. Ed. 277, affirming judgment 207 F. 281, 125 C. C. A. 25.

A railway employe does not assume the risk from unknown defects in engines or appliances.—Central Vermont R. Co. v. White, 35 S. Ct. 865, 238 U. S. 507, 59 L. Ed. 1433, affirming judgment White v. Central Vermont R. Co., 89 A. 618, 87 Vt. 330.

Railway fireman injured by stumbling over cinders between tracks while boarding a moving train with can of drinking water in his hand held to have assumed the risk of the situation where he had knowledge of the cinders.—Jacobs v. Southern Ry. Co., 36 S. Ct. 588, 241 U. S. 229, 60 L. Ed. 970.

—219. Obvious or latent dangers.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 610-624.

Head brakeman of freight train does not assume risk of injury in attempting to board train operated at dangerous rate of speed unless speed and danger were so obvious that an ordinarily careful person would have observed it.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. De Atley, 36 S.

Ct. 564, 241 U. S. 310, 60 L. Ed. 1016, reversing judgment 167 S. W. 933, 159 Ky. 687.

—221. Promise to remedy defect or remove danger.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 638-640, 642-645.

A locomotive engineer, who had reported the dangerous condition of the pilot plow of his engine to the officers whose duty it was to make repairs, under circumstances giving him the impression that the defect would be remedied, was called upon, two weeks afterwards, during which time he had been absent, to take charge of the engine, at night, in a roundhouse so full of steam as to prevent a critical examination of it. Held that his taking it out under the circumstances did not imply an assumption of the risk resulting from its dangerous condition.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Babcock, 154 U. S. 190, 14 S. Ct. 978, 38 L. Ed. 958.

A master may remain liable for a certain time for failure to use reasonable care in furnishing a safe place in which to work, if he induces a servant to continue the work by a promise to repair.—Southwestern Brewery & Ice Co. v. McNulta, 147 U. S. 238, 13 S. Ct. 298, 37 L. Ed. 150.

—228. Statutory provisions.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 670, 671.

The duty of a mine owner as to ventilation of his mine and keeping it clear of standing gas is made imperative by the act of congress of March 3, 1891, and the consequence of neglecting it cannot be excused because some workmen may disregard instructions. Judgment, Deserant v. Cerrillos Coal R. Co., 55 P. 290, 9 N. M. 495, reversed.—Deserant v. Cerrillos Coal R. Co., 20 S. Ct. 967, 178 U. S. 409, 44 L. Ed. 1127.

Contributory negligence on the part of an employe was a defense to an action founded on the safety appliance act (Act March 2, 1893, c. 196, 27 Stat. 531 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3174]), although by section 8 of that act the defense of assumption of risk was expressly excluded.—(1911) Schlemmer v. Bufalo, R. & P. Ry. Co., 31 S. Ct. 561, 220 U. S. 590, 55 L. Ed. 596, affirming judgment (1909) 71 A. 1053, 222 Pa. 470.

a matter of law an experienced railway brakeman who persisted in attempting to couple in a dangerous way a car having an automatic coupler to another car not so equipped, when a safer method was called to his attention, and who was killed because he raised his head while making the coupling, in spite of repeated cautions, was guilty of contributory negligence, defeating any recovery.—Id.

Police power of a state justifies a modification of the doctrine of contributory negligence by providing that contributory negligence shall not bar recovery where employee's negligence was slight and that of the employer gross in comparison.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Castle, 32 S. Ct. 606, 224 U. S. 541, 56 L. Ed. 875.

Federal statutes only were included by the phrase "any statute enacted for the safety of employees" under Employers' Liability Act April 22, 1908, §§ 3 and 4, abolishing defense of assumption of risk, where the violation of any statute enacted for the safety of employees contributed to the injury.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Horton, 34 S. Ct. 635, 233 U. S. 492, 58 L. Ed. 1062, L. R. A. 1915C, 1, Ann. Cas. 1915B, 475, reversing judgment Horton v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 78 S. E. 494, 162 N. C. 424.

Contributory negligence of an injured employee is no defense to an action under the Safety Appliance Acts March 2, 1893, and April 14, 1910, and Employers' Liability Act, if a defective coupler caused the injury.—Great Northern Ry. Co. v. Otos, 36 S. Ct. 124, 239 U. S. 349, 60 L. Ed. 322, affirming judgment Otos v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 150 N. W. 922, 128 Minn. 283 and 151 N. W. 1102, 129 Minn. 523.

Recovery may be had under Employers' Liability Act where employee's contributory negligence and railroad's violation of safety appliance acts are concurrent proximate causes in view of sections 1 and 3, Employers' Liability Act.—Spokane & I. E. R. Co. v. Campbell, 36 S. Ct. 683, 241 U. S. 497, 60 L. Ed. 1125, affirming judgment 217 F. 518, 133 C. C. A. 370.

◀230. Inexperienced or youthful employee.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 687-700.

One employed in a place where dynamite and powder were kept, and which were subject to great heat and continual jarring, who was ignorant of the special dangers of his work, and was not informed thereof by his employers, was not guilty of contributory negligence by remaining in such place, so as to bar recovery for injuries from an explosion caused by such heat and jarring.—Mather v. Rillston, 156 U. S. 391, 15 S. Ct. 464, 39 L. Ed. 464, affirming judgment (C. C.) Rillston v. Mather, 44 F. 743.

◀234. — Knowledge of defects or dangers.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 684-686, 706-709.

Where plaintiff, a laborer, digging gravel from a bank, which, being undetermined, had become dangerous, sent word to the supervisor of highways, under whose direction he was working, but to whom it was admitted he bore the relation of fellow servant, telling him of the dangerous condition of the bank, and asking that a man should be furnished to watch it, and received a promise that a man should be sent, is not thereby relieved of the imputation of contributory negligence, until a sufficient time has elapsed in which to furnish a man, if he remains at work under the bank, and is injured by a fall thereof.—District of Columbia v. McElligott, 117 U. S. 621, 6 S. Ct. 884, 29 L. Ed. 946.

◀235. — Duty to discover or remedy defects or dangers.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 710-722.

A brakeman having been employed but one day in a railroad yard, when, in consequence of a defective brake, he received the injury for which suit was brought, he cannot be charged with contributory negligence if the defect was not patent to the eye, or if he was not informed of it by others. He had a right, in the absence of such information, to assume that the brakes were in a condition in which it was safe to mount the cars and set them when ordered by the yard master.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Herbert, 116 U. S. 642, 6 S. Ct. 590, 29 L. Ed. 755, affirming Herbert v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 3 Dak. 38, 13 N. W. 349.

A brakeman coupling a flat car is entitled to assume that it is properly loaded, but is nevertheless bound to use proper diligence to discover any negligent loading which renders the coupling dangerous, and then to desist from the effort, or employ some method of avoiding the danger.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Everett, 152 U. S. 107, 14 S. Ct. 474, 38 L. Ed. 373.

A charge upon the subject of the knowledge by a fireman of the absence of brakes on the engine on which he had ridden 50 or 60 miles is not erroneous, where it amounts solely to a direction to the jury that the man was bound to use his eyes, and if, by their use, he could see the defect, he was bound thereby, even though he had not observed it; but that he was not bound to make a careful examination of every part of an engine upon which he was fireman, in order to charge the railway company with negligence, or exonerate himself from the charge of contributory negligence. Judgment 114 F. 458, 52 C. C. A. 260, affirmed.—Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. Holloway, 24 S. Ct. 102, 191 U. S. 334, 48 L. Ed. 207.

◀236. — Precautions against known or apparent dangers.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 681, 722-742.

Where the plaintiff, a section boss was injured by recklessly running his hand car into a deep cut, without sending any one ahead to watch for and warn a passenger train then about due, a verdict should be ordered for the defendant.—Goodlett v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 122 U. S. 391, 7 S. Ct. 1254, 30 L. Ed. 1230.

In an action for death caused by defendant's negligence, it appeared that deceased, who was an experienced miner at work in defendant's mine, when told by the superintendent to put props under a dangerous part of the roof of the mine, removed a prop that was already there, and, before putting others in its place, sat down to rest, when part of the roof fell and killed him. Held, that defendant was not liable.—Bunt v. Sierra Butte Gold Min. Co., 138 U. S. 483, 11 S. Ct. 464, 34 L. Ed. 1031, affirming judgment (C. C.) Same v. Sierra Buttes Gold Min. Co., 24 F. 847.

Where a person long employed in repairing tracks in a railroad yard, and familiar with the fact that the switching engine is constantly moving to and fro making up trains, works with his back to the approaching cars, in a place where the view is unobstructed, without looking round, and is struck by the train when moving at about the speed of a man walking, he is guilty of contributory negligence.—Aerkfetz v. Humphreys, 145 U. S. 418, 12 S. Ct. 835, 36 L. Ed. 758.

Where an experienced railroad man, on a bright day, with nothing to obstruct his vision, starts across and along a railroad track with which he is entirely familiar, while cars are slowly approaching only 25 or 30 feet away, and is struck thereby, he is guilty of contributory negligence.—Elliott v. Chicago, M. & St. P.

R. Co., 150 U. S. 245, 14 S. Ct. 85, 37 L. Ed. 1068.

The failure of the repairer to step out from under the car upon seeing that the caboose was being slowly backed down upon it, and to give warning to the engineer in charge of the engine moving the caboose, cannot be excused by the fact that he relied on a car repairer, who was on the side of the track, to give warning, since, if the car repairer was his agent, the latter's negligence gave him no right to recover against the company.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Pool, 160 U. S. 438, 16 S. Ct. 338, 40 L. Ed. 485.

A car repairer, who had been engaged for three years in that work, went under the last car of a train, with the knowledge that a caboose was to be attached to the rear of the car, without putting out a flag or other signal to give warning of his being under the car. Held, that he was guilty of negligence.—Id.

A street railway pitman, by unnecessarily touching the uninsulated parts in adjusting the leads connecting the motive power of a street car with the overhead current, relieves the company from liability for his death from the resulting shock, although the conductor of the car may have been negligent in permitting the trolley pole to come in contact with the trolley wire. Judgment 24 App. D. C. 510, affirmed.—Looney v. Metropolitan R. Co., 26 S. Ct. 303, 200 U. S. 480, 50 L. Ed. 564.

237. Dangerous operations and methods of work.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 631, 743-753.

238. — In general.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 631, 743-745.

A locomotive fireman, who for his own convenience attempts to discharge his duties of cleaning the engine at the end of his trip without waiting for it to be inspected and repaired, though knowing that he will have plenty of time to do his work after such inspection, cannot hold the company responsible for a defect on account of which he is injured, which would undoubtedly be disclosed by the inspection and then repaired. Judgment 95 F. 244, 37 C. C. A. 56, affirmed.—Patton v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 21 S. Ct. 275, 179 U. S. 658, 45 L. Ed. 361.

240. — Operation of railroads.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 751-756.

Plaintiff's intestate was killed while coupling certain cars standing on a sharp curve, the drawheads of the cars having failed to meet, and passed each other, allowing the cars to come so close together that he was crushed to death. Deceased was standing on the inside of the drawbar while coupling, and the outside was free from danger. Held, that deceased had wantonly assumed the risk of remaining upon the inside of the drawbar when he should have gone to the other side; and that, having assumed the risks of the employment, he was bound to look out for and avoid the dangers arising from the sharpness of the curve, to which, as an experienced brakeman, deceased must have known he was exposed.—Tuttle v. Detroit, G. H. & M. R. Co., 122 U. S. 189, 7 S. Ct. 1166, 30 L. Ed. 1114.

The possibility that a railway employé, while attempting to make a coupling with a car not equipped with an automatic coupler, as required by Act March 2, 1893, c. 196, § 2, 27 Stat. 531 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3174], might miscalculate the height to which he might safely raise his head, is so inevitably and clearly attached to the risk which, under section 8 of that statute, he does not assume, as to prevent a court from holding, as a matter of law, that he was guilty of contributory negligence, which would defeat any recovery in lifting his head a little too high after being warned of the danger. Judgment (1903) 56 A. 417, 207 Pa. 198, reversed.—Schlemmer v. Buf- falo, R. & P. Ry. Co., 27 S. Ct. 407, 205 U. S. 1, 51 L. Ed. 681.

A locomotive fireman is not guilty of contributory negligence precluding a recovery for an injury caused by the giving way of a bridge because he did not avail himself of the engineer's permission, given before the engine moved onto the bridge, to leave the engine and go back on the train, where both the engineer and himself were advised by the construction force that the bridge was safe. Judgment (1906) 87 P. 320, 17 Okl. 355, affirmed.—McCabe & Steen Const. Co. v. Wilson, 28 S. Ct. 558, 209 U. S. 275, 52 L. Ed. 788.

244. Disregarding warnings or signals.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 776-777.

Where a workman on a gravel train, who has been warned to ride in the caboose as the safer place, sits on a flat car with his legs hanging over, in a position to be easily jostled off, when he knows that other cars are about to be coupled to the train, and pays so little attention that he fails to see the cars coming down a grade, or to hear a warning shout heard by others at a greater distance, he is guilty of contributory negligence.—St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Schumacher, 152 U. S. 77, 14 S. Ct. 479, 38 L. Ed. 361.

246. Acts in emergencies.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 783-784.

Where an experienced railroad man, on a bright day, with nothing to obstruct his vision, starts across and along a railroad track with which he is entirely familiar, while cars are slowly approaching only 25 or 30 feet away, and is struck thereby, he is guilty of contributory negligence; and it is immaterial that his apparent intention was to remove a hand car, to which his attention was suddenly called, out of the way of other cars approaching it on an opposite siding.—Elliott v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 150 U. S. 245, 14 S. Ct. 85, 37 L. Ed. 1068.

A case which, by allegations and proof, is within the federal Employers' Liability Act April 22, 1908, is controlled by that act, though its provisions may not have been pleaded or pressed at the trial.—*Grand Trunk Western Ry. An allegation in a complaint that the pile driver of defendant by which plaintiff was injured was defective and insecure, and was so negligently operated by defendant that the weight used in connection therewith escaped and fell from its fastenings, causing the injury complained of, will be construed as an allegation of negligence in using defective machinery. Judgment (Ariz.) 36 P. 216, 4 Ariz. 258, affirmed.—Santa Fé, P. & P. Ry. Co. v. Hurley, 19 S. Ct. 879, 172 U. S. 645, 43 L. Ed. 1183.

In a complaint for the death of a locomotive engineer, the cause of action relied on was the defective condition of the pilot plow of his engine, causing its derailment by snow accumulated on the track, although failure to send a snow plow ahead was alleged as an incident or remote cause of damage. Held, that it was not error to refuse an instruction to find for defendant unless the accident occurred by reason of failure to send a snow plow in advance, without reference to the defective condition of the pilot plow.—Northern Pac. R. Co.

◀265. Presumptions and burden of proof.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. § 377-398, 955.

The fact of an accident to an employé raises no presumption of negligence on the part of the employer. Judgment, 95 F. 244, 37 C. C. A. 56, affirmed.—Patton v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 21 S. Ct. 275, 179 U. S. 658, 45 L. Ed. 361.

The existence of defects in the insulation, which would render a street railway company liable for the death of an employé occasioned by a shock received in adjusting the leads connecting the motive power of a car with the overhead current, cannot be inferred from the presumption of the exercise of due care on the part of the person killed, although, in the absence of a leak in the insulation, no shock could have been received unless he had unnecessarily touched the uninsulated ends of the leads. Judgment, 24 App. D. C. 510, affirmed.—Looney v. Metropolitan R. Co., 26 S. Ct. 303, 200 U. S. 480, 50 L. Ed. 564.

A servant, suing for injuries, cannot show that his employer made changes in the machine causing the injury after the accident, to show negligence in the past.—Columbia & P. S. R. Co. v. Hawthorne, 144 U. S. 202, 12 S. Ct. 591, 36 L. Ed. 406, reversing judgment, 3 Wash. T. 353, 19 P. 25.

The admission of testimony, in an action to recover damages for the death of a railroad brakeman, alleged to be the result of a collision with an overhanging waterspout, that such spout was so reconstructed after the accident as to be farther removed from passing trains, is not error, where the jury are told that such change had no other bearing upon the issues involved than to test the correctness of the measurements offered in evidence by the railroad company to show that the waterspout did not constitute danger to brakemen on passing trains. Judgment, 112 F. 888, 50 C. C. A. 591, affirmed.—Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. McDade, 24 S. Ct. 24, 191 U. S. 64, 48 L. Ed. 96.

Excerpts from an application for employment as a railway brakeman tending to show the applicant's knowledge of the generally hazardous nature of the employment, and of the necessity of the exercise of care in working in and about the instrumentalities used by the railway company, and his agreement to acquaint himself with the location of bridges and other structures on the line, are inadmissible in evidence on the issue whether he had assumed the risk, when subsequently employed as a switchman, incident to the location of a scale box in dangerous proximity to the rails. Judgment, 122 F. 193, 59 C. C. A. 31, affirmed.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Swearingen, 25 S. Ct. 164, 196 U. S. 51, 49 L. Ed. 382.

Evidence that a motorman, after discovering a train approaching on the same track, would have had ample time to avoid collision had the brake been adequate, supports finding that defective brake was proximate cause of the collision.—Spokane & I. E. R. Co. v. Campbell, 36 S. Ct. 683, 241 U. S. 497, 60 L. Ed. 1125, affirming judgment 217 F. 518, 133 C. C. A. 370.

279. — Incompetency or negligence of fellow servant.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 973-975, 978-980.

Plaintiff's intestate, a car repairer in defendant's employ, was killed while at work under a car, through the backing against it of a caboose attached to an engine. An "air adjuster," who was watching by the track, called to the switchman, who was in charge of the movements of the caboose, when it was about 30 feet away, directing him not to allow the coupling to be made, as men were at work under the car. Held, that the fact that the switchman made some reply, not understood by the witnesses, did not show that he heard and understood the call of the car repairer, so as to have been guilty of negligence in allowing the caboose to thereafter strike the car.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Pool, 160 U. S. 438, 16 S. Ct. 338, 40 L. Ed. 485.

Recovery under the Employers' Liability Act held supported by evidence that fellow servant was negligent in causing the injury, though injured employé may have participated in the act causing the injury.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Skaggs, 36 S. Ct. 249, 240 U. S. 66, 60 L. Ed. 528, affirming judgment Skaggs v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 147 N. W. 1135, 125 Minn. 532.

284. Questions for jury.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 1000-1090, 1092-1132.

Evidence that railway employé killed in switching yard was taking numbers of cars in train which with one exception were moving in interstate commerce held sufficient to take to the jury question whether he was engaged in interstate commerce.—Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Rosenbloom, 36 S. Ct. 390, 240 U. S. 439, 60 L. Ed. 730, reversing judgment 173 S. W. 215.

285. — Nature and cause of injury.

The place of an explosion in a mine, and its cause, and what, if any, negligence the owner is guilty of, are questions for the jury, when the evidence offered requires their submission to the jury. Judgment, Deserant v. Cerrillos Coal R. Co., 55 P. 290, 9 N. M. 495, reversed.—Deserant v. Cerrillos Coal R. Co., 20 S. Ct. 967, 178 U. S. 409, 44 L. Ed. 1127.

The court properly directs a verdict for defendant, and refuses to leave the question of negligence to the jury, in an action by a locomotive fireman for injuries sustained by the turning of a loose step on a locomotive while he was cleaning it at the end of his trip, where it is admitted that the step, the rod, and the nut were suitable and in good condition, that the inspectors at both ends of the trip were competent, and that the step was securely fastened at the beginning of the trip, while the fireman undertook to clean the engine without waiting for the regular inspection, which would undoubtedly have led to the discovery and repair of the defect. Judgment 95 F. 244, 87 C. C. A. 56, affirmed.—Patton v. Texas & P. R. Co., 21 S. Ct. 275, 179 U. S. 658, 45 L. Ed. 861.

The question whether a railroad brakeman was killed as a result of a collision with an overhanging waterspout on a water tank is for the jury, where there was evidence that when last seen he was signaling the engineer from his post on a car of more than average height and width, where he would be likely to be struck by the spout in passing, and that shortly thereafter he was missed from the train, his lantern found on the car, and his body discovered about 675 feet beyond the tank, with injuries which might have been produced by a collision with the obstruction. Judgment 112 F. 888, 50 C. C. A. 591, affirmed.—Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. McDade, 24 S. Ct. 24, 191 U. S. 64, 48 L. Ed. 96.

Expert testimony that proper construction of a derrick required its boom to be rigged with two ropes, or the mast to be provided with a lever to control the swing of the boom, is sufficient to carry to the jury the question whether injury to a workman struck by the swinging bucket of a derrick not so equipped was not attributable to faults of construction and equipment as well as to negligent operation by fellow servants. Judgment (1907) 152 F. 120, 81 C. C. A. 338, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 684, reversed.—Kreigh v. Westinghouse, Church, Kerr & Co., 29 S. Ct. 619, 214 U. S. 249, 53 L. Ed. 984.

The question whether the defect in a wheel of a railway gasoline car caused a derailment cannot be taken from the jury where there is evidence from which the jury may infer that where the car left the track it was just leaving the curve and going upon a tangent at a speed of from 8 to 12 miles an hour.—Gila Valley, G. & N. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 34 S. Ct. 229, 232 U. S. 94, 58 L. Ed. 521, affirming judgment 112 P. 845, 13 Ariz. 270.

286. — Negligence on part of master.

The plaintiff, a stevedore, while working in the hold of defendant's steamship, discharging coal, was struck by a falling tub and injured. His duty at the time was to swing descending tubs to the shovelers, and to attach the falls to those that had been filled. He had started a tub up, and reached over in the hatch to catch an empty one coming down, when the rope attached to the one going up broke. He had had instructions to stand from under when a draught was going up, because the coal was liable to fall from the tub. At the time the defendant's foreman stevedore, who hired and could discharge the plaintiff, was absent, and the shifting was under the control of G., who, there was evidence tending to show, "stood in his shoes." The rope which broke was an old spliced one, and G.'s attention had been called to the fact that the turns were coming out. He wet it with water and put it back, and went off, telling the man in charge of the fall to look out for it. The plaintiff did not know of the defect in the rope. Held, that the question of negligence on the part of the defendant was for the jury.—Cunard S. S. Co. v. Carey, 119 U. S. 245, 7 S. Ct. 1360, 30 L. Ed. 354.

The question of the negligence of the foreman of a railway bridge gang in failing to discover a spike maul upon or near the bridge, immediately prior to the passage of a train, is for the jury, in an action to recover damages from the railroad company for personal injuries received by a member of such gang, for which there is no other cause assignable than that the train, in passing, struck the maul and threw it against the workman, although the foreman testified that he looked for and did not discover any obstruction to the approaching train, where there was nothing to prevent its discovery if it was there, and the glance of the foreman was anything more than a casual or formal one. Judgment 111 F. 777, 49 C. C. A. 605, 60 L. R. A. 462, affirmed.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Carlin, 23 S. Ct. 585, 189 U. S. 354, 47 L. Ed. 849.

A railway company cannot be said, as a matter of law, to have performed its duty to use due care to provide a reasonably safe place for the use of switchmen in its employ when it has located scales where the tracks were only the standard distance apart, leaving space of less than two feet for the movements of a switchman between the side of a freight car and the scale box, when incumbered with a lantern employed for signal purposes, especially if the necessity of the situation did not require the scales to be constructed in that way. Judgment 122 F. 193, 59 C. C. A. 31, affirmed.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Swearingen, 25 S. Ct. 164, 196 U. S. 51, 49 L. Ed. 382.

Evidence tending to show that a spur railroad track was not a safe and proper structure for the operation of cars is sufficient to carry to the jury, on the question of the negligence of the railway company, an action to recover for the killing of a brakeman while riding on a car which plunged over the end of the spur track, although the evidence for the railway company tended to show that the accident was due to the negligence of a fellow servant in ordering the car to be detached from the train and engine. Judgment (Ariz. 1905) 80 P. 337, affirmed.—Gila Valley G. & N. Ry. Co. v. Lyon, 27 S. Ct. 145, 203 U. S. 465, 51 L. Ed. 276.

Verdict for defendant in action to recover damages from an employer for death of an employé by failure of employer to provide proper appliances held properly directed.—Anderson v. Smith, 33 S. Ct. 176, 226 U. S. 439, 57 L. Ed. 289, affirming judgment 35 App. D. C. 93.

A railway engineer held not as a matter of law to have been in the exercise of due care while following another employé piloting a locomotive at night through the switches in the yard to a main track.—Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Earnest, 33 S. Ct. 654, 229 U. S. 114, 57 L. Ed. 1096, Ann. Cas. 1914C, 172.

Evidence held insufficient to submit the question whether a master might be liable for injuries to a fellow servant by an automobile driver's negligence on the ground that the master employed an incompetent servant.—Brooks v. Central Sainte Jeanne, 33 S. Ct. 700, 228 U. S. 688, 57 L. Ed. 1025.

In an action for injuries to a fireman in the employ of an interstate carrier, evidence held sufficient to require submission to the jury of the question of the master's liability, under the Employers' Liability Act, giving a right of recovery against an interstate railway carrier for the death of an employé engaged in interstate commerce.—North Carolina R. Co. v. Zachary, 34 S. Ct. 305, 232 U. S. 248, 58 L. Ed. 591, Ann. Cas. 1914C, 159, reversing judgment Zachary v. North Carolina R. Co., 72 S. E. 858, 156 N. C. 496.

Evidence in action for injuries to brakeman held sufficient to take to the jury the question as to whether the coupler was defective.—Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. R. Co. v. Popplar, 35 S. Ct. 609, 237 U. S. 369, 59 L. Ed. 1000, affirming judgment Popplar v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co., 141 N. W. 798, 121 Minn. 413, Ann. Cas. 1914D, 383.

Evidence, in action against railway company for death of switchman in its yard, held to require submission of the case to the jury.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Koennecke, 36 S. Ct. 126, 239 U. S. 352, 60 L. Ed. 324, affirming judgment Koennecke v. Seaboard Air Line Ry., 85 S. E. 374, 101 S. C. 86.

Submission to jury of question whether railroad was negligent in furnishing a high pressure locomotive with a lubricator having tubular glasses held proper under the evidence.—Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Bower, 36 S. Ct. 624, 241 U. S. 470, 60 L. Ed. 1107, affirming judgment Bower v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 143 N. W. 145, 96 Neb. 419.

—287. — Incompetency or negligence of fellow servant.

The plaintiff, a stevedore, while working in the hold of defendant's steamship, discharging coal, was struck by a falling tub and injured. His duty at the time was to swing descending tubs to the shovelers, and to attach the falls to those that had been filled. He had started a tub up, and reached over in the hatch to catch an empty one coming down, when the rope attached to the one going up broke. He had had instructions to stand from under when a draught was going up, because the coal was liable to fall from the tub. At the time the defendant's foreman stevedore, who hired and could discharge the plaintiff, was absent, and the shifting was under the control of G., who, there was evidence tending to show, "stood in his shoes." The rope which broke was an old spliced one; and G.'s attention had been called to the fact that the turns were coming out. He wet it with water, put it back, and went off, telling the man in charge of the fall to look out for it. The plaintiff did not know of the defect in the rope. Held, that the question of the extent of the authority of G. was for the jury.—Cunard S. S. Co. v. Carey, 119 U. S. 245, 7 S. Ct. 1360, 30 L. Ed. 354.

Plaintiff, a carpenter, was sent by his foreman to repair lamp brackets on a way car standing in the yard. He examined the switches to see if they were closed, so that no cars could come in, and, finding that they were, placed his ladder against the car, and went to work. Soon afterwards a locomotive, with a way car in front of it, pushed in on this track. The engineer and fireman were on board, and two switchmen walking, one on each side. The fireman, who was on the same side of the track as the plaintiff, saw him, and called, "Whoa!" sharp and quick, but said nothing more. The locomotive was stopped, and shortly afterwards the switchman on the other side, who had not seen plaintiff, signaled the engineer who was looking out on the same side, and did not know plaintiff's position, to go ahead. The engineer did so, and the cars he was approaching were struck, and the plaintiff thrown violently from the ladder, and seriously injured. Held, that in Iowa, where by statute the fact that the injury to a servant is caused by the negligence of his fellow servant will not bar the servant's recovery against the railroad company, provided the servant himself is guilty of no negligence, the case should go to the jury.—Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co. v. McLaughlin, 119 U. S. 566, 7 S. Ct. 1366, 30 L. Ed. 477.

288. — Assumption of risk by servant injured.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 1063-1083.

The risk of injury from a sudden bump or jerk in the management of a freight train is not, as a matter of law, assumed by a brakeman standing in obedience to orders, upon the icy roof of a car in such train. Judgment 112 F. 85, 50 C. O. A. 106, affirmed.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Behymer, 23 S. Ct. 622, 189 U. S. 468, 47 L. Ed. 906.

A railway employé who worked only three or four days on a three-wheeled gasoline car did not as a matter of law assume the risk of accident from a defective flange on a wheel, where there is no evidence that he knew of the defect, and it was not his duty to inspect the machine, and where the question whether the defect rendered the use dangerous was disputed.—Gila Valley, G. & N. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 84 S. Ct. 229, 232 U. S. 94, 58 L. Ed. 521, affirming judgment 112 P. 845, 13 Ariz. 270.

It is for the court to determine whether a remark within hearing distance of an employé as to the condition of an appliance was actually heard by him so as to render it admissible on the issue of his knowledge.—Id.

Conflicting evidence on the question of assumption of risk authorized the refusal of the instruction that the risk was assumed.—McGovern v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 35 S. Ct. 127, 235 U. S. 389, 59 L. Ed. 283, reversing judgment (D. C.) 209 F. 975.

Evidence, in action against railway company for death of switchman in its yard, held to take issue of assumption of risk to jury.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Koennecke, 36 S. Ct. 126, 239 U. S. 352, 60 L. Ed. 324, affirming judgment Koennecke v. Seaboard Air Line Ry., 85 S. E. 374, 101 S. C. 86.

It is not error for the trial court to refuse to take the question of assumption of risk from the jury in an action under the federal Employers' Liability Act, unless the evidence is clear and uncontradicted.—Kanawha & M. Ry. Co. v. Kerse, 36 S. Ct. 174, 239 U. S. 576, 60 L. Ed. 448.

The danger of the explosion of the tube of a water gauge on a locomotive held not so imminent as a matter of law as to import assumption of risk by an experienced engineer of injury arising from the absence of a guard glass after he had reported the defect and had received a promise to repair.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Horton, 36 S. Ct. 180, 239 U. S. 595, 60 L. Ed. 458, affirming judgment Horton v. Seaboard Air Line Ry., 85 S. E. 218, 169 N. C. 108.

Abandonment by plaintiff of his claim under federal safety appliance acts in action based on them and Employers' Liability Act, for injuries to a brakeman working an automatic coupler, did not withdraw all evidence of defects in coupler so as to establish as a matter of law, assumption of risk.—St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Brown, 36 S. Ct. 602, 241 U. S. 223, 60 L. Ed. 966, affirming judgment (Okla.) 144 F. 1075.

289. — Contributory negligence of servant injured.

The plaintiff, a stevedore, while working in the hold of defendant's steamship discharging coal, was struck by a falling tub and injured, owing to a defective rope, of which he had no knowledge. His duty at the time was to swing descending tubs to the shoveler and to attach the falls to those that had been filled. He had started a tub up, and reached over in the hatch to catch an empty one coming down, when the rope attached to the one going up broke. He had had instructions to stand from under when a draft was going up, because the coal was liable to fall from the tub. Held, that the question of contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff was for the jury.—Cunard S. S. Co. v. Carey, 119 U. S. 245, 7 S. Ct. 1360, 30 L. Ed. 354.

In an action by an employé against a railroad company for injuries, it appeared that these were caused by the carelessness and recklessness of an engineer, who was in the habit of acting recklessly, to the danger of his co-employés; that the company knew his character; that plaintiff had been in the employ of the company with this engineer only a week. Held, that whether the failure of plaintiff to refuse to work amounted to negligence was a question for the jury.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Mares, 123 U. S. 710, 8 S. Ct. 321, 31 L. Ed. 296, affirming judgment Mares v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 3 Dak. 356, 21 N. W. 5.

Plaintiff, a brakeman, while making a trip on a cold, stormy night, discovered that a step was missing from a car between his post and the caboose, and notified the conductor, who promised to drop the car at a certain point if he found it did not contain perishable freight. Before reaching that point the train stopped at a station, and plaintiff went back to the caboose, as was the custom, to eat breakfast and warm himself. The train suddenly started, and plaintiff hastily ran out over the cars, to resume his post, and, forgetting about the missing step, in attempting to let himself down, fell, and was injured. Held, that the question of contributory negligence should have been submitted to the jury, and the court erred in granting a nonsuit on that ground.—Kane v. Northern Cent. R. Co., 128 U. S. 91, 9 S. Ct. 16, 32 L. Ed. 339.

In an action by a railroad engineer against the company for personal injuries, defendant contended that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence, because he was running at a greater rate of speed than he had been instructed to run, and because defendant's rules limited the speed to a certain rate before crossing trestles, while the accident happened near a trestle, when plaintiff was exceeding that rate. Plaintiff's evidence showed that he had been over the road but once before, did not know that the trestle was near, and had never seen or read the train rules. Defendant's superintendent testified that he knew that plaintiff had been over the road but once before, instructed him not to exceed a certain rate of speed, and that he did not know that plaintiff had ever seen or read defendant's rules. Held, that the question of contributory negligence should have been submitted to the jury, and it was error to direct a verdict for defendant.—Dunlap v. Northeastern R. Co., 130 U. S. 649, 9 S. Ct. 647, 32 L. Ed. 1058.

In an action for personal injuries, while employed by defendant, in placing a belt on a pulley attached to a shaft in defendant's blacksmith shop, there was evidence that the machinery was unsafe, and not such as was generally used in such shops; that the only way of putting the belt on the pulley was by hand, instead of by means of a loose pulley and lever or shifter, as was usual; that plaintiff was unaware of any danger, and supposed that, in putting it on so, he was doing his duty. There was evidence that plaintiff had been in its employ for nearly 18 months, during which he had before performed the same duties as when injured, and tending to show negligence on his part at the time of the accident. Held, that the case was properly submitted to the jury.—Washington & G. R. Co. v. McDade, 135 U. S. 554, 10 S. Ct. 1044, 34 L. Ed. 235, affirming McDade v. Washington & G. R. Co., 5 Mackey, 144.

It is a question for the jury whether or not a brakeman used proper diligence to discover that the timber on a car projected too far, when it appears that he was young and inexperienced, that it was his first attempt to couple a car with a projecting load, and that he was required to perform the double duty of throwing a switch and then running ahead of the rapidly approaching car to prepare for the coupling, so that he had no opportunity to scan it closely.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Everett, 152 U. S. 107, 14 S. Ct. 474, 38 L. Ed. 373.

Plaintiff and other section hands were taken to and from their work on a train which was under the control of a conductor, who directed all the work done by them. While the train was bringing them from work, plaintiff was injured in jumping from it to the platform of the station at which he desired to alight. The train had slowed down, and was running between four and five miles an hour, and, three of the men having jumped down, plaintiff was told by the conductor to jump. The platform was about a foot below the car step, and it was still daylight. Held, that the question whether plaintiff was negligent in jumping was for the jury.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Egeland, 163 U. S. 93, 16 S. Ct. 975, 41 L. Ed. 82, affirming judgment 56 F. 200, 5 C. C. A. 471.

There was sufficient evidence to demand the submission to the jury of the question of the liability of a railroad company for personal injuries sustained by a head brakeman of a freight train in attempting, at night, to jump upon the pilot of the engine while it was moving very slowly in a newly constructed freight-yard, and to sustain a verdict in his favor, where there was testimony tending to show that in boarding the pilot the stirrup, which had long been defective, gave way, throwing his foot into one of the unfilled spaces between the ties, from which he could not extricate himself in time to prevent injury; that his action was in the proper discharge of his duties; that the only company rule on the subject warned employees not to jump on or off an engine running at a high rate of speed; and that he was without knowledge of the defect in the stirrup or the condition of the track where he was hurt. Judgment 116 F. 23, 53 C. C. A. 497, affirmed.—Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. Tennessee, 24 S. Ct. 99, 191 U. S. 326, 48 L. Ed. 201.

Mounting a moving car by placing one foot on the journal box and catching a hand-rail running through standards on the side of the car and within easy reach is not, as a matter of law, contributory negligence which will defeat a recovery by a brakeman for an injury from the giving way of such rail.—El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Visard, 29 S. Ct. 210, 211 U. S. 608, 53 L. Ed. 848.

Whether an employé injured in direct line of his duty by a swinging bucket of a derrick had reason to expect it might swing across where he was at work without notice or warning, or whether due regard for his own safety required a constant lookout for its approach, are questions for the jury under proper instructions. Judgment (1907) 152 F. 120, 81 C. C. A. 338, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 684, reversed.—Kreigh v. Westinghouse, Church, Kerr & Co., 29 S. Ct. 619, 214 U. S. 249, 53 L. Ed. 984.

A hostler's helper riding in a cab window of an engine with his hips protruding somewhat over the sill is not, as a matter of law, guilty of contributory negligence defeating recovery for his death by contact with a post in a round-house within the five inches of the engine.—Texas & P. R. Co. v. Harvey, 33 S. Ct. 518, 228 U. S. 319, 57 L. Ed. 852, affirming judgment 184 F. 990, 106 C. C. A. 668.

A switchman reaching in to remove a coupling pin after repeated unsuccessful attempts to operate the automatic coupler held not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 33 S. Ct. 840, 229 U. S. 317, 57 L. Ed. 1204, affirming judgment 185 F. 80, 107 C. C. A. 300.

An experienced railway engineer injured by the explosion of a tube in a water gauge held not chargeable with contributory negligence as a matter of law in continuing to run the engine after he had reported the defect and a promise to repair had been made.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Horton, 36 S. Ct. 180, 239 U. S. 595, 60 L. Ed. 458, affirming judgment Horton v. Seaboard Air Line Ry., 85 S. E. 218, 169 N. C. 108.

In action under Employers' Liability Acts for death of railway brakeman who had gone to sleep on the track, motion to grant nonsuit held improperly denied, where the evidence showed that everything possible was done after discovering the peril of the brakeman.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Gray, 36 S. Ct. 558, 241 U. S. 333, 60 L. Ed. 1030, reversing judgment Gray v. Southern R. Co., 83 S. E. 849, 167 N. C. 483.

Whether the head brakeman on freight train assumed risk of attempt to board engine moving toward him at a speed of 12 miles an hour held for the jury.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. De Atley, 36 S. Ct. 564, 241 U. S. 810, 60 L. Ed. 1016, reversing judgment 167 S. W. 933, 159 Ky. 687.

—290. Instructions.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 1123-1146, 1149-1194.

—291. — In general.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 1123, 1124, 1126-1146.

The only issue tendered by the pleadings and raised on the trial was whether the frog was blocked at the time of the accident, and no contention was made that the railroad company, having properly blocked the frog, was not liable by reason of its subsequent displacement. The court, in its instructions, however, said that, if evidence had been introduced to show that the blocking had been pulled out of the frog at a time so near the injury that the company could not have been charged with negligence in not finding it out, then the company would not be liable. Held, that the company could not claim that the court erred in not further charging as to its exemption from liability in case it had originally blocked the frog.—Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. James, 163 U. S. 485, 16 S. Ct. 1109, 41 L. Ed. 236.

—293. — Negligence on part of master.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 1148-1156, 1158-1160.

The words "as far as possible," in an instruction to the effect that the employé of a railroad corporation have a right to expect that the corporation will, "as far as possible," provide for their protection, in moving its trains, sufficient machinery in good order and condition, and that it will exercise reasonable care and caution not to use cars in its trains having defective brakes, held, in connection with the entire charge, to mean "as far as possible exercising reasonable care and caution," and therefore not to impose upon a railroad corporation a higher degree of care in selecting and keeping in order its appliances and machinery than the law required.—Baltimore & P. R. Co.

v. Mackey, 157 U. S. 72, 15 S. Ct. 491, 39 L. Ed. 624.

The court need not charge the jury that an employer is bound to exercise reasonable care to furnish its employes reasonably safe machinery where the uncontradicted facts show that it had not furnished such a machine, and there was no evidence that it had exercised ordinary or reasonable care to do so, but on the contrary, there was unexplained and uncontradicted evidence to show that it had not exercised such care. Judgment 114 F. 458, 52 C. C. A. 260, affirmed.—Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. Holloway, 24 S. Ct. 102, 191 U. S. 334, 48 L. Ed. 207.

A railroad, sued for injuries to a switchman by a fall from the refrigerator car by the act of messenger in charge in leaving the door of the ice bunker open, cannot complain of instruction that carrier could not escape liability because the messenger left the opening uncovered but the jury could consider the messenger's control of the car in determining carrier's negligence and plaintiff's contributory negligence.—Texas & P. R. Co. v. Murphy, 35 S. Ct. 779, 238 U. S. 320, 59 L. Ed. 1329.

294. — Incompetency or negligence of fellow servant.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 1167, 1161-1167.

The refusal to instruct that an engineer and a section foreman are both fellow servants of a section hand injured in attempting to alight from a moving train, and that, if such injury was caused by the negligence of either, the railway company is not liable, is reversible error, where the jury might have based its verdict for plaintiff on the carelessness either of the section foreman or engineer. Judgment (C. C. A. 1907) 160 F. 452, 87 C. C. A. 440, reversed.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Bourman, 29 S. Ct. 319, 212 U. S. 536, 53 L. Ed. 641.

295. — Assumption of risk by servant injured.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 1168-1179.

An instruction, that whether a hostler's helper assumed the risk of being crushed between the cab window of the engine and a post in a roundhouse depended on whether a person of ordinary care would have continued in the service knowing of the danger, is as favorable to the railroad as it could be under Act Tex. April 24, 1905 (Acts 29th Leg. c. 163), qualifying the rule of assumed risk in actions against railway companies.—Texas & P. R. Co. v. Harvey, 33 S. Ct. 518, 228 U. S. 319, 57 L. Ed. 852, affirming judgment 184 F. 990, 106 C. C. A. 668.

Instruction that freight engineer assumed the risk under Employers' Liability Act of shock from sudden application of air brakes by rear brakeman is properly qualified by excepting case of emergency brought about by employes in negligent operation of train before brakes were applied.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Stewart, 36 S. Ct. 586, 241 U. S. 261, 60 L. Ed. 989, affirming judgment Same v. Stewart's Adm'r, 174 S. W. 744, 163 Ky. 823.

Requested instruction, in action under Employers' Liability Act by head brakeman of a "manifest train" whose injury was due to the working of a train at both ends at same time, held properly refused as failing to define assumption of risk.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Proffitt, 36 S. Ct. 620, 241 U. S. 462, 60 L. Ed. 1102, affirming judgment 218 F. 23, 134 C. C. A. 37.

296. — Contributory negligence of servant injured.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 1180-1194.

A car inspector, while engaged under a car in repairing a bulkhead, was killed by the moving downgrade of another car, owing to a defective brake thereon. Held, in a statutory action for damages, there being no evidence to charge the decedent with contributory negligence in not examining the brake in question, that the issue as to the defectiveness of the brake was necessarily made to depend upon the inquiry whether due care was taken by the railroad company, represented by agents or employes other than decedent, in providing proper appliances on its cars; and therefore it was not error to ignore the question of contributory negligence in the instructions.—Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 157 U. S. 72, 15 S. Ct. 491, 39 L. Ed. 624.

297. Verdict and findings.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 1195-1198.

A master held not entitled to judgment on special findings in an action by a servant for personal injuries due to a defective appliance; the finding in question meaning only that the servant was not negligent in remaining at work.—Southwestern Brewery & Ice Co. v. Schmidt, 33 S. Ct. 68, 226 U. S. 162, 57 L. Ed. 170, affirming judgment Schmidt v. Southwestern Brewery & Ice Co., 107 P. 677, 15 N. M. 232.

General verdict for plaintiff in action by railroad employe for injuries received together with the special findings held to mean that the brake equipment was defective which was the proximate cause of the collision in which he was injured.—Spokane & I. E. R. Co. v. Campbell, 36 S. Ct. 683, 241 U. S. 497, 60 L. Ed. 1125, affirming judgment 217 F. 518, 133 C. C. A. 370.

301. Relation of parties.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 1210-1216.

A winchman in the general employ of a shipper remains the latter's employe for the purpose of fixing responsibility for injuries through his negligence upon a longshoreman employed by a master stevedore whose contract with the shipper to load a vessel requires him to pay the latter an agreed compensation for the hoisting, and who has no control over the movements of the winchman except that the latter's hours of labor necessarily conform to those of the longshoremen, and that, in timing the raising and lowering, he obeys the signals of a gangman representing the master stevedore. Judgment (1907) 152 F. 166, 81 C. C. A. 399, affirmed.—Standard Oil Co. v. Anderson, 29 S. Ct. 252, 212 U. S. 215, 53 L. Ed. 480.

An elevator operator held a servant of a building contractor so as to render him liable for the servant's negligence in operating the car, resulting in injury to workmen of a subcontractor.—George A. Fuller Co. v. McCloskey, 33 S. Ct. 471, 228 U. S. 194, 57 L. Ed. 795, affirming judgment 35 App. D. C. 595.

(B) WORK OF INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR.

316. Contractors independent of principal employer in general.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 1242, 1243.

Where one is employed under what is termed a "cannasser's salary and commission contract," which repeatedly refers to his employment as "services," and requires him to devote his "exclusive time and best energies to said business," and to act under the direction, rules, and instructions of the employer, he is a servant, for whose negligence in the course of his employment the employer is responsible, though the contract binds him not to use his employer's name "in any manner whereby the public, or any individual, may be led to believe" the employer "responsible for his actions."—Singer Mfg. Co. v. Rahn, 132 U. S. 518, 10 S. Ct. 175, 33 L. Ed. 440, affirming (C. C.) Rahn v. Singer Mfg. Co., 26 F. 912.

⚡318. Control or interference of employer.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 1257, 1258.

Defendants contracted to furnish all materials for the construction of the piers for a railroad bridge across a certain river, the materials to be subject to the inspection and approval of the engineer of the railroad company, and to construct the piers according to certain plans and specifications under the continuing inspection and subject to the approval of the engineer. Held, that defendants were independent contractors, and as such they and not the railroad company were liable for injuries to third persons, resulting from their negligence in the performance of the work.—Casement v. Brown, 148 U. S. 615, 13 S. Ct. 672, 37 L. Ed. 582.

A general contractor, building a party wall under the direction of an agent of the adjoining owner, is not an independent contractor, for whose negligence the owner would not be responsible.—Weinman v. De Palma, 34 S. Ct. 370, 232 U. S. 571, 58 L. Ed. 733, affirming judgment Di Palma v. Weinman, 121 P. 38, 16 N. M. 302.

⚡319. Necessary or natural consequences of work.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 1259, 1260.

The doctrine which relieves the owner from liability for negligence of an independent contractor does not apply where the work of the contractor amounts to a nuisance or unnecessarily injures the property of a third person.—Weinman v. De Palma, 34 S. Ct. 370, 232 U. S. 571, 58 L. Ed. 733, affirming judgment Di Palma v. Weinman, 121 P. 38, 16 N. M. 302.

(C) ACTIONS.

Exemplary damages, see Damages, ⚡92.

⚡331. Damages.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. § 1273.

A master is liable in exemplary damages for the misconduct of his servant, when the servant is acting in the execution of an unlawful purpose when the injury was committed, which purpose was sanctioned by the master.—Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Harris, 122 U. S. 597, 7 S. Ct. 1298, 30 L. Ed. 1146.

Laws Wash. 1911, c. 74, construed as taking away under Rem. & Bal. Code, §§ 183, 194, the right to maintain action for wrongful death of an employé, held not unconstitutional.—Northern Pac. Ry. Co. v. Meese, 36 S. Ct. 223, 239 U. S. 614, 60 L. Ed. 467, reversing judgment Meese v. Northern Pac. Ry. Co., 211 F. 254, 127 C. C. A. 622.

Act Utah March 12, 1890, in terms repealing the previous act in regard to mechanics' liens, but covering the same subject, and containing many identical provisions, is to be construed as a continuation of the earlier act with modifications; and hence a provision therein enlarging the time in which to foreclose a lien is properly applicable in favor of a lienor who at the time of the passage of the act had only entered upon the execution of his contract, and had not yet completed his work under it.—Bear Lake & River Waterworks & Irrigation Co. v. Garland, 17 S. Ct. 7, 164 U. S. 1, 41 L. Ed. 327.

Act Utah March 12, 1890, repealing the mechanics' lien law, and enlarging the time for suing to foreclose such liens, did not "affect any right or remedy" provided for in the old act, in violation of a provision of the new, in a case in which the time for filing a statement of claim did not arrive before the repeal.—Id.

Garland v. Bear Lake & River Waterworks & Irrigation Co., 34 P. 368, 9 Utah, 350, affirmed.—Bear Lake & River Waterworks & Irrigation Co. v. Garland, 17 S. Ct. 7, 164 U. S. 1, 41 L. Ed. 327.

Co. v. Salt Lake Foundry & Mach. Co., 151 U. S. 447, 14 S. Ct. 384, 38 L. Ed. 229, affirming decree Salt Lake Foundry & Machine Co. v. Mammoth Min. Co., 6 Utah, 351, 23 P. 760.

(D) PERSONS ENTITLED IN GENERAL.¶85. Contractors.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, §§ 117-125.

¶93. — Performance of contract.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, § 124.

The contract under which work was done for which a mechanic's lien was claimed provided that the amount due the contractor under the final estimate should only be payable on satisfactory showing that the work was "free from all danger of liens or claims of any kind, through failure on his part to liquidate his just indebtedness as connected with this work." Part of the work was let to subcontractors under contracts declaring that the amounts due them were not to "be demanded or paid in advance of the payment of the regular estimate." Held, that the failure of the contractor to pay his subcontractors, because of the failure of the property owners to pay him the amount of the regular estimates, did not render the land liable to any lien or claim through his failure "to liquidate his just indebtedness," and the fact that the subcontractors had not been paid did not prevent him from obtaining a valid lien. Judgment, Ford v. Springer Land Ass'n, 41 P. 541, 8 N. M. 37, affirmed.—Springer Land Ass'n v. Ford, 18 S. Ct. 170, 168 U. S. 513, 42 L. Ed. 562.

136. — Description of property.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, §§ 213-224; 48 Cent. Dig. Waters, § 310.

A description of land, in the notice of lien, by sections and townships, is sufficient, even if the amount of land which such sections, if full, would contain, exceeds the number of acres stated, as a township does not necessarily contain the full amount of 36 sections. Judgment, Ford v. Springer Land Ass'n, 41 P. 541, 8 N. M. 37, affirmed.—Springer Land Ass'n v. Ford, 18 S. Ct. 170, 168 U. S. 513, 42 L. Ed. 562.

137. — Ownership or possession of property.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, §§ 225-233.

Under a statute requiring a notice of lien to state the name of the "owner or reputed owner, known" (Comp. Laws N. M. 1884, § 1524), a notice which states that certain corporations and others are "the owners or reputed owners" of the property is sufficient. Judgment, Ford v. Springer Land Ass'n, 41 P. 541, 8 N. M. 37, affirmed.—Springer Land Ass'n v. Ford, 18 S. Ct. 170, 168 U. S. 513, 42 L. Ed. 562.

142. — Statement as to terms of contract.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, § 239.

Under a statute requiring the claim of lien to state the lienor's demand, after "deducting all just credits and offsets," and to contain "a statement of the terms, time given, and conditions of his contract" (Comp. Laws N. M. 1884, § 1524), it is sufficient to claim a specific sum as "the balance due and owing, * * * after deducting all just credits and offsets, for excavating and embankments done and performed by him under a certain contract," which is annexed to, and made part of, the claim. Judgment, Ford v. Springer Land Ass'n, 41 P. 541, 8 N. M. 37, affirmed.—Springer Land Ass'n v. Ford, 18 S. Ct. 170, 168 U. S. 513, 42 L. Ed. 562.

148. — Statement as to credits and offsets.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, § 254.

Where a contractor constructing an irrigation ditch agrees to select a tract of land out of those to be benefited, which is to be credited to him, at a fixed price, as part payment for the work, provided his employer secures a sufficient deed from the owner to himself, a subsequent mechanic's lien filed by such contractor is not invalid for failure to credit the price of such land on the amount of his claim, where it does not appear that there was ever any tender of the deed, or any showing of readiness or willingness to deliver it. Judgment, Ford v. Springer Land Ass'n, 41 P. 541, 8 N. M. 37, affirmed.—Springer Land Ass'n v. Ford, 18 S. Ct. 170, 168 U. S. 513, 42 L. Ed. 562.

157. Effect of errors or defects in claim or statement.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, §§ 268-274.

As between the parties, the fact that a lien is claimed for a greater sum than is actually owing, or is actually covered by the lien, does not vitiate the claim of lien.—Springer Land Ass'n v. Ford, 18 S. Ct. 170, 168 U. S. 513, 42 L. Ed. 562.

182. — In general.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, §§ 310-314; 48 Cent. Dig. Waters, § 310.

Defendant, in a contract for improvements, agreed to give plaintiff, at the latter's option, either a mortgage or a mechanic's lien on the 20 acres of land on which the improvements were placed. Plaintiff, having at the proper time filed in the probate court a statement for a lien, as required by the Alabama statute, filed a bill to foreclose the same, attaching thereto the statement, which described the land as "contiguous to" the city of Sheffield. A foreclosure decree having been entered by default, defendant sought to have it set aside on the ground that under the Alabama statute the lien was limited to one acre, unless the land was situated within the limits of a city or town; that the bill did not show the property to be within such city or town, and did not describe any particular acre to which the decree could attach. Held, that this ground was untenable, as it was competent for the parties to extend by contract the area of the lien, and as the bill did not affirmatively show that the land was not within a city or town.—Sheffield Furnace Co. v. Witherow, 149 U. S. 574, 13 S. Ct. 986, 37 L. Ed. 853.

Under a statute giving a lien, for labor and materials used in the construction of ditches, not only on the ditch and the land through which it is constructed, but on so much of the land about the improvement as might be required for its use, "to be determined by the court on rendering judgment" (Comp. Laws N. M. 1884, §§ 1520, 1522), a lien may be obtained, not only upon the ditch and the land through which it runs, but also upon the tract of land for whose irrigation the ditch was constructed. Judgment, Ford v. Springer Land Ass'n, 41 P. 541, 8 N. M. 37, affirmed.—Springer Land Ass'n v. Ford, 18 S. Ct. 170, 168 U. S. 513, 42 L. Ed. 562.

⌘206. Rights and liabilities of parties.
See 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, § 380.

Neither the exact amount of the judgment which should be recovered nor the status of a mechanic's lien was guaranteed by an agreement between a lienor and a mortgagee under which the latter was to buy the claim and pay therefor a specified sum, on receiving an assignment of the judgment.—Bank of Arizona v. Thomas Haverly Co., 34 S. Ct. 235, 232 U. S. 106, 58 L. Ed. 526, affirming judgment 115 P. 73, 13 Ariz. 418.

By a contract for the construction of a mill, the price was payable in installments, for some of which notes were to be given, secured on real estate, to become due after the time within which, under the statute providing for mechanics' liens an action to enforce such a lien must be commenced; but the owner of the building did not give the notes as agreed. Held, that the contractor's right to a lien was not waived, and might be enforced after the breach of the agreement on the part of the owner.—Van Stone v. Stillwell & Bierce Mfg. Co., 142 U. S. 128, 12 S. Ct. 181, 35 L. Ed. 961.

Land claimed to be within the limits of a Mexican grant is not withdrawn and reserved from entry under the mineral laws of the United States by reason of the mere fact that the claim is before the court of private land claims for adjudication, since there is nothing in the treaty with Mexico to work that result, and the provision of the act of 1854 (10 Stat. 308, c. 103), reserving such land until the final action of congress on such claims, was repealed by Act Cong. March 3, 1891, c. 539, § 15, 26 Stat. 862 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 776], establishing the court of private land claims. Judgment, Lockhart v. Wills, 54 F. 336, 9 N. M. 344, affirmed.—*Lockhart v. 8. Offenses incident to disposal of mineral lands.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, § 8.

Making and presenting false, fictitious, and fraudulent papers in connection with an entry of coal lands is not made criminal by Rev. St. U. S. § 4746, as amended by Act July 7, 1898, c. 578, 30 Stat. 718 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3279), because such amendatory statute, in repeating the original words, "concerning any claim for pension or payment thereof, or pertaining to any other matter within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Pensions," adds the words "or of the Secretary of the Interior," since such section as originally enacted related exclusively to pension or bounty land claims, and every enumeration or description of new acts or papers, in addition to those embraced in the section prior to the amendment, alone concerns pension or bounty land claims. An adverse claim which will defeat the right to a patent under Act July 1, 1902 (32 Stat. 703, c. 1369) § 45, when natives and their ancestors have held possession and worked mining claims in the Philippine Islands for the period required, cannot be based upon entry and staking of claim and filing notice of location, where such possession was continuous down to the bringing of suit to restrain the person relying upon such acts as amounting to an adverse claim from setting up title or interfering with the claims.—Reavis v. Fianza, 30 S. Ct. 1, 215 U. S. 16, 54 L. Ed. 72.

¶10. Persons entitled to acquire lands.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 14-17.

¶11. — In general.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 14, 17.

Rev. St. § 2319, provides that mineral lands may be occupied and purchased "by citizens of the United States, and those who have declared their intention to become such, under regulations prescribed by law, and according to the local customs or rules of miners," etc. Section 2321 provides that "proof of citizenship under this chapter may consist . . . in the case of . . . a corporation organized under the laws of the United States or of any state or territory thereof, by filing a certified copy of the charter," etc. Section 2325, relating to the manner and conditions of obtaining a patent for a mining claim, provides that "any person, association, or corporation authorized to locate a claim under this chapter" may file an application, etc. Held, that a corporation, all of whose members are citizens of the United States, is competent to locate a mining claim.—McKinley v. Wheeler, 130 U. S. 630, 9 S. Ct. 633, 32 L. Ed. 1048.

A private corporation is an association of persons, within Rev. St. § 2347, giving an association of persons the right to enter and purchase vacant coal lands of the United States.—United States v. Trinidad Coal & Coking Co., 137 U. S. 160, 11 S. Ct. 57, 34 L. Ed. 640, reversing decree (C. C.) 87 F. 180.

Entries of coal lands and purchases thereunder, made by employees of a corporation under contract to transfer the lands to the corporation after acquisition, are illegal, if the members of the corporation are prohibited from taking more coal land by Rev. St. § 2350.—Id.

A private corporation is subject to the restrictions imposed by Rev. St. § 2350, which provides that "no association of persons, any member of which" shall have entered and purchased vacant coal lands under the preceding sections, either as an individual or as a member of any other association, shall enter or hold any other lands under the provisions thereof.—Id.

Patents for over 900 acres of coal lands obtained by members and employees of a private corporation pursuant to a scheme whereby the title was conveyed to the corporation, which paid all the expenses attending the entries and purchases from the government, will be canceled at the suit of the United States, especially where it appears that other members of the corporation had previously taken the benefit of the statute, and that the lands originally entered and purchased by them were then held and owned by the corporation, and were in excess of 320 acres.—Id.

The prohibition against more than one entry of coal lands by the same person, which is made by Rev. St. U. S. § 2350 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1441), prohibits a qualified person from entering such lands apparently for himself, but in fact as the agent for a person who is himself disqualified because he has already purchased the full quantity permitted by law. Order (D. C. 1907) 157 F. 396, reversed.—United States v. Keitel, 29 S. Ct. 123, 211 U. S. 370, 53 L. Ed. 230; Same v. Herr, 29 S. Ct. 134, 211 U. S. 404, 53 L. Ed. 251; Id., 29 S. Ct. 135, 211 U. S. 406, 53 L. Ed. 252.

Persons entitled, under Rev. St. U. S. §§ 2348, 2349 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1440), to a preferential right of entry of coal lands, are prevented by section 2350 (page 1441), prohibiting the making of more than one entry by the same person; from entering such lands apparently for themselves, but in fact as agents for a person who is himself disqualified because he has already purchased the full quantity permitted by law.—United States v. Forrester, 29 S. Ct. 132, 211 U. S. 390, 53 L. Ed. 245; Same v. Herr, 29 S. Ct. 134, 211 U. S. 404, 53 L. Ed. 251.

The location of a placer mining claim by a United States surveyor is within the prohibition of Rev. St. § 452 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 257).—(1912) Waskey v. Hammer, 32 S. Ct. 187, 223 U. S. 85, 56 L. Ed. 359, affirming judgment (1909) 170 F. 31, 95 C. C. A. 305, motion to recall mandate denied (1910) 179 F. 273, 102 C. C. A. 629.

The location of a placer mining claim contrary to Rev. St. § 452 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 257), by employees of land office, held void and not merely voidable.—Id.

¶12. — Citizenship and residence.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 15, 16.

Proof of citizenship, entitling a person to locate and hold a mining claim, may consist, in the case of an individual, of his own affidavit, or, in the case of an unincorporated association, of the affidavit of an authorized agent.—O'Reilly v. Campbell, 116 U. S. 413, 6 S. Ct. 421, 29 L. Ed. 669.

The affidavit of the locator, accompanying the recorded notice of location, as to his citizenship, is prima facie evidence of that fact.—Hammer v. Garfield Min. & Mill. Co., 130 U. S. 291, 9 S. Ct. 548, 32 L. Ed. 964, affirming Gar- field Min. & Mill. Co. v. Hammer, 6 Mont. 53, 8 P. 153.

A private corporation is an "association" of persons, within the meaning of Rev. St. §§ 2347-2352, giving the right to enter and purchase public coal lands not exceeding 320 acres.—United States v. Trinidad Coal & Coking Co., 137 U. S. 180, 11 S. Ct. 57, 34 L. Ed. 640, reversing decree (C. C.) 37 F. 180.

If, in an action to try an adverse claim to a mining patent, one party, who is an alien at the outset, becomes a citizen during the proceedings and before his alienage is adjudged, his citizenship relates back, and his disability to acquire a mining claim is removed.—Manuel v. Wulff, 152 U. S. 505, 14 S. Ct. 651, 38 L. Ed. 532, reversing judgment Wulff v. Manuel, 9 Mont. 276, 279, 288, 23 P. 723.

The location of a mining claim by an alien, and the rights following therefrom, are voidable, not void, and are free from attack by any one except the government.—McKinley Creek Min. Co. v. Alaska United Min. Co., 22 S. Ct. 84, 183 U. S. 563, 46 L. Ed. 331.

13. Requisites and validity of location proceedings.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 13-65.

14. — In general.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 19, 20.

The validity of a placer mining location is not affected by the lapse of many years since its original location without the issue of a patent therefor. Judgment 68 P. 286, 29 Colo. 377, 64 L. R. A. 209, 93 Am. St. Rep. 89, affirmed.—Clipper Min. Co. v. Eli Mining & Land Co., 24 S. Ct. 632, 194 U. S. 220, 48 L. Ed. 944.

The requirement of Ann. Codes Mont. § 3612, that the declaratory statement filed in the office of the clerk of the county in which a mining lode or claim is situated must contain "the dimensions and location of the discovery shaft, or its equivalent, sunk upon lode or placer claims" and "the location and description of each corner, with the markings thereon," is not invalid as conflicting with congressional legislation prescribing regulations for the location of mining claims. Judgment, Baker v. Butte City Water Co., 72 P. 617, 28 Mont. 222, 104 Am. St. Rep. 683, affirmed.—Butte City Water Co. v. Baker, 25 S. Ct. 211, 196 U. S. 119, 49 L. Ed. 409.

The possession and working of a mining claim in the Philippine Islands for the time requisite, under Act July 1, 1902 (32 Stat. 703, c. 1369) § 45, in order to establish a right to patent, need not have been under a claim of title.—Reavis v. Fianza, 30 S. Ct. 1, 215 U. S. 16, 54 L. Ed. 72.

15. — Effect of local customs and miners' rules.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, § 13.

The supreme court always acts on the basis that all locations made prior to the passage of any mineral law by congress controlling them are to be governed by the local rules and customs in force at the time of the location.—Glacier Mountain Silver Min. Co. v. Willis, 127 U. S. 471, 8 S. Ct. 1214, 32 L. Ed. 172.

16. — Veins, lodes, or placer grounds subject to location.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 21-23.

A body of mineral commonly called a "blanket vein," such as that in the Leadville mining district, lying in a general horizontal direction with a superior rock of a sedimentary character, indicating more of the nature of a deposit like a coal bed than the vertical and descending fissure vein in which silver and gold are ordinarily found, is subject to location as a vein or lode, as distinguished from a placer claim.—Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Mike & Starr Gold & Silver Min. Co., 12 S. Ct. 543, 143 U. S. 394, 430, 36 L. Ed. 201.

Acceptance by the government of lode mining location notices given before Act July 28, 1866, c. 262, 14 Stat. 251, recognizing the rights of locators who have proceeded in conformity to local customs or rules, and the issue of patents thereon, is a recognition by the Land Department of the conformity of the proceedings to the local rules and customs of the district, and such ruling is not open to challenge by third parties claiming rights arising subsequently to the notices. Judgment, United States Min. Co. v. Lawson (1904) 134 F. 769, 87 C. C. A. 587, affirmed.—Lawson v. United States Min. Co., 28 S. Ct. 15, 207 U. S. 1, 52 L. Ed. 65.

17. — Discovery.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 24-23.

Whenever preliminary work is required to define and describe the claim located, the first discoverer, who has posted a proper notice, must be protected in the possession of the claim until sufficient excavations and development can be made, so as to disclose whether a vein of deposit of such richness exists as to justify work to extract the metal.—Erhardt v. Boaro, 113 U. S. 527, 5 S. Ct. 560, 28 L. Ed. 1113, reversing (D. C.) 8 F. 800, 3 McCrary, 19.

If a discoverer has himself perfected a valid location on account of his discovery, no one else can have the benefit of his discovery for the purposes of location adverse to him, except as a relocater, after he has lost or abandoned his prior right.—Gwillim v. Donnellan, 115 U. S. 45, 5 S. Ct. 1110, 29 L. Ed. 348.

Where a discovery shaft is located on land which is patented to a third person, the person who located the same acquires no rights thereby.—Id.

The location of a vein or lode as running in a certain direction, but not marked on the surface for years, nor developed, but simply indicated by a notice, will not be allowed to prevail against a claim subsequently located by another party on ground different from that thus indicated, after the latter has been developed by years of labor and large expenditures without objection by the first locators, because subsequent explorations by them disclosed the fact that their vein runs in a different direction from what they supposed, and in its true course covers the subsequent claim.—O'Reilly v. Campbell, 116 U. S. 418, 6 S. Ct. 421, 29 L. Ed. 669.

The apex of a vein is not necessarily a point, but often a line of great length, and any portion of the apex on the course or strike of the vein found within the limits of a claim is a sufficient discovery to entitle the locator to obtain title.—Larkin v. Upton, 144 U. S. 19, 12 S. Ct. 614, 36 L. Ed. 330, affirming judgment Upton v. Larkin, 7 Mont. 449, 17 P. 723.

The discovery of a vein in a tunnel, worked according to Rev. St. § 2323, gives a right to the possession of the vein to the same length as if discovered from the surface, and a location on the surface is not essential to a continuance of that right. Ellet v. Campbell, 83 P. 521, 18 Colo. 510, affirmed.—Campbell v. Ellet, 17 S. Ct. 765, 167 U. S. 116, 42 L. Ed. 101.

The discovery of the vein or lode before any other steps are taken to perfect the location is not required by the provision of Rev. St. U. S. § 2320 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1424], that "no location of a mining claim shall be made until the discovery of the vein or lode within the limits of the claim located," which means nothing more than that no location shall be considered complete until there has been a discovery. Judgment Uinta Tunnel Min. & Transp. Co. v. Creede & C. C. Min. & Mill.

Co., 119 F. 164, 57 C. C. A. 200, affirmed.—Creede & C. C. Min. & Mill. Co. v. Uinta Tunnel Min. & Transp. Co., 25 S. Ct. 266, 196 U. S. 337, 49 L. Ed. 501.

☞18. — Extent and boundaries of claim.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 29-35.

14 Stat. 252, § 4, gives each locator 200 feet in length along the vein and an additional claim to the discoverer of the vein. Held, that a claim, as discoverer of a vein, to an additional location thereon, which injured no one at the time it was made, and was made in good faith, in reliance on an actual discovery of a vein afterwards found to be part of the lode of great width previously discovered, may be sustained as to such additional location.—Richmond Min. Co. v. Rose, 114 U. S. 578, 5 S. Ct. 1055, 29 L. Ed. 273, affirming Rose v. Richmond Min. Co., 17 Nev. 25, 27 P. 1105.

The location of a mining claim, by mistake, for more than the 200 feet on a vein allowed by the United States statutes and the local laws of the mining district, is not necessarily void as to the whole, but the excess may be rejected, and the claim held good as to the remainder, unless it interferes with rights previously acquired.—Id.

Under Rev. St. §§ 2320, 2322, the end lines of a mining claim must be parallel.—Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Elgin Mining & Smelting Co., 118 U. S. 196, 6 S. Ct. 1177, 80 L. Ed. 98.

Although Rev. St. § 2323, gives the right to locate a tunnel 3,000 feet only from the face thereof, the location of a tunnel 5,000 feet in length, made prior to the enactment of that law, in accordance with local rules and customs, is valid.—Glacier Mountain Silver Min. Co. v. Willis, 127 U. S. 471, 8 S. Ct. 1214, 32 L. Ed. 172.

Rule 4 of the Blue Ledge mining district rules in Utah, limiting the width of lode claims to 200 feet, was so modified May 4, 1872, that thereafter the width was to be governed by the laws of the United States.—Farley's Park Silver Min. Co. v. Kerr, 130 U. S. 256, 9 S. Ct. 511, 32 L. Ed. 906, reversing 3 Utah, 235, 2 P. 709.

A relocation of a claim which conflicts with another claim, so as to exclude the part in conflict, though accompanied by an express statement that the line of the other claim becomes an end line of the new location, is not a concession or agreement that such line is an end line of the other claim. Coincidence of lines between claims does not make them either side lines or end lines.—Walrath v. Champion Min. Co., 18 S. Ct. 909, 171 U. S. 293, 43 L. Ed. 170, affirming decision 72 F. 978, 19 C. C. A. 323.

The requirement of parallelism of end lines of lode mining locations which is made by Act May 10, 1872, c. 152, § 2, 17 Stat. 91, Rev. St. U. S. § 2320 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 1424, 1425], cannot be deemed to apply where the location had been made at the time of the passage of that act, and the proceedings under Act July 26, 1896, c. 262, 14 Stat. 251, had then so far advanced as to exclude adverse claims, in view of the various provisions of the later act for the protection of all rights previously acquired under existing laws, and of the provision of section 3 of that act, that prior locators shall have "the exclusive right of possession and enjoyment of all the surface included within the lines of their locations, and of all veins, lodes, and ledges throughout their entire depth, the top or apex of which lies inside of such surface lines extended downward vertically, although such veins, lodes, or ledges may so far depart from a perpendicular in their course downward as to extend outside the vertical side lines of said surface locations."—Decree, Central Eureka Min. Co. v. East Central Eureka Min. Co. (1905) 79 P. 834, 146 Cal. 147, affirmed.—East Central Eureka Min. Co. v. Central Eureka Min. Co., 27 S. Ct. 258, 204 U. S. 286, 51 L. Ed. 476.

A placer mining claim, which unintentionally included more than the maximum area permitted, is invalid under Rev. St. §§ 2320, 2329 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 1424, 1432), where, by readjustment to exclude the excess, the point of the only prior mineral discovery was left outside such lines.—(1912) Waskey v. Hammer, 32 S. Ct. 187, 223 U. S. 85, 56 L. Ed. 359, affirming judgment (1909) 170 F. 31, 95 C. C. A. 305, motion to recall mandate denied 179 F. 273, 102 C. C. A. 629.

☞19. — Posting notice.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 37-39.

In a contest under Rev. St. § 2326, whether the notice and description of the claim were sufficient to apprise other prospectors of its precise location is a question of fact.—Ellers v. Boatman, 111 U. S. 356, 4 S. Ct. 432, 28 L. Ed. 454.

In reversing the judgment of the United States district court, the supreme court says the court erred in an instruction that a locator, under a notice containing no specification or description of the territory claimed by him, has a claim only to the very place where the discovery stake was set up, and held that, while the notice failed to state how many feet were claimed on each side of the discovery stake, this, nevertheless, was not fatal, and would result in allowing him 750 feet on each side.—Erhardt v. Boaro, 113 U. S. 527, 5 S. Ct. 560, 28 L. Ed. 1113, reversing (D. C.) 8 F. 860, 3 McCrary, 19.

A notice posted upon a claim, and in the following words: "We, the undersigned, claim 1,500 feet in this mineral-bearing lode, vein, or deposit"—is sufficient as a notice of discovery and original location.—Id.

Under Rev. St. § 2324, requiring that mining claims shall be distinctly marked on the ground, so that boundaries can be readily traced, it is sufficient if no notice be posted, provided the corners of the claim and the centers of the side lines be marked by stakes or posts on which are writings to identify them with the claim.—Haws v. Victoria Copper Min. Co., 160 U. S. 303, 16 S. Ct. 282, 40 L. Ed. 436.

A sufficient location of placer mining claims is made by notices upon a stump in a creek, of a claim running 1,500 feet along the creek bottom and extending 300 feet each way from the center of the creek, adding that it is an extension of another claim named, a certain distance from the first falls on said creek.—McKinley Creek Min. Co. v. Alaska United Min. Co., 22 S. Ct. 84, 183 U. S. 563, 46 L. Ed. 331.

☞21. — Certificate or declaratory statement.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 45-50.

Under Rev. St. § 2324, making the location of mining claims subject to such provisions of state and territorial law as are not inconsistent with the laws of the United States, one who filed a certificate of location in the county recorder's office within three months after discovery, as required by Act Colo. Feb. 13, 1874, is entitled to a patent, as against one who subsequently filed a certificate, even though the latter was based upon a discovery made four years before, but while the land was still included in an Indian reservation.—Kendall v. San Juan Silver Min. Co., 144 U. S. 658, 12

S. Ct. 779, 36 L. Ed. 583, affirming judgment 9 Colo. 349, 12 P. 198.

In an action to determine an adverse claim to mining lands situated in Alaska, a location certificate made prior to the act of 1884 (23 Stat. 24), which gives to parties who have occupied, improved, or exercised acts of ownership over a mining claim the right to perfect their title thereto, is admissible as evidence in favor of the adverse claimant, notwithstanding that it is defective, in that it lacks definiteness of description.—Bennett v. Harkrader, 158 U. S. 441, 15 S. Ct. 863, 39 L. Ed. 1046.

22. — Record.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 45-50.

Rev. St. § 2324, requires the records of mining claims to contain such a description of the claim located "by reference to some natural object or permanent monument as will identify the claim." Held, that a description of the claim by metes and bounds, indicated by stakes driven in the ground, the location being indicated by its distance from "Vaughan's Little Jennie Mine," is sufficient, in the absence of evidence to show that that mine was not a well-known natural object or permanent monument, and, there being no evidence to contradict such description, the ground claimed is sufficiently identified to support a title to the claim.—Hammer v. Garfield Min. & Mill. Co., 130 U. S. 291, 9 S. Ct. 548, 32 L. Ed. 964, affirming Garfield Min. & Mill. Co. v. Hammer, 6 Mont. 53, 8 P. 153.

Notices of a location of a mining claim need not be recorded, if, at the time of the location, the rules of the mining district which required recording have fallen into disuse, and are no longer in force, there being no statutory requirement that such notices shall be recorded.—Haws v. Victoria Copper Min. Co., 160 U. S. 308, 16 S. Ct. 282, 40 L. Ed. 436.

23. — Development and improvement.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 51-59, 114.

Under Rev. St. § 2324, providing that, where several mining claims are held in common, the expenditure for development may be upon any one of them, such expenditure must be for the benefit of all; and the use of a claim as a place of deposit for waste material from other claims, and the building of a flume over it for the carriage of such waste, is not an expenditure for development, within the statute.—Jackson v. Roby, 109 U. S. 440, 3 S. Ct. 301, 27 L. Ed. 990.

Under Rev. St. § 2324, which requires a certain amount of work to be done each year on each claim of mineral lands, but that, "when such claims are held in common, such expenditures may be made upon any one claim," it is necessary to protect claims so "held in common," by work done on one of them, that they be contiguous, and that all be benefited by the work done upon one.—Chambers v. Harrington, 111 U. S. 350, 4 S. Ct. 428, 28 L. Ed. 452.

Under Rev. St. § 2325, requiring the claimant to file a certificate of the surveyor general that $500 in labor or improvements has been expended on the land, the certificate is conclusive evidence that such labor has been done or improvements made.—United States v. Iron Silver Min. Co., 128 U. S. 673, 9 S. Ct. 195, 32 L. Ed. 571, affirming (C. C.) 24 F. 568.

Rev. St. § 2324, requiring an expenditure upon mining claims of $100 in labor or improvements each year "until a patent has been issued therefor," in default whereof the claim may be relocated, is applicable only to a mere possessory title, and not to a claim for which the price has been paid and a certificate of purchase issued, since a perfect right to a patent then accrues, and a failure to receive it is only due to delay in the administration of the land department.—Benson Mining & Smelting Co. v. Alta Mining & Smelting Co., 145 U. S. 428, 12 S. Ct. 877, 36 L. Ed. 762, affirming judgment Alta Mining & Smelting Co. v. Benson Mining & Smelting Co., 16 P. 565.

The right to acquire by forfeiture, under Rev. St. § 2324, the part interest of one who fails to pay his proportion of the expenditure for annual labor, exists only in favor of one who is a co-owner in the year for which such labor is performed.—Turner v. Sawyer, 150 U. S. 578, 14 S. Ct. 192, 37 L. Ed. 1189.

One is not a "co-owner," within the meaning of the statute, who merely holds a sheriff's certificate of purchase at an execution sale of a part interest; for title does not pass until he receives a deed thereunder.—Id.

Publication every day except Sunday in the proper newspaper, beginning Monday, January 7th, and concluding Tuesday, April 2d, satisfies the provision of Rev. St. U. S. § 2324 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1426], for giving notice by publication "for at least once a week for 90 days" to a co-owner of a mining claim who has failed to contribute his share toward the annual labor made necessary by that section. Judgment 87 N. W. 586, 15 S. D. 124, 102 Am. St. Rep. 681, affirmed.—Elder v. Horsehoe Min. & Mill. Co., 24 S. Ct. 643, 194 U. S. 248, 48 L. Ed. 960.

The lack of an administrator of a deceased co-owner of a mining claim at the time of the publication of the notice provided for by Rev. St. U. S. § 2324 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1426], where a co-owner of a mining claim has failed to contribute his share toward the annual labor made necessary by that section, does not render a notice addressed to the deceased owner by name, "his heirs, administrators, and to all whom it may concern," insufficient to work a forfeiture, where, under the local law, an administrator has but a lien on real estate for administrative purposes, the title vesting in the heirs.—Id.

The notice by publication provided for by Rev. St. U. S. § 2324 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1426], where a co-owner of a mining claim has failed to contribute his share toward the annual labor made necessary by that section, is not insufficient to work a forfeiture because it was addressed to a deceased co-owner by name, and "his heirs, administrators, and to all whom it may concern," without specifically naming the heirs.—Id.

Expenditures of several years for holding a mining claim may be grouped in a single notice by publication, given pursuant to Rev. St. U. S. § 2324 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1426], for the purpose of working a forfeiture, where a co-owner of a mining claim has failed to contribute his share toward the annual labor made necessary by that section.—Id.

24. — Abandonment.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, § 60.

A conveyance by a locator of his interest in a mining claim constitutes an abandonment thereof, which terminates his interest.—Black v. Elkhorn Min. Co., 163 U. S. 445, 16 S. Ct. 1101, 41 L. Ed. 221, affirming judgment 52 F. 859, 3 C. C. A. 312, 7 U. S. App. 898.

An action of ejectment to recover mining property cannot be maintained on the ground that defendants have acquired it by a relocation in pursuance of a conspiracy with plaintiff's partner, whereby that partner, who was not one of the relocators, ceased to do the necessary work on the mine and abandoned its possession, since these facts, whatever equities they may raise as against the defendants, give plaintiff no legal title to the mine or any part thereof. Judgment, Lockhart v. Wills, 54 P. 336, 9 N. M. 344, affirmed.—Lockhart v. Johnson, 21 S. Ct. 665, 181 U. S. 516, 45 L. Ed. 979.

An election to retain the north end of a lode mining claim separated from the rest of the claim by a patented placer claim, made after the unsuccessful termination in the Land Department of a contest with the placer claimant, begun after a patent for the entire claim was refused because divided by the placer claim, took effect eo instanti as an abandonment of the south end of such claim, which became at once subject to a relocation, although the entry as to such tract had not then been formally canceled. Judgment, Gurney v. Brown, 77 P. 357, 32 Colo. 472, affirmed.—Brown v. Gurney, 26 S. Ct. 509, 201 U. S. 184, 50 L. Ed. 717.

The south end of the lode mining claim, separated from the rest of the claim by a patented placer claim, did not revert to and become part of the public domain, and, as such, subject to relocation, until the claimant elected to retain and patent the north end of the claim, although such election was not made within the 60 days given for that purpose by the Land Department in refusing a patent for the entire claim because divided by the placer claim, but was deferred until after the unsuccessful termination in the Land Department of a contest with the placer claimant, begun after the decision refusing the patent.—Id.

The acquiescence by the judgment debtor in an invalid judicial sale of his interest in a mining claim cannot be regarded as an abandonment of the claim and an election to accept the sale as a disposition of his property. Judgment, Dye v. Crary (N. M. 1906) 85 P. 1038, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1136, affirmed.—Crary v. Dye, 28 S. Ct. 360, 208 U. S. 515, 52 L. Ed. 595.

◀26. — Relocation.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 61-63.

A valid and subsisting location of mineral lands, made and kept up in accordance with the provisions of the statutes of the United States, has the effect of a grant by the United States of the right of present and exclusive possession of the lands located. If, when one enters on land to make a location, there is another location in full force, which entitles its owner to the exclusive possession of the land, the first location operates as a bar to the second.—Gwillim v. Donnellan, 115 U. S. 45, 5 S. Ct. 1110, 29 L. Ed. 348.

An amended relocation of a mining claim, made after the land has reverted to the public domain, cannot cure the defect in the original relocation arising out of the fact that the land was not then subject to entry, where intervening rights in favor of a third person have been created. Judgment, Gurney v. Brown, 77 P. 357, 32 Colo. 472, affirmed.—Brown v. Gurney, 26 S. Ct. 509, 201 U. S. 184, 50 L. Ed. 717.

One who attempts to relocate a mining claim on the theory that the required amount of annual assessment work has not been done, with full knowledge of the location and boundaries of the claim, cannot assert a forfeiture of title for failure, on the part of the original locator, to comply with the mining rules respecting notices of location. Judgment, Emerson v. Yosemite Gold Min. & Mill. Co. (1906) 85 P. 122, 149 Cal. 50, affirmed.—Yosemite Gold Min. & Mill. Co. v. Emerson, 28 S. Ct. 196, 208 U. S. 25, 52 L. Ed. 374.

Ground embraced in a mining location may become a part of the public domain so as to be subject to another location before the expiration of the statutory period for performing annual labor if, at the time when the second location is made, there has been an actual abandonment of the claim by the first locator. Judgment, Lockhart v. Farrell (1906) 86 P. 1077, 31 Utah,

Notice of location of mining property forfeited for failure to do assessment work must state that the property has been forfeited under Civ. Code Ariz. 1901, par. 3241.—(1912) Clason v. Matko, 32 S. Ct. 392, 223 U. S. 646, 56 L. Ed. 588, affirming judgment (1909) 100 P. 773, 12 Ariz. 213.

Requirement of Civ. Code Ariz. 1901, par. 3241, as to location notice of relocation of forfeited mining claim, held not in conflict with Rev. St. § 2324 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1426).—Id.

The legal effect under Rev. St. § 2325 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1429), of the allowance of an entry on an application for a patent to a mining claim by the local land agent, as a determination that the original locations were valid and that all work necessary had been done, is not destroyed by cancellation by the land department of such entry and final receipt under mistake of law.—El Paso Brick Co. v. McKnight, 34 S. Ct. 498, 233 U. S. 250, 58 L. Ed. 943, L. R. A. 1915A, 1113, reversing judgment McKnight v. El Paso Brick Co., 120 P. 694, 16 N. M. 721, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 1309.

◀27. — Conflicting locations.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 64, 65.

The right given by Rev. St. § 2323, to a vein discovered in a tunnel, dates, by relation, back to the time of the location of the tunnel site, and the right of locating the claim to the vein arises upon its discovery in the tunnel, and may be exercised by locating the full length of 1,500 feet on either side of the tunnel, or in such proportion thereof on either side as the locator may desire. Such a location therefore gives superior right as against a surface location made after location of the tunnel, but before discovery of the vein therein.—Enterprise Min. Co. v. Rico-Aspen Consol. Min. Co., 17 S. Ct. 762, 167 U. S. 108, 42 L. Ed. 96, affirming judgment 66 F. 200, 13 C. C. A. 390.

Lines of a junior lode location may be laid within, upon, or across the surface of a valid senior location for the purpose of defining for or securing to such junior location underground extralateral rights not in conflict with any rights of the senior location.—Del Monte Min. & Mill. Co. v. Last Chance Min. & Mill. Co., 18 S. Ct. 895, 171 U. S. 55, 43 L. Ed. 72.

Neither the statute nor public policy renders invalid a contract made in settlement of litigation over a disputed boundary between mining claims, by which one of the claimants binds himself, on obtaining title from the United States, to convey the portion in dispute to the other. Decree Montana Min. Co. v. St. Louis Mining & Milling Co., 51 P. 824, 20 Mont. 394, affirmed.—St. Louis Min. & Mill. Co. v. Montana Min. Co., 19 S. Ct. 61, 171 U. S. 650, 43 L. Ed. 320.

The area of conflict between two mining locations does not, upon the forfeiture of the senior location, become unoccupied mineral lands of the United States, so as to enable a relocater of the forfeited location to adverse successfully the application for a patent by the junior locator, since the latter's right, under Rev. St. U. S. § 2326 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1430], to a patent, which would exist in case of the failure of the owner of a subsisting senior location either to adverse the application or to prosecute such adverse, if one was made, must also arise from the forfeiture of the claim of the senior locator before the junior locator's application for a patent was made, and the consequent inability of the senior locator to adverse successfully after the forfeiture is complete. Judgment 71 P. 1046, 26 Utah, 1, 99 Am. St. Rep. 808, affirmed.—Lavagnino v. Uhlig, 25 S. Ct. 716, 198 U. S. 443, 49 L. Ed. 1119.

An attempted location of a mining claim, based on a discovery within a valid subsisting claim, is absolutely void for purpose of founding an adverse claim.—(1912) Swanson v. Sears, 32 S. Ct. 455, 224 U. S. 180, 56 L. Ed. 721, affirming judgment (1910) Same v. Kettler, 106 P. 1059, 1065, 17 Idaho, 321, 339.

—28. Rights acquired.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 66-80.

—29. — In general.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 66-72.

On February 28, 1877, by treaty with the Sioux Indians, the Black Hills reservation, in Dakota, was ceded to the United States; and where a party was in possession of a mining claim on that day, under the mining laws and customs, he could, by adopting what had been done, date his rights from that day, and such location and improvements would give him the right of possession.—Noonan v. Caledonia Gold Min. Co., 121 U. S. 893, 7 S. Ct. 911, 30 L. Ed. 1061, affirming judgment Caledonia Gold Min. Co. v. Noonan, 8 Dak. 189, 14 N. W. 426.

Where a treaty (15 Stat. 619, 620) provides, in respect to Indian reservations, that with certain exceptions no persons shall be permitted to "pass over, settle upon, or reside in the territory described," the location of a mining claim therein and a relocation two years after the opening of the reservation, cannot be made the basis of a mineral patent as against one who located the same claim four months after the opening of the reservation, and otherwise complied with the law.—Kendall v. San Juan Silver Min. Co., 144 U. S. 658, 12 S. Ct. 779, 36 L. Ed. 583, affirming judgment 9 Colo. 349, 12 P. 198.

One of two coterminous mining proprietors is estopped to assert that, because of the non-parallelism of the end lines of the other's claim, it did not carry extralateral rights defined by extending the common end line between the two surface locations, where such common line, described as crossing the lode, was established by the patent surveys as the result of an adverse proceeding in the land office, and a compromise agreement with respect thereto entered into by the immediate predecessors in title of such proprietors, who succeeded to the interests of their predecessors with a knowledge of the boundary line so determined. Judgment, Argonaut Min. Co. v. Kennedy Min. & Mill. Co., 63 P. 143, 181 Cal. 15, 82 Am. St. Rep. 317, affirmed.—Kennedy Min. & Mill. Co. v. Argonaut Min. Co., 23 S. Ct. 501, 189 U. S. 1, 47 L. Ed. 685.

Rights in mining property entitled to protection under Act May 10, 1872, c. 152, § 2, 17 Stat. 91, Rev. St. U. S. § 2320 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 1424, 1425], as previously acquired under existing laws, exist where a lode mining location had been made at the time of the passage of that act, and the proceedings under Act July 28, 1866, c. 262, 14 Stat. 251, had then so far advanced as to exclude adverse claims. Decree, Central Eureka Min. Co. v. East Central Eureka Min. Co. (1906) 79 P. 834, 146 Cal. 147, affirmed.—East Central Eureka Min. Co. v. Central Eureka Min. Co., 27 S. Ct. 258, 204 U. S. 266, 51 L. Ed. 476.

A lode mining claim owner has the right to the ore beneath his claim in a vein not having its apex there, subject only to the right of the owner of the claim where such vein apexes to follow it downward on its dip.—Mammoth Min. Co. v. Grand Central Min. Co., 29 S. Ct. 413, 213 U. S. 72, 53 L. Ed. 702.

—30. — Right to vein or lode having apex within claim in general.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 73, 74.

Right to follow a vein on its dip beyond the surface lines of lode location exists under Rev. St. § 2322 (Comp. St. 1913, § 4618), only where the apex lies inside of such lines.—Stewart Mining Co. v. Ontario Mining Co., 35 S. Ct. 610, 237 U. S. 350, 59 L. Ed. 989, affirming judgment 132 P. 787, 23 Idaho, 724.

—31. — Extralateral rights under vein or lode location.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 75-77.

Under Rev. St. § 2322, the owner of mining property is not only entitled to all the mineral in the vein or lode included within the surface lines of his claim extended vertically, but may follow that vein or lode beyond the vertical side lines of the claim, as far as it extends in a more or less continuous body of mineral lying within a well-defined boundary of other rock, as long as it can be traced as distinguishable from the general mass of the mountain, and even though the mineral may diminish or be totally suspended for a short distance, if found again in the same course, with the same mineral.—Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Cheesman, 116 U. S. 529, 6 S. Ct. 481, 29 L. Ed. 712.

Under Rev. St. §§ 2320, 2322, where the vein in its descent passes outside of vertical planes extending through the surface side lines of a mining claim, the owner of the claim is entitled to only so much of the vein as lies between vertical planes through the end lines, continued in their own direction.—Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Elgin Mining & Smelting Co., 118 U. S. 196, 6 S. Ct. 1177, 30 L. Ed. 98.

The right to follow a vein on its dip outside the side lines of a claim is dependent upon the parallelism of the end lines. If the end lines are not parallel, no extralateral rights exist. Hence, where the mining claim was a nine-sided figure resembling a horse shoe, and one of the sides called an end line and made parallel to the other end line was not in fact an end line but a side line because running nearly parallel with the general course of the vein, no extralateral rights can be claimed.—Id.

When a mining claim crosses the course of the lode or vein, instead of being "along the vein or lode," the "end lines," within the meaning of Rev. St. § 2320, for the purposes of following the dip are those which measure the width of the claim as it crosses the lode, though they run the "long way" of the claim and would ordinarily be considered as "side lines."—Argentine Min. Co. v. Terrible Min. Co., 122 U. S. 478, 7 S. Ct. 1356, 30 L. Ed. 1140.

If two claims each have a portion of the apex or outcropping of the same vein and in following the vein downward along the dip within the planes of their end lines, through which the vein passes, the two claims come in conflict as to a portion of the dip, the claim first located will be entitled to such conflicting portion.—Id.

When a claim is located across, instead of along, the lode, its side lines must be treated as its end lines, and its end lines as its side lines; so that, under Rev. St. § 2322, the dip cannot be followed outside the vertical plane of the original side lines into an adjoining claim.—King v. Amy & Silversmith Consol. Min. Co., 152 U. S. 222, 14 S. Ct. 510, 38 L. Ed. 419, reversing judgment 9 Mont. 543, 24 P. 200.

Where the course of a vein or lode is across the claim, instead of in the direction of its length, the side lines of the location become the end lines, and the end lines the side lines.—Last Chance Min. Co. v. Tyler Min. Co., 157 U. S. 683, 15 S. Ct. 733, 39 L. Ed. 859, reversing judgment 61 F. 557, 9 C. C. A. 613.

Quere: Whether, in a case in which a vein or lode passes through one end line and one side line of a mining location, the owner of the claim has any right to follow the dip beyond the vertical plane of his side lines within the limits of some equitably created new end lines, or is limited to the common-law rights of an owner of real estate, and nothing more; and whether, in case the location is amended so as to cut off one end of the claim, and thus make the vein pass through both end lines, assuming that such amended location is valid, the rights acquired under it are to be regarded as relating back to the date of the original location, so as to give a right to follow the dip underneath an intermediate location, or as arising simply at the time of amendment, in which case the intermediate location would have the prior right.—Id.

If the apex of a vein crosses one end line and one side line of the claim, the locator may still follow the vein on its dip beyond the vertical side line of his location.—Del Monte Min. & Mill. Co. v. Last Chance Min. & Mill. Co., 18 S. Ct. 895, 171 U. S. 55, 43 L. Ed. 72.

It is the end lines alone, and not in connection with any other lines, which define the extralateral rights; and they must be straight lines, not broken or curved ones.—Walrath v. Champion Min. Co., 18 S. Ct. 909, 171 U. S. 293, 43 L. Ed. 170, affirming decree 72 F. 978, 19 C. C. A. 823.

Under the provision in the act of 1872 (Rev. St. § 2322) giving to the locators of claims theretofore located any additional veins, lodes, or ledges existing therein, the end lines of the claim, for the purpose of determining extralateral rights in such additional veins, were the end lines of the original location and lode, and were not to be determined, irrespective thereof, by the direction of the newly-discovered lodes.—Id.

The right of the owner to pursue a vein apexing within the surface boundaries of his lode mining claim on its dip downward outside the vertical side lines of such claim, which is given by Rev. St. U. S. § 2322 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1425], cannot be deemed to include the right to run a horizontal tunnel from his claim into an adjoining patented lode claim, for the purpose of reaching the vein in its descent through such adjoining claim, in view of the provisions of section 2319 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1424], that all valuable mineral deposits in lands belonging to the United States are open to exploration and purchase, and the lands in which they are found to occupation and purchase, and of section 2325 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1429], that a patent for any land claimed and located for valuable deposits may be obtained when properly claimed and located. Judgment 113 F. 900, 51 C. C. A. 530, 64 L. R. A. 207, affirmed.—St. Louis Min. & Mill. Co. of Montana v. Montana Min. Co., 24 S. Ct. 654, 194 U. S. 235, 48 L. Ed. 953.

Priority of entry and patent does not conclusively establish seniority of location, so as to give the holder of a lode mining claim under such patent the right to the entire width of the vein on its dip, where part of the apex of such vein is within such claim and part within an adjoining claim. Judgment, United States Min. Co. v. Lawson (1904) 134 F. 769, 67 C. C. A. 587, affirmed.—Lawson v. United States Min. Co., 28 S. Ct. 15, 207 U. S. 1, 52 L. Ed. 65.

The senior location takes the entire width of the vein on its dip, where the apex of such vein is partly within two or more adjacent lode mining claims.—Id.

◀32. — Cross or united veins.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 73, 78.

The servitude imposed upon the senior location of a mining claim by Rev. St. U. S. § 2336 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1436], by giving a right of way to the junior location, whether that extends only through the space of the intersection of the veins or through the space of intersection of the claims, does not otherwise affect the exclusive rights given the senior location, or except therefrom the cross veins apexing therein. Judgment, 59 P. 607, 27 Colo. 1, 50 L. R. A. 209, 83 Am. St. Rep. 17, affirmed.—Calhoun Gold-Min. Co. v. Ajax Gold-Min. Co., 21 S. Ct. 885, 182 U. S. 499, 45 L. Ed. 1200.

◀33. — Veins in tunnel locations.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mines, § 80.

The Colorado territorial statute of 1861 (Mills' Ann. St. § 8141), limiting a tunnel owner to 250 feet each way on a vein discovered in the tunnel, if not in terms subsequently repealed, was superseded by the legislation of Congress.—Enterprise Min. Co. v. Rico-Aspen Consol. Min. Co., 17 S. Ct. 762, 167 U. S. 108, 42 L. Ed. 96, affirming 66 F. 200, 13 C. C. A. 390.

Blind veins underneath prior lode claims belong to the surface location, under Rev. St. U. S. § 2322 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1425], and their discovery by running a tunnel, under section 2323 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1426], does not give the owner of the tunnel any right to them. Judgment 59 P. 607, 27 Colo. 1, 50 L. R. A. 209, 83 Am. St. Rep. 17, affirmed.—Calhoun Gold-Min. Co. v. Ajax Gold-Min. Co., 21 S. Ct. 885, 182 U. S. 499, 45 L. Ed. 1200.

The location of a tunnel site for mining purposes must be made in subordination to prior lode claims, and the tunnel has no right of way through them.—Id.

◀34. Transfer of claims or rights under locations.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 81-83.

The transfer of a mining claim by a qualified locator to an alien is not to be treated as, ipso facto, an abandonment, nor is it analogous to the casting of descent upon an alien. It operates as a transfer of the claim to the grantee, subject to question only by the government on the ground of his alienage.—Manuel v. Wulff, 152 U. S. 505, 14 S. Ct. 651, 38 L. Ed. 532, reversing judgment Wulff v. Manuel, 9 Mont. 276, 279, 286, 28 P. 723.

◀35. Coal lands.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mines, § 87.

The prohibition against more than one entry of coal lands by the same person, which is made by Rev. St. § 2350 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1441), prevents a qualified person from making a coal land location apparently for himself, but in fact as an agent, for the purpose of securing to a corporation a larger area of coal lands than such corporation could lawfully locate for itself.—United States v. Munday, 32 S. Ct. 53, 222 U. S. 175, 56 L. Ed. 149, reversing judgment (C. C.) 186 F. 375.

The restriction to one entry by the same person, made by Rev. St. § 2350 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1441), governing entries of coal lands under the three preceding sections, which relate solely to surveyed lands, and which were expressly extended to Alaska by Act June 6, 1900, c. 796, § 1 Stat. 658 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1441), was made applicable to entries on unsurveyed coal lands in Alaska by Act April 28, 1904, c. 1772, § 3 Stat. 525 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 556), enacted solely to provide for the sale of such lands, and continuing in force in Alaska all the coal land laws of the United States not in conflict with its provisions, the fact that such statute imposes no restrictions upon alienation by one who has made a lawful location not warranting a different conclusion, and the words, "the three preceding sections," found in section 2350, having no material significance, but having been necessitated because the provisions of the original act of March 3, 1873 (chapter 279, 17 Stat. 607), when carried into the Revised Statutes, were made a part of the general land law embracing the sale of other public lands.—Id.

One making entry of coal lands avowedly for his own use is "the person who made such entry," within Act June 16, 1880, § 2, providing for the repayment of price on cancellation though he made the entry for a corporation, for its benefit.—(1912) United States v. Colorado Anthracite Co., 32 S. Ct. 617, 225 U. S. 219, 56 L. Ed. 1063, affirming judgment (1909) 45 Ct. Cl. 614.

Corporate grantee in a quitclaim deed to public land, executed by a person who, having then no interest, afterwards made an entry actually at the instance of a corporation, with its money, is his assign within Act June 16, 1880, § 2, providing for repayment of price on subsequent cancellation to the enterer or his assigns.—Id.

Right to repayment of price of public lands given by Act June 16, 1880, § 2, where entry is canceled, does not apply to cases where entry was fraudulently procured.—Id.

Entry of coal lands avowedly for the sole use of the entryman, but shown to have been made at the instance of a corporation and for its benefit, was not fraudulently procured in contravention of Rev. St. §§ 2347-2352 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 1440, 1441), forbidding acquisition of such lands in excess of quantities prescribed, where there was no effort to evade restrictions as to quantity.—Id.

The rights of persons seeking to purchase coal lands from the United States held measured by their second application, where, instead of pursuing any remedy in the courts growing out of the rejection by the Land Department of their original application, they acquiesced in that decision for more than a year and a half.—Plested v. Abbey, 33 S. Ct. 503, 228 U. S. 42, 57 L. Ed. 724.

—36. Oil and gas lands.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, § 87.

Even as between rival mineral claimants to petroleum lands, there must have been such a discovery, in order to sustain a location, as would justify a prudent person in the expenditure of money and labor in exploitation for petroleum. Judgments, Miller v. Chrisman, 73 P. 1083, 74 P. 444, 140 Cal. 440, 98 Am. St. Rep. 63, affirmed.—Chrisman v. Miller, 25 S. Ct. 468, 197 U. S. 313, 49 L. Ed. 770.

—38. Actions to determine and establish rights.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 87½-113.

In an action to determine an adverse claim under Rev. St. § 2326 (amended March 3, 1881), the issue is not which of the two claimants has the best right, but whether either claimant has sufficient right to entitle him to a patent; for, if not, the verdict and judgment will be against both.—Jackson v. Roby, 109 U. S. 440, 3 S. Ct. 301, 27 L. Ed. 990; Perego v. Dodge, 163 U. S. 180, 16 S. Ct. 971, 41 L. Ed. 113.

Under Code Civ. Proc. Colo. 1877, §§ 48, 49, 52, 61, as at common law, facts may be pleaded according to their legal effect, without setting out the particulars that lead to it, and necessary circumstances implied by law need not be expressed in the plea; and therefore, in an action by the patentee of a placer claim to recover possession of a vein or lode within its boundaries, an answer alleging that the vein or lode was known to the patentee to exist at the time of applying for the patent, and was not included in his application, well pleads the fact which, under section 2333 of the Revised Statutes, precludes him from having any right of possession of the vein or lode.—Sullivan v.

Under Rev. St. § 2326, requiring proceedings for determination of an adverse claim to mineral lands to be commenced within 30 days after filing the claim, the filing of a complaint in a proper court of competent jurisdiction within that time is a commencement of the proceedings, although no docket fee or other fee is paid until afterwards; and the objection that the proceeding was not commenced in time cannot be taken by a defendant who has demurred and answered, and gone to trial without it.—Richmond Min. Co. v. Rose, 114 U. S. 576, 5 S. Ct. 1055, 29 L. Ed. 273, affirming Rose v. Richmond Min. Co., 17 Nev. 25, 27 P. 1105.

In proceedings to determine an adverse claim to mineral lands, pursuant to Rev. St. § 2326, a title founded on a patent for an adjoining claim, procured by one of the litigants on application pendente lite, will not be heard by the court to prejudice the merits of the case.—Id.

In an action brought in the district court of Montana to settle the controverted right to a patent under Rev. St. U. S. §§ 2325, 2326, requiring an adverse claimant to mineral lands to commence proceedings in a court of competent jurisdiction to determine the question of the right of possession, it was shown that the plaintiff had made an agreement to convey said lands to a third person, in possession of such lands as tenant at the time of trial, and the plaintiff, under Code Civ. Proc. Mont. § 354, declaring that "an action may be brought by any person in possession, by himself, or his tenants, of real property, against an adverse claimant, to determine such adverse claim," was nonsuited as not being in possession. Held error, since, the title to the lands being in the United States, plaintiff's agreement to convey passed no title to the party named therein, but merely rendered him tenant under the plaintiff.—Wolverton v. Nichols, 119 U. S. 485, 7 S. Ct. 289, 30 L. Ed. 474, reversing judgment 5 Mont. 89, 2 P. 308.

In an action to recover a placer claim, defendants alleged that they had entered to work a lode or vein excluded from the plaintiff's patent for the placer claim, which plaintiff had introduced in evidence. Plaintiff then offered another patent and deed from the patentee to the part excepted from the patent. Held error to exclude the patent and deed, as plaintiff could show title from any source.—Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Reynolds, 124 U. S. 374, 8 S. Ct. 598, 31 L. Ed. 466.

The allegation that a valid and legal location was made by persons under whom plaintiff claims, and that plaintiff had held possession for more than five consecutive years prior to the ouster by defendants, and paid all the taxes assessed during that period, shows a right in plaintiff to the premises in dispute, under the laws of Colorado, superior to any other claims except that of the government.—Glacier Mountain Silver Min. Co. v. Willis, 127 U. S. 471, 8 S. Ct. 1214, 32 L. Ed. 172.

In an action to recover a mining claim, the complaint, after setting forth the location by plaintiff's grantors of a tunnel and tunnel site in Snake River mining district, Summit county, Colo., at the base of the Glacier mountain, stated that said grantors caused to be made out and recorded a location certificate of said tunnel claim, describing the location and boundaries thereof, that the said tunnel claim was by its locators named the "Silver Gate Tunnel Claim," and is described more fully as follows: "Commencing at the base of said Glacier mountains east of Bear creek, and running southeast, and parallel with Coley tunnel, through said mountain 5,000 feet from the mouth or starting-point of said tunnel, at a stake marked, and in or at the mouth of said Silver Gate tunnel, and 250 feet northeast, and 250 feet southwest, from said stake or tunnel, to its termination." Held, on demurrer, that the description was sufficient.—Id.

Although the lodes alleged to be embraced within a tunnel site location are not each separately described, the statement in a complaint that all the lodes in the tunnel claim have been worked and mined by plaintiff and its grantors comprehends every part of the property for the recovery of which the action is brought.—Id.

Under the practice act of Utah territory a complaint in an action to quiet title to a mining claim, which states that plaintiff is in possession and that defendant claims an interest or an estate therein adverse to him, is sufficient to require the nature and character of the defendant's adverse claim to be set up, inquired into, and judicially determined.—Parley's Park Silver Min. Co. v. Kerr, 130 U. S. 256, 9 S. Ct. 511, 32 L. Ed. 906, reversing 3 Utah, 235, 2 P. 709.

In an action to quiet title the answer of defendant did not distinctly put in issue the validity of the original location, but denied the existing right and ownership of plaintiff and his possession since the discovery and location, and alleged a forfeiture by plaintiff and a relocation by defendant. The court charged the jury that the validity of the original location was not in dispute, and that, if they believed that plaintiff was in the quiet and undisturbed possession prior to defendant's entry; that the boundaries of said claim were properly marked; and that there had been theretofore discovered therein a vein or lode,—plaintiff had made out a prima facie case, which could only be overcome by proof of forfeiture and acquisition by defendant. Held that, if the charge that the original location was not disputed was error, it was not prejudicial to defendant. As the cause was one of equity jurisdiction, and tried in the courts of Montana, which exercise both law and equity jurisdiction, the finding of the jury, having been accepted, must be treated as the finding of the court, and the instruction only indicated its ruling respecting the inferences to be drawn from plaintiff's prior possession.—Hammer v. Garfield Min. & Mill. Co., 130 U. S. 291, 9 S. Ct. 548, 32 L. Ed. 964, affirming Garfield Min. & Mill. Co., 6 Mont. 53, 8 P. 153.

On an issue as to whether a certain vein was excepted from a placer patent, it was harmless error to charge that it was excepted if known to exist at the date of the patent, when all the evidence offered with respect to the existence of such knowledge related to a time anterior to the application.—Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Mike & Starr Gold & Silver Min. Co., 143 U. S. 394, 430, 12 S. Ct. 543, 36 L. Ed. 201.

The C. claim, owned by plaintiff, adjoined the S. claim on the south. In an action to determine conflicting locations, the jury gave a general verdict for plaintiff on conflicting evidence that the discovery shaft was partly on both claims, the apex being within the line of the C. claim. To the interrogatory, "Was any part of such vein or lode discovered by the locators of said C. claim at a point of discovery south of the south boundary line of the S. lode claim as patented, and within the limits of the said C. lode claim as located?" the answer was "Yes." To the interrogatory, "Was the top or apex of such vein within the limits of the S. claim as patented?" the answer was "No." Held, that there was no conflict between the verdict and findings.—Larkin v. Upton, 144 U. S. 19, 12 S. Ct. 614, 36 L. Ed. 330, affirming judgment Upton v. Larkin, 7 Mont. 449, 17 P. 728.

The Oregon statute (in force in Alaska), which requires that a verdict for the plaintiff in actions to recover real estate shall state that he was entitled to the possession of the property described in the complaint, or some part thereof, and the nature and duration of his estate (Hill's Ann. Laws, p. 380, § 320), is inapplicable to an action brought under Rev. St. § 2326, to determine an adverse claim to mining property, and a general verdict in favor of plaintiff is sufficient.—Bennett v. Harkrader, 158 U. S. 441, 15 S. Ct. 863, 39 L. Ed. 1046.

In an action by the locator of a mining claim to recover its possession from one who has illegally ousted it therefrom, plaintiff may, to show its good faith in working the claim, introduce evidence that it expended several thousand dollars in so doing between the time it took possession and such ouster; Rev. St. § 2324, requiring that on each claim located $100 worth of labor shall be performed before the issue of a patent.—Haws v. Victoria Copper Min. Co., 160 U. S. 303, 16 S. Ct. 282, 40 L. Ed. 436.

Rev. St. § 2326, providing that one filing an adverse claim during the period provided for publication of an application for a patent for mineral lands shall "commence proceedings in a court of competent jurisdiction" to determine the right of possession, authorizes either an action at law or a suit in equity, as may be most appropriate.—Perego v. Dodge, 163 U. S. 160, 16 S. Ct. 971, 41 L. Ed. 113.

The owner of a prior placer mining location may maintain an adverse suit against an application for a patent for a subsequent lode location within the exterior boundaries of the placer claim, made by persons entering thereon against the will of the placer locators for the purpose of prospecting for unknown lodes or veins. Judgment 63 P. 286, 29 Colo. 377, 64 L. R. A. 209, 93 Am. St. Rep. 89, affirmed.—Clipper Min. Co. v. Eli Mining & Land Co., 24 S. Ct. 632, 194 U. S. 220, 48 L. Ed. 944.

A delay of eight years after the right to a deed of an interest in a mining claim has accrued by reason of a proportionate contribution to the work and expense necessary to obtain a patent will defeat a suit to enforce such right, where complainants contributed nothing further to the subsequent development of the mine and the consequent discovery of a rich ore deposit. Decree 66 P. 552, 11 N. M. 1, 55 L. R. A. 658, affirmed.—Patterson v. Hewitt, 25 S. Ct. 35, 195 U. S. 309, 49 L. Ed. 214.

Evidence is admissible on behalf of the third locator of a lode mining claim which tends to establish the existence of a valid and subsisting location prior to the location which such third locator is advertising. Judgment, Lockhart v. Farrell (1906) 86 P. 1077, 31 Utah, 155, reversed.—Farrell v. Lockhart, 28 S. Ct. 681, 210 U. S. 142, 52 L. Ed. 994, 16 L. R. A. (N. S.) 162.

A certified copy of the location of a placer mining claim, filed October 20, 1888, with evidence that there was a mine in that vicinity, was insufficient to support a finding that rights had attached to such claim within proviso of the executive order of October 16, 1891, providing that any lands included within the reservation to which valid rights have attached are excluded therefrom.—Donnelly v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 449, 228 U. S. 243, 57 L. Ed. 820, Ann. Cas. 1913E, 710, rehearing denied 33 S. Ct. 1024, 228 U. S. 708, 57 L. Ed. 1035, Ann. Cas. 1913E, 710.

(C) PATENTS.

Cancellation of homestead entry, see Public Lands, —120.

40. Application, and proceedings thereon.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, § 115.

Rulings of the Land Department as to the tract covered by a lode mining claim are as free from collateral attack where final entry has been made as though patent had issued. Judgment, Gurney v. Brown, 77 P. 357, 32 Colo. 472, affirmed.—Brown v. Gurney, 28 S. Ct. 509, 201 U. S. 184, 50 L. Ed. 717.

The refusal of subordinate officials of the Land Department, acting under instructions, to accept an application to purchase coal lands in the United States, is not subject to review in the courts.—Plested v. Abbey, 33 S. Ct. 503, 228 U. S. 42, 57 L. Ed. 724.

The execution before an officer outside of the mining district of an affidavit that notice of application for a patent to a mining claim had been posted on the land, though not a compliance with Rev. St. § 2335 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1435), held a mere irregularity which may be cured by the filing of a properly verified affidavit.—El Paso Brick Co. v. McKnight, 34 S. Ct. 498, 233 U. S. 250, 58 L. Ed. 943, L. R. A. 1915A, 1113, reversing judgment McKnight v. El Paso Brick Co., 120 P. 694, 16 N. M. 721, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 1309.

Rights to a patent to a mining claim with which applicant had become vested under Rev. St. § 2325 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1429), were not destroyed because such applicant yielded to an erroneous ruling of the land department canceling the entry, and instituted new proceedings to secure a patent as evidence of title.—Id.

41. Adverse claims, and proceedings thereon.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 116-119.

Under Rev. St. U. S. § 2326, providing that, on the filing of an adverse claim to mineral lands, proceedings "shall be stayed until the controversy shall have been settled or decided by a court of competent jurisdiction, or the adverse claim waived," the land office cannot, while a proceeding to determine the claim is pending, assume from delay therein that the claim has been waived, and issue a patent for the lands. It is for the court which has jurisdiction of the case to decide whether either party has lost his right by laches or failure to proceed with diligence, and to act accordingly.—Richmond Min. Co. v. Rose, 114 U. S. 576, 5 S. Ct. 1055, 29 L. Ed. 273, affirming Rose v. Richmond Min. Co., 17 Nev. 25, 27 P. 1105.

Rev. St. § 2325, provides that, where no adverse claim is filed to mineral land for which an application for a patent is made, it will be assumed that no adverse claim exists, and that thereafter no objections shall be heard, except it be shown that the applicant has failed to comply with the requirements of the law. Held that, where an applicant for a patent for land as placer mining ground has complied with all legal requirements, one who has set up no adverse claim cannot complain that the applicant did not show that the ground claimed was placer mining ground.—Dahl v. Raunheim, 132 U. S. 260, 10 S. Ct. 74, 33 L. Ed. 324, affirming Raunheim v. Dahl, 6 Mont. 167, 9 P. 892.

When a person holds a mineral patent from the government, he is not obliged to adverse an application made after his patent has been granted. Rev. St. §§ 2325, 2326, do not apply to him.—Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Campbell, 135 U. S. 286, 10 S. Ct. 765, 34 L. Ed. 155.

The provision of Rev. St. §§ 2325, 2326, for filing adverse claims before the register, does not apply when there is no dispute as to location or boundaries, and the controversy only arises upon the claim of one party to have acquired the interest of the other by legal proceedings.—Turner v. Sawyer, 150 U. S. 578, 14 S. Ct. 192, 37 L. Ed. 1189.

The withdrawal of the answer interposed in a suit to determine an adverse claim, and the amendment of the application in the land office so as to leave out the ground in dispute, cannot be construed as a waiver of the adverse claim within the meaning of Rev. St. § 2326, which declares that after the filing of the adverse claim "all proceedings, except the publication of notice, and making and filing affidavit thereof, shall be stayed until the controversy shall have been settled or decided by a court of competent jurisdiction or the adverse claim waived"; for a waiver of such claim can only be made by the party filing it, and not by the party against whom it is made.—Last Chance Min. Co. v. Tyler Min. Co., 157 U. S. 683, 15 S. Ct. 733, 39 L. Ed. 859 reversing judgment 61 F. 557, 9 O. C. A. 613.

It may well be doubted whether, after institution of a suit to determine an adverse claim, the filing in the land office of an amendment to the claim, whereby the disputed land is left out, and a patent asked only for the remainder, can have any force or effect whatever until judgment is rendered in the adverse suit; for Rev. St. § 2326, declares that after the filing of the adverse claim "all proceedings, except the publication of notice, and making and filing affidavit thereof, shall be stayed until the controversy shall have been settled or decided by a court of competent jurisdiction or the adverse claim waived."—Id.

The failure of persons engaged in running a tunnel to "adverse" a surface claim located near the line of the tunnel prior to a discovery of the vein in the tunnel does not prejudice their rights to such vein.—Enterprise Min. Co. v. Rico-Aspen Consol. Min. Co., 17 S. Ct. 762, 167 U. S. 108, 42 L. Ed. 98, affirming judgment 66 F. 200, 13 C. C. A. 390.

The owner of a tunnel site, who simply seeks to protect his tunnel, and has as yet discovered no lode claim, is not required, by Rev. St. U. S. §§ 2325, 2326 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 1429, 1430], to adverse an application for the patent of the lode claim through which the tunnel runs, the lode of which was discovered on the surface. Judgment Uinta Tunnel Min. & Transp. Co. v. Creede & C. C. Min. & Mill Co., 119 F. 164, 57 C. C. A. 200, affirmed.—Creede & C. C. Min. & Mill Co. v. Uinta Tunnel Min. & Transp. Co., 25 S. Ct. 266, 196 U. S. 337, 49 L. Ed. 501.

42. Requisites and validity.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 123-124.

A patent for a placer mining claim, embracing several distinct mining locations made after 1870, and including more than 160 acres, is valid.—Tucker v. Masser, 113 U. S. 203, 5 S. Ct. 420, 28 L. Ed. 979.

Under Rev. St. § 2319 (Act May 10, 1872) the patent of a placer mining claim carries with it title to the surface included within the lines of the location, and it is not competent for the land officers to insert in it a reservation excluding from its operation buildings and improvements erected upon the land by the preceding occupant, who claimed it as a part of a town site.—Deffebach v. Hawke, 115 U. S. 392, 6 S. Ct. 95, 29 L. Ed. 423, affirming Hawke v. Deffebach, 4 Dak. 20, 22 N. W. 490; Sparks v. Pierce, 115 U. S. 403, 6 S. Ct. 102, 29 L. Ed. 428, affirming Pierce v. Sparks, 4 Dak. 1, 22 N. W. 491.

The officers of the land department have no authority to insert in a patent to mineral land an exception of all town property rights upon the surface, buildings, etc., but must confine themselves to terms of conveyance, and recitals showing compliance with the conditions prescribed by law.—Davis v. Wiebbold, 139 U. S. 507, 11 S. Ct. 628, 35 L. Ed. 238, reversing judgment Weibold v. Davis, 7 Mont. 107, 14 P. 865.

◀ 43. Construction and operation in general.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 125-129.

A patent for the land located conveys the legal title to the surface, and that carries with it the right to follow a discovered vein, the apex of which is within the limits of the grant downward, even though it may pass outside the vertical side lines of the location.—Gwillim v. Donnellan, 115 U. S. 45, 5 S. Ct. 1110, 29 L. Ed. 348.

Under Rev. St. § 2333, providing that, where a vein or lode is included within a placer claim, the applicant for a placer patent must state the fact, and make specified payments therefor, but that, if the existence of vein or lode therein is unknown at the time of the application, the placer claim shall carry all the mineral within its boundaries, but if known to exist at the time of the application, and not mentioned in the claim or patent, the application shall be construed as a conclusive declaration that the placer claimant has no right to the possession thereof, the holder of a placer patent which includes a vein known, but not mentioned in the application or patent, has no title thereto, and cannot disturb the peaceable possession of another, whether under title or as a mere trespasser.—Reynolds v. Iron Silver Min. Co., 116 U. S. 687, 6 S. Ct. 601, 29 L. Ed. 774.

In an action to recover placer lands, an instruction was in substance that, if plaintiff's application for a patent was made with intent to acquire title to a lode or vein which might exist beneath the surface, a patent so issued would not convey such lode or vein, and the intention could only be formed from investigation of the character of the ground, and belief of the existence of such lode would constitute legal knowledge. Held, that the instruction was not authorized by the statute (Rev. St. § 2333) providing that where a vein or lode is known to exist within a placer claim, an application for, and grant of, the placer claim alone will not pass title to the vein or lode.—Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Reynolds, 124 U. S. 374, 8 S. Ct. 598, 31 L. Ed. 466.

A patent for a placer claim does not pass title to a lode within its boundaries when, at the time the application for the patent was made, such lode was held by third parties under a valid lode location, although it did not appear that the patentee then had actual knowledge of the existence of the lode.—Noyes v. Mantle, 127 U. S. 348, 8 S. Ct. 1132, 32 L. Ed. 168, affirming judgment Mantle v. Noyes, 5 Mont. 274, 5 P. 856.

In order that lodes may be excepted from the grant in a placer patent, they must be clearly ascertained and of such value as to justify their exploitation, and known to exist at the time of application for patent.—United States v. Iron Silver Min. Co., 128 U. S. 673, 9 S. Ct. 195, 32 L. Ed. 571, affirming (C. C.) 24 F. 568.

Rev. St. § 2333, provides that when one applies for a placer patent, who is in possession of a vein or lode within its boundaries, he shall state that fact, and be required to pay a certain sum more for such lode than for the placer claim; and that where a lode is known to exist, and the application for a placer claim does not include it, this will be held a conclusive declaration that the applicant has no right of possession thereto; also that, where the existence of a lode in a placer claim is not known at the time of application, the patent will convey all valuable mineral and other deposits within the boundaries of the claim. In an action to quiet title to a placer claim patented to plaintiff, defendant claimed title to a portion of the land as a lode claim. The court charged that if, at the time of plaintiff's application, there was no known lode or vein within the boundaries of the land, the verdict should be for plaintiff. Held, that a general verdict for plaintiff was conclusive that no known lode existed on the premises at the time of his application.—Dahl v. Raunheim, 132 U. S. 260, 10 S. Ct. 74, 33 L. Ed. 324, affirming Raunheim v. Dahl, 6 Mont. 167, 9 P. 892.

Defendant's grantor obtained a patent for placer mining land. Subsequently a patent was issued to plaintiffs' grantors for a mineral lode located beneath the surface within the limits of the land covered by defendant's patent. In ejectment by plaintiffs for possession of the lode, held, that the issuing of the second patent did not raise the conclusive presumption that the mineral lode thereby granted was known at the time the first patent was issued, within the act of congress (Rev. St. § 2333) providing that a patent for a placer mining claim shall not include a mineral vein or lode beneath the surface, if such lode is known.—Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Campbell, 135 U. S. 286, 10 S. Ct. 765, 34 L. Ed. 155.

Rev. St. § 2333, provides that a patent for a placer claim shall not include any vein or lode "known to exist" within the boundaries of the grant unless application is also made for such vein or lode, but, if its existence is not known, the title shall pass. Held, that a vein or lode may be known to exist so as to except it from the grant, though it has not been located according to law.—Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Mike & Starr Gold & Silver Min. Co., 143 U. S. 394, 12 S. Ct. 543, 36 L. Ed. 201; Sullivan v. Iron Silver Min. Co., 143 U. S. 431, 12 S. Ct. 555, 36 L. Ed. 214.

In order to except a vein or lode from a placer patent, the vein or lode must be known to exist at the date of the application for the placer claim, and not merely at the date of the patent therefor, although the placer patent in terms excepts from the grant all veins or lodes known at the date of its issuance. The knowledge must be that of the applicant for the placer patent, but he is chargeable with knowledge of what is known generally in the community, or what would be disclosed by a reasonable and fair inspection of the premises for the purpose of obtaining title from the government; and an applicant must be held to know of the existence of a tunnel which runs 400 feet under the tract, and of certain veins which it intersects, and which are so distinctly marked as to be disclosed by casual inspection.—Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Mike & Starr Gold & Silver Min. Co., 143 U. S. 394, 12 S. Ct. 543, 36 L. Ed. 201.

A "vein or lode" of mineral deposit, within the meaning of the statute excepting known veins or lodes from placer patents, must be clearly ascertained, and of such extent as to render the lands more valuable and justify their exploitation; but the question as to whether a given vein is of this character is one of fact for the jury, to be determined upon evidence of its dimensions, its general course and direction, its product of metal per ton, and the facility for reaching and working it.—Id.

In determining whether a particular deposit disclosed by the running of a tunnel then became a "known" vein, the fact that the persons running the tunnel did not then, or until about two years afterwards, and after the filing of an application for a placer patent, attempt to develop the vein, is not conclusive, when the evidence shows that they, as well as all other miners in the community, were at that time in search of a much richer deposit which was generally believed to underlie the territory. The jury could not have been misled into finding for the vein claimants by the admission of evidence as to this general belief in the existence of a blanket vein, when the court in its charge clearly pointed out that the rights of the parties turned entirely on the known existence of the particular vein disclosed by the tunnel.—Id.

In order to except known lodes from a placer patent, the existence of the vein or lode must be a matter of actual knowledge at the time of the application for the patent, and it cannot be excluded from the grant by evidence of subsequent discoveries, or of mere speculation or belief, based upon the fact that a number of shafts sunk in adjacent lands disclosed the existence of certain horizontal deposits which, it was argued, might extend under the tract in question.—Sullivan v. Iron Silver Min. Co., 143 U. S. 431, 12 S. Ct. 555, 36 L. Ed. 214.

In the case of overlapping locations, a patent for the junior location, which first describes the entire rectangular claim by metes and bounds, and then excepts therefrom the premises previously granted to the senior claim, conveys to the patentee greater rights than would a patent specifically describing only the irregular tract lying outside the senior location. In the former case, an end line lying within the senior location is still to be considered the end line of the claim for the purpose of securing extralateral rights.—Del Monte Min. & Mill. Co. v. Last Chance Min. & Mill. Co., 18 S. Ct. 895, 171 U. S. 55, 43 L. Ed. 72.

A patent issued under the act of July 26, 1866, though expressed as conveying a specified length of a vein, carries only so much thereof as has its apex within the boundaries of the actual location, though this includes less than the length mentioned in the patent.—Walrath v. Champion Min. Co., 18 S. Ct. 909, 171 U. S. 293, 43 L. Ed. 170, affirming decree 72 F. 978, 19 C. C. A. 323.

An entry upon a prior valid placer mining location for the purpose of prospecting for unknown lodes, when made against the will of the placer locators, must be deemed a trespass, which can initiate no title to the lode claims thus located within the exterior boundaries of the placer claim, in view of the right of exclusive possession and enjoyment of the surface given to placer locators by Rev. St. U. S. §§ 2322, 2329 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 1425, 1432], and of the provision of section 2333 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1433], that a patent for a placer claim, while not including known veins or lodes not specifically applied and paid for, conveys any veins or lodes not known to exist when the patent was issued. Judgment, 68 P. 286, 29 Colo. 377, 64 L. R. A. 209, 93 Am. St. Rep. 89, affirmed.—Clipper Min. Co. v. Eli Mining & Land Co., 24 S. Ct. 632, 194 U. S. 220, 43 L. Ed. 944.

An election by the grantee of a patent for a lode mining claim to abandon rights acquired under Act July 26, 1866, c. 262, 14 Stat. 251, cannot be imported from the fact that such patent, in addition to granting such rights, also purports to grant all that would have been acquired by a location under Act May 10, 1872, c. 152, § 2, 17 Stat. 91, Rev. St. U. S. § 2320 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 1424, 1425]. Decree, Central Eureka Min. Co. v. East Central Eureka Min. Co. (1905) 79 P. 834, 146 Cal. 147, affirmed.—East Central Eureka Min. Co. v. Central Eureka Min. Co., 27 S. Ct. 258, 204 U. S. 266, 51 L. Ed. 476.

44. Conclusiveness.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, § 130.

A mining patent from the United States cannot be collaterally assailed on the ground of false testimony used to obtain it.—Steel v. St. Louis Smelting & Refining Co., 106 U. S. 447, 1 S. Ct. 389, 27 L. Ed. 226.

Defendant's mining patent was attacked because issued for a location of 600 feet, whereas the local mining laws as was alleged, fixed the width of mining locations at 200 feet. The rules of the mining district, adopted May 17, 1870, did so fix the width, but it appeared that on May 4, 1872, the miners' meeting passed a by-law providing that surface width should be governed by the United States laws. Act Cong. May 10, 1872, fixed the width not to exceed more than 300 feet on each side of the middle vein. The claim was located under the by-law and the act of congress, and these formed a part of the application. Held, that the question as to which of these provisions was in force was a fact determinable by the commissioner of the general land office, and the patent issued by him was valid.—Parley's Park Silver Min. Co. v. Kerr, 130 U. S. 256, 9 S. Ct. 511, 32 L. Ed. 906, reversing 3 Utah, 235, 2 P. 709.

Where there are two patents to the same land, and the decision as to which one is valid depends on facts not shown by the patents, those facts may be shown in an action to establish the validity of one patent.—Iron Silver Min. Co. v. Campbell, 135 U. S. 286, 10 S. Ct. 765, 34 L. Ed. 155.

Patents for lode-mining claims cannot be collaterally attacked by evidence that at the date of the subsequent location of a tunnel site no ore had been discovered in the lode claims. Judgment, 59 P. 607, 27 Colo. 1, 50 L. R. A. 209, 83 Am. St. Rep. 17, affirmed.—Calhoun Gold-Min. Co. v. Ajax Gold-Min. Co., 21 S. Ct. 885, 182 U. S. 499, 45 L. Ed. 1200.

An entry of a lode mining claim, sustained by a patent, though conclusive evidence that, at the time of entry, there had been a valid location, does not preclude the owner of a tunnel site located across the lode, who claims that his location was prior to any discovery in the lode claimed, from showing the order of the steps taken to perfect the lode location, including the date of discovery, notwithstanding the provision of Rev. St. U. S. § 2320 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1424], that "no location of a mining claim shall be made until the discovery of the vein or lode within the limits of the claim located," which means nothing more than that no location shall be considered complete until there has been a discovery. Judgment, Uinta Tunnel Min. & Transp. Co. v. Creede & C. C. Min. & Mill. Co., 119 F. 164, 57 C. C. A. 200, affirmed.—Creede & C. C. Min. & Mill. Co. v. Uinta Tunnel Min. & Transp. Co., 25 S. Ct. 266, 196 U. S. 337, 49 L. Ed. 501.

45. Cancellation.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, § 131.

Rev. St. § 2333, requires an applicant for a placer claim, who is in possession of a vein or lode included within the same boundaries, to include in his application a statement of the existence of such vein or lode, and makes the failure to mention veins or lodes "known to exist" a conclusive declaration that he has no right to them. Held, that the failure of an applicant to state that he had made several lode locations, and recorded certificates thereof, was not ground for canceling the patent obtained, though it excepted "lodes claimed or known to exist," the evidence showing that he had abandoned the locations, and that there were no "known lodes" at the time of the application.—United States v. Iron Silver Min. Co., 128 U. S. 673, 9 S. Ct. 195, 32 L. Ed. 571, affirming (C. C.) 24 F. 568.

A placer patent will not be canceled because the patentee was moved to make the application as much by the existence of timber on the land as by the existence of gold.—Id.

The United States may sue to cancel a patent for mining lands obtained by fraud; but the burden of proof of fraud is on the government.—Id.

In an action for the cancellation of a patent to mineral land, the holder will not be required to explain every irregularity that may have occurred in the proceedings by which the patent issued.—United States v. Marshall Silver Min. Co., 129 U. S. 579, 9 S. Ct. 343, 32 L. Ed. 734.

When parties have been engaged in a contest, both before the local courts and the land office, with regard to their rights in a deposit of mineral or a lode, and action has been taken in both tribunals, by which one party is put out of court and his application for a patent dismissed, and he has a right of appeal, he cannot, after remaining silent for over eight years, and permitting the successful party to remain in possession of the lode, and work out its mineral, resume the contest, and demand a cancellation of the patent; the legal title in the meantime having passed from the United States.—Id.

If the officers of the land department have acted within the general scope of their power, and without fraud, the patent issued after such proceedings will not be interfered with or canceled by the courts, unless there has been a gross mistake or violation of law.—Id.

The rule that he who seeks equity must do equity does not apply to a case where the government asks for the cancellation of patents to coal lands obtained by defendant in violation of a public statute; and the government need not offer to reimburse defendant the amount expended by it in procuring the legal title to the land as a condition of obtaining the relief sought.—United States v. Trinidad Coal & Coking Co., 137 U. S. 160, 11 S. Ct. 57, 34 L. Ed. 640, reversing decree (C. C.) 37 F. 180.

Where one claiming under an old Mexican grant has obtained a patent, which by a fraudulent extension of the survey is made to include valuable mineral lands, the United States has a direct pecuniary interest, which will enable it to maintain a suit to set aside the patent.—San Pedro & Cañon Del Agua Co. v. United States, 146 U. S. 120, 13 S. Ct. 94, 36 L. Ed. 911, affirming decree United States v. San Pedro & Cañon del Agua Co., 17 P. 337, 4 N. M. (Gild.) 405.

◀46. Existence and enforcement of trust.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, § 132.

A case for an injunction restraining further mining during the pendency of the suit is made by a bill which seeks to treat as constructive trustees persons, some of whom are insolvent, who have acquired title to a mining claim by a relocation made in pursuance of an alleged fraudulent and secret conspiracy with complainant's partner, whereby that partner was to fail in his duty to perfect the original location. Judgment, 63 P. 48, 10 N. M. 568, reversed.—Lockhart v. Leeds, 25 S. Ct. 76, 195 U. S. 427, 49 L. Ed. 263.

The failure to file notice of a mining location within 90 days after discovery is stated with sufficient certainty to have been due to the failure to discover, until after that time, a conspiracy to defeat complainant's rights, whereby his partner was to fail in his duty, to file such notice, by averments in the bill that the location was made July 10th, that the conspiracy was secret, and was entered into about October 1st, and that the complainant would have complied with the mining laws, had it not been for such conspiracy.—Id.

A bill makes a sufficient showing to entitle complainant to treat the legal holders of a mine as trustees ex maleficio, and to recover from them, as such trustees, the materials taken from the mine, where it avers that their title was acquired under a relocation made in pursuance of a fraudulent conspiracy with complainant's partner, whereby that partner was to fail in his duty to perfect the original location.—Id.

The doctrine that a landowner, although entitled to bore wells for natural gas and oil, has no title to those substances, as owner, until they are actually reduced by him to possession, is settled as a rule of property in the state of Indiana. In an action for taking minerals from plaintiff's mine, he may recover the value of the mineral at the mouth of the mine, less the cost of carrying it there from the place where it was dug, allowing defendant nothing for digging.—Benson Mining & Smelting Co. v. Co. v. State of South Carolina, 144 U. S. 530, 12 S. Ct. 689, 36 L. Ed. 537, affirming decree (C. C.) South Carolina v. Coosaw Min. Co., 47 F. 225.

(B) CONVEYANCES IN GENERAL.

◀53. Options.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 147, 148.

A claimant of an interest in a mining claim, of which the legal title is held by another under a contract to convey to the claimant in a certain contingency, waives his right to a conveyance by consenting to the formation of a corporation to take and develop property.—Johnston v. Standard Min. Co., 148 U. S. 360, 13 S. Ct. 585, 37 L. Ed. 480.

The contention of one sued in assumpsit as the agent for the buyer of a mine, upon an implied promise to refund a secret profit made in the execution of the agency, that he was in fact the owner of the mine at the time he agreed to act for the buyer in purchasing it, is not established by a contract antedating the agency, by which the owners agreed to sell the mine to the defendant in consideration, with right of redemption within six months, of a specified sum, with the further agreement that they would not exercise the right of redemption if he should pay to them the further consideration of a specified sum, since such contract is nothing more than an option.—(1911) Sandoval v. Randolph, 32 S. Ct. 48, 222 U. S. 161, 56 L. Ed. 142, affirming judgment (1908) 95 P. 119, 11 Ariz. 371.

◀54. Sales of land with minerals.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 149-152.

In a sale of his mine defendant expressed his opinion of the amount of ore "in sight," of the amount in a certain chamber, that the mine was worth $15,000, and that the ore body would be extensive, which representations did not appear to have been relied on by the purchaser, and represented that the purchaser had seen everything in the mine, while in fact there were certain plugged-up drill holes which he had not seen; but there was no direct evidence that defendant was himself aware of these holes, and he denied knowledge of them in his testimony and sworn answer. Held, that the evidence failed to support a bill to rescind the sale on the ground of fraudulent representations.—Southern Development Co. of Nevada v. Silva, 125 U. S. 247, 8 S. Ct. 881, 31 L. Ed. 678.

H. was the owner of six-eighths, and S. and his son of one-eighth each, of a mine. H. paid the expenses of partly developing the mine himself. S. sold his interest to H. for a fixed sum, of which a part was paid in cash, and the residue was to be credited with the portion of the expenses previously paid for S., as well as expenses thereafter to be incurred in sinking the shaft and operating the mine. Similar expenses paid for the son of S., as well as his share of the taxes and costs of litigation, were to be deducted also. After deducting these sums the residue of the price was to be paid to S. out of the first products of H's interest in the mine; and the contract further provided that, if H. should "dispose of or sell" one-eighth interest in the mine, the residue of the purchase price should become payable at once. Held, that the contract contemplated that H. should prosecute the development of the mine until its worthlessness should be proved, or the purchase money exhausted by the expenses; and that if H. put it out of his power to develop the mine, by leasing it for a term of years for a royalty, the residue of the price became due immediately, as he would thereby "dispose of" the mine within the meaning of the contract.—Hill v. Sumner, 132 U. S. 118, 10 S. Ct. 42, 33 L. Ed. 284.

Where one buys a litigated mining claim from one of the claimants, and agrees to pay the price into court at the end of a year if the suit be not then determined, to abide the result thereof, he cannot escape payment because his deed fails to include the most valuable part of the claim, when he has brought an independent suit to reform the deed.—Crescent Min. Co. v. Wasatch Min. Co., 151 U. S. 317, 14 S. Ct. 348, 38 L. Ed. 177, affirming decree Wasatch Min. Co. v. Crescent Min. Co., 7 Utah, 8, 24 P. 586.

Deposit of net proceeds from ores in designated bank to be credited on the price for sale of mines is a condition concurrent with obligation of vendor to allow the purchaser to remain in possession, and precedent to the vendor's obligation to convey.—(1912) World's Fair Mining Co. v. Powers, 32 S. Ct. 453, 224 U. S. 173, 58 L. Ed. 717, affirming judgment (1909) 100 P. 957, 12 Ariz. 285.

Purchaser in possession under contract for sale of mines which requires him to deposit net proceeds from the ores in bank to be credited on price cannot claim damages for dispossession on failure to make such deposits.—Id.

Breach by purchaser in possession of a mine under contract of sale, of agreement to deposit net proceeds from the ores in designated bank to be credited on the price, is not excused by attachment by the vendor, hindering, but not preventing, performance.—Id.

55. Grants and reservations of minerals and mining rights.

See 34 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 153-163.

An adjustment of subsurface rights, and not merely the establishment of a surface boundary line between two conflicting lode mining claims, was accomplished by an agreement to compromise adverse proceedings, followed by the execution of a bond by the locator of one of such claims, by the terms of which he was to obtain a patent, and was then to execute a deed of certain of the disputed territory, "together with all the mineral therein contained," which deed, when executed, pursuant to a decree for specific performance, conveyed the tract described in the bond with "all the mineral therein contained," together with "all the dips, spurs, and angles, and also all the metals, ores, gold and silver-bearing quartz rock and earth therein." Judgment (C. C. A. 1906) 147 F. 897, 78 C. C. A. 33, reversed.—Montana Min. Co. v. St. Louis Min. & Mill. Co., 27 S. Ct. 254, 204 U. S. 204, 51 L. Ed. 444.

¶99. — Rights and liabilities of partners.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mines, §§ 222, 224.

There is no relation of trust or confidence between mining partners which is violated by the sale and assignment by one partner to a stranger, or to one of the associates, of his share in the property and business of the association. — Bissell v. Foss, 114 U. S. 252, 5 S. Ct. 851, 29 L. Ed. 126.

(C) RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES INCIDENT TO WORKING.

Injuries to servants, see Master and Servant, ¶228, 236, 285.

¶109. Contracts for testing or working.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mines, § 214.

A contract provided that plaintiffs should mine for defendant, at so much per ton, the iron ore contained in the first level of defendant's mine; such ore to contain at least 56 per cent. metallic iron. Subsequently the parties stipulated that the contract should extend to the ore contained in the second and third levels, "with the exception that the merchantable iron ore extracted under this contract shall contain at least 58 per cent. or upwards of metallic iron." Held, that the 58 per cent. applied only to the ore in the second and third levels. — Anvil Min. Co. v. Humble, 153 U. S. 540, 14 S. Ct. 876, 38 L. Ed. 814.

¶118. Personal injuries.

See 24 Cent. Dig. Mines, § 240.

Failure of a company operating a coal mine to fence its slack pile, as required by a statute (Act Colo. May 3, 1877) primarily intended for the protection of cattle, being a breach of duty to the public, is evidence of negligence for which the company is liable, where personal injuries are, in a substantial sense, the result of such violation of duty. — Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. McDonald, 152 U. S. 262, 14 S. Ct. 619, 38 L. Ed. 434, affirming judgment (C. C.) McDonald v. Union Pac. Ry. Co., 42 F. 579.

Leaving unguarded a burning slack pit of a coal mine, close to a narrow path leading to the mine, near which children are in the habit of playing, the fire being concealed by ashes, is negligence, which renders the company operating the mine liable for injuries caused to a child by falling into the pit, without knowledge of the danger or negligence on his part. — Id.

In an action to recover for 136 bales of cotton alleged to have been placed in the hands of defendant's testator, to have been seized by the United States troops, and sold on account of the United States, and to have been recovered for in the court of claims by defendant's testator, a judgment for plaintiff cannot stand if it appears that the cotton was not included in the judgment of the court of claims, though defendant's testator may have been under the impression that it was, and may have stated so in his will, and on his books, and may have advertised for plaintiff to claim the amount therefor.—*Lamar v. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], because this particular kind of asphalt is a product of a foreign country, and there are deposits in several of the United States

See 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. § 2.

The enforcement of the provisions of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], by a federal court decree enjoining a corporation organized in pursuance of a combination of stockholders in two competing interstate railway companies for the purpose of acquiring a controlling interest in the capital stock of such companies, from exercising the power acquired by such corporation by virtue of its acquisition of such stock, does not amount to an invasion by the federal government of the reserved rights of the states creating the several corporations. Decree (C. C.) United States v. Northern Securities Co., 120 F. 721, affirmed.—Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 24 S. Ct. 436, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. Ed. 679.

State Legislatures, in dealing with monopolies and combinations in restraint of trade, may provide their own procedure and determine the means by which their legislation may be made effective, except that such procedure must not work a denial of fundamental rights, or conflict with the federal Constitution. Judgment (Tex. Civ. App. 1906) 106 S. W. 918, affirmed.—Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State of Texas, 29 S. Ct. 220, 212 U. S. 86, 53 L. Ed. 417.

Extraterritorial effect is not given Anti-Trust Act by construing it to forbid a combination of foreign and domestic corporations to monopolize transportation of freight and passengers between Puget Sound and Yukon river points over a route which lies in part outside of United States.—United States v. Pacific & A. Ry. & Nav. Co., 33 S. Ct. 443, 228 U. S. 87, 57 L. Ed. 742.

There is no such vagueness in the Anti-Trust Act of July 2, 1890, as to render it inoperative on its criminal side, because only such combinations are within the act as by reason of intent or the inherent nature of the act prejudice the public interests.—Nash v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 780, 229 U. S. 373, 57 L. Ed. 1232, reversing judgment 186 F. 489, 108 C. O. A. 467.

Application to a combination, which has benefited instead of injured the public, of the prohibitions of Rev. St. Mo. 1909, § 10301, and Rev. St. 1899, § 8966, against combinations lessening competition, does not render such legislation unconstitutional.—International Harvester Co. v. State of Missouri ex Inf. Attorney General, 34 S. Ct. 859, 234 U. S. 199, 58 L. Ed. 1276, 52 L. R. A. (N. S.) 525, affirming judgment State ex Inf. Mayor v. International Harvester Co. of America, 141 S. W. 672, 237 Mo. 369.

Requiring managers of corporations organized prior to 1900 to make affidavit prescribed by Rev. St. Mo. 1909, § 10322, as to nonparticipation in any combination, etc., held constitutional.—Mallinckrodt Chemical Works v. State of Missouri ex rel. Jones, 35 S. Ct. 671, 238 U. S. 41, 59 L. Ed. 1192, affirming judgment State ex rel. Jones v. Mallinckrodt Chemical Works, 156 S. W. 967, 249 Mo. 702.

—11. Combinations prohibited.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. §§ 10-14; 11 Cent. Dig. Contracts, § 557.

—12. — In general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. § 10.

The contracts, combinations, etc., in restraint of interstate trade or commerce, which are declared to be illegal by the act of July 2, 1890, include all contracts, etc., operating to restrain trade or commerce, whether legal or illegal at common law, or whether the restraint is reasonable or unreasonable. Decree 58 F. 58, 7 C. C. A. 15, 24 L. R. A. 73, reversed.—United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Ass'n, 17 S. Ct. 540, 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. Ed. 1007, reversing decree 58 F. 58, 7 C. C. A. 15, 24 L. R. A. 73.

The rules and regulations of a live-stock exchange, whose members are commission merchants, relating to the conduct of the business of such members in buying or selling stock for others in a given market, and fixing their charges for such services, are not agreements affecting interstate commerce, within the meaning of the anti-trust law, having no direct or necessary relation to such commerce, though some of the sales themselves may constitute interstate commerce, and the cost of such transactions may be indirectly and incidentally affected by such regulations.—Hopkins v. United States, 19 S. Ct. 40, 171 U. S. 578, 43 L. Ed. 290, reversing order (C. C.) United States v. Hopkins, 82 F. 529.

By-laws of a stock exchange limiting the number of persons who may be employed by any member to solicit the consignment to him of stock shipped to that market, or prohibiting members from sending prepaid telegrams giving market quotations, are but regulations or agreements relating to their business, and are not in restraint of interstate commerce.—Id.

A combination may illegally restrain trade by preventing competition for contracts and enhancing prices, although it does not prevent the letting of any particular contract. Judgment, United States v. Addyston Pipe & Steel Co., 85 F. 271, 29 O. C. A. 141, 46 L. R. A. 122, modified.—Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 20 S. Ct. 96, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. Ed. 136.

An agreement or combination between corporations engaged in the manufacture, sale, and transportation of iron pipe, under which they enter into public bidding for contracts, not in truth as competitors, but under an arrangement which eliminates all competition between them for the contract, and permits one of their number to make his own bid, while the others are required to bid over him, is in violation of the anti-trust act of congress, passed July 2, 1890, so far as it applies to sales for delivery beyond the state in which the sale is made.—Id.

A combination to restrain competition in proposals for contracts for the sale of certain articles which are to be delivered in the state in which some of the parties to the combination reside and carry on business is not, so far as those members are concerned, in violation of the anti-trust law of congress, although the contract may be awarded to some party outside the state as the lowest bidder.—Id.

Reasonable and legal conditions imposed by the patentee in a license of the right to manufacture and sell the patented article, restricting the terms upon which the article manufactured under such license may be used, and the price to be demanded therefor, do not constitute such a restraint on commerce as is forbidden by Act Cong. July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200] to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies.—E. Bement & Sons v. National Harrow Co., 22 S. Ct. 747, 186 U. S. 70, 46 L. Ed. 1058.

Conditions imposed by the patentee in a license of the right to manufacture or sell the patented article, which keep up the monopoly or fix prices, do not violate Act Cong. July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints or monopolies.—Id.

The agreement of the licensee of a patent for improvements relating to float spring tooth harrows, not to manufacture or sell any other such harrows than those which it had made under his patents before assigning them to the licensor, or which it was licensed to manufacture and sell under the terms of the license, except such other style and construction as it may be licensed to manufacture and sell by such licensor, is not void as an unlawful restraint on trade or commerce forbidden by Act Cong. July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], since the plain purpose of this provision is to prevent the licensee from infringing on the rights of others under other patents, and not to stifle competition or prevent the licensee from attempting to make any improvement in harrows.—Id.

An agreement by the licensor of a patent for improvements relating to harrows, not to license any other person than the licensee to manufacture or sell any harrow of the peculiar style and construction then used or sold by such licensee, does not violate Act Cong. July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies.—Id.

A combination of independent meat dealers, in aid of an attempt to monopolize commerce in fresh meat among the states, to restrict the competition of their respective agents when purchasing stock for them in the stockyards, is an interference with interstate commerce, forbidden by Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies, where such dealers and their slaughtering establishments are largely in different states from those of the stockyards, and the sellers of the cattle largely in different states from either. Decree, United States v. Swift & Co. (C. C.) 122 F. 529, modified.—Swift & Co. v. United States, 25 S. Ct. 276, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. Ed. 518.

Contracts with telegraph companies by which the Chicago board of trade limits the communication of quotations of prices on sales of grain and provisions for future delivery collected by it, which it might have refrained from communicating to any one, do not effect a monopoly or amount to an attempt at monopoly, either under Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], or at common law. Decrees, Board of Trade of City of Chicago v. L. A. Kinsey Co., 130 F. 507, 64 C. C. A. 669, 69 L. R. A. 59, affirmed, and Christie Grain & Stock Co. v. Board of Trade of City of Chicago, 125 F. 161, 61 C. C. A. 11, reversed.—Board of Trade of City of Chicago v. Christie Grain & Stock Co., 25 S. Ct. 637, 198 U. S. 236, 49 L. Ed. 1031.

Any combination whatever to secure action which essentially obstructs the free flow of commerce between the states, or restricts, in that regard, the liberty of a trader to engage in business, is within the inhibition of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], against combinations "in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states." Judgment (C. C. 1908) 148 F. 924, reversed.—Loewe v. Lawlor, 28 S. Ct. 301, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. Ed. 488, 13 Ann. Cas. 815.

Acts done by a domestic corporation outside the United States, which largely depend for their efficacy upon the co-operation, in a conspiracy to drive a rival out of business, of soldiers and officials in Costa Rica, acting under governmental sanction, in territory over which that state exercises a de facto sovereignty, cannot be made the basis of the action to recover threefold damages authorized by the Sherman anti-trust act (Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, § 7, 26 Stat. 210 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3202]), on behalf of those injured in their business by reason of violations of that statute. Judgment (C. C. 1908) 166 F. 261, 92 C. C. A. 325, affirmed.—American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 29 S. Ct. 511, 213 U. S. 347, 53 L. Ed. 826, 16 Ann. Cas. 1047.

Only undue restraints of interstate or foreign trade or commerce are prohibited by the provisions of Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, §§ 1, 2, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], declaring illegal every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of such trade or commerce, and making guilty of a misdemeanor every person who shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person or persons to monopolize, any part of such trade or commerce.—(1911) Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey v. United States, 31 S. Ct. 502, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. Ed. 619, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 834, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 734, affirming judgment (C. C. 1909) United States v. Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, 173 F. 177.

The standard of reason which had theretofore been applied at the common law and in the United States in dealing with subjects of the character embraced by the prohibitions of Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, §§ 1, 2, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], against combinations in restraint of interstate or foreign trade or commerce, or monopolization or attempts to monopolize any part of such trade or commerce, was intended to be the measure used for the purpose of determining whether, in a given case, a particular act had or had not brought about the wrong against which the statute provided.—Id.

Only acts, contracts, agreements, or combinations which operate to the prejudice of the public interests by unduly restricting competition, or unduly obstructing the due course of trade, or which, either because of their inherent nature or effect, or because of their evident purpose, injuriously restrain trade, fall within the condemnation of Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], of combinations in restraint of interstate or foreign trade or commerce, or monopolization or attempts to monopolize any part of such trade or commerce.—(1911) United States v. American Tobacco Co., 31 S. Ct. 632, 221 U.

S. 106, 55 L. Ed. 663, reversing decree (C. C. 1908) 164 F. 700.

The generic character of the prohibitions of Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, §§ 1, 2, 26 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), against combinations in restraint of interstate or foreign trade or commerce, and monopolization or attempts to monopolize any part thereof, covers every conceivable act which can possibly come within the spirit or purpose of the condemnation of the law, without regard to the garb in which such acts are clothed.—Id.

The words "restraint of trade" in Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), condemning combinations in restraint of interstate or foreign trade or commerce, or the monopolization or attempts to monopolize any part thereof, should be given a meaning which will not destroy the individual right to contract, and render difficult, if not impossible, any movement of trade in the channels of commerce, the free movement of which it was the purpose of the statute to protect.—Id.

The standard of reason which had theretofore been applied at the common law and in the United States in dealing with subjects of the character embraced by the prohibitions of Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, §§ 1, 2, 26 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), against combinations in restraint of interstate or foreign trade or commerce, or monopolization or attempts to monopolize any part thereof, was intended to be the measure used for the purpose of determining whether, in a given case, a particular act had or had not brought about the wrong against which the statute provided.—Id.

The culpability of a party to a combination of manufacturers and jobbers which accomplishes restraint of trade within the Sherman Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, is not removed because it was restricted in less degree than the other jobbers.—Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 9, 226 U. S. 20, 57 L. Ed. 107, affirming decree (C. C.) United States v. Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co., 191 F. 172.

A conspiracy to run a corner in cotton, thereby enhancing artificially its price to all buyers throughout the country, is within Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, § 1.—United States v. Patten, 33 S. Ct. 141, 226 U. S. 525, 57 L. Ed. 333, 44 L. R. A. (N. S.) 325, reversing judgment (C. C.) 137 F. 664.

Involuntary restraints on interstate commerce, the result of a conspiracy between persons not engaged therein, held within provisions of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, § 1.—Id.

Conspiracy to corner the market in cotton held within provisions of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, though it may tend to stimulate competition, if it also operates to thwart the usual operation of the laws of supply and demand.—Id.

14. — Manufacturers.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. § 11.

The purchase of stock of sugar refineries for the purpose of acquiring control over the business of refining sugar for sale in the United States does not involve a monopoly or combination in restraint of commerce among the states, within the prohibition of Act July 2, 1890.—United States v. E. C. Knight Co., 156 U. S. 1, 15 S. Ct. 249, 39 L. Ed. 325, affirming 60 F. 934, 9 C. C. A. 297, 24 L. R. A. 428.

A combination by members of labor organizations to destroy an existing interstate traffic in hats by preventing the manufacturers, through the instrumentality of a boycott, from manufacturing hats intended for transportation beyond the state, and to prevent their vendees in other states from reselling the hats so transported, and from further negotiating with the manufacturers for the purchase and transportation of such hats from the place of manufacture to the various places of destination, is a combination "in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states," within the meaning of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], the members of which are liable for the threefold damages which, under section 7 of that act, may be recovered by those injured in business or property by violations of the act, although a negligible amount of intrastate business may be affected in carrying out the combination, and although the members of the combination are not themselves engaged in interstate commerce. Judgment (C. C. 1906) 148 F. 924, reversed.—Loewe v. Lawlor, 28 S. Ct. 301, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. Ed. 488, 13 Ann. Cas. 815.

An Oklahoma compress company though financially embarrassed, cannot lease its entire property and good will to a foreign corporation, with a covenant to lend its assistance to discourage competition against its tenant, and to refrain from engaging in the business of compressing cotton within 50 miles of any plant operated by the tenant, where such lease is executed in pursuance of a plan to assemble under one management or ownership the compression business in the cotton producing states. Judgment, Anderson v. Shawnee Compress Co. (1906) 87 P. 315, 17 Okl. 231, affirmed.—Shawnee Compress Co. v. Anderson, 28 S. Ct. 572, 209 U. S. 423, 52 L. Ed. 865.

Circulation of a list of unfair dealers, intended to put a ban on those whose names appeared therein among possible customers, with a view to joint action and in anticipation of such reports, is within prohibition of Sherman Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, if it restrains commerce among the states.—Lawlor v. Loewe, 35 S. Ct. 170, 235 U. S. 522, 59 L. Ed. 341, affirming judgment 209 F. 721, 126 C. C. A. 445.

16. — Transportation.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. § 12.

An agreement between railroads competing in interstate traffic, "for the purpose of mutual protection by establishing and maintaining reasonable rates, rules, and regulations on all freight traffic," and organizing an association to enforce these purposes, is an agreement in restraint of commerce, within the meaning of the anti-trust law of July 2, 1890, though each party may withdraw therefrom on giving 30 days' notice; and such agreements are not authorized by the interstate commerce act of February 4, 1887.—United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Ass'n, 17 S. Ct. 540, 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. Ed. 1007, reversing decree 58 F. 58, 7 C. C. A. 15, 24 L. R. A. 73.

A combination of competing railroads, engaged in interstate traffic, into a joint-traffic association, the declared purpose being in part "to co-operate with each other and adjacent transportation associations to establish and maintain reasonable and just rates, fares, rules, and regulations on state and interstate traffic, to prevent unjust discrimination, and to secure the reduction and concentration of agencies," and the agreement for which provides for the establishment of joint-traffic agencies, and the securing to each road which is a party an equitable proportion of the competitive traffic, forbids agencies by the individual companies except with the approval of the managers of the association, and subjects a road violating its provisions, or deviating from the rates fixed or recommended by the managers, to a forfeiture of a sum of money to the association, is in restraint of interstate commerce, within the meaning of the anti-trust statute, and is not relieved from illegality thereunder by the fact that the initial rates are not fixed by the association, but as to interstate business are those already established by the several roads, and schedules of which had been filed with the interstate commerce commission, nor by the fact that each company has the right to change its own rates by resolution of its directors, to take effect in 30 days thereafter; it being made the duty of the managers, on notice of such change, to "act promptly for the protection of the parties" to the association, which would, in practical effect, subject the road so changing to the combined competition of all the remaining roads of the association.—United States v. Joint-Traffic Ass'n, 19 S. Ct. 25, 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. Ed. 259, reversing judgment (C. C.) 76 F. 895, and 89 F. 1020, 32 C. C. A. 491.

It is only to contracts whose direct and immediate effect is a restraint upon interstate commerce, and not to such as are made to promote legitimate business, though they may indirectly or incidentally affect such commerce, that the anti-trust law applies.—Id.

The natural, direct and immediate effect of free competition between railroad carriers is to lower rates, and to thereby increase the demand for commodities, the supplying of which increases commerce; and an agreement whose first and direct effect is to prevent this competition is in restraint of commerce. It cannot be assumed that such competition will result in higher rates, and thus operate as a restraint upon commerce, and be held upon that assumption that an agreement which prevents competition is an aid to commerce.—Id.

A combination by stockholders in two competing interstate railway companies to form a stockholding corporation which should acquire, in exchange for its own capital stock, a controlling interest in the capital stock of each of such railway companies, violates Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], which declares illegal every combination or conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce, and forbids attempts to monopolize such commerce or any part of it. Decree (C. C.) United States v. Northern Securities Co., 120 F. 721, affirmed.—Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 24 S. Ct. 436, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. Ed. 679.

The interference, if any, with interstate commerce, contemplated by a contract for the sale of certain river craft, which permits a suspension of payment of installments of the purchase price in case of serious competition in the freight and passenger traffic over a route between two named Ohio ports on the Ohio river, and requires the vendors to withdraw from such competition for five years, is too insignificant to render the contract invalid under Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], as imposing a restraint on interstate commerce.—Cincinnati, P., B. S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 26 S. Ct. 208, 200 U. S. 179, 50 L. Ed. 428.

The combination of several independent terminal systems into one is not necessarily a forbidden restraint under Sherman Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, on interstate commerce.—United States v. Terminal R. R. Ass'n of St. Louis, 32 S. Ct. 507, 224 U. S. 383, 56 L. Ed. 810.

The combination of terminal facilities at St. Louis under the control of less than all of the railway companies, under compulsion to use them, violates the provisions of Sherman Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, §§ 1, 2, so as to be a combination in restraint of commerce.—Id.

A combination which places interstate railroads in such relation as to create control in one corporation, whereby natural competition in interstate commerce is restricted, is a restraint of interstate commerce forbidden by Act July 2, 1890, whether accomplished through a holding company or through a direct transfer of stock interest from one to the other.—United States v. Union Pac. R. Co., 33 S. Ct. 53, 226 U. S. 61, 57 L. Ed. 124, modifying decree (C.

C.) 188 F. 102. Motion as to form of mandate under decree denied in 33 S. Ct. 162, 226 U. S. 470, 57 L. Ed. 306.

A purchase by one railway company of a dominating stock interest in another cannot escape condemnation under Act July 2, 1890, if it contravenes the prohibition of that statute against combinations and conspiracies in restraint of trade.—Id.

Acquisition by the Union Pacific Railroad Company, operating a line from Missouri river to Portland and San Francisco by steamship connection, of 46 per cent. of the capital stock of the Southern Pacific Company, with the result of securing the California connection at Ogden over the Central Pacific lines, and effecting the continuity of the Union Pacific and Central Pacific lines from the Missouri river to San Francisco as contemplated by Acts July 1, 1862, July 2, 1864, and June 20, 1874, and obtaining dominating control of the entire Southern Pacific system, creates a combination in restraint of trade in violation of Act July 2, 1890.—Id.

An agreement between connecting railway and steamship carriers and a wharfage company to establish a through route and joint rates for transportation between Puget Sound and Yukon river points to refuse to make such arrangements with other carriers, and to charge high local rates and discriminating wharfage charges, thereby eliminating competition, violates Anti-Trust Act.—United States v. Pacific & A. Ry. & Nav. Co., 33 S. Ct. 443, 228 U. S. 87, 57 L. Ed. 742.

Carriers possessing a substantial monopoly of transportation facilities between anthracite deposits in Pennsylvania and tidewater distributing points, and controlling three-fourths of the annual supply of anthracite, held under the evidence to have combined to restrain interstate trade, contrary to Act July 2, 1890.—United States v. Reading Co., 33 S. Ct. 90, 226 U. S. 324, 57 L. Ed. 243, modifying decree (C. C.) 183 F. 427, and mandate modified 33 S. Ct. 509, 228 U. S. 158, 57 L. Ed. 779.

Parts of a general scheme of carriers to restrain the freedom of interstate commerce for transportation or sale of anthracite contrary to Act July 2, 1890, held parts of an illegal combination under the statute which the courts will dissolve however the legal title to the shares is held.—Id.

An unreasonable restraint of interstate commerce, forbidden by Act July 2, 1890, held to result from a scheme of railway carriers possessing a monopoly of the transportation facilities between the anthracite deposits in Pennsylvania and the tidewater distributing points, and controlling nearly three-fourths of the annual supply of anthracite.—Id.

◀17. — Sale of goods.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. § 13.

A gas company, forbidden by its charter to enter into any consolidation, combination, or contract with another gas company, entered into a contract with a company, reciting that competition between them had resulted in expense and loss of profits, and providing that a certain price for gas should be charged unless changed by written agreement, but that, as the second company had the larger interest, it might, in case of competition by a third company, reduce the price for either or both parties during such competition, but not below a specified sum, without written consent of both; that the net receipts should be pooled, and divided according to a fixed ratio; that the first company should lay no more pipes for the supply of gas, but all future pipes should be laid by, and remain the property of, the second company, and that either company violating the contract should pay $250,000 as liquidated damages. The cost of gas was largely below the stipulated price. Held that, the first company being prohibited from making such contract, the same was void.—Gibbs v. Consolidated Gas Co. of Baltimore, 130 U. S. 396, 9 S. Ct. 553, 32 L. Ed. 979.

An association of dealers or "yard traders," who buy and sell cattle in competition with each other in a particular market, for the promotion of their common interests and to regulate the conduct of their business, which by its rules provides that its members shall not transact business with other yard traders who are not members, nor with commission men who sell to such traders, nor employ as buyers or sellers persons not members, is not, by reason of such rules, a combination or conspiracy in restraint of trade, nor in violation of the anti-trust law, though its members are engaged in interstate commerce, where it is open to all similar dealers who desire to become members, does no business itself, and makes no attempt to control prices or the number of cattle bought, nor in any other manner to prevent full competition between its members.—Anderson v. United States, 19 S. Ct. 50, 171 U. S. 604, 43 L. Ed. 300.

An association of wholesale dealers in tiles, mantels, and grates in San Francisco and vicinity, and nonresident manufacturers of tiles and fire place fixtures, in which the dealers agree not to purchase from manufacturers not members of the association, and not to sell unset tile to nonmembers for less than list prices, which are more than 60 per cent. higher than prices to members, while the manufacturers agree not to sell their products or wares to nonmembers at any price, under penalty of forfeiture of membership, is an agreement or combination in restraint of trade within the meaning of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, § 7, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3202]. Judgment 115 F. 27, 52 C. C. A. 621, 63 L. R. A. 58, affirmed.—W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 24 S. Ct. 307, 193 U. S. 38, 48 L. Ed. 608.

A combination to secure less than lawful freight rates, entered into by independent meat dealers with the intent to monopolize commerce in fresh meat among the several states, is forbidden by Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies. Decree (C. C.) United States v. Swift & Co., 122 F. 529, modified.—Swift & Co. v. United States, 25 S. Ct. 276, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. Ed. 518.

Interstate commerce is unlawfully restrained, in violation of Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], by a combination of independent meat dealers, in aid of an attempt to monopolize commerce in fresh meat among the states, to bid up prices for live stock for a few days at a time, in order to induce cattle men in other states to make large shipments to the stockyards, or by a combination for the same purpose to fix the selling price of fresh meat, and to that end to restrict shipments, when necessary, to establish a uniform rule of credit to dealers, and to keep a black list, or by a combination, in aid of such purpose, to make uniform and improper charges for cartage for the delivery of meat sold to be shipped to dealers and consumers in the several states.—Id.

Trade in fresh meat is sufficiently shown to be commerce among the states, protected from restraint by Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], by allegations in a bill charging meat dealers with violations of that act, which, even if they import a technical passing of title at the slaughtering places in cases of sales, also import that the sales are to persons in other states, and that the shipments to other states are pursuant to such sales, and by allegations charging sales of such meat by their agents in other states, which indicate that some, at least, of the sales were in the original packages.—Id.

A restraint of trade which would be unlawful as to other manufactured articles cannot be justified because the article in question is a proprietary medicine made under a secret formula.—(1911) Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. John D. Park & Sons Co., 31 S. Ct. 376, 220 U. S. 373, 55 L. Ed. 502, affirming judgment (1908) 164 F. 803, 90 C. C. A. 579.

Contracts between a manufacturer and all dealers whom he permits to sell his products, comprising most of the dealers in similar articles throughout the country, which fix the price for all sales, whether at wholesale or retail, operate as a restraint of trade, unlawful both at common law, and, as to interstate commerce, under Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, 26 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), even though such products may be proprietary medicines made under secret formula.—Id.

Agreements embracing 85% of the manufacturers of, or 90% of the jobbers in, enameled iron ware, providing for regular prices though a price committee confining themselves to sales to jobbers only, authorizing rebates and forbidding sales to jobbers not in the combination, held a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act of July 2, 1890, though the agreement take the form of a license from an owner of a patent for a device used in the enameling process.—Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 9, 226 U. S. 20, 57 L. Ed. 107, affirming decree (C. C.) United States v. Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co., 191 F. 172.

A contract by which a corporation manufacturing dairy supplies under various patents, constituted another corporation its exclusive sales agent, and fixed the price lists, is not a violation of Act July 2, 1890, prohibiting combinations in restraint of commerce.—Virtue v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co., 33 S. Ct. 202, 227 U. S. 8, 57 L. Ed. 393, affirming judgment, 179 F. 115, 102 C. C. A. 413.

Copyright monopoly conferred by federal laws does not protect as against condemnation under Sherman Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, agreements between 75 per cent. of the book publishers and a majority of the booksellers to restrict sale of copyrighted books to those only who will maintain the fixed net retail price.—Straus v. American Publishers' Ass'n, 34 S. Ct. 84, 231 U. S. 222, 58 L. Ed. 192, L. R. A. 1915A, 1099, Ann. Cas. 1915A, 369, reversing judgment 93 N. E. 1133, 199 N. Y. 548.

The concerted and periodic circulation by associations of retail lumber dealers among their members of confidential information as to wholesale lumber dealers in interstate trade selling directly to consumers, such members being called upon to supply information promptly, violates the prohibition of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, against combinations in restraint of trade, where these reports were circulated with the intent of causing the retailers to withhold their patronage from the listed wholesalers.—Eastern States Retail Lumber Dealers' Ass'n v. United States, 34 S. Ct. 951, 234 U. S. 600, 58 L. Ed. 1490, L. R. A. 1915A, 788, affirming decree (D. C.) United States v. Eastern States Retail Lumber Dealers' Ass'n, 201 F. 581.

20. — Combinations by corporations.

Domestic as well as foreign corporations are embraced by Act Ark. Jan. 23, 1905 (Acts 1905, p. 2) § 1, imposing a penalty upon any corporation doing business within the state while a member of a combination to control prices. Judgment (1907) 100 S. W. 407, 81 Ark. 519, affirmed.—Hammond Packing Co. v. State of Arkansas, 29 S. Ct. 370, 212 U. S. 322, 53 L. Ed. 530, 15 Ann. Cas. 645.

The combination of the stocks of the various corporations trading in petroleum and its products in the hands of a holding company, with the intent to exclude others from the trade, and thus centralize in the combination the perpetual control of the movement of these commodities in the channels of interstate and foreign commerce, constitutes a violation of the prohibitions of Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, §§ 1, 2, 26 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), against combinations in restraint of interstate or foreign commerce, or the monopolization or attempt to monopolize any part of such trade or commerce.—(1911) Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey v. United States, 31 S. Ct. 502, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. Ed. 619, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 834, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 734, affirming judgment (C. C. 1909) United States v. Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, 173 F. 177.

The acquisition of dominion and control over the tobacco trade by a principal and accessory or subsidiary corporations as the result of purchasing numerous competitors, in many cases closing out the business when acquired, and of obtaining stock control of other competitors, as well as of concerns manufacturing the elements essential to the successful manufacture of tobacco products, brought about in many cases after a ruinous trade war, the parties in interest uniformly covenanting not to engage in the tobacco business, and the former business often continuing ostensibly as an independent concern, violates the prohibitions of Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, §§ 1, 2, 26 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), against combinations in restraint of trade or commerce, or monopolization or attempts to monopolize any part thereof, whether looked at from the point of view of stock ownership, or from the standpoint of the principal and accessory or subsidiary corporations, viewed independently, including certain foreign corporations in so far as, by contracts made by them, they became co-operators in the combination.—(1911) United States v. American Tobacco Co., 31 S. Ct. 632, 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. Ed. 663, reversing decree (C. C. 1908) 164 F. 700.

A corporation manufacturing dairy products under patents owned by it held not chargeable with participation in the combination formed contrary to Act July 2, 1890, by its exclusive sales agent and other manufacturers and dealers, so as to render the corporation and its agent liable under the treble damage clause of section 7 of that act to persons joined as defendants in simultaneous patent infringement suits separately brought by such principal and agent.—Virtue v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co., 33 S. Ct. 202, 227 U. S. 8, 57 L. Ed. 393, affirming judgment 179 F. 115, 102 C. C. A. 413.

21. Rights and liabilities of members of combinations.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. § 15; 33 Cent. Dig. Pat. § 451, 459.

A purchaser of river craft cannot invoke Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], to relieve him from his obligation to pay the purchase price, because of his covenant to maintain the present traffic rates, which is not declared by the contract to enter into the consideration of the sale—especially where the rates referred to primarily, if not exclusively, relate to domestic, and not to interstate, business.—Cincinnati, P.,

B., S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 26 S. Ct. 208, 200 U. S. 179, 50 L. Ed. 428.

23. Rights and liabilities of persons dealing with combinations.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. § 16.

A violation of the Sherman anti-trust act of July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], by the formation of a combination in restraint of trade, by which a penalty is incurred under the statute, does not preclude the company thus illegally formed from recovering on collateral contracts for the purchase price of goods. Judgment, Union Sewer Pipe Co. v. Connelly (C. C.) 99 F. 354, affirmed.—Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co., 22 S. Ct. 431, 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. Ed. 679.

The illegality, at common law, of a combination formed by corporations and persons in restraint of trade, does not preclude it from recovering the purchase price of goods sold in the course of business.—Id.

The defense that a contract is in violation of Act Cong. July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies, which makes illegal every contract violative of its provisions, may be set up by a private individual when sued thereon, and, if proved, constitutes a good defense to the action.—E. Bement & Sons v. National Harrow Co., 22 S. Ct. 747, 186 U. S. 70, 46 L. Ed. 1058.

Defendants in an action for goods sold and delivered are entitled to judgment on a demurrer admitting the allegations of a defense set up by the answer, which in substance disclose that plaintiff is the selling agent of a combination of wall paper manufacturers which offends against Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), that, in carrying out such combination defendants were virtually compelled to sign a jobber's agreement which, in effect, bound them to buy from the plaintiff all the wall paper needed in their business at certain fixed prices, and not to sell at lower prices or upon better terms than those at which plaintiff itself sells to dealers other than jobbers that the goods in question were ordered pursuant to such agreement and at the prices fixed; that such prices were unreasonable; and that all the transactions between the parties were in furtherance of the illegal combination. Judgment (1906) Continental Wall Paper Co. v. Lewis Voight & Sons Co., 148 F. 939, 78 C. C. A. 567, 19 L. R. A. (N. S.) 143, affirmed.—Continental Wall Paper Co. v. Louis Voight & Sons Co., 29 S. Ct. 280, 212 U. S. 227, 53 L. Ed. 486.

A recovery upon an account for goods sold and delivered by a corporation created to effectuate a combination of wall paper manufacturers, intended and having the effect directly to restrain and monopolize trade and commerce, in violation of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), cannot be had where the account is made up, within the knowledge of both buyer and seller, with direct reference to, and in execution of, the agreements which constitute the illegal combination.—Id.

The illegality of a corporation organized in violation of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, does not preclude the corporation from recovering price of goods sold.—D. R. Wilder Mfg. Co. v. Corn Products Refining Co., 35 S. Ct. 398, 236 U. S. 165, 59 L. Ed. 520, Ann. Cas. 1916A, 118, affirming judgment 75 S. E. 918, 11 Ga. App. 588.

Recovery of price for goods sold by corporation organized in violation of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, will not be denied because goods were sold on condition as to payment depending on the exclusive dealing of the purchaser with the corporation during the following year.—Id.

Purchaser of goods from corporation organized in violation of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, is not entitled to his percentage in a profit sharing scheme of the corporation, where he did not comply with the condition that he would for the following year deal exclusively with such corporation.—Id.

24. Remedies to prevent or restrain unlawful combinations.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. § 17.

The fourth section of the anti-trust act of July 2, 1890, invests the government with full power to bring a suit to dissolve alleged illegal combinations, and to enjoin the parties from forming or continuing similar agreements.—United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Ass'n, 17 S. Ct. 540, 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. Ed. 1007, reversing decree 58 F. 58, 7 C. C. A. 15, 24 L. R. A. 73.

A federal court, by its decree in a suit instituted under the authority of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, § 4, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], to prevent and restrain violations of the act, may properly enjoin a corporation organized in pursuance of a combination of stockholders of two competing interstate railway companies for the purpose of acquiring a controlling interest in the capital stock of such companies, from acquiring any further stock therein, from voting such stock as it then holds or may subsequently acquire, and from exercising any control over the railway companies by virtue of its holdings, and may restrain the railway companies from permitting or suffering any such action on the part of the stockholding corporation, and from paying any dividends on account of the stock held by it. Decree (C. C.) United States v. Northern Securities Co., 120 F. 721, affirmed.—Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 24 S. Ct. 436, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. Ed. 679.

A state may not, by a suit in its own name, invoke the original jurisdiction of a federal Circuit Court to restrain and prevent violations by competing interstate railway companies, of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], because alone, of the alleged remote and indirect injury to its proprietary interests arising from the mere absence of free competition in trade and commerce as carried on by such carriers within its limits. Decree (C. C.) 123 F. 692, reversed.—State of Minnesota v. Northern Securities Co., 24 S. Ct. 598, 194 U. S. 48, 48 L. Ed. 870.

A bill charges a violation of Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies, as against the objections of want of equity, multifariousness, and failure to set forth sufficient definite or specific facts, where it avers the existence of a combination of a dominant proportion of the dealers in fresh meat throughout the United States not to bid against each other in the live stock markets of the different states, to bid up prices for a few days in order to induce shipments to the stock yards, to fix selling prices, and to that end to restrict shipments of meat when necessary, to establish a uniform rule of credit to dealers, and to keep a black list, to make uniform and improper charges for cartage, and to secure less than lawful freight rates, to the exclusion of competitors. Decree (C. C.) United States v. Swift & Co., 122 F. 529, modified.—Swift & Co. v. United States, 25 S. Ct. 276, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. Ed. 518.

A general allegation of intent may color and apply to all the specific charges of a bill which seeks relief against alleged violations of Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S.

Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies.—Id.

Vagueness cannot be asserted of a charge in a bill seeking relief against an attempt to monopolize commerce in fresh meat among the states, in violation of Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], that a combination exists among independent meat dealers to restrain their respective agents from bidding against each other when purchasing live stock for them in the stockyards.—Id.

Evidence, whether documentary or oral, sought to be elicited from witnesses summoned in an action brought by the United States to enjoin an alleged conspiracy by manufacturers of paper to suppress competition in violation of Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], by creating a general selling and distributing agent, is material, where it would tend to establish the manner in which such agent executed its functions.—Nelson v. United States, 26 S. Ct. 358, 201 U. S. 92, 50 L. Ed. 673.

The unification of power and control over the oil industry which results from combining in the hands of a holding company the capital stock of the various corporations trading in petroleum and its products raises a presumption of an intent to exclude others from the trade, and thus centralize in the combination a perpetual control of the movement of these commodities in the channels of interstate and foreign commerce, in violation of the prohibitions of Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, §§ 1, 2, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], against combinations in restraint of interstate or foreign trade or commerce, or monopolization or attempt to monopolize any part of such trade or commerce.—(1911) Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey v. United States, 31 S. Ct. 502, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. Ed. 619, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 834, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 734, affirming judgment (C. C. 1909) United States v. Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, 173 F. 177.

The possible serious injury to the public from an absolute cessation of interstate commerce in petroleum and its products by the agencies embraced in a holding company controlling the oil industry, in violation of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], requires that, upon dissolving the holding company, the subsidiary corporations should not be enjoined from carrying on interstate commerce until the dissolution of the combination should be effected, in accordance with the decree, by the transfer back to the stockholders of the subsidiary corporations of the stock which had been turned over to the holding company in exchange for its own stock.—Id.

The magnitude of the interests involved and their complexity require that six months be given in which to execute a decree for the dissolution of a holding company controlling the oil industry in violation of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], and for the transfer back to the stockholders of the subsidiary corporations of the stock which had been turned over to the holding company in exchange for its own stock.—Id.

The injury which might be inflicted upon the public by staying interstate commerce in tobacco and its products by a combination controlling the tobacco industry, in violation of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], forbids the allowance, in the first instance, of a permanent injunction restraining the combination as a whole, and all the individuals and corporations which form a part of, or co-operate in it in any manner or form, from continuing to engage in interstate commerce until the illegal situation is cured.—(1911) United States v. American Tobacco Co., 31 S. Ct. 632, 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. Ed. 663, reversing decree (C. C. 1908) 164 F. 700.

A receiver will not, in the first instance, be appointed to take charge of the assets and property of a combination controlling the tobacco industry, in violation of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), for the purpose of preventing a continued violation of the law, and thus working out, by a sale of the property of the combination or otherwise, a condition which will not be repugnant to the prohibitions of the act, since the extensive power which would result from at once resorting to a receivership might not only do grievous injury to the public, but also cause widespread and perhaps irreparable loss to many innocent persons.—Id.

The relief to be granted where a combination has been found to violate the prohibitions of Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), against combinations in restraint of interstate or foreign trade or commerce, and monopolization or attempts to monopolize any part thereof, should be dictated by the duty of giving complete and efficacious effect to such prohibitions, the accomplishment of this result with as little injury as possible to the interests of the general public, and a proper regard for the vast interests of private property which may have become vested in many persons as the result of the acquisition of stock or securities of the combination without any guilty knowledge or intent.—Id.

Pending the working out of a plan for dissolving a combination found to control the tobacco industry in violation of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), and for recreating out of the elements composing it a condition which will not be repugnant to the prohibitions of the act, each and all of such elements should be restrained from doing any act which might further extend or enlarge the power of the combination by any means or device whatever.—Id.

Adequate relief from combination of terminal facilities which offends against Sherman Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, §§ 1, 2, because placing such facilities under the exclusive control of less than all the railway companies under compulsion to use them, will be given by a decree requiring the reorganization of the combination so as to act as the impartial agent of every railway line using such facilities.—United States v. Terminal R. R. Ass'n of St. Louis, 32 S. Ct. 507, 224 U. S. 383, 56 L. Ed. 810.

Denial of motion by defendants in a civil suit by the government under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, for enlargement of time to take testimony, held not an abuse of discretion.—Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 9, 226 U. S. 20, 57 L. Ed. 107, affirming decree (C. C.) United States v. Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co., 191 F. 172.

The federal District Court in relieving against a combination in restraint of interstate commerce created contrary to Act July 2, 1890, by acquisition by the Union Pacific Company of a dominating stock interest in the Southern Pacific Company, should, by its decree, provide against the right to vote such stock while in the control of the Union Pacific Railroad Company or any corporation owned by it or while held for it, and forbid any transfer thereof so as to continue the control, and enjoin payment of dividends except to a receiver appointed to collect such dividends.—United States v. Union Pac. R. Co., 33 S. Ct. 53, 226 U. S. 61, 57 L. Ed. 124, modifying decree (C. C.) 188 F. 102. Motion as to form of mandate under decree denied in 33 S. Ct. 162, 226 U. S. 470, 57 L. Ed. 306.

Any plan for disposition of the stock of the Southern Pacific Company found to have been acquired by the Union Pacific Railroad Company contrary to Act July 2, 1890, must dissolve the unlawful combination and be subject to the approval of the District Court.—Id.

Nothing in the decision that the acquisition by the Union Pacific Railroad Company of dominating stock interest in the Southern Pacific Company constitutes a restraint of interstate commerce within Act July 2, 1890, will prevent the government or any party in interest from presenting a plan to permit the Union Pacific Company to retain the California connection at Ogden over the Central Pacific line from the Missouri river to San Francisco, as contemplated by Acts July 1, 1862, Act July 2, 1864, and June 20, 1874.—Id.

Plans for dissolving combination created by purchase by the Union Pacific Railroad Company of dominating stock interest in the Southern Pacific Company, which constitutes a restraint of interstate commerce forbidden by Act July 2, 1890, should be presented to the federal District Court within three months from receipt of the mandate of the Supreme Court, failing which, or on rejection of plans submitted, the court must proceed by receivership and sale if necessary to dispose of such stock, so as to dissolve the unlawful combination.—Id.

The unlawful combination found to exist by the acquisition by the Union Pacific Railroad Company of 46 per cent. of the capital stock of the Southern Pacific Company will not be effectually ended within the decree of the Supreme Court by a sale of such shares to the shareholders of the Union Pacific Railroad Company.—United States v. Union Pac. R. Co., 33 S. Ct. 162, 226 U. S. 470, 57 L. Ed. 306, denying motion as to form of mandate under decree 33 S. Ct. 53, 226 U. S. 61, 57 L. Ed. 124.

An injunction against minor combinations between some only of the defendants, and not in furtherance of a general scheme attacked as a restraint of interstate commerce, within Act July 2, 1890, cannot be granted without condemning the bill for multifariousness, and misjoinder of parties and causes of action.—United States v. Reading Co., 33 S. Ct. 90, 226 U. S. 324, 57 L. Ed. 243, modifying decree (C. C.) 183 F. 427 and mandate modified 33 S. Ct. 509, 228 U. S. 158, 57 L. Ed. 779.

25. Discovery.

An honest, unavailing effort to produce the books and papers, and secure the attendance as witnesses before a commission of the officers, agents, directors, and employes called for by an order made conformably to Arkansas anti-trust act (Act Ark. Jan. 23, 1905 [Acts 1905, p. 9] § 8), in a proceeding against a foreign corporation for violating that act, will prevent the striking out of defendant's answer, and the entering of a default judgment against it, authorized by section 9 when defendant fails to obey the order. Judgment (1907) 100 S. W. 407, 81 Ark. 519, affirmed.—Hammond Packing Co. v. State of Arkansas, 29 S. Ct. 370, 212 U. S. 322, 53 L. Ed. 530, 15 Ann. Cas. 645.

26. Revocation of corporate charter or franchise.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. § 17.

Parties to a transaction adjudged to violate Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200], are not exempt from the doctrine in pari delicto on the theory that they acted in good faith and without intent to violate the law, where, with knowledge of the facts and of the statute, they acted under the mistaken supposition that the statute would not be held applicable to the facts. —Harriman v. Northern Securities Co., 25 S. Ct. 493, 197 U. S. 244, 49 L. Ed. 739, affirming decree Northern Securities Co. v. Harriman, 134 F. 331, 67 C. C. A. 245, which reversed (C. C.) Harriman v. Northern Securities Co., 132 F. 464.

The rule that property delivered under an illegal contract cannot be recovered back by parties in pari delicto prevents the original stockholders in two competing interstate railway companies from reclaiming the specific shares of stock which they delivered to a stockholding corporation in exchange for its capital stock, pursuant to a combination subsequently adjudged illegal under which the corporation was to acquire a controlling interest in the capital stock of each of such railway companies; and they must be content with the ratable distribution of the corporate assets resolved upon by the stockholding corporation.—Id.

Power to make normal and lawful contracts or agreements is not taken from the stockholders of the subsidiary corporations, or the corporations themselves, by a decree for the dissolution of a holding company found to offend against Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), which enjoins such stockholders and corporations from in any way conspiring to violate the statute, or from monopolizing or attempting to monopolize, in virtue of their stock ownership, and prohibits all agreements between them tending to produce or bring about further violations of the statute, but such decree merely restrains them from, by any device whatever, recreating, directly or indirectly, the illegal combination which the decree dissolves.—(1911) Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey v. United States, 31 S. Ct. 502, 221 U. S. 1, 53 L. Ed. 619, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 834, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 734, affirming judgment (C. C. 1909) United States v. Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, 173 F. 177.

To give effective force to a decree of the federal Supreme Court adjudging that a combination controlling the tobacco industry offends against Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), the court below will be directed to hear the parties, by evidence or otherwise, as it may deem proper, for the purpose of ascertaining and determining upon some plan or method of dissolving the combination, and of recreating, out of the elements composing it, a new condition which shall not be repugnant to the law.—(1911) United States v. American Tobacco Co., 31 S. Ct. 632, 221 U. S. 106, 53 L. Ed. 663, reversing decree (C. C. 1908) 164 F. 700.

Six months, with a possible extension of sixty days, should be given in which to work out a plan for dissolving a combination found to control the tobacco industry in violation of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, 26 Stat. 209 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), and recreating out of the elements composing it a condition which will not be repugnant to the prohibitions of the act.—Id.

28. Actions for damages by combinations or monopolies.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. § 18.

A recovery of the treble damages authorized by the Sherman Anti-Trust Act of July 2, 1890, c. 647, § 7, 26 Stat. 210 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3202], in case of injury sustained by violation of the act, can be had only by direct action and not by way of set-off in an action brought for the price of goods by a company illegally formed in violation of the act, especially when the state practice does not permit the set-off of unliquidated damages. Judgment, Union Sewer Pipe Co. v. Connelly (C. C.) 99 F. 354, affirmed.—Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co., 22 S. Ct. 431, 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. Ed. 679.

The discretion of a trial court under Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, § 7, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3202], to allow a reasonable attorney's fee to the successful plaintiff in an action brought under that section to recover damages for a violation of the provisions of that act against combinations in restraint of trade, is not abused by an allowance of $750, although the verdict was for but $500, where the trial took five days, and from the proof offered it appeared that from $750 to $1,000 would be a reasonable sum. Judgment, 115 F. 27, 52 C. C. A. 621, 63 L. R. A. 58, affirmed.—W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 24 S. Ct. 307, 193 U. S. 88, 48 L. Ed. 608.

The action for threefold damages for injury to "business or property" authorized by Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, c. 647, § 7, 26 Stat. 209 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3202], in cases of violations of that act, may be maintained by a Georgia municipal corporation against the foreign corporate members of a combination forbidden by that act, where the municipality was led, by reason of the illegal combination, to purchase from an Alabama corporation at an excessive price the iron pipe needed for its waterworks system.—Chattanooga Foundry & Pipe Works v. City of Atlanta, 27 S. Ct. 65, 203 U. S. 390, 51 L. Ed. 241.

Rights of defendant, in an action under Sherman Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, against members of labor organizations to recover damages caused to an interstate trade by a combination to compel manufacturers to unionize their factory, through use of boycott and unfair lists, held sufficiently guarded by the instruction given.—Lawlor v. Loewe, 35 S. Ct. 170, 235 U. S. 522, 59 L. Ed. 341, affirming judgment 209 F. 721, 126 C. C. A. 445.

Damages accruing since the action began, if the consequence of the acts done under cause of action declared on, held properly allowed, in action under Sherman Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, against labor organizations to recover damages to interstate trade by a combination to compel manufacturers to unionize their factory through the use of the boycott.—Id.

Introduction of newspapers, in an action under Sherman Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, against members of labor organizations for damages to interstate trade by the use of the boycott, was proper to show publicity and proof of intended detrimental consequences of the principal acts.—Id.

Reasons given by customers for refusing to deal with sellers of plaintiff's hats, including letters from dealers, were admissible in an action under Sherman Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890, against members of labor organizations to recover damages to interstate trade by a combination through the use of the boycott.—Id.

A stockholder may not recover in equity for a corporation, on its refusal to sue, the penalty of threefold damages under the Anti-Trust Act from persons charged with the ruin of his corporation, because of a combination, since defendants have a right to a jury trial.—Fleitmann v. Welsbach Street Lighting Co. of America, 36 S. Ct. 233, 240 U. S. 27, 60 L. Ed. 505, affirming decree Same v. United Gas Improvement Co., 211 F. 103, 128 C. C. A. 31.

29. Offenses.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. § 19.

An unlawful intent may convert what, on their face, might be ordinary acts of competition into a conspiracy forbidden by Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890.—Nash v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 780, 229 U. S. 373, 57 L. Ed. 1232, reversing judgment 186 F. 489, 108 C. C. A. 467.

Alleged conspirators need not all be traders to bring their conspiracy within the condemnation of Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890.—Id.

The uncertainty as to what the selling price of an article would have been had there been no combination of manufacturers renders invalid convictions under the Kentucky anti-trust legislation (Const. Ky. § 198; Ky. St. §§ 3915-3917; Laws Ky. 1906, c. 117), under which, as construed by the state courts, combinations to control prices are unlawful only when fixing a price for an article greater or less than its real value, which is declared to be the market value under fair competition.—International Harvester Co. v. Commonwealth of Kentucky, 34 S. Ct. 853, 234 U. S. 216, 58 L. Ed. 1284, reversing judgments 144 S. W. 1064, 147 Ky. 564, and 147 S. W. 1199, 148 Ky. 572, and 146 S. W. 12, 147 Ky. 795.

Uncertainty as to what the selling price of an article would have been, if there had been no combination, renders invalid a conviction under Ky. St. §§ 3915, 3941a.—American Seeding Mach. Co. v. Commonwealth of Kentucky, 35 S. Ct. 456, 236 U. S. 660, 59 L. Ed. 773, reversing judgment 153 S. W. 972, 152 Ky. 589.

⚡31. Criminal prosecutions.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Monop. § 20.

Persons engaged in a conspiracy burdening interstate commerce, contrary to Act July 2, 1890, § 1, are chargeable with intending that result.—United States v. Patten, 33 S. Ct. 141, 226 U. S. 525, 57 L. Ed. 833, 44 L. R. A. (N. S.) 325, reversing judgment (C. C.) 187 F. 664.

No overt act need be alleged in an indictment charging a conspiracy to restrain interstate commerce under Anti-Trust Act July 2, 1890.—Nash v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 780, 229 U. S. 373, 57 L. Ed. 1232, reversing judgment 186 F. 489, 108 C. C. A. 467.

Instructing the jury to consider all the means charged in an indictment for conspiring to restrain interstate commerce in violation of Act July 2, 1890, and to find a verdict of guilty on any one of them, without calling the jury's attention to the fact that some of the charges had been abandoned, is reversible error.—Id.

Upon the execution by a father to his son of a deed of land, the parties made an agreement stating that the grantee, upon an accounting, owed the grantor $8,734, to be paid to him or certain creditors to be named within one year; and that, in consideration of the payment of the grantee's two bonds of $3,000 by the grantor, the land was to be reconveyed for a like consideration. It did not appear that there was any obligation resting on the father to make the payments mentioned, and to claim a reconveyance, and no extraneous facts were shown to explain the object in executing the papers, nor was there any averment that the transaction was other than what the instruments imported, —a sale to the son. Held, that the transaction cannot be held to have created a mortgage in favor of the son.—Horbach v. Hill, 112 U. S. 144, 5 S. Ct. 81, 28 L. Ed. 670.

Defendant conveyed land to plaintiff by a deed absolute, and plaintiff executed a contemporaneous agreement to reconvey upon the payment of a specified sum of money on a given date. While the consideration for the deed was inadequate, there was no mention of a debt in either instrument, nor was any evidence of indebtedness included in the transaction. Two days thereafter defendant accepted a lease of the same land from plaintiff, upon the expiration of which plaintiff brought this action. Held, that the instruments did not, as a matter of law, constitute a mortgage.—Bogk v. Gassert, 149 U. S. 17, 13 S. Ct. 738, 37 L. Ed. 631, following Wallace v. Johnstone, 129 U. S. 58, 9 S. Ct. 243, 32 L. Ed. 619, and affirming judgment Gassert v. Bogk, 19 P. 281, 7 Mont. 585.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 67-82.

Where a conveyance is in fee, with a covenant of warranty, and there is no defeasance, either in the conveyance or in a collateral paper, evidence of an agreement that the grantee should hold the land until it could be sold at an advance, and then sell it, and divide the profits with the grantor, is not sufficient to turn the instrument into a mortgage, with the right of redemption in the grantor.—Cadman v. Peter, 118 U. S. 73, 6 S. Ct. 957, 30 L. Ed. 78.

Land was conveyed by an absolute deed, and at the same time the grantee executed a contract by which he gave, to one who acted as agent of the grantor in the transaction, the privilege of buying the land for a specified sum, at any time within 60 days, which contract was assigned to the grantor. The latter alleged that the deed and option contract were intended as a mortgage to secure a loan made to him, but all the other witnesses gave testimony tending to show that the transaction was intended as an absolute sale. There was evidence that the consideration paid by the grantee was about the value of the land. Held, that the transaction constituted a sale.—Wallace v. Johnstone, 129 U. S. 58, 9 S. Ct. 243, 32 L. Ed. 619.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 83.

A deed delivered with a note, with a verbal agreement that, upon nonpayment of the latter at maturity, the grantee should sell the property and pay the note, is in effect a mortgage, and a sale in accordance with that arrangement will carry the title free from the lien of an attachment levied on the property after the execution of the deed by a creditor of the grantor.—Jackson v. Davis, 116 U. S. 108, 6 S. Ct. 314, 29 L. Ed. 583.

Two days thereafter defendant accepted a lease of the same land from plaintiff, upon the expiration of which plaintiff brought this action. Held, that the instruments did not, as a matter of law, constitute a mortgage, but their effect was a question for the jury upon all the evidence in the case.—Bogk v. Gassert, 149 U. S. 17, 13 S. Ct. 738, 37 L. Ed. 631, affirming judgment Gassert v. Bogk, 19 P. 281, 7 Mont. 585.

(D) LIEN AND PRIORITY.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 307, 309-311, 314-329, 332-336; 30 Cent. Dig. Judgm. §§ 1367, 1371; 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, §§ 358-370, 608; 48 Cent. Dig. Ven. & Pur. § 670; 48 Cent. Dig. Waters, § 310.

Under Louisiana law, after liquidation of a claim under a mortgage to cover future advances, by acknowledgment made by the debtor before a notary public, the mortgagee is in the same position as if the sum acknowledged to be due had been inserted in the mortgage originally, and can proceed by executory process; and, if judgment is confessed by the debtor at the same time as acknowledgment made by him, such confession of judgment is to be treated as surplage, and not considered to be the basis of a sale afterwards made by the mortgagee so as to postpone him to junior mortgagees whose mortgages antedated the judgment.—New Orleans Nat. Banking Ass'n v. Le Breton, 120 U. S. 765, 7 S. Ct. 772, 30 L. Ed. 821.

A vendor, by failure to record his act of sale, loses the priority of his vendor's privilege and mortgage, as against the mortgagees of the vendee whose mortgages are recorded, though they knew of the privilege.—Ridings v. Johnson, 128 U. S. 212, 9 S. Ct. 72, 32 L. Ed. 401.

The fact that the mortgagor had not the legal title to the property gave no priority to the mechanic's lien, where it had the full equitable title before the contract for the construction of the improvements was entered into, and the mortgage contained words of general description, as it thus conveyed property held by full equitable as well as that held by legal title.—Toledo, D. & B. R. Co. v. Hamilton, 134 U. S. 298, 10 S. Ct. 546, 33 L. Ed. 905.

Since the title of one taking possession of public land as a right of way for a ditch for procuring water does not, under Rev. St. §§ 2339, 2340, vest until the ditch is completed, the lien of a contractor constructing the ditch for him attaches as the ditch is completed, and hence is prior to a mortgage previously given by the person so taking possession of the land.—Bear Lake & River Waterworks & Irrigation Co. v. Garland, 17 S. Ct. 7, 164 U. S. 1, 41 L. Ed. 327, affirming judgment 34 P. 368, 9 Utah, 350.

The doctrine of relation does not make the title obtained by the completion of the ditch relate back to the time when possession of the land was first taken, so as to render the property subject to the lien of the mortgage before the work was done by the contractor.—Id.

The lien of the contractor is also superior to that of the prior mortgage as regards land given for the right of way for the ditch, the gift to take effect upon the completion of the ditch.—Id.

A provision of the state statute that no "valid incumbrance" duly made and recorded before the work was completed shall be affected by the mechanic's lien statute is inapplicable, since such previous mortgage was not a "valid incumbrance" before the performance of the work.—Id.

◀155. — Pre-existing debt as consideration.

◀162. Priority of record.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 363-381; 21 Cent. Dig. Execution, § 242; 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, § 369.

◀163. — In general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 363-379; 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, §§ 358-370.

A vendor, by failure to record his act of sale, loses the priority of his vendor's privilege and mortgage as against the mortgagees of the vendee whose mortgages are recorded; and the mortgagees of the vendee, if their mortgages contain the pact de non alienando, may foreclose without making the vendor a party.—Ridings v. Johnson, 128 U. S. 212, 9 S. Ct. 72, 32 L. Ed. 401.

A mechanic's lien for the construction of a dock on the property of a railroad company is subordinate to the lien of a mortgage on the company's property, recorded three years before the improvements were made.—Toledo, D. & B. R. Co. v. Hamilton, 134 U. S. 298, 10 S. Ct. 546, 33 L. Ed. 905.

Nor does the construction of such improvements give an equitable lien prior to the mortgage lien.—Id.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 412, 419-424; 34 Cent. Dig. Mech. Liens, §§ 358-370.

Q. sold land, and took the purchaser's notes and a mortgage in payment, and assigned the first two notes after maturity to complainant. Afterwards Q., who still held the other notes, foreclosed the mortgage, and at the sale purchased the land, which she afterwards sold to defendant. The lien of the mortgage expired for failure to renew the inscription thereof, under Civ. Code La. art. 3369, which provides that "the registry preserves the evidence of mortgages and privileges during ten years, reckoning from the day of its date; its effect ceases * * * if the inscriptions have not been renewed before the expiration of this time, in the manner in which they were first made." The judgment in the foreclosure proceedings was not inscribed with the recorder of mortgages. Held, that complainant, though he might have compelled Q., the purchaser at the foreclosure sale, to pay his notes pro rata, could not maintain an hypothecary action against defendant, the vendee of Q., for the amount of his notes, and hold the land liable therefor; since Const. La. 1879, art. 176, provides that no mortgage or privilege on immovable property shall affect third persons, unless recorded or registered in the parish where the property is situated, in the manner and within the time as is now or may be prescribed by law.—Lovell v. Cragin, 136 U. S. 130, 10 S. Ct. 1024, 34 L. Ed. 372.

Defendant bought a plantation which had been mortgaged, but at the time the mortgage stood as canceled on the records of the parish clerk's office. A suit was afterwards brought by the public administrator to enforce the mortgage, defendant being made a party, but the suit was not prosecuted. Subsequently defendant was appointed public administrator, and during his incumbency the 10 years in which mortgages are required to be reinscribed expired without reinscription, and the mortgage thereby became null as to all persons not parties to it, including defendant. Defendant never had charge of the succession of the mortgagee, if any such existed. Held, that his appointment as public administrator did not place him in any such fiduciary relation to the descendants of the mortgagee as to make it his duty to have the mortgage reinscribed in proper time.—Pickett v. Foster, 149 U. S. 505, 13 S. Ct. 998, 37 L. Ed. 829.

In Louisiana the failure to reinscribe a mortgage within 10 years from its first inscription, as required by the statutory law, renders it without effect as to all persons whomsoever who are not parties thereto; and the failure to so reinscribe the mortgage is not remedied or supplied by the pendency of a suit to foreclose the same.—Pickett v. Foster, 149 U. S. 505, 13 S. Ct. 998, 37 L. Ed. 829, following Adams v. Dannis, 29 La. Ann. 315, and Watson v. Bon-durant, 30 La. Ann. 1.

176. — Effect of actual notice.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 425.

In Louisiana, since the act of 1855 (Rev. St. 1870, p. 617), an unrecorded mortgage is invalid as to third persons, though they have full knowledge of it.—Ridings v. Johnson, 128 U. S. 212, 9 S. Ct. 72, 32 L. Ed. 401.

Ejectment by one claiming the bare legal title cannot be maintained, in Arizona, against a mortgagee in possession after default, even if the latter claims title under a foreclosure sale which is void.—Bryan v. Kales, 162 U. S. 411, 16 S. Ct. 802, 40 L. Ed. 1020, affirming judgment 31 P. 517.

An alienee of a mortgagee, who claimed title under a foreclosure sale, acquires all the rights of the mortgagee, even though the foreclosure sale is void for irregularity, so as not to bar the equity of redemption. Being in the position of a mortgagee in possession after breach of condition, with the debt unpaid, he has a good defense to an ejectment brought on the bare legal title.—Bryan v. Brasius, 162 U. 199. Rents and profits.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 513-525; 33 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. § 97.

A railroad hotel was built upon property of the railroad company under a contract reserving a ground rent to the company, and providing that, upon a surrender of the leasehold and improvements, the company would pay the value of the latter as fixed by arbitration. After surrender, a decree was entered pursuant to the award of arbitrators, but the company refused to pay it, or to take possession of the property. Held, that the decree was a lien on the property, and the lessee was, in effect, a mortgagee in possession, and as such chargeable with the net rents and profits.—Matthews v. Memphis & C. R. Co., 108 U. S. 368, 2 S. Ct. 780, 27 L. Ed. 756.

Under Gen. Laws Or. tit. 1, c. 4, § 823, providing that a mortgage shall not entitle a mortgagee to possession without foreclosure and sale, a mortgagee is not entitled to the rents and profits of the mortgaged premises until he gets possession by foreclosure.—Teal v. Walker, 111 U. S. 242, 4 S. Ct. 420, 28 L. Ed. 415.

If a mortgagee, who takes a merely constructive possession of the mortgaged premises, has not therein such a valuable interest as warrants a claim upon him by the mortgagor for use and occupation, the mortgagor cannot, on the ground of set-off, ask to be relieved of his liability for interest on the debt secured.—Peugh v. Davis, 113 U. S. 542, 5 S. Ct. 622, 28 L. Ed. 1127.

Mortgagees of a plantation, and the crops raised on it, who agree to dispose of the crops, and pay over any surplus remaining after satisfying their own claim to other creditors, who are also secured by a junior mortgage on the plantation, are not trustees for such other creditors, or answerable to them for profits realized from the plantation after buying it in at a mortgage sale.—New Orleans Nat. Banking Ass'n v. Le Breton, 120 U. S. 765, 7 S. Ct. 772, 30 L. Ed. 821.

If a mortgage provides that until default the mortgagor shall be permitted to take the rents, and confers a power of sale in case of default, a subsequent conveyance of the property in trust to secure a debt with a covenant that the rents shall be applied in payment of the debt, gives a right to rent accruing before sale under the mortgage superior to the claim of the mortgagee, though on his application a receiver has been appointed, to whom the rents have been paid.—Freedman's Saving & Trust Co. v. Shepherd, 127 U. S. 494, 8 S. Ct. 1250, 32 L. Ed. 163.

200. Taxes and assessments.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 526-531.

Taxes paid by a mortgagee to protect the security may be recovered from the mortgagor.—Windett v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., of Maine, 144 U. S. 581, 12 S. Ct. 751, 36 L. Ed. 551, affirming judgment (C. C.) Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Windett, 36 F. 838.

201. Insurance.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 532-536.

No obligation to insure for the benefit of the mortgagee rests upon the purchaser of property subject to a mortgage which provides that the sale of the mortgaged premises shall operate as a satisfaction of the mortgage indebtedness and all the covenants therein contained, even though an obligation to effect such insurance was imposed upon the mortgagor by the terms of the mortgage, and under the state law a purchaser of property subject to a mortgage impliedly agrees to indemnify the mortgagor against his liability on the mortgage. Judgment 103 F. 132, 43 C. C. A. 114, 56 L. R. A. 710, affirmed.—Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Penn Plate Glass Co., 22 S. Ct. 842, 186 U. S. 434, 46 L. Ed. 1234.

The avails of insurance on sugar and molasses coming into the sugar house on a sugar plantation as the result of the manufacture of a crop growing thereon when the insurance was effected inure to the benefit of the mortgagee in a mortgage of the realty and the fruits thereof if the loss occurred after the execution of the mortgage, under the Porto Rico mortgage law of 1880, which subjects to a mortgage of real property the crops growing or harvested when the mortgage falls due, "but not yet removed or warehoused," and the indemnities awarded or due the owner of the realty either for the insurance or for the crops, provided the damage occurred after the creation of the mortgage.—Royal Ins. Co. v. Miller, 26 S. Ct. 46, 199 U. S. 353, 50 L. Ed. 226, followed Amadeo v. Northern Assur. Co., 26 S. Ct. 507, 201 U. S. 194, 50 L. Ed. 722.

Ⓒ213. — Between parties to mortgage or their privies.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 432-431, 1576.

A mortgagor in possession, after default under a mortgage giving the mortgagee a right of entry on breach of the condition, is not the mortgagee's tenant, in such sense as to enable the latter to maintain a summary action of forcible entry and detainer, under Rev. St. D. C. § 684. This statute applies only in cases where the conventional relation of landlord and tenant exists, or has existed, between the parties.—Willis v. Eastern Trust & Banking Co., 18 S. Ct. 847, 169 U. S. 295, 42 L. Ed. 752.

Nature of remedy to enforce agreement to assume debt, see Action, Ⓒ17.

Ⓒ249. Payment or release of debt.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 667-677.

The release of a deed of trust executed and recorded by the trustee and payee of the notes secured, without the knowledge of the indorsee for value in whose hands the notes are outstanding and unpaid, restores the legal title to the maker thereof, and a loan secured by a second deed of trust, made in good faith, in reliance upon a conveyancer's abstract of title, will have priority.—Williams v. Jackson, 107 U. S. 478, 2 S. Ct. 814, 27 L. Ed. 529.

VI. TRANSFER OF PROPERTY MORTGAGED OR OF EQUITY OF REDEMPTION.

Limitation of action to enforce assumed debt, see Limitation of actions, Ⓒ21.

Right of action by purchaser to quiet title, see Quieting Title, Ⓒ14.

Ⓒ272. Consent of mortgagee.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 715.

Under an agreement between the mortgagees and mortgagor that the latter shall have "full right and permission to sell the property named in the deeds, and make titles thereto, the proceeds of sale to go to the credit" of the mortgagees, if the mortgagor's vendees act in good faith, inadequacy of the price paid by them will not warrant the court in setting aside the sale.—Woodward v. Jewell, 140 U. S. 247, 11 S. Ct. 784, 35 L. Ed. 478, reversing decree (C. C.) 25 F. 689.

An agreement between the mortgagees and mortgagor that the latter shall have "full right and permission to sell the property named in the deeds, and make titles thereto, the proceeds of sale to go to the credit" of the mortgagees, empowers the mortgagor to sell and transfer title discharged of the lien of the mortgage, but gives him no right to convey the land in exchange for a conveyance to him of other land.—Id.

An agreement between mortgagees and the mortgagor that the latter may sell and convey the mortgaged property, need not be executed before two witnesses, under Code Ga. 1873, § 2690, requiring a deed to be so executed, and section 2182, providing that the act creating an agency must be executed with the same formality as the law requires for execution of the act for which the agency is created, since the mortgage, under section 1954, being only security for a debt, and not passing the title, the agreement was a mere permission for the mortgagor to convey land of his own.—Id.

Ⓒ274. Title and rights of purchaser in general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 713-724, 723.

The purchasers from the mortgagor at a sale under an agreement between the mortgagees and mortgagor that the latter shall have "full right and permission to sell the property named in the deeds, and make titles thereto, the proceeds of sale to go to the credit" of the mortgagees, are not bound to see that the purchase money is applied to the credit of the mortgagees.—Woodward v. Jewell, 140 U. S. 247, 11 S. Ct. 784, 35 L. Ed. 478, reversing decree (C. C.) 25 F. 689.

The appointment of the purchaser of mortgaged lands as public administrator while there was pending in the name of his predecessor in office a suit to collect the mortgage notes, in which such purchaser was cited as a defendant, and the subsequent dismissal of the suit during his incumbency, though sufficient to warrant a suspicion of an intent to defeat the mortgage and notes, are yet, standing alone, not sufficient to justify upsetting the possession of a bona fide purchaser, when it has existed for 12 years before the filing of the bill.—Pickett v. Foster, 149 U. S. 505, 13 S. Ct. 998, 37 L. Ed. 829.

Purchasers of the equity of redemption from the grantor in a deed of trust, with knowledge that such deed covered the described property "with all and singular the improvements, ways, easements, rights, privileges, and appurtenances to the same belonging or in anywise appertaining," and that the grantor had so erected a building thereon that an easement upon adjacent property owned by him was necessary to its use and enjoyment, and that he had attempted to obtain this easement by release from another deed of trust covering such adjacent property, have no better standing than their grantor to claim that such easement did not pass under the deed. Appeal 22 App. D. C. 432, dismissed, and decree 24 App. D. C. 55, modified.—Warner v. Grayson, 26 S. Ct. 240, 200 U. S. 257, 50 L. Ed. 470.

Ⓒ278. Conveyance under or subject to mortgage.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 723-736.

The successful opposition, by the owner of the equity of redemption in mortgaged property, to the appointment of a receiver on the ground that the mortgage was not good security for the debt, does not make such owner a receiver, for the benefit of the holders of the bonds secured thereby, of the insurance money collected on policies taken out by such owner on its own interest, where there was no contractual obligation which bound it to effect insurance covering the interest of such bondholders, and the trustee in the mortgage might itself have taken out such insurance and compelled reimbursement for the premiums advanced. Judgment 103 F. 182, 43 C. C. A. 114, 56

L. R. A. 710, affirmed.—Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Penn. Plate Glass Co., 22 S. Ct. 842, 186 U. S. 484, 46 L. Ed. 1234.

279. Assumption of mortgage debt by purchaser or grantee.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 717, 737-761.

280. — In general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 737, 740-750, 757-780.

The partial payment of a mortgage debt by a grantee to whom the land had been conveyed under a deed reciting that the debt was assumed by the grantee to the mortgagee, does not create a contract between them that he will pay the balance.—Willard v. Wood, 135 U. S. 309, 10 S. Ct. 831, 34 L. Ed. 210, affirming (D. C.) 4 Mackey, 538.

282. — Personal liability.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 740, 741, 743, 751-755; 44 Cent. Dig. Subrog. § 35.

Certain lots were conveyed to defendant "subject, however, to certain incumbrances now resting thereon, payment of which is assumed by said party of the second part." Held that, though the vendee had no knowledge of the conveyance at the time of its execution, he could not, after accepting the rents, and selling and conveying the lots subsequent to his knowledge of the contents of the conveyance, repudiate his liability to his grantor for a breach of the agreement.—Keller v. Ashford, 133 U. S. 610, 10 S. Ct. 494, 33 L. Ed. 667.

By the law of Illinois, where a grantee, under the terms of an absolute conveyance from a mortgagor of land, assumes payment of the mortgage debt with the knowledge and assent of the mortgagee, he becomes the principal debtor, and the mortgagor only a surety, and the extension of time of payment to such grantee, without the knowledge or assent of the mortgagor, will discharge him from all personal liability.—Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Hanford, 143 U. S. 187, 12 S. Ct. 437, 36 L. Ed. 118.

283. — Liability of purchaser or grantee as principal and of mortgagor as surety.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 756-758.

Where a deed to real estate recites that it is subject to a certain deed of trust, and there is an understanding between the vendor and vendee that the latter should pay the debt, the liability of the vendor is not thereby converted into that of a surety without the assent of the creditor, and will not be released by extensions granted by the latter to the vendee.—Shepherd v. May, 115 U. S. 505, 6 S. Ct. 119, 29 L. Ed. 456.

286. Transfer of part of property mortgaged.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 782-789, 791-806.

290. — Subjection to mortgage in inverse order of alienation.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 791-805.

Voluntary partition of property covered by an indivisible mortgage, and a subsequent mortgage of one part thereof, do not prevent enforcement of the first mortgage against that part, nor can the holder of the junior mortgage complain thereof.—Groves v. Sentell, 153 U. S. 465, 14 S. Ct. 898, 38 L. Ed. 785.

Under a mortgage not stipulating against indivisibility, as authorized under Rev. Civ. Code La. art. 3282, declaring that a mortgage "is in its nature indivisible," the whole debt is payable out of the whole property, even though the debt be joint, and therefore divisible, at least where the consideration was the price of movable property which became by the purchase indivisibly incorporated with the land mortgaged, and where the mortgage remains in the hands of the original holder.—Id.

292. Actions by or against purchasers or grantees.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 762-771, 790.

Where a mortgagor conveys land subject to the mortgage, which his grantee assumes, and agrees to pay, the mortgagee cannot maintain an action at law therefor against the grantee; there being no privity of contract between them.—Keller v. Ashford, 133 U. S. 610, 10 S. Ct. 494, 33 L. Ed. 667.

The mortgagee may, however, avail himself of the right of the mortgagor in a suit at equity against the grantee to enforce payment of the mortgage debt.—Id.

An action at law by a mortgagee to recover the mortgage debt from the grantee of the mortgagor, by deed signed and sealed by the grantor only, reciting that the conveyance was "subject to the mortgage," and that the grantee "assumes and agrees to pay, satisfy, and discharge" the mortgage debt, cannot be maintained in the District of Columbia. The mortgagee's only remedy against the grantee is by bill in equity.—Willard v. Wood, 135 U. S. 309, 10 S. Ct. 831, 34 L. Ed. 210, affirming (D. C.) 4 Mackey, 538.

It makes no difference that under the laws of New York, where the land is situated and the mortgage and deed were executed, such action would lie, as the form of the remedy is governed by the lex fori.—Id.

293. Acquisition of property by mortgagee.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 806-835.

295. — Merger and extinguishment of debt.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 815, 817-831.

Where a distillery is placed on mortgaged land with the mortgagor's knowledge and consent, in violation of the internal revenue law, it operates as a statutory conveyance to the United States of the mortgagor's title; and the mortgagor's subsequent deed of the land to the mortgagee passes no title as against the intervening right of the United States, nor does it have the effect of merging the mortgage and the equity of redemption in one estate.—United States v. Stowell, 133 U. S. 1, 10 S. Ct. 244, 33 L. Ed. 555.

298. Payment of debt.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 836-854, 864, 871; 39 Cent. Dig. Paymt. § 12.

A mortgage having been executed by a father and his two daughters upon property owned jointly by them, and a policy of insurance on said property assigned to the mortgagee as collateral security for the mortgage loan, if, after destruction of the premises by fire, the mortgagee places in the hands of the father, upon his sole application, the money paid on the policy by the insurance company, for the purpose of rebuilding the property destroyed, which money is thereafter not applied by the father to that purpose, the daughters are not committed by his neglect, and, upon foreclosure of the mortgage, are to be credited with the money paid upon the policy.—Connecticut Mut. ☞302. — After default.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 832, 833, 836-838.

After judgment of foreclosure, an injunction restraining the sale was granted at the instance of the assignee of the equity of redemption, but was subsequently dissolved, and the mortgagee authorized to proceed, unless the debt was paid before a certain day. No payment or tender was made. Held that, after the date named, the mortgagee was under no obligation to accept a tender from a person other than the party obliged to pay the debt, and so, in effect, to assign the mortgage and judgment, and not to extinguish it.—Gibson v. Lyon, 115 U. S. 439, 6 S. Ct. 129, 29 L. Ed. 440.

☞309. Release in general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 884, 870, 889, 900, 902-905, 907-912.

A. and B. jointly loaned $5,000, taking as security a mortgage to A. alone. A. died and appointed B. his executor, but the latter failed to qualify as such. For a valid consideration he executed the following release: "I hereby release from any and all lien by reason of this mortgage the following" (describing the premises). "Witness my hand and seal as such executor." Held, that though the legal title to the bond and mortgage was in B. as executor, and, he having failed to qualify, his act in that capacity was void, yet the legal title to the debt was in him as surviving joint creditor, with authority to control its collection, and therefore the release was valid as being made by him as such creditor notwithstanding the words "as executor."—Wall v. Bissell, 125 U. S. 382, 8 S. Ct. 979, 31 L. Ed. 772.

☞316. Reinstatement of mortgage.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 949-954.

A purchaser of lands from the government, being indebted to his two brothers, caused the patents to be issued in their names. After paying the debt, he caused them to convey the legal title to a third brother, in order that the latter might mortgage it to secure notes given by him, which was done. After maturity of these notes a foreclosure suit was commenced, but the mortgagor and mortgagee effected a settlement by which the notes were surrendered, and notes of other parties secured by conveyances of other lands accepted in their stead. The suit was then dismissed, but the mortgage was not formally canceled. The brother who originally purchased the lands remained in possession all the time, which fact was known to the mortgagee. Held that, as the mortgagor held only the naked legal title, a subsequent agreement by him to rescind the settlement could not operate to again set up the lien of the mortgage, as against this brother and subsequent purchasers from him.—McLean v. Clapp, 141 U. S. 429, 12 S. Ct. 29, 35 L. Ed. 804.

[No paragraphs or references in this Digest. But see 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 963-1011.]

IX. FORECLOSURE BY EXERCISE OF POWER OF SALE.☞333. Power as authority for sale in general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1012.

A power of sale in an instrument given to secure a debt is not prohibited by Comp. St. Mont. § 371, declaring that a mortgage of realty shall not be deemed a conveyance, whatever its terms, so as to enable the owner of the mortgage to recover possession without foreclosure and sale, and title passes by a sale thereunder.—Bell Silver & Copper Min. Co. v.

First Nat. Bank of Butte, 156 U. S. 470, 15 S. Ct. 440, 39 L. Ed. 497, affirming judgment First Nat. Bank of Butte v. Bell Silver & Copper Min. Co., 8 Mont. 32, 19 P. 403.

☞335. Right to foreclose.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1019-1023.

Under a deed of trust to secure one principal note and a series of interest notes, providing for a sale by the trustees "upon default in the payment of said notes, or any installment of interest thereon," the failure to pay the first interest note at maturity constitutes a default justifying the sale. Decree 5 App. D. C. 375, affirmed.—Wheeler v. McBlair, 19 S. Ct. 882, 172 U. S. 643, 43 L. Ed. 1182.

☞352. Notice of sale.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1050-1069.

☞354. — Form and requisites.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1061-1068, 1068, 1069.

A notice of foreclosure sale which identifies the mortgage by date and parties, and accurately describes the time and place of its record, is not rendered invalid by having the date of the mortgage given once correctly, and once incorrectly, since it furnishes the means for its own correction; nor is a notice, if published for the proper time, and giving the proper time and place of sale, invalidated by an error of date.—Bacon v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 131 U. S. 258, 9 S. Ct. 787, 33 L. Ed. 128.

In a notice of foreclosure by advertisement as published the mortgagee's name was spelled incorrectly in several of the insertions. The day when and the book in which the mortgage was recorded were correctly given, as also the sum due thereon, and the date of sale. Held, that the defect was not sufficient to defeat the title acquired at the sale.—Id.

Title to land through a sale under a power in a mortgage cannot be objected to because of an insufficient description in the notice of sale of personalty included in the mortgage, the description of the land having been sufficient.—Bell Silver & Copper Min. Co. v. First Nat. Bank of Butte, 156 U. S. 470, 15 S. Ct. 440, 39 L. Ed. 497, affirming judgment First Nat. Bank of Butte v. Bell Silver & Copper Min. Co., 8 Mont. 32, 19 P. 403.

☞356. — Publication or other constructive notice.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1063-1067.

Under the provision in a mortgage for "30 days' notice of * * * sale, by publishing the same once a week for three weeks successively," the last publication need not precede the sale 30 days. It is enough that the first publication precedes it such time.—Bell Silver & Copper Min. Co. v. First Nat. Bank of Butte, 156 U. S. 470, 15 S. Ct. 440, 39 L. Ed. 497, affirming judgment First Nat. Bank of Butte v. Bell Silver & Copper Min. Co., 8 Mont. 32, 19 P. 403.

☞360. Execution of power and conduct of sale in general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1075-1077.

Where, on the foreclosure of a deed of trust, both the trustees therein joined in the notice of sale, and united in the deed to the purchaser, the absence of one of them from the sale was not of itself, without any showing of unfairness, a sufficient reason for setting it aside.—Smith v. Black, 115 U. S. 308, 6 S. Ct. 50, 29 L. Ed. 398.

☞361. Terms and conditions of sale.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1078, 1079.

Where the purchaser at a sale under a deed of trust, who was the holder of the note secured, settled with one of the trustees at the time of the delivery of the deed on a cash basis, though the terms of sale provided for a credit, by entering a credit on the note of the net proceeds of the sale, leaving a balance due, no right of the debtor is infringed, and the sale is not invalidated thereby.—Smith v. Black, 115 U. S. 308, 6 S. Ct. 60, 29 L. Ed. 398.

332. Persons who may purchase.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1080-1081.

A creditor whose claim is secured by a deed of trust is not disqualified from purchasing at a foreclosure sale thereunder because, being a lawyer, he has consulted with one of the trustees fixing the terms of the sale, himself wrote the notice, and took it to the other trustee to sign, in the absence of any showing of fraud or effort to keep bidders away; but where, on the contrary, it appeared that he waited nearly eight months after the debt was due for the debtor to make efforts to sell the land at private sale, or to raise money at a higher rate of interest to pay the debt.—Smith v. Black, 115 U. S. 308, 6 S. Ct. 60, 29 L. Ed. 398.

B. deposited with defendant bank, as collateral for a loan, certain bonds secured by deed of trust executed by B. to a trustee, with power of sale. The loan not having been paid when due, the trustee, at the request of defendant and others who then held the bonds, sold the real estate in strict pursuance of the terms of the deed, and D., acting as agent of defendant and the others, purchased. D. subsequently conveyed a portion of the property to defendant, and the trustee indorsed as a credit on the bonds of D., which defendant held, its proportionate share of the bid, which credit, as to the portion so conveyed, was the only payment made under the purchase. Held, that defendant did not stand in any trust relation as to the real estate, but as a mere creditor had a perfect right to bid at the sale, and was not liable to account to D., or his assignees, for the proceeds of a subsequent sale by it of the portion conveyed to it by D.—Easton v. German-American Bank, 127 U. S. 532, 8 S. Ct. 1297, 32 L. Ed. 210.

Where a decree, made at the instance of plaintiff, appointing a trustee in place of trustees named in deeds of trust securing debts due plaintiff, was void, plaintiff, by purchasing the land at a sale by the trustee appointed thereby, acquired no title constituting a cloud on the title of the grantor, and the dismissal of a bill by the latter to cancel the sale and the deed executed thereunder does not establish any title in plaintiff, so as to estop him, on the ground that he asserts the legal title in himself, to maintain a subsequent suit to foreclose, where he alleges that he brings it in order to obtain an undisputed title by foreclosure.—Shepherd v. Pepper, 133 U. S. 626, 10 S. Ct. 438, 33 L. Ed. 706.

333. Bids.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1085-1087.

When property sold under a trust deed to secure a debt brings more than its appraised value, the mere fact that five persons testify that it "was worth" 50 per cent. more than the price realized is insufficient to show want of good faith in the transaction.—Cross v. Allen, 141 U. S. 528, 12 S. Ct. 67, 35 L. Ed. 843, affirming decree (C. C.) Allen v. O'Donald, 28 F. 346.

376. Proceeds and surplus.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1125-1133.

Where a trust deed contains a covenant by the grantor to pay all taxes on the property, and a provision that in case of sale the trustee may, out of the proceeds, pay all money advanced for taxes, the trustee may, out of such proceeds, redeem the land from tax sales.—Gormley v. Bunyan, 138 U. S. 623, 11 S. Ct. 453, 34 L. Ed. 1086.

379. Wrongful foreclosure.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1141-1143.

The mortgagor having neither paid, nor offered to pay, the installments of the debt as they became due, and having allowed the property to be sold under the power, and possession to be given under the deed, is estopped, after the lapse of 13 years, when the property has greatly increased in value, to set up irregularities in the foreclosure proceedings, based on rights under the stipulation.—Bacon v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 131 U. S. 258, 9 S. Ct. 787, 33 L. Ed. 128.

Mortgages by corporations, see Corporations, 482.

(A) NATURE AND FORM OF REMEDY.

360. Nature in general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1144, 1145, 1154.

A gratuitous donee, who is not in possession, and has accepted the donation of land from a person who bought it on credit, the land being still subject to the judgment under which it was sold, and liable to an execution either on such judgment or on the bond given for the purchase money, is not entitled to the delay and formalities of the hypothecary action.—Evans v. Pike, 118 U. S. 241, 6 S. Ct. 1090, 30 L. Ed. 234.

Under the Louisiana law, after liquidation of a claim under a mortgage to cover future advances, by acknowledgment, made by the debtor before a notary public, the mortgagee is in the same position as if the sum acknowledged to be due had been inserted in the mortgage originally, and can proceed by executory process; and if judgment is confessed by the debtor at the same time as acknowledgment made by him, such confession of judgment is to be treated as surplage, and not considered to be the basis of a sale afterwards made by the mortgagee so as to postpone him to junior mortgagees whose mortgages antedated the judgment.—New Orleans Nat. Banking Assn. v. Le Breton, 120 U. S. 765, 7 S. Ct. 772, 30 L. Ed. 821.

(B) RIGHT TO FORECLOSE AND DEFENSES.

392. Maturity of debt secured.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1158.

Where there is no provision, either in a bond or in the mortgage by which it is secured, or elsewhere, that the bond shall become due, or may be declared due, on the happening of some event prior to the date of maturity, it is error to decree the unpaid balance of the bond to be due when in fact it has not matured, though the mortgaged property has been sold on foreclosure, and the proceeds applied to the payment of the interest and principal, on default of interest, as provided by the mortgage.—Ohio Cent. R. Co. v. Central Trust Co., 133 U. S. 83, 10 S. Ct. 235, 33 L. Ed. 561.

394. Default in payment.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1160-1165.

397. Installments.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1162.

A mortgage to secure a sum payable in five annual installments stipulated that the mortgagor might pay any sum due, not exceeding $1,000, at any time before the last installment became due, by a bond. Held, that the stipulation did not prevent the installments from falling due at the times stated, nor prevent a sale to satisfy them when due under the power in the mortgage.—Bacon v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 131 U. S. 258, 9 S. Ct. 787, 33 L. Ed. 128.

415. Defenses.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1210-1224.

Where, in a suit to foreclose a mortgage given to secure railroad bonds, the mortgagor admits that it has made default in the payment of the bonds, a new party, which was admitted on condition that it would adopt the mortgagor's answer as its own, cannot object that the suit was prematurely brought because there was, as yet, no default in the payment of the principal.—Wade v. Chicago, S. & St. L. Ry. Co., 149 U. S. 327, 13 S. Ct. 892, 37 L. Ed. 755.

Jurisdiction to decree foreclosure and sale under a mortgage and to enter a deficiency judgment is not defeated because of the inability to join all the parties and to sell all the land, due to a conveyance of a part of the mortgaged property to the territory of Hawaii, which insists upon its immunity from suit.—Kawanana-koia v. Polyblank, 27 S. Ct. 526, 205 U. S. 349, 51 L. Ed. 834.

417. Persons entitled to foreclose.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1227-1234.

The maker of a note executed, to an accommodation indorser, before delivery, a mortgage of real estate to indemnify him, with a power of sale. The mortgagor failing to pay the note at maturity, the mortgagee paid the amount, and entered it on his books in general account against the mortgagor, and the payee indorsed the note as paid, and delivered it to the mortgagee, who afterwards assigned to a third person. Held, that the assignee might maintain a bill against the mortgagor for foreclosure, and for payment by the mortgagor personally of so much of the note as the proceeds of sale should be insufficient to satisfy.—Bendey v. Townsend, 109 U. S. 665, 3 S. Ct. 482, 27 L. Ed. 1065.

A bill to foreclose a mortgage, given to secure the payment of negotiable notes to their holder, is properly dismissed where it appears that plaintiff did not acquire any title to the notes as owner, or as holding them as security for debts owing him by the mortgagor, but that he received them from the mortgagor, as agent, to raise money for the maker, and, after failure to do so, retained them without the consent of the mortgagor.—Weaver v. Field, 114 U. S. 244, 5 S. Ct. 844, 29 L. Ed. 143.

A bill in equity sought to foreclose defendant's equity of redemption in property covered by deeds of trust, executed to five different sets of trustees, plaintiff being beneficiary in all. Some deeds covered only one lot; others two or more; one covered all. All the trustees were made defendants, and the bill was taken as confessed as to them. The bill set forth judgments and mechanics' liens held by parties who were made defendants, none of the mechanics' liens covering the whole property; and purchases of lots from the defendant. Held, that plaintiff had a right to maintain the suit; the objection that the legal title is vested in the trustees with power to sell, and that they must enforce the trust, being overcome by the fact that the bill is confessed as to them all, that defendant is not prejudiced, and that the case is one of equitable cognizance.—Grant v. Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co., 121 U. S. 106, 7 S. Ct. 841, 30 L. Ed. 905.

(C) JURISDICTION AND VENUE.

Ancillary jurisdiction, see Courts, 264.
Jurisdiction of federal court, see Courts, 311.

Removal of cause to federal court, see Removal of Causes, 53.

420. Jurisdiction of subject-matter.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1247-1252.

Under Act Ky. Dec. 19, 1795 (1 Litt. Laws, p. 298), establishing district courts, and providing that they shall have jurisdiction over persons and in all cases, matters, and things at common law, or in chancery, within their districts, with some minor exceptions, confers jurisdiction over the foreclosure of mortgages of real estate situated within the limits of its jurisdiction.—Applegate v. Lexington & Carter County Min. Co., 117 U. S. 255, 6 S. Ct. 742, 29 L. Ed. 892.

(D) LIMITATIONS AND LACHES.

Acknowledgment of debt barred by limitations, see Limitation of Actions, 143.

Persons to whom bar of limitations is available, see Limitation of Actions, 172, 173.

Pleading, limitations, see Limitation of Actions, 182.

424. Limitations.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1263-1266.

In Arkansas the possession of land by a mortgagor is not to be considered adverse until he does some act or makes some claim notoriously adverse to the rights of the mortgagee, and without this the right of the latter to foreclose is unaffected by the statute of limitations.—Smith v. Woolfolk, 115 U. S. 143, 5 S. Ct. 1177, 29 L. Ed. 357.

425. Laches.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1267; 19 Cent. Dig. Equity, § 214.

Where a note secured by mortgage is not barred by limitations, there can be no laches in enforcing the mortgage.—Cross v. Allen, 141 U. S. 528, 12 S. Ct. 67, 35 L. Ed. 843, affirming decree (C. C.) Allen v. O'Donald, 28 F. 346.

Where a newspaper, whose entire plant and good will have been mortgaged, is consolidated with another, the name of the paper changed, and a new corporation formed to publish it, which in the course of business, entirely uses up the mortgaged plant, a delay, on the part of the mortgagee, of eight years after the new corporation refused to pay the debt, or the interest accruing thereon, constitutes laches, which will bar his right to assert an equitable claim to have the lien of the mortgage extended to the new plant, or a claim as for wrongful conversion of the mortgaged property.—Metropolitan Nat. Bank v. St. Louis Dispatch Co., 149 U. S. 436, 13 S. Ct. 944, 37 L. Ed. 799, affirming decree (C. C.) 36 F. 722.

The doctrine of laches held not applicable to the conduct of parties in Porto Rico so as to defeat a suit to foreclose a mortgage lien executed in 1865 not shown to be barred by limitations.—De Noble v. Gallardo y Seary, 32 S. Ct. 194, 223 U. S. 65, 56 L. Ed. 353.

(E) PARTIES AND PROCESS.

Due process of law, see Constitutional Law, 309.

Return of subpoena, see Equity, 124.

426. Parties in general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1272-1287.

When a mortgage contains the pact de non alienando, the mortgagee may enforce it by proceedings against the mortgagor alone, notwithstanding the alienation of the property; and all persons claiming under the mortgagor will be bound, although not made parties.—Avegno v. Schmidt, 113 U. S. 293, 5 S. Ct. 487, 28 L. Ed. 976; Shields v. Shift, 124 U. S. 351, 8 S. Ct. 510, 31 L. Ed. 445, affirming judgment 36 La. Ann. 644.

427. Necessary or indispensable parties.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1269, 1272-1287.

In a suit to foreclose a mortgage, and for a personal decree for any deficiency that may result, a mortgagor, who has sold his interest in the mortgaged property subject to the mortgage debt, which the purchaser has assumed, is a necessary party.—Ayres v. Wiswall, 112 U. S. 187, 5 S. Ct. 90, 28 L. Ed. 693.

Under Act Conn. 1878, providing that the foreclosure of a mortgage shall be a bar to any further suit on the debt unless the persons liable therefor are made parties, where the mortgagor and mortgagee are citizens of that state, and the mortgagor has conveyed the premises to a citizen of New York, the mortgagor is a necessary party to foreclosure proceedings against the purchaser, if it sought to charge him with any deficiency of the appraised value of the land to pay the mortgage debt.—Coney v. Winchell, 116 U. S. 227, 6 S. Ct. 366, 29 L. Ed. 610, affirming (C. O.) Winchell v. Carll, 24 F. 865.

On a bill to foreclose a mortgage, prior incumbrancers, the validity of whose incumbrances is not drawn in question, are not indispensable parties.—Carey v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co., 161 U. S. 115, 16 S. Ct. 537, 40 L. Ed. 638.

433. Defendants.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1272-1283.

434. — In general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1272-1287.

In a suit in equity to enforce the lien of a mortgage, it is proper to join with the mortgagor as a defendant one who claims title to the land by virtue of a tax sale made after the execution of the mortgage.—Mendenhall v. Hall, 134 U. S. 559, 10 S. Ct. 616, 33 L. Ed. 1012.

436. Intervention.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1289.

In a suit to foreclose a mortgage on the property of a corporation, simple contract creditors, who contest the validity of the mortgage, are not prevented from intervening to set up their claims by the rule which forbids, in a foreclosure suit, the litigation of a title adverse to the mortgagor.—Hollins v. Brierfield Coal & Iron Co., 150 U. S. 371, 14 S. Ct. 127, 37 L. Ed. 1113.

439. Defects, objections, and amendment as to parties.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1292-1297.

The failure to make a tenant a party to a foreclosure suit will not relieve persons who are personally liable for the mortgage debt, if they are not prejudiced by his omission. Judgment 53 P. 583, 6 Ariz. 125, affirmed.—Johns v. Wilson, 21 S. Ct. 445, 180 U. S. 440, 45 L. Ed. 613.

440. Process in general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1298, 1299, 1303-1307.

In proceedings to foreclose a mortgage and settle the estate of a decedent mortgagor, where a decree is made ordering a sale of the real estate and distribution of the proceeds, and, when that is done, the receiver, having been directed to proceed and collect the available assets, is able to collect only a small sum, which he is allowed by the court to retain as his compensation, it is in effect a final order disposing of the litigation, and an amended bill by one complainant, involving new issues, against a co-complainant, cannot be filed without a new service of process.—Smith v. Woolfolk, 115 U. S. 143, 5 S. Ct. 1177, 29 L. Ed. 357.

Under Louisiana law, a holder of a first mortgage, duly executed before a notary with pact de non alienando is not bound, before proceeding to sell on executory process, to give notice to any one but the debtor in possession, notwithstanding other creditors have a junior mortgage by virtue of the same instrument that created the first mortgage.—New Orleans Nat. Banking Ass'n v. Le Breton, 120 U. S. 765, 7 S. Ct. 772, 30 L. Ed. 821.

A proceeding under Code Prac. La. arts. 63, 98, 732-734, by which a mortgage passed before a notary public in the presence of two witnesses, with an acknowledgment and identification of the debt thereby secured, imports a confession of judgment, on which the creditor is entitled to executory process, and to obtain, without previous citation to the debtor, an order for the seizure and sale of the mortgaged property for the payment of the debt, though in summary form, is in the nature of a bill in equity, and belongs on the equity side of the court.—Fleitas v. Richardson, 147 U. S. 538, 13 S. Ct. 429, 37 L. Ed. 272.

(F) PLEADING AND EVIDENCE.

Pleading limitations, see Limitation of Actions, 4182.

444. Bill, complaint, or petition.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1308-1313.

453. — Prayer for relief.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1317.

Where a petition prays executory process, and seizure and sale of the mortgaged property "without appraisalment and according to law," on which it is ordered that the process issue "as prayed for and according to law," and the writ directs the sheriff to "seize * * * and sell, according to law," the words "according to law" in the writ import a sale according to the stipulations of the mortgage, without appraisalment, and the petition shows no waiver of plaintiff's right to such a sale.—Stockmeyer v. Tobin, 139 U. S. 176, 11 S. Ct. 504, 35 L. Ed. 123.

462. Weight and sufficiency of evidence.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1361-1363.

464. — Production of bond, note, or other obligation secured.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1362.

Bonds need not be produced in evidence prior to a decree of foreclosure and sale in a suit by trustees under a mortgage securing the bonds, where the evidence is sufficient to prove that the bonds were valid and were outstanding obligations. Decree, 80 F. 450, 25 C. C. A. 549, affirmed.—Dickerman v. Northern Trust Co., 20 S. Ct. 311, 176 U. S. 181, Adv. S. U. S. 311, 44 L. Ed. 423.

(G) INJUNCTION AND RECEIVER.

State courts restraining proceedings in federal courts, see Courts, 4507.

466. Appointment of receiver.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1371-1382.

468. — Grounds.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1374, 1375; 19 Cent. Dig. Equity, § 99.

The court appointed a receiver, against the objection of defendant that it had no power so to do before sale, and thus deprive defendant of the use and rents and profits of the property, the trust deed not embracing them. Held, no error; courts of equity always having the power, where the debtor is insolvent, and the mortgaged property insufficient security, and there is good cause to believe that it will be wasted or deteriorated, to take charge of the property by means of a receiver, and preserve, not only the corpus, but the rents and profits, for the satisfaction of the debt.—Grant v. Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co., 121 U. S. 105, 7 S. Ct. 841, 30 L. Ed. 905.

⚡473. Management and disposition of property and proceeds by receiver.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1334.

Where a receiver of the rents and profits of mortgaged premises is appointed because of the mortgagor's insolvency and failure to pay taxes, insurance premiums, and interest, and his diversion of the rents from making such payments, and because the property is inadequate security for the incumbrances thereon, the court properly retains possession of such rents and profits to preserve them for the party found equitably entitled thereto.—Shepherd v. Pepper, 133 U. S. 626, 10 S. Ct. 438, 33 L. Ed. 706.

(H) TRIAL OR HEARING AND REFERENCE.

Estoppel by stipulations, see Estoppel, ⚡79.

⚡476. Scope of inquiry and powers of court.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1330-1333, 1417.

Where, pending a suit to foreclose a mortgage on the property of a corporation, simple contract creditors file a separate bill against the corporation, its stock and bond holders, and the mortgagee, alleging the invalidity of the mortgage, and attempting to subject the property to their claims, such bill must be dismissed for want of jurisdiction on the entry of a foreclosure decree in the mortgagee's suit.—Hollins v. Brierfield Coal & Iron Co., 150 U. S. 371, 14 S. Ct. 127, 37 L. Ed. 1113.

(I) JUDGMENT OR DECREE AND EXECUTION.

Authority of federal court to set aside decree of state court, see Courts, ⚡509.
Entry of decree nunc pro tunc, see Equity, ⚡428.

⚡485. Scope and extent of relief.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1404-1433, 1470.

⚡488. — Sale of property.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1415-1424.

A sale under the latter of two decrees of foreclosure rendered in the same suit is not void for want of jurisdiction when the second is made at the same time with the first, and is the same as the first, except that it gives the boundaries of the property to be sold as one tract, and also the boundaries of each of the several parcels into which it was divided.—Barrell v. Tilton, 119 U. S. 637, 7 S. Ct. 332, 30 L. Ed. 511.

A sale in entirety of two parcels of land covered by separate trust deeds should not be ordered unless the interests of the holders of the equity of redemption and of the incumbrancers require it. Appeal, 22 App. D. C. 432, dismissed, and decree 24 App. D. C. 55, modified.—Warner v. Grayson, 26 S. Ct. 240, 200 U. S. 257, 50 L. Ed. 470.

⚡490. — Reimbursement of payments for taxes or insurance.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1431-1433.

A deed of trust in the nature of a mortgage, given to secure the payment of a note, contained covenants that the mortgagor would pay all taxes upon the land, and also a power to sell and pay all expenses, including all money advanced for taxes. The land was sold for nonpayment of taxes, and there was some doubt, from the evidence, whether the purchaser did or did not give notice of the tax sales to the tenants, but no evidence of invalidity in any other respect. The mortgagee, after waiting two years for the land to be redeemed, bought the tax title for a sum exceeding the amount of unpaid taxes and interest, but very much less than the penalties accrued, and then brought suit to foreclose. Held, that the mortgagee was not bound to contest the tax titles, and that the sum paid to extinguish them was chargeable to the mortgagor under the terms of the mortgage.—Windett v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. of Maine, 144 U. S. 581, 12 S. Ct. 751, 36 L. Ed. 551, affirming judgment (C. C.) Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Windett, 36 F. 838.

⚡491. — Rights of and relief to defendants in general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1434-1437.

Where a mortgage is foreclosed absolutely without allowing in the decree the 15 months for redemption provided for by the state statute, the error so committed is not waived by the mortgagor's failure to tender the redemption money within that time, where he has exercised his right of appeal within the time allowed by the laws of the United States for that purpose.—Mason v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 106 U. S. 163, 1 S. Ct. 165, 27 L. Ed. 129.

Plaintiffs, as creditors whose debts were secured by a deed of trust, brought a suit in equity to enforce the trust and sale of land. They joined as defendants persons in possession who claimed to own the land under a title founded on the sale made under a judgment recovered prior to the execution of the deed of trust. Defendants claimed to be allowed for the amount they had paid in discharge of the lien or charge on the land created by the will devising the land to the original grantor in the deed of trust. It appeared that the land had been devised on condition to pay certain legacies and a life annuity in money. The life annuitant obtained a decree establishing the arrears due on the annuity as a specific lien on the land, which lien was discharged by defendant. Held, that as defendants claimed title under the devisee, and he was entitled to the distributive shares of the entire estate of the life annuitant, who died during the pendency of the suit, it was not proper to abate from the allowance to defendant of the amount paid by them to discharge the lien, any sum on account of the distributive shares of such devisee in the amount so paid.—Canal Bank v. Hudson, 111 U. S. 66, 4 S. Ct. 303, 28 L. Ed. 354.

⚡492. — Other incumbrances.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1433.

Plaintiffs, as creditors, whose debts were secured by a deed of trust on land, having brought a suit in equity to enforce the trust and to sell the land, joined as defendants, by a supplemental bill, persons in possession, who claimed to own the land under a sale made under a judgment recovered prior to the execution of the deed of trust, but which judgment had been held by the supreme court, before the filing of the supplemental bill, to be void, as against plaintiffs. Defendants in possession set up a claim to be allowed for the amount they had paid in discharge of a lien or charge on the land created by a will devising the land to the original grantor in the deed of trust, and for taxes paid, and for improvements. Held, that these claims should be allowed.—Canal Bank v. Hudson, 111 U. S. 66, 4 S. Ct. 303, 28 L. Ed. 354.

505. Appraisal.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. ¶ 1501-1505.

The provision of Code Prac. La. art. 745, that where the sheriff sells property seized on executory process he must cause the same appraisements to be made as in the case of property seized in execution, is for the benefit of the debtor, and hence it may be waived by him under Civ. Code, art. 11, § 2, authorizing the renunciation of what the law has established in one's favor when it does not affect the rights of others and is not contrary to the public good.—Stockmeyer v. Tobin, 139 U. S. 176, 11 S. Ct. 504, 35 L. Ed. 123.

The provision of Code Prac. La. art. 745, that where the sheriff sells property seized on executory process he must cause the same appraisements to be made as in the case of property seized in execution, is for the benefit of the debtor, and another creditor cannot object to the debtor's waiver of appraisal when he has intervened and become a party to the mortgage, dispensing with appraisal.—Id.

The order of the judge of another judicial district, ordering an appraisal to be made of property theretofore ordered, in the district in which it was situated, to be sold without appraisal, is of no effect where it is made without citation or prayer for citation against the creditor who sued out the process on which the property is to be sold.—Id.

508. Place.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. ¶ 1510.

Under Code Prac. La. arts. 664, 665, providing that the sale of property under a fieri facias must be made by the sheriff at the seat of justice of the parish where the seizure is made, but that in the country "the sale may be made on the plantations which are to be sold if the debtor desire it," the sale of a plantation and its fixtures under a mortgage must be made at the seat of justice, unless the debtor gives notice within three days after the seizure, as required by Laws 1876, p. 50, that he desires it to be made on the plantation itself.—Stockmeyer v. Tobin, 139 U. S. 176, 11 S. Ct. 504, 35 L. Ed. 123.

512. Sale in parcels or in gross.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. ¶ 1515.

Where plaintiff's deeds of trust are a first lien on the larger portion of property, and a second lien on the balance, and all the incumbrancers are parties to a suit for foreclosure, and their claims are all past due, and the property cannot be divided and sold separately without injury, plaintiff is entitled to have the whole property sold, and the proceeds applied to the incumbrances according to priority.—Shepherd v. Pepper, 133 U. S. 626, 10 S. Ct. 438, 33 L. Ed. 706.

The sale of a plantation and the personality on it, under a mortgage, in block instead of separately, is only irregularity, for which the sale will not be disturbed on the complaint of a creditor, who fails to show that a larger sum will be realized on a resale of the properties sepaately.—Stockmeyer v. Tobin, 139 U. S. 176, 11 S. Ct. 504, 35 L. Ed. 123.

516. Persons who may purchase.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. ¶ 1512.

Since in Georgia a purchase of the trust property by the trustee at a mortgage sale is not void, but voidable only, at the option of the beneficiary, where the state purchased at its own sale as trustee under the mortgage given by a railroad company to secure the state against loss on its indorsement of railroad bonds, pursuant to Acts Ga. 1866, p. 127, the junior mortgage creditors could only avoid the sale by tendering reimbursement of the amount of the first mortgage.—Cunningham v. Macon & B. R. Co., 156 U. S. 400, 15 S. Ct. 361, 39 L. Ed. 471.

519. Failure to comply with bid.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. ¶ 1521-1524.

522. — Resale.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. ¶ 1522.

Where property is sold by order of court in foreclosure, and a lien is reserved in the deed to secure the unpaid installments of the purchase price, the court may, on default in the payment of such installments, and where no rights of innocent purchasers have intervened, and before final decree of distribution, proceed to a resale of the property by rule on the purchaser to show cause, and without resorting to an original bill.—Stuart v. Gay, 127 U. S. 518, 8 S. Ct. 1279, 32 L. Ed. 191.

528. Persons who may question validity.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. ¶ 1535, 1536.

The purchaser of mortgaged property under a decree of foreclosure, expressly ordering the title to be taken subject to such liens as may be established in a reference then pending, cannot be heard, while retaining the property, to contest the validity of the lien so established.—Swann v. Fabyan, 110 U. S. 590, 4 S. Ct. 235, 28 L. Ed. 252.

Under a statute regulating the foreclosure of mortgages (1 Bright. Purd. Dig. Pa. p. 483, pls. 122, 123, and Id. p. 656, pl. 107), requiring the sheriff to make returns of the proceeds of sale, and to give the purchaser a deed formally acknowledged in open court after notice to all parties in interest (Id. p. 658, pls. 119, 122), a failure of the judgment debtor to present, at the time the deed is acknowledged, any objection he may have to the validity of the sale, except fraud in making it, or a want of power to sell in the officer, is a waiver of the defect.—Gibson v. Lyon, 115 U. S. 439, 6 S. Ct. 129, 29 L. Ed. 440.

529. Opening or vacating and actions to set aside.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. ¶ 1537-1542.

In a suit to set aside a sale under a deed of trust, because of the inadequacy of the price, it appeared that the property sold in 1872 for 35 cents per square foot; that in the summer of 1873, when speculation was rife and prices were high, it sold for $1; that a period of depression followed, and that before the foreclosure sale in 1878 strenuous efforts were made to sell the property or borrow money on it, but without success; that at the foreclosure sale defendant, who was the creditor under the deed of trust, bid it in at 35 cents; that he immediately offered the property at his bid to several persons who were present at the sale, but that none of them would take it. Held, that the sale would not be set aside, notwithstanding the purchaser had sold a portion of it in 1880 at 92 cents.—Smith v. Black, 115 U. S. 308, 6 S. Ct. 50, 29 L. Ed. 398.

The lapse of eight years after a sale on executory process under a mortgage, before a suit brought by subsequent mortgagees to have the sale set aside for fraud and illegality, is a serious obstacle to granting relief, when complainants must have known of, or been put on inquiry to ascertain, any matters furnishing ground for relief within a year from the date of the sale.—New Orleans Nat. Banking Ass'n v. Le Breton, 120 U. S. 765, 7 S. Ct. 772, 30 L. Ed. 821.

A mortgage was executed in 1855 for $100,000 on a large tract of land, and a number of slaves. In 1870 the mortgagor conveyed land to the mortgagee in satisfaction of $25,000 of the mortgage debt. A question arose in regard to a partial failure of the consideration through the emancipation of the slaves, and the matter was compromised by reducing the balance due on the mortgage to $51,250. Thereafter the mortgage was foreclosed, and the property bought in by a son of the mortgagor for $30,000. To secure this sum he gave his personal note to the mortgagee. A suit by a subsequent mortgagee was brought to set aside the foreclosure and sale on the ground that they were collusive and fraudulent as to him. Held that, the land conveyed in part satisfaction not being of greater value than the sum credited on the mortgage, the compromise in regard to the consideration being a fair and honest transaction, and no allegation being made that the property sold was worth more than $30,000, the subsequent mortgagee had no ground for complaint, even assuming that the note for the price had never been enforced, but had been remitted as a gratuity or that it had been remitted as consideration for certain quitclaim deeds executed by the purchaser to the mortgagor for the lands conveyed to him on account of the mortgage debt.—Sanger v. Nightingale, 122 U. S. 176, 7 S. Ct. 1109, 30 L. Ed. 1105.

In a suit in equity to set aside a special commissioner's deed of land sold on foreclosure of mortgage, brought by a defendant in the foreclosure suit, alleging that there was no sufficient service of process on him, and that he never appeared or answered therein, it was fairly to be inferred from his bill that he received the subpoena in the foreclosure suit at the time it was commenced, and was aware of all the proceedings therein, and of the change of possession, and that for more than 11 years he made no complaint and took no steps to assert any rights as against the decree and sale, and no excuse for the delay was given. Held, that such delay, if not of itself a bar to his suit, would at least compel any reasonable construction of language which would sustain the decree.—Martin v. Gray, 142 U. S. 236, 12 S. Ct. 186, 35 L. Ed. 997.

A foreclosure sale of mortgaged property may be set aside before confirmation upon the single ground of inadequacy of price, if such price is grossly disproportionate to the value of the property.—Ballentyne v. Smith, 27 S. Ct. 527, 205 U. S. 285, 51 L. Ed. 803.

◀533. Property and rights passing by sale.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1554, 1565, 1565½.

The contract rights under a municipal ordinance, which were the property of a waterworks company, authorized by Laws Miss. 1882, p. 50, to borrow money and secure its payment by mortgage or deed of trust upon its property and franchises, passed by foreclosure and a subsequent quitclaim deed of the property covered by a mortgage of all its property and franchises, privileges and rights.—City of Vicksburg v. Vicksburg Waterworks Co., 26 S. Ct. 600, 202 U. S. 453, 50 L. Ed. 1102, 6 Ann. Cas. 253.

◀534. Estate or interest acquired.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1556.

In condemnation proceedings of real estate under Confiscation Act July 17, 1862 (12 Stat. 589, c. 195), a mortgagee intervened for the protection of his rights. On decree in his favor, the property was sold, and the proceeds applied in part satisfaction of his debt. The United States realized nothing. Held, in ejectment against the purchaser by the heirs of the original owner, that the intervention did not amount to a foreclosure, and that the purchaser took only what the condemnation sale purported to convey,—an estate for the life of the owner for whose act it was forfeited.—Waples v. Hays, 108 U. S. 6, 1 S. Ct. 80, 27 L. Ed. 632.

◀538. Effect of defects or irregularities in judgment, decree, or sale.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1470, 1525, 1559.

Where a purchaser of land from an assignee in bankruptcy is put in possession, and is made a party to subsequent foreclosure proceedings in a state court which has jurisdiction of the parties and of the foreclosure of liens, he cannot maintain ejectment against one who purchases the land on such proceedings, and is put in possession, on the ground that the state court had no jurisdiction by reason of the bankruptcy proceedings, but the error, if any, can be corrected by appeal from the decree in foreclosure only.—Adams v. Conner, 133 U. S. 296, 10 S. Ct. 304, 33 L. Ed. 623.

◀553. Grantees of purchasers.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1581.

The grantees of the purchasers of property at a sale under foreclosure cannot claim that they were misled in any way as to their liability for unpaid taxes, where, by the terms of the decree, the sale was to be made subject to any indebtedness that might subsequently be charged against the property prior in lien to that of the mortgages foreclosed, and on the confirmation of the sale, and before they took title from the purchasers at such sale, the order specifically included within the obligations which must be assumed any taxes which might "finally be adjudged to be a lien on the property." Decree 62 P. 987, 10 N. M. 416, affirmed.—United States Trust Co. v. Territory of New Mexico, 22 S. Ct. 172, 183 U. S. 535, 46 L. Ed. 315.

The grantee of a purchaser at a foreclosure sale cannot, because of the insufficiency of the affidavit for service by publication, be dispossessed or the judgment set aside by a court of equity at the instance of one claiming under the mortgagor by a deed subsequent to the mortgage, which remains unpaid; but the latter is only entitled to be let in to make any equitable defense which he may have. Judgment 62 P. 805, 10 Okl. 186, reversed.—Romig v. Gillett, 23 S. Ct. 40, 187 U. S. 111, 47 L. Ed. 97.

◀554. Conveyance to purchaser.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1582-1591.

The deed from a trustee in a mortgage conveys whatever title he had, although it recites a decree of foreclosure; since it will not be assumed from this recital that the trustee acted only by virtue of the power which the decree conferred. Judgment 23 App. D. C. 587, affirmed.—Chesapeake Beach Ry. Co. v. Washington, P. & C. R. Co., 26 S. Ct. 25, 199 U. S. 247, 50 L. Ed. 175.

¶556. — In general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. ¶ 1592-1595, 1597.

It is not error to dismiss petitions filed by the mortgagor after hearing on the bill, alleging that plaintiff had previously begun an action on the notes secured by the deeds of trust; that at the hearing petitioner first learned that plaintiff claimed a personal decree against him, under a prayer for general relief, and that his personal liability on the notes was then barred by limitation; and praying that plaintiff be required to elect between his action at law and his claim for a personal decree for deficiency,—where it is not shown that the mortgagor was ever served with process, or appeared in the action at law, and where the principal notes were not barred at the time the bill was filed, and the mortgagor did not, in his answer to the bill, set up the statute of limitations as to any part of the interest or principal claimed.—Shepherd v. Pepper, 133 U. S. 626, 10 S. Ct. 438, 33 L. Ed. 706.

¶559. Personal judgment for deficiency.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. ¶ 1592, 1600-1603, 1605-1608.

Rev. St. § 808, relating to the District of Columbia, providing that liens shall be enforced by bill in equity, and that the decree, besides subjecting the thing on which the lien has attached to the debt, shall adjudge that plaintiff recover his demand against defendant, and have execution therefor, authorizes a personal judgment against a defendant on the foreclosure of a deed of trust in the nature of a mortgage.—Dodge v. Freedman's Savings & Trust Co., 106 U. S. 445, 1 S. Ct. 335, 27 L. Ed. 206.

Equity rule 92, providing that, in suits in equity for the foreclosure of mortgages, "a decree may be rendered for any balance that may be found due to complainant over and above the proceeds of the sale or sales," does not authorize a deficiency decree, unless the bill shows that the amount is actually due.—Ohio Cent. R. Co. v. Central Trust Co., 133 U. S. 83, 10 S. Ct. 235, 33 L. Ed. 561.

Under Rev. St. U. S. § 808, relating to the District of Columbia, providing that "the proceeding to enforce any lien shall be by bill or petition in equity, and the decree, besides subjecting the thing upon which the lien has attached to the satisfaction of the plaintiff's demand against the defendant, shall adjudge that the plaintiff recover his demand against defendant," where a bill for the foreclosure of trust deeds prays for general relief, a personal decree against the mortgagor for deficiency is proper, and it is discretionary with the trial court to refuse the mortgagor's petition that plaintiff be required to amend his bill so as to make it a bill for a personal decree.—Shepherd v. Pepper, 133 U. S. 626, 10 S. Ct. 438, 33 L. Ed. 706.

¶561. Actions for deficiency.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. ¶ 1609-1621.

A grantee whose deed contains a stipulation that he will assume and pay off a mortgage on the land is personally and primarily liable for any deficiency remaining after the proceeds of the land have been applied to the debt, in a direct action brought by the mortgagee in his own name. Judgment 53 P. 583, 6 Ariz. 125, affirmed.—Johns v. Wilson, 21 S. Ct. 445, 180 U. S. 440, 45 L. Ed. 613.

(L) DISPOSITION OF PROCEEDS AND SURPLUS.

¶563. Disposition in general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. ¶ 1622-1636, 1632.

Under a deed of trust to secure M., covering land in the District of Columbia, owned by B. and W. as tenants in common, the land was sold to B. in 1873. The amount secured by the deed was $5,000 of principal and $2,429.02 interest, expenses and taxes. The sale was for enough to pay all this and leave a sum due to W. for her share of the surplus. The terms of sale were not carried out, but M. advanced to B. $3,200 more (out of which the $2,429.02 was paid), and took a deed of trust for $8,200, which was recorded as a first lien. A deed of trust to secure the amount going to W. was recorded as a second lien, but was never accepted by W. Litigation afterwards ensued, to which M. and B. and W. were parties, and in which a sale of the land was ordered, and made in 1880, and M. bought it for a sum not sufficient to pay the $7,429.02, with interest, and the subsequent taxes on the land. W. claimed priority out of the purchase money for her share of the surplus on the sale of 1873, and M. claimed the right to set off against the purchase money enough of her claim for the $7,429.02 and interest, and the subsequent taxes, to absorb it. Held, that the parties had abandoned the sale of 1873, and that the sale of 1880 must be regarded as a sale to enforce the original deed of trust to secure M., and that W. had no right to any of the proceeds of the sale of 1880.—Mellen v. Wallach, 112 U. S. 41, 5 S. Ct. 15, 28 L. Ed. 633.

¶566. Debts or obligations secured by same mortgage.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. ¶ 1630.

Where a mortgage of real property secures notes held by different parties, a bankrupt sale, by order of court, and a purchase thereat by one of the holders of such notes, will not merge part of the mortgage and keep a part alive, the legal and equitable title being united, although the other holder had no notice of the sale or the proceedings therefor; and the party who had notice, the mortgage being kept alive, is entitled to a share in the proceeds of a new sale, and to be recompensed out of the proceeds for taxes and improvements, although he must account for rent and profits.—Factors' & Traders' Ins. Co. v. Murphy, 111 U. S. 738, 4 S. Ct. 679, 28 L. Ed. 582.

¶568. Proceedings for distribution.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. ¶ 1639-1646.

In a suit to enforce deeds of trust and mortgage liens, the master reported the amount and priorities of all liens, interest being computed up to October 15, 1875. The debts, according to their priority, were divided into six classes. This report the court on April 28, 1876, confirmed, the decree being silent as to interest on the debts after October 15, 1875. The property was ordered to be sold, which was done, and the commissioners were, by a subsequent decree, authorized to settle with the purchaser, S., by crediting on his bonds for the purchase money the amount of the liens held by him, according to their priority. January 5, 1884, the court directed the commissioners, in distributing the proceeds of sale, to calculate interest on the amount of principal and of the debts as of October 15, 1875. To this S. objected, because that since the decree of April 28, 1876, and before the sale, he had become the owner of certain claims in the sixth class, and that, if interest were calculated on the claims before his, the amount of credit he would receive would be much reduced. Held that, as purchaser, S. could not complain, as the original decree for the sale did not contemplate payment of the purchase price otherwise than in money, and therefore it could not concern him how the proceeds were distributed; and that he could not complain in his capacity as creditor, as the cause up to that time was open and unsettled, and no direction had been made as to computation of interest. If he chose to act on his own judgment of what the final decision would be, he did so at his peril.—Stuart v. Gay, 127 U. S. 518, 8 S. Ct. 1279, 32 L. Ed. 191.

¶570. Decisions reviewable.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1647.

In a suit by a railroad mortgage bondholder to foreclose the mortgage, brought in behalf of himself and all other bondholders, in which another bondholder intervenes, where defendants, by cross-bill, ask to have the mortgage declared not a lien on certain lands, and separate decrees are entered for complainants, ordering the lands to be sold, and dismissing the cross-bill, the supreme court has jurisdiction on appeal as to both plaintiffs, notwithstanding one of them demanded and recovered less than $5,000.—New Orleans Pac. Ry. Co. v. Parker, 143 U. S. 42, 12 S. Ct. 364, 36 L. Ed. 66, affirming decree (C. C.) Parker v. New Orleans, B. R. & V. R. Co., 33 F. 693.

¶571. Right of review.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1648.

On the foreclosure of a railroad mortgage by a sale subject to the lien of the bonds, the interest of the trust company, as trustee under the mortgage, in the proceeding ceases, and the controversy then rests between the purchasers and the interveners alone. An appeal, therefore, by the trust company from decrees in favor of the interveners will not lie.—Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Waterman, 106 U. S. 265, 1 S. Ct. 131, 27 L. Ed. 115.

A railroad was sold on foreclosure of a mortgage by trustees and receivers under a contract that the purchasers would recompense them for their expenses and services in caring for the road. The sale was made through a purchasing committee, who were themselves bondholders, and interested in a second mortgage. Held, that the committee had a right, by leave of the court, to object to the charges and allowances presented by the trustees and receivers, and to appeal from an order allowing the charges.—Williams v. Morgan, 111 U. S. 684, 4 S. Ct. 638, 28 L. Ed. 559.

In a suit for foreclosure of a mortgage on railroad property, interveners filed a petition for the return of certain engines, and for rent due. An order was entered thereon determining the ownership of the engines, and the right to their possession; that they were essential to the operation of the road by the receiver, and should be purchased by him; that certain amounts should be paid for the rentals and the purchase price, which amounts were made a charge on the earnings, income, and property of the railroad; and that the amounts should be paid by the receiver, and any balance unpaid at the date of the foreclosure sale of the railroad should be a first lien thereon, and the sale be made subject thereto. At the following term the mortgagees filed petition for rehearing, but the court made no order in regard thereto; but the order of the previous term was vacated and set aside "by the court of its own motion." By the conditions of the mortgage sale thereafter made, the purchasers were to pay a certain sum in cash, and such further portions of their bid in cash as the court might from time to time direct, in order to meet other claims which the court might adjudge to be prior to the mortgage; and in default thereof it was provided that the road should be resold. The balance of their bid they could pay in cash or first mortgage bonds. The court thereafter set aside the order vacating the first order. To the petition on which this order was made the purchasers demurred, but made no defense, and took no appeal from the order. Thereafter the court ordered that the purchasers pay into court the amount due petitioners, and that in default thereof the mortgaged property be resold. The purchasers were not, by this order, required to pay any amount in excess of their bid. From this decree they appealed. Held, that they had no appealable interest.—Central Trust Co. v. Grant Locomotive Works, 135 U. S. 207, 10 S. Ct. 736, 34 L. Ed. 97.

Even if the vacating order was voidable merely, and not void, the purchasers should, on the hearing to set the vacating order aside, have presented their claim of right to defend on the ground that they made the purchase relying on the permanency of the vacating order.—Id.

Since a purchaser at a foreclosure sale thereby makes himself a party to the proceedings, and subject to the jurisdiction of the court for all orders necessary to compel the perfecting of his purchase, he has the right of appeal on all questions thereafter arising, affecting his bid, which are not foreclosed by the terms of the decree of sale, or are expressly reserved to him thereby.—Kneeland v. American Loan & Trust Co., 136 U. S. 89, 10 S. Ct. 950, 34 L. Ed. 379.

Where a purchaser at a foreclosure sale is not concluded by the terms of the decree, any subsequent rulings of the court which determine in what securities, of diverse values, his bid shall be made good, are matters affecting his interests, in which he has a right to be heard in the trial court and on appeal.—Id.

¶573. Parties.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1650.

An action was brought under the Ohio Code, seeking the foreclosure of a mortgage given to secure a note, and also a personal judgment against the maker. The land had been conveyed by the mortgagor to a third person, who was also made a defendant. The cause was thereafter removed to a federal court, and there proceeded merely as a foreclosure suit in equity, and a decree of foreclosure was entered. Held, that from this decree the maker of the note could not appeal without joining therein his codefendant.—Nash v. Harshman, 149 U. S. 263, 13 S. Ct. 845, 37 L. Ed. 727.

¶574. Taking and perfecting appeal or other proceeding.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1651.

Under Rev. St. § 1000 regulating appeals and requiring a bond conditioned that "plaintiff in error, or appellant, shall prosecute his writ or appeal to effect, and, if he fail to make his plea good, shall answer all damages and costs," a supersedeas bond on appeal from a decree foreclosing a mortgage will not operate as security for the amount of the decree or interest pending appeal, or the balance after applying the proceeds of the mortgage sale, or damages for the detention of the property pending appeal, but only for costs, and against waste, nonpayment of taxes, and loss by fire, if not properly insured.—Omaha Hotel Co. v. Kountze, 107 U. S. 378, 2 S. Ct. 911, 27 L. Ed. 609.

578. Scope and mode of review.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1655.

An appeal from an order directing the payment of the money from a foreclosure sale into court does not bring up former orders made during the foreclosure for review.—Central Trust Co. v. Grant Locomotive Works, 135 U. S. 207, 10 S. Ct. 736, 34 L. Ed. 97.

Where the sum allowed as an attorney's fee by the court below is within the 5 per cent. stipulated in the trust deed, the supreme court will not hold it to be excessive, when there is no evidence as to the nature of the services rendered or the reasonableness of the charge.—Fowler v. Equitable Trust Co., 141 U. S. 411, 12 S. Ct. 8, 35 L. Ed. 794.

(N) FEES AND COSTS.

Stipulation as to attorney's fees as usury, see Usury, 62.

581. Attorney's fees.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 211½, 1669-1679.

A trust deed which provides that on a sale of the lands by the trustee at public auction, on advertisement, all costs, charges, and expenses including commissions, such as are at the time of sale allowed to sheriffs on execution sales, shall be paid out of the proceeds, gives no right to a solicitor's fee on a foreclosure by suit, although this proceeding is made necessary by the refusal of the trustee to act.—Fowler v. Equitable Trust Co., 141 U. S. 384, 12 S. Ct. 1, 35 L. Ed. 786; Id., 141 U. S. 408, 12 S. Ct. 7, 35 L. Ed. 793.

(O) OPERATION AND EFFECT.

584. Satisfaction of lien.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1682.

An agreement between the purchaser at a foreclosure sale and the mortgagees that he should have time in which to pay the purchase money, "without, however, impairing or novating the original claims, the right to enforce which" was expressly reserved, though recorded, will not keep alive, as to subsequent purchasers, the lien of the mortgage which was extinguished in the foreclosure, nor operate as a new mortgage, since it expresses no present purpose to pledge the land for the debt.—New Orleans Nat. Banking Ass'n v. Adams, 109 U. S. 211, 3 S. Ct. 161, 27 L. Ed. 910.

585. Bar of subsequent foreclosure.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1683.

A second foreclosure of a mortgage may be had for the purpose of terminating the rights of a vendee under a conveyance fraudulently made and withheld from record, and of which the mortgagee had no knowledge, and no means of knowledge, at the time of bringing the first suit. Judgment 53 P. 583, 6 Ariz. 125, affirmed.—Johns v. Wilson, 21 S. Ct. 445, 180 U. S. 440, 45 L. Ed. 613.

The failure to file an amended bill in a foreclosure suit on learning of a secret conveyance to a stranger to the suit will not preclude the plaintiff from having a second foreclosure, if his failure does not prejudice any of the defendants; nor will it deprive him of his rights, except to the costs of the first suit.—Id.

586. Title to property mortgaged.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1684.

The title of a purchaser on a sale under a judgment of foreclosure cannot be attacked collaterally on the ground of the insanity of a mortgagor. Judgment 57 P. 605, 6 Ariz. 340, affirmed.—Luhns v. Hancock, 21 S. Ct. 726, 181 U. S. 567, 45 L. Ed. 1006.

587. Persons concluded in general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1685, 1685½, 1687, 1688.

A mortgagor who, under the record, had parted with his title though by a simulated sale, has no standing to challenge foreclosure against the record owner.—Zayas v. Lothrop, Luce & Co., 34 S. Ct. 108, 231 U. S. 171, 58 L. Ed. 172.

588. Matters concluded in general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1686.

Mere recitals in the orders of a court in foreclosure proceedings, which orders were entered long after the purchaser at foreclosure received his deed, and without notice to him, cannot establish, as against him, in a subsequent suit in a different court, the fact that the decree of sale, which shows no want of jurisdiction on its face, was passed when there was no personal representative of the mortgagor's estate entitled to prosecute the suit.—Halliday v. Stuart, 151 U. S. 229, 14 S. Ct. 302, 38 L. Ed. 141.

590. Rights and remedies of junior incumbrancers.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 1691, 1692.

A decree of sale on the foreclosure of a senior railroad mortgage contained language apparently reserving the rights of a junior mortgagee, who was a party to the suit, for future disposition before the sale was had. He failed to take any action in pursuance thereof, and the sale was made "without redemption or appraisalment," and for seven years thereafter he took no steps to assert his claim. Held, that he and those whom he represented were thereafter debarred from invoking the assistance of a court of equity as against the purchasers at the sale.—Simmons v. Burlington, C. R. & N. Ry. Co., 159 U. S. 278, 16 S. Ct. 1, 40 L. Ed. 150.

591. Right to redeem in general.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1693, 1694-1708.

There is no common-law or equitable right of redemption after foreclosure sale, in the absence of any statutory provision on the subject.—Parker v. Dacres, 130 U. S. 43, 9 S. Ct. 423, 32 L. Ed. 848, affirming Same v. D'Acres, 2 Wash. T. 439, 7 P. 893.

See 35 Cent. Dig. Mtg. §§ 1742-1752; 19 Cent. Dig. Equity, §§ 211, 241.

A petition to foreclose a trust deed of certain wild lands in the territory of Nebraska was filed after the death of the beneficiary. Held, that the subsequent decree of foreclosure was void, but that a court of equity would not be justified in permitting the assertion of an outstanding equity of redemption after a lapse of 29 years, in the entire absence of the elements of good faith and reasonable diligence.—Harter v. Twhig, 158 U. S. 448, 15 S. Ct. 883, 39 L. Ed. 1049.

Where a junior mortgagee is a party defendant to a foreclosure bill in which there is a prayer that he be decreed to redeem, and a sale is ordered in default of payment, declaring the senior mortgagor's right to redeem forever barred, a similar order as to the right of redemption by the junior mortgagee is not substantially or even formally necessary. He will have a right to redeem without such order, but, if he fail to assert the right, and stand by while the sale is made and confirmed, he must be deemed, in equity, to have waived his right.—Simmons v. Burlington, C. R. & N. Ry. Co., 159 U. S. 278, 16 S. Ct. 1, 40 L. Ed. 150.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 34-39.

The doctrine that where a municipal corporation is wholly void ab initio, as being created without warrant of law, it can create no debts, does not apply to the case of an irregularly organized corporation, which has obtained, by compliance with a general law authorizing the formation of municipal corporations, an organization valid as against everybody except the state acting by direct proceedings. Such an organization is merely voidable, and, if the state refrains from acting until after debts are created, the obligations are not destroyed by a dissolution of the corporation, but they devolve upon the new corporation which succeeds by operation of law to the property and improvements of its predecessor, though the new corporation includes less territory than the old.—Shapleigh v. Bank v. City of Guthrie, 19 S. Ct. 513, 173 U. S. 528, 43 L. Ed. 796.

—46. Amendment of charter or special act.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 123-125.

A change in a city charter confined to the matters relating to the acquisition and operation of a municipal water plant is an amendment and not a revision, within Const. Colo. art. 20, investing the people of the city by section 4 with exclusive power in revising or amending the charter, and makes a distinction in section 5 between an amendment and a revision in extenso; the difference being that an amendment may be initiated by petition, while a revised charter requires the intervention of a charter convention.—City and County of Denver v. New York Trust Co., 33 S. Ct. 657, 229 U. S. 123, 57 L. Ed. 1101, reversing decree 187 F. 890, 110 C. C. A. 24.

Amending a municipal charter so as to prevent the granting of any franchise to furnish water as a part of a plan to establish a municipal water plant, authorized by Const. Colo. art. 20, § 1, does not violate section 4 of that article, providing that the question of granting a desired franchise shall be submitted to the electors on the deposit with the city treasurer of the expense of the submission.—Id.

Amendments to a city charter adopted under the state Constitution supersede pro tanto the original provisions of the charter with which they are not in accord.—Id.

—48. New charter and reorganization.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 127, 128, 130-133.

Where the legislature repeals the charter of a municipal corporation, and reincorporates substantially the same people as a municipal body under a new name for the same general purpose, and the great mass of the taxable property of the old corporation is included within the limits of the new, and the property of the old corporation used for public purposes is transferred, without consideration, to the new corporation for the same public uses, the latter, notwithstanding a great reduction of its corporate limits, is the successor, in law, of the former, and liable for its debts; and, if any part of the creditors of the old corporation are left without provision for the payment of their claims, they can enforce satisfaction out of the new.—Port of Mobile v. Watson, 116 U. S. 289, 6 S. Ct. 398, 29 L. Ed. 620.

The present city of Manila, reincorporated by the Philippine commission with substantially the same municipal powers, area, and inhabitants as the Spanish municipality of the same name, is liable upon municipal obligations incurred prior to the cession of the Philippine islands by treaty of Paris (Act Dec. 10, 1898, 30 Stat. 1754) to the United States.—Vilas v. City of Manila, 31 S. Ct. 416, 220 U. S. 345, 55 L. Ed. 491.

Of counties, see Counties, —24.

—64. Nature and scope of legislative power in general.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 156, 157.

The general power of a state over municipalities extends to regulating the kinds of laborers which may be employed in public works of such municipalities.—Heim v. McCall, 36 S. Ct. 78, 239 U. S. 175, 60 L. Ed. 206, affirming judgment 108 N. E. 1095, 214 N. Y. 629.

—68. Municipal property.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 166-169.

The act of congress of March 2, 1867, authorizes the entry of land occupied as a town site by the county judge, "in trust for the several use and benefit of the occupants thereof, according to their respective interests, the execution of which trust, as to the disposal of the lots in such town, and the proceeds of the sales thereof, to be conducted under such rules as may be prescribed by the legislature of the state or territory." Held, that the legislature of the territory could not, under the authority conferred by the above act of congress, change or close the streets, alleys, and blocks of the town by a new survey.—Ashby v. Hall, 119 U. S. 526, 7 S. Ct. 308, 30 L. Ed. 469, affirming judgment Parcher v. Ashby, 5 Mont. 68, 1 P. 204.

Therefore a lot owner in such a town, who at the time of such entry has a right to ingress and egress in an alley, cannot be deprived thereof by a subsequent order and conveyance of the county court.—Id.

—71. Grants of franchises or privileges.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 175.

The power to charter a street railway was not withdrawn from the Legislature by Const. Tex. 1876, art. 10, § 7, providing that "no law shall be passed by the Legislature, granting the right to construct and operate a street railway within any city, town, or village, or upon any public highway, without first acquiring the consent of the local authorities having control of the street or highway proposed to be occupied by said railway," but such power still exists, provided the consent of the local authorities be first acquired. Judgment (Tex. Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 106, affirmed.—San Antonio Traction Co. v. Altgelt, 26 S. Ct. 261, 200 U. S. 304, 50 L. Ed. 491.

—75. Consent of local authorities or voters.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 179, 180.

A state legislature, unless restrained by the organic law, having the right to authorize a municipal corporation to issue bonds in aid of a railroad, may levy a tax to pay the bonds and interest with or without a popular vote.—Otoe County v. Baldwin, 111 U. S. 1, 4 S. Ct. 265, 28 L. Ed. 331.

676. Confirmation or ratification of municipal acts.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 181, 687.

Subsequent legislative ratification of the acts of a municipal corporation, which might lawfully have been performed under legislative sanction in the first instance, is equivalent to original authority.—Bolles v. Town of Brimfield, 120 U. S. 759, 7 S. Ct. 738, 30 L. Ed. 788.

Where railroad aid bonds of a municipality in a territory are void because issued in violation of the act of June 8, 1878 (20 Stat. 101), limiting the power of municipalities to incur debts or obligations necessary to the administration of their internal affairs, congress may subsequently validate such bonds by providing for their funding, where at the time of the passage of such restrictive act there was nothing to prevent congress from authorizing the issuance of such bonds.—Utter v. Franklin, 19 S. Ct. 183, 172 U. S. 416, 43 L. Ed. 498.

Laws Okl. 1890, c. 14, providing for the taxation of property of certain municipalities for the payment of certain claims which arose before they were legally organized, was not beyond the power of the legislature because such claims were not incurred by officers of either a de jure or a de facto municipal government, and, hence, that such municipalities had never, either as corporations de facto or de jure, agreed to pay them.—Guthrie Nat. Bank v. City of Guthrie, 19 S. Ct. 513, 173 U. S. 528, 43 L. Ed. 798.

Possible invalidity of penalties prescribed by municipal ordinance for violation of its provisions as to occupancy of city streets by telegraph company under Act July 24, 1866, does not defeat other provisions, where the penalties are separable from the rest of the ordinance.—(1912) Western Union Tel. Co. v. City of Richmond, 32 S. Ct. 449, 224 U. S. 160, 56 L. Ed. 710, affirming decree (C. C. 1909) 178 F. 810.

A municipal ordinance imposing a license fee on a local telegraph business within the state not excepting messages for the federal government forwarded by a company which has accepted provisions of act July 24, 1866, renders the whole tax invalid.—Williams v. City of Talladega, 33 S. Ct. 116, 226 U. S. 404, 57 L. Ed. 275, reversing judgment 51 So. 330, 164 Ala. 633.

The provisions of a city ordinance relating to the motive power of railroad companies having rights in streets are so far separable from provisions prohibiting the hauling of freight cars and those declaring forfeiture for violation of the ordinance that the regulation may be enforced against the use of steam locomotives, though prohibition against hauling freight cars may be invalid.—Southern Pac. Co. v. City of Portland, 33 S. Ct. 308, 227 U. S. 559, 57 L. Ed. 642, affirming decree (C. C.) 177 F. 958.

Where an ordinance imposing a license tax on an express company as a condition precedent to its transaction of interstate business within the city is invalid, a provision of the ordinance requiring a bond for each vehicle conditioned for the safe and prompt delivery of baggage is also void.—Barrett v. City of New York, 34 S. Ct. 203, 232 U. S. 14, 58 L. Ed. 483, reversing decree (C. C.) 189 F. 268.

Decree 91 F. 28, 33 C. C. A. 319, reversed.—Moffett, Hodgkins & Clarke Co. v. City of Rochester, 20 S. Ct. 957, 178 U. S. 373, 44 L. Ed. 1108.

A city cannot claim that a bidder who has made a mistake in his proposals did not intend to give the executive board of the city an opportunity to correct the mistake, where, before the time expressed in the resolutions of the board for the bidder to appear and execute a contract or be regarded as abandoning any intention to do so, the bidder filed a bill in a court of equity to determine the rights of the parties, and the city made a reformation of the proposals impossible by letting the contract to another party.—Id.

Gen. St. Kan. 1868, p. 154, c. 19, entitled "An act to incorporate cities of the second class," provided that each city should constitute one school district, unless divided by the council; and it vested title to all school property in the city, which was to constitute a single district for purposes of taxation. The school board, which was to be chosen at the annual city election, was authorized to issue bonds for certain purposes with the consent of the council; and a tax was required to be levied sufficient to pay the interest on the bonds and create a sinking fund. Before the city of A. was incorporated under this act it had constituted a county school district, such districts being bodies corporate, under Pub. Laws Kan. 1858, § 37, c. 8. Held, that whether the school board was merely an administrative agent of the municipality, or the city and school district were separate corporations, inasmuch as they were coterminous, bonds issued by the board according to law are valid obligations of the city.—Board of Education of City of Atchison v. De Kay, 148 U. S. 591, 13 S. Ct. 706, 37 L. Ed. 573.

Section 2486 provides that any city, whenever it may be deemed expedient, may erect or purchase gas works. Held, that a city can erect gas works at pleasure, and without any failure on the part of the gas company already existing to perform the duties required by the statute.—Hamilton Gaslight & Coke Co. v. City of Hamilton, 146 U. S. 258, 13 S. Ct. 90, 36 L. Ed. 963, affirming judgment (C. C.) 37 F. 832.

¶278. Exercise of power in general.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 734-738, 744.

No such evidence of fraud or gross abuse of power by a municipal council is shown by its decision to pave with asphalt a street already macadamized as will justify the courts in setting aside the tax bills for the improvement, where a majority of the abutting owners had petitioned for the asphalt pavement, no protest or objection was made during the progress of the work, and the testimony tends to show that the macadam was considerably worn and that the value of abutting property was enhanced by the improvement. Decree (C. C.) 117 F. 925, modified.—Field v. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co., 24 S. Ct. 784, 194 U. S. 618, 48 L. Ed. 1142.

¶285. Power to grant franchise or privilege in general.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 757.

A city was authorized by its charter "to grant the right to use the streets of said city for the purpose of laying gas and other pipes intended to furnish the inhabitants of said city with light or water, to any persons or association of persons for a term not exceeding twenty-five years, * * * provided always, that none of the rights or privileges herein granted shall be exclusive, nor prevent the council from granting the said rights to others"; and it was further provided that the city "shall have power to erect and maintain waterworks within or without the city limits, or to authorize the erection of the same, for the purpose of furnishing the city or the inhabitants thereof with a sufficient supply of water." An ordinance was passed by the city council, and accepted by a water company, granting to such company for a term of 25 years the right to lay mains and pipes in all the streets of the city for the purpose of furnishing the inhabitants thereof with water, and entering into a contract with the company for the same term by which the city agreed to pay certain rentals, and bound itself not to erect, maintain, or become interested in waterworks, unless the contract should be avoided by the judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction on the ground of a substantial failure of performance by the company. Such ordinance contained no provision that the grant made should be exclusive. Held, that the ordinance did not create a monopoly, or prevent the granting of a similar franchise to another company, and was within the powers of the city under its charter. Decree, Walla Walla Water Co. v. City of Walla Walla (C. C.) 60 F. 957, affirmed.—City of Walla Walla v. Walla Walla Water Co., 19 S. Ct. 77, 172 U. S. 1, 43 L. Ed. 341.

Such a contract is not invalid, or ineffectual to bind the city, on the ground that it was made in the exercise of the police power, which remains constantly under the control of the legislative authority. While the exercise of the rights granted is subject to police regulation, if the contract, which is innocuous in itself, is carried out with due regard to the good order of the city and the health of its inhabitants, the police power cannot be invoked to abrogate or impair it.—Id.

Neither is such contract objectionable or invalid by reason of the stipulation that the city would not during its term erect waterworks of its own; there being no attempt thereby to create a monopoly, and the city reserving the right therein to take, condemn, and pay for the works of the company at any time. Taking into consideration the nature of the contract, the large expenditure which it involved on the part of the company, and the ruinous effect on its property which the direct competition of the city would necessarily have, such provision is a lawful incident to the principal contract, and amounts to little more than an agreement that the city would carry out the contract on its part in good faith, and, if it should desire to establish waterworks of its own, would not enter into such competition.—Id.

Municipal power to grant an exclusive franchise cannot be deduced from provisions of the Kansas statutes conferring, inter alia, power to provide for the general welfare, and to enable the municipality to construct water and lighting plants of its own, or to make contracts with any person or company for such purposes, and giving such person or company the privilege of furnishing light for streets, lanes, or alleys for any length of time not exceeding 21 years—especially where the section most relied upon as conferring this power had been so amended before its attempted exercise as to omit the words "the exclusive privilege." Decree (C. C. 1906) 144 F. 256, affirmed.—Water, Light & Gas Co. of Hutchinson, Kan., v. City of Hutchinson, 28 S. Ct. 135, 207 U. S. 385, 52 L. Ed. 257.

An ordinance of a city council establishing a water board provided that no contract or purchase estimated to involve an expenditure of more than $10,000 should be made by the board without advertising for proposals. Afterwards, for the purpose of an extension of the water supply, the plans for which involved the use of a patented pumping engine and machinery, estimated to cost more than $100,000, the city council passed an order authorizing the board to exchange engines and machinery of insufficient capacity for those of the capacity required by such plans and estimates, the expense to be charged to the appropriation for the extension. Held, that this dispensed with advertising for proposals for such exchange, although an expenditure exceeding $10,000 was involved.—Worthington v. City of Boston, 152 U. S. 695, 14 S. Ct. 737, 38 L. Ed. 603, reversing judgment (C. C.) 41 F. 23.

Where a contract with a city for the construction of a system of waterworks provides that extra work involved by any change of plan shall be paid for at contract rate for work of its class, which rate is calculated at so much per lineal foot, and the city makes a change of plan involving extra work of a much more difficult character than that involved in the original plan upon which the general contract price for the work was based, the actual increase of cost must be paid for.—Wood v. City of Ft. Wayne, 119 U. S. 312, 7 S. Ct. 219, 30 L. Ed. 416.

368. Guaranties of work and stipulations for repairs.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 901.

Defendant agreed to pave certain streets with the "Miller wood pavement," and that if the pavement should become defective within three years, by reason of improper material or construction, he would repair it, or, if he failed to do so, that the city might repair it at his expense. The pavement became defective within three years, and the city replaced the wood with vulcanite concrete pavement. No evidence was given that the defects in the pavement were due to improper work or materials. Held, that without proof of this defendant was not chargeable with the cost of the repairs, and that if he were so chargeable he could not be required to bear any part of the expense of substituting a different kind of pavement.—District of Columbia v. Clephane, 110 U. S. 212, 3 S. Ct. 568, 28 L. Ed. 122.

In 1858 the Legislature of Louisiana adopted a system of drainage for the city of New Orleans, to be controlled by commissioners, and to be paid for by assessments. Act La. Feb. 24, 1871, entitled "An act to provide for the drainage of New Orleans," empowered a canal company to excavate draining canals under the control of the board of administrators of New Orleans, all land acquired for the purpose to be held for the benefit of the city; and to provide funds for the work all property rights held by the commissioners, together with uncollected assessments, were transferred to the board, and it was authorized to make future assessments,—all money to be held by the board for the benefit of the canal company and the ultimate benefit of the city. The act provided the price to be paid for the work. The city passed an ordinance to carry out the purpose of the act, authorizing the issue by the board of city warrants to the canal company, fundable, if not paid in a year, in bonds of the city, and a large number of warrants and bonds were so issued. Act La. Feb. 24, 1876, authorized the city to purchase from the canal company all their rights, which it did, but no further work was done, thus rendering the previous work useless. Complainants sued the city on warrants issued to the canal company, and recovered judgment, "to be paid out of said drainage fund," and filed a bill to enforce the judgment against the city on the ground that it had been negligent in failing to collect assessments. Held that, even if the contractors could hold the city—which was merely a compulsory trustee of the drainage fund—liable for neglect to collect assessments, instead of proceeding by mandamus against the board of administrators, yet, where it appears that the assessments were uncollected by the original commissioners for 13 years, that the land was not worth the amount assessed against it, and that agents of the city and of the contractors unsuccessfully tried to make collections, no negligence is shown.—Peake v. City of New Orleans, 139 U. S. 342, 11 S. Ct. 541, 35 L. Ed. 131, affirming judgment (C. C.) 38 F. 779.

In such case, even if the city is liable for assessments on its streets, yet having, in anticipation of collections from assessments, issued its bonds in an amount greater than would be due from it, no further liability exists, though in issuing the bonds they were intended to be in discharge of their liability.—Id.

Nor can the city be held liable on the ground that, after purchasing the rights and property of the canal company, it abandoned the work, and thereby made the land previously drained valueless as a pledge for the assessments against it, since a municipal corporation may at any time abandon a public improvement, without becoming liable to third persons, who have invested on the faith of such improvement.—Id.

A city which purchases with drainage warrants a plant to perfect its drainage system cannot defeat liability for breach of its agreement to facilitate the collection of drainage assessments and apply the fund to payment of the warrants by setting up a judgment holding the assessments noncollectible because of its abandonment of the drainage system. Decree, Warner v. City of New Orleans, 81 F. 645, 26 C. C. A. 508, modified.—City of New Orleans v. Warner, 20 S. Ct. 44, 175 U. S. 120, 44 L. Ed. 96.

Repudiation of its trust by a city which has purchased with drainage warrants a plant to perfect its drainage system, under an agreement to facilitate the collection of the drainage assessments and apply the fund to payment of the warrants, is not shown by abandonment of the drainage work soon after purchasing the plant.—Id.

A charter provision that the cost of planking is to be paid out of the general taxes does not prevent a later special assessment therefor upon the owners of property abutting on a local improvement, in the carrying out of which such planking was done.—City of Seattle v. Kelleher, 25 S. Ct. 44, 195 U. S. 351, 49 L. Ed. 232.

407. Constitutional requirements and restrictions.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1003, 1004.

Act Ky. March 24, 1882, giving the city of Louisville control of its streets, with power to construct and reconstruct them, and to make assessments therefor on the adjoining lots, and creating a lien therefor, payment to be enforced by proceedings in court, is not in conflict with Const. Amend. 14, securing to all persons the equal protection of the laws.—Walston v. Nevin, 128 U. S. 578, 9 S. Ct. 192, 32 L. Ed. 544, affirming Nevin v. Roach, 86 Ky. 492, 5 S. W. 546.

Lessees of state tidelands are not denied constitutional rights by state statutes authorizing the assessment of such leaseholds for local improvements.—Trinble v. City of Seattle, 34 S. Ct. 218, 231 U. S. 683, 58 L. Ed. 435, affirming judgment 116 P. 647, 64 Wash. 102.

Municipal ordinance establishing a tax district where boundary line after running on a line not 100 feet back from the street jumped 500 feet, when it encountered an undivided tract, and that on the opposite side of the street was 150 feet or 240 feet away, violates Const. Amend. 14.—Gast Realty & Investment Co. v. Schneider Granite Co., 36 S. Ct. 254, 240 U. S. 55, 60 L. Ed. 523, reversing judgment Schneider Granite Co. v. Gast Realty & Inv. Co., 168 S. W. 687, 259 Mo. 153, and rehearing denied Gast Realty & Investment Co. v. Schneider Granite Co., 36 S. Ct. 400, 240 U. S. 55, 60 L. Ed. 526.

411. Nature of improvement.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1008, 1013-1024.

417. — Sewers, drains, and water courses.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1021, 1022.

Under St. Louis City Charter, art. 6, § 22, authorizing the construction of district sewers whenever the board of public improvements shall recommend it as necessary for sanitary purposes, the fact that the construction of the sewer was for sanitary purposes does not make it a public sewer. Judgment, Heman v. Allen, 57 S. W. 559, 156 Mo. 534, affirmed.—Shumate

v. Heman, 21 S. Ct. 645, 181 U. S. 402, 45 L. Ed. 916, 922.

The fact that a district sewer is eight feet wide is not ground for objection to a benefit assessment to pay for its construction on the ground that it is a public sewer, since, under St. Louis City Charter, art. 6, § 22, the board of public improvements is the sole judge of its dimensions, and its acts are not subject to collateral attack.—Id.

The fact that several acres of land not included in the original sewer district have subsequently been drained into the sewer does not affect the liabilities of persons assessed for the construction of the sewer, where their drainage connections with the sewer were made since the sewer district was established, the building of the sewer ordered, the work done, and the tax bill sued on issued for the work.—Id.

418. — Water supply, works, and mains.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1022.

An assessment for laying water mains is not invalid because it exceeds the actual cost of the work, when such mains become a part of the general water system, and the assessment, under the statute authorizing it, is not only to defray the cost of laying the pipes, but to raise a fund for keeping the system in efficient repair.—Parsons v. District of Columbia, 18 S. Ct. 521, 170 U. S. 45, 42 L. Ed. 943.

420. — Parks and other public places.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1024.

The same right exists to make assessments against property specially benefited in aid of a public park as in case of streets or highways.—Craighill v. Lambert, 18 S. Ct. 217, 168 U. S. 611, 42 L. Ed. 599.

421. Nature of property liable.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1025-1037.

426. — Public property.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1035-1037.

In Louisiana, public property is liable to assessment for public improvements. Decree Warner v. City of New Orleans, 81 F. 645, 26 C. C. A. 508, modified.—City of New Orleans v. Warner, 20 S. Ct. 44, 175 U. S. 120, 44 L. Ed. 96.

434. Exemptions.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1045-1050.

Under Act Ill. Feb. 10, 1851, § 22, which exempts the Illinois Cent. R. Co., incorporated by the act, "from all taxation of every kind, except as herein provided for," and provides that the taxes thereby imposed on the company shall be paid into the state treasury, and applied to the payment of state indebtedness, the exemption does not extend to a special tax to defray the cost of grading and paving a street, assessed on land forming a part of the company's right of way, on the ground that the property is enhanced in value by the improvement.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. City of Decatur, 147 U. S. 190, 13 S. Ct. 293, 37 L. Ed. 132, affirming judgment 126 Ill. 92, 18 N. E. 315, 1 L. R. A. 613.

Such charge is not within the exemption from "taxation," as being a special tax, rather than a special assessment, within the distinction recognized by Const. Ill. 1870, art. 9, § 9, giving corporate authorities power "to make local improvements by special assessment, or by special taxation of contiguous property, or otherwise," since the tax is for the cost of a local improvement charged upon the contiguous property benefited thereby.—Id.

435. Conveyances to evade assessment.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1061.

Purchasers of realty, after damages for the part taken in widening of a street have been fixed by judgment, take the property subject to the same liability as the original owners to an assessment for the benefits from such improvements.—Willoughby v. City of Chicago, 35 S. Ct. 23, 235 U. S. 45, 59 L. Ed. 123, dismissing writ of error City of Chicago v. Willoughby, 94 N. E. 513, 249 Ill. 249.

436. Benefits to property.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1061-1067.

439. — Nature, extent, and amount.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1063.

The fact that the only use made of a lot abutting on a street improvement is for a railway right of way does not make invalid, under Const. U. S. Amend. 14, for lack of benefits, an assessment thereon for the grading, curbing, and paving, made under the area rule prescribed by St. Ky. §§ 2833, 2834. Judgment 76 S. W. 1097, 25 Ky. Law Rep. 1024, affirmed.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co., 25 S. Ct. 466, 197 U. S. 430, 49 L. Ed. 819.

440. — Previous existence of similar improvement.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1064-1067.

An abutting owner cannot urge against the validity of a drainage tax assessment for connecting her property with a sewer that no showing was made that any nuisance existed on her property, or that the means of drainage already there were unsanitary or insufficient, or that any necessity existed for making the connection. Judgment (1907) 29 App. D. C. 563, reversed.—District of Columbia v. Brooke, 29 S. Ct. 560, 214 U. S. 138, 53 L. Ed. 941.

444. Effect of defects in proceedings preliminary to improvement.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1064, 1069.

A misdescription of the lands taken in proceedings to make a local improvement constitutes no defense to a person whose lands were not taken, against an assessment upon his property for benefits. Judgment 82 N. W. 255, 123 Mich. 559, 7 Detroit Leg. N. 11, affirmed.—Goodrich v. City of Detroit, 22 S. Ct. 397, 184 U. S. 432, 46 L. Ed. 627.

445. Effect of invalidity of or irregularity in contract.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1065.

Tax bills for a public improvement will not be set aside after full performance, because of the acts of the agent of the contractor looking toward the securing of the contract, where no fraud or corruption is shown.—Decree (C. C.) 117 F. 925, modified.—Field v. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co., 24 S. Ct. 784, 194 U. S. 618, 48 L. Ed. 1142.

449. Ordinance, resolution, or order for levy.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1072.

A resolution that the common council fix and determine that a specified district is benefited by the opening of a certain street, and that there be assessed and levied upon the real estate therein included a certain amount, in proportion, as near as may be, to the advantage which each lot or parcel is deemed to acquire, by the improvement, is in substantial conformity to Comp. Laws Mich. 1897, § 3406, which in effect provides that the common council may assess upon such district as it deems benefited the whole or a part of the cost of the improvement, in proportion, as nearly as may be, to the advantage which each lot derives, and limits the assessment on any lot to the benefits received. Judgment 82 N. W. 255, 123 Mich. 559, 7 Detroit Leg. N. 11, affirmed.—Goodrich v. City of Detroit, 22 S. Ct. 397, 184 U. S. 432, 46 L. Ed. 627.

⚡453. Commissioners or others specially appointed to make assessment.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1076-1079.

In the matter of assessing benefits under the right of taxation it is within the discretion of the legislature to commit the ascertainment of the lands to be assessed as well as the apportionment of the assessment among the different parcels, to the determination of commissioners appointed as the legislature may prescribe.—Bauman v. Ross, 17 S. Ct. 966, 187 U. S. 548, 42 L. Ed. 270.

Whether the estimate of damages and the assessment of benefits shall be by the same or different commissioners is a matter wholly within the decision of the legislature, as justice and convenience appear to it to require.—Id.

⚡455. Notice of proceedings for making of assessment and hearing thereon.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1084-1093.

The charter of the city of Portland, Or. (chapter 10, § 121), in general terms grants to the council power to construct sewers, and to assess the cost thereof upon the property benefited thereby. An ordinance passed pursuant to this section ordered the construction of a sewer, declared that certain territory in the city should be drained thereby, and should constitute the district upon which its cost should be assessed, and provided for a board of viewers to apportion the cost among the property owners, directing them to hold meetings at stated times and places to hear all who had an interest in the proceedings. Held, that a provision for notice to property owners was implied therein, and it could not be objected that the ordinance was void for failure to embody an express provision therefor, especially after the viewers have given notice and recited the same in their report, which has been duly confirmed by the council.—Paulsen v. City of Portland, 149 U. S. 30, 13 S. Ct. 750, 37 L. Ed. 637, affirming judgment 19 P. 450, 16 Or. 450.

⚡464. Apportionment of benefits and expenses of improvement.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1108-1124.

⚡465. — In general.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1108.

That private property is to be assessed for the entire cost of a public improvement, including the benefit to streets and public squares, is not shown by the fact that the statute makes no provision as to how the proportion of the expense applicable to public property is to be assessed and paid for, while elaborate provision is made for the assessment of private property for its proportion of the expense. Decree Warner v. City of New Orleans, 81 F. 645, 26 C. C. A. 508, modified.—City of New Orleans v. Warner, 20 S. Ct. 44, 175 U. S. 120, 44 L. Ed. 96.

⚡466. — Benefit to property in general.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1109.

The apportionment of the cost of widening an alley in the city of Washington upon the property lying within the square through which such alley runs must be limited to benefits, where the jury of award, although directed by Act July 22, 1892, c. 230, 27 Stat. 255, as amended by Act Aug. 24, 1894, c. 328, 28 Stat. 501, to apportion an amount equal to the damages ascertained and appraised, is to apportion such amount "according as each lot or part of lot in such square may be benefited." Judgments (1906) 28 App. D. C. 140, 146, reversed.—Martin v. District of Columbia, 27 S. Ct. 440, 205 U. S. 135, 51 L. Ed. 743; Brandenburg v. Same, Id.

⚡486. Notice of assessment.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1084-1090, 1161.

Notice of the passage of a St. Louis city ordinance establishing a district sewer, or of the assessment of the costs of such sewer, before issuing a special tax bill therefor, is not necessary. Judgment, Heman v. Allen, 57 S. W. 559, 156 Mo. 534, affirmed.—Shumate v. Heman, 21 S. Ct. 645, 181 U. S. 402, 45 L. Ed. 916, 922.

⚡487. Persons who may question validity of assessment.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1146.

The doctrine respecting bona fide purchasers for value cannot be invoked to prevent the enforcement of the lien of a reassessment for a local improvement by one who purchased the property affected after the original attempt to assess had been declared void, and before the new assessment was authorized.—City of Seattle v. Kelleher, 25 S. Ct. 44, 186 U. S. 351, 49 L. Ed. 232.

⚡488, 489. Estoppel or waiver as to defects or objections.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1147-1153.

No objection to failure to give notice of meetings of the common council on proceedings to confirm a special assessment is available to a property owner who, after appearing before the commissioners appointed to make it, and protesting solely to save the right of review, interests himself in the sale of, and assists in disposing of, the bonds issued to pay for the improvement. Decree (Ariz. 1907) 89 P. 501, affirmed.—English v. Territory of Arizona ex rel. Griffith, 29 S. Ct. 658, 214 U. S. 359, 53 L. Ed. 1030.

⚡492. Amendment or correction by officers making assessment.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1156-1158.

Nearly 12 months after the assessment roll for street improvements was completed and deposited in the register's office as required by law, an interlineation was made in the roll opposite certain lots, against which no charge had up to that time been made, as follows: "Entered November 17, 1870. This work was done at this date, but by request of the owner, not entered until November —, 1871." In the meantime the lots had been sold to a bona fide purchaser without notice. Held, that the interlineation was in no sense a reassessment or an amendment of the original assessment, but was simply an unwarranted alteration, and created no lien as against the purchaser's title.—Lyon v. Alley, 130 U. S. 177, 9 S. Ct. 480, 32 L. Ed. 899.

⚡493. Confirmation or revision of assessment by municipal council or board.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1091-1093, 1160-1165.

Notice is not essential, where notice was given in the meetings of the commissioners appointed to make the assessment. Decree (Ariz. 1907) 89 P. 501, affirmed.—English v. Territory of Arizona ex rel. Griffith, 29 S. Ct. 658, 214 U. S. 359, 53 L. Ed. 1030.

⚡513. Actions to enjoin or set aside assessment.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1188-1193, 1196-1206; 2 Cent. Dig. App. & E. §§ 137, 569.

In a suit to enjoin a special assessment on city lots, a mere allegation that the amount of the tax on each lot is greater than the value of the lot, and that defendant is seeking to compel complainant to pay the full amount of the tax regardless of the value of the lots, is not sufficient to raise the question of the taking of property without due process of law, contrary to the federal constitution. Judgment 70 N. W. 606, 101 Iowa, 416, reversed.—Dewey v. City of Des Moines, 19 S. Ct. 879, 173 U. S. 193, 43 L. Ed. 665.

—514. Reassessment or additional assessment.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1207-1215.

Where an ordinance providing for special improvements in a city, and limiting assessments therefor to contiguous property, is declared void, and subsequently, under section 20 of the act enabling park commissioners to make local improvements (Acts 1896, p. 289), which provides for a new special assessment on property benefited when such special improvement ordinances are declared void, another ordinance is passed providing for an assessment upon all property benefited, the validity of the assessment under the last ordinance cannot be questioned, on account of its making all property benefited assessable, by one who fails to show that his property was not included in the terms of the prior ordinance. Judgment 55 N. E. 325, 182 Ill. 250, affirmed.—Farrell v. West Chicago Park Com'rs, 21 S. Ct. 609, 645, 181 U. S. 404, 45 L. Ed. 916, 924.

Section 20 of the act enabling park commissioners to make local improvements (Acts 1896, p. 289) provides that in case a special improvement ordinance, or an assessment thereunder, is declared void after part or all of the improvements have been made, a new ordinance and special assessment may be passed. A special assessment was made under an ordinance of park commissioners, and was confirmed by the county court, but subsequently the supreme court declared the ordinance and assessment void. Afterwards F., also, whose property had been assessed under said ordinance, obtained in the supreme court a reversal of the order confirming said assessment. Subsequently a new ordinance was passed under said section 20, reciting the annulment of the former, and ordering that a new assessment be levied against the property; but, while proceedings were pending in the county court for confirmation of this assessment, F.'s case, which had been removed from the docket pending appeal, was reinstated for the purpose of filing the remanding order of the supreme court. Held, that the new ordinance and assessment were proper after the first decision of the supreme court, despite said proceedings in the county court after the second decision.—Id.

Under section 20 of the act enabling park commissioners to make local improvements (Acts 1896, p. 289), which provides that, when a special assessment is declared void after all or some of the improvements have been made, they may levy, assess, and collect new special assessments on property benefited by said improvements, and that each lot or tract of such property shall be liable, severally, to pay such benefits to the same extent and in the same proportion as in other cases, the share to be paid by each lot or tract is the proportionate share of the cost of the improvements as a whole, and evidence offered to show the cost of the part of the improvements abutting each lot or tract should be excluded.—Id.

—519. Lien and priority.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1220-1227; 36 Cent. Dig. Mtg. § 324.

Where an act imposing and levying a tax for street improvements declares that the tax shall be assessed and collected in conformity with the provisions of certain other acts, which prescribe the mode and time of assessment, and the different steps to be taken preliminary to such assessment and collection, whatever lien is created by the terms of the levying act can only attach according to the terms and conditions of the acts therein referred to; and the lien does not attach, without more, at the date of the passage of the levying act.—Lyon v. Alley, 130 U. S. 177, 9 S. Ct. 480, 32 L. Ed. 899.

—520. Payment.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1222-1231, 1233, 1239.

—521. — In general.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1222, 1230, 1231, 1233, 1239.

It is within the power of the legislature to make the cost of highway improvements assessed upon real estate payable forthwith, and an immediate lien thereon.—Bauman v. Ross, 17 S. Ct. 966, 167 U. S. 548, 42 L. Ed. 270.

—523. Refunding or recovery of assessment or tax paid.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1232-1236.

The Utah statute authorizing any party aggrieved by special assessment to pay the tax, or any installment thereof, under protest, and thereafter, within 60 days, bring an action to recover back the same (Laws 1890, p. 58, § 1), applies only to cases of mere errors, irregularities, overvaluations, or other defects not jurisdictional, and not to a case where the city council had no jurisdiction to make the assessment. 43 P. 119, 12 Utah, 476 affirmed.—Ogden City v. Armstrong, 18 S. Ct. 98, 168 U. S. 224, 42 L. Ed. 444.

(F) ENFORCEMENT OF ASSESSMENTS AND SPECIAL TAXES.

—534. Restraining enforcement.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1194, 1253.

—535. — In general.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1253.

Where the alleged fact that an assessment for a special improvement was not assented to by the requisite number of property owners does not appear on the face of the proceedings of the city council, but must be made to appear by evidence dehors such record, a court of equity has jurisdiction of a suit to enjoin the collection of the assessments. In such case a writ of certiorari would not be an adequate remedy; and, the assessments being payable in numerous annual installments, equity jurisdiction is sustainable to prevent a multiplicity of suits, and also to remove a cloud on the title. Judgment 43 P. 119, 12 Utah, 476, affirmed.—Ogden City v. Armstrong, 18 S. Ct. 98, 168 U. S. 224, 42 L. Ed. 444.

—536. — Grounds.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1253.

Where a special assessment is in itself illegal, because it rests upon a basis that excludes any consideration of benefits to the property taxed, proof that it is in excess of benefits is not required, in a suit to enjoin its enforcement, as the only appropriate decree in such case is one enjoining the whole assessment, leaving the local authorities to make a new one according to law.—Village of Norwood v. Baker, 19 S. Ct. 187, 172 U. S. 209, 43 L. Ed. 443, affirming judgment (C. C.) Baker v. Village of Norwood, 74 F. 997.

—537. — Payment or tender of amount due.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1253.

Where a special assessment is in itself illegal, because it rests on a basis that excludes any consideration of benefits, the suit is not controlled by the general principle that a plaintiff must tender or offer to pay what is legally due, before he can obtain relief in equity against an excessive tax, the entire assessment being illegal.—Village of Norwood v. Baker, 19 S. Ct. 187, 172 U. S. 269, 43 L. Ed. 443, affirming judgment (C. C.) Baker v. Village of Norwood, 74 F. 997.

573. Sale of land.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1287-1302.

579. — Title and rights of purchaser.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1293, 1294, 1301.

Where a tax is levied on abutting property for street improvements, the failure of the commissioner to deposit with the register a statement of the taxes assessed on the various lots, the failure of the register to place without delay in the hands of the collector a list of the persons taxed, and the failure of the collector to give notice to such persons, all of which acts are required by statute, constitute such a nonobservance of the statute as to render a tax sale and certificates thereof invalid, as against a bona fide purchaser.—Lyon v. Alley, 130 U. S. 177, 9 S. Ct. 480, 32 L. Ed. 899.

607. Removal and disposition of garbage, refuse, and slith.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1341.

The adoption of ordinances granting an exclusive privilege for 50 years to dispose of garbage and refuse matter by cremation or reduction, and requiring the delivery of all such material at the crematory or reduction plant, there to be destroyed at the expense of the person, company, or corporation conveying the same, was within the authority of the board of supervisors of the city and county of San Francisco under Const. Cal. 1879, art. 11, § 11, St. Cal. 1863, p. 540, and St. Cal. 1893, p. 288, to make and enforce within the city and county, all such reasonable sanitary and other regulations as are not in conflict with any general statute or with the Constitution, and which have for their object the preservation of the public health. Decree 126 F. 29, 61 C. C. A. 91, affirmed.—California Reduction Co. v. Sanitary Reduction Works of San Francisco, 26 S. Ct. 100, 199 U. S. 306, 50 L. Ed. 204.

The ordinance of the city of San Francisco, approved June 23, 1893, prohibiting washing and ironing in public laundries within certain designated limits, and between the hours of 10 o'clock at night and 6 in the morning, is purely a police regulation, within the power of the municipality to enact.—*Soon Hing v. 617. — Special privileges.

The power of a municipal corporation to grant exclusive privileges must be conferred by explicit terms. If inferred from other powers, it is not enough that the power is convenient to them. It must be indispensable to them.—Freeport Water Co. v. City of Freeport, 21 S. Ct. 493, 180 U. S. 587, 45 L. Ed. 679, affirming judgment 57 N. E. 862, 186 Ill. 179; *Danville Water Co. v. 626. Discrimination.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1380.

pool tables for hire, but permitting hotel keepers to maintain billiard or pool rooms for guests.—Murphy v. People of State of California, 32 S. Ct. 697, 225 U. S. 623, 56 L. Ed. 1229, 41 L. R. A. (N. S.) 153.

Act July 24, 1866, § 1, gave to any telegraph company organized under state laws the right to construct, maintain, and operate lines of telegraph along any military or post roads of the United States, then or thereafter declared such by act of congress. Rev. St. § 3964, declares that all letter carrier routes established in any city or town are post roads. Held, that this franchise gave no unrestricted right to appropriate public property of a state or municipality, but that, like any other franchise, it was to be exercised in subordination to public and private rights, and therefore was no ground of objection to the imposition by a municipal corporation of a reasonable charge for the use of its streets by the erection of telegraph poles.—City of St. Louis v. Western Union Tel. Co., 148 U. S. 92, 13 S. Ct. 485, 37 L. Ed. 380, reversing judgment (C. C.) 39 F. 59.

A municipal corporation has the right to impose a reasonable charge upon a telegraph company doing interstate business as compensation for the space occupied in its streets by the telegraph poles; but the reasonableness of any charge thus fixed is a matter for judicial investigation.—Id.

The charter of the city of St. Louis empowers the mayor and assembly to establish, open, vacate, and improve all streets, and to regulate their use, and provides that the costs of such improvement, etc., shall be paid by the city in so far as it is a benefit to the public generally, and that special benefits to adjacent property shall be assessed to the owners thereof. It also authorizes the mayor and assembly to license, tax, and regulate telegraph companies. Held that, where a telegraph company has been granted the right to erect its poles in a street, the city, under these provisions of its charter, has power to require it to pay a reasonable sum in the nature of rental for the privileges of such use.—City of St. Louis v. Western Union Tel. Co., 149 U. S. 465, 13 Sup. Ct. 990, 37 L. Ed. 810.

Legislative authority in a municipal corporation to make grants of street-railway franchises which shall be exclusive does not exist, unless given in language express and explicit, or necessarily to be implied from other powers given. An ordinance renewing, upon additional conditions, the consent of a municipality to the construction and operation of a street railway through the city streets, is not invalid because by such ordinance the term of consent is extended beyond the then limit of the corporate life of such company.—*City of Detroit v. One who, with knowledge of the situation, elects, in descending the steps from her residence to the sidewalk, to cross over a projecting uncovered water box about four inches square, with its outer edge about four inches from a line drawn from the tread of the step nearest the sidewalk to the ground, instead of avoiding the box by stepping to one side, is not, as a matter of law, guilty of such contributory negligence as will defeat her action against the municipality to recover damages for the personal injuries sustained by reason of her failure to clear the box. Judgment 17 App. D. C. 401, reversed.—Mosheuev v. District of Columbia, 24 S. Ct. 57, 191 U. S. 247, 48 L. Ed. 170.

Where the injuries resulted from plaintiff's falling into a hole in the sidewalk which was to be closed by a deadlight, an entry on the books of an express company of the date when such deadlight was delivered to the party who was to put it in is admissible, as tending to show how long the hole was left open.—*District of Columbia v. Leaving a steam roller close to the curb on the street where it is in use, for two days after it is broken, without any change in its appearance to enhance the danger of frightening animals, except by putting over it the usual canvas cover to protect it from the weather, does not present a case of negligence for the jury, when a horse becomes frightened by its presence in the street. See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1814.

A general statute, requiring a vote of the taxpayers to authorize the making of a contract by a city for a supply of water, is superseded, as to a particular city, by a charter subsequently granted which authorizes the city to make such a contract, or to erect water works of its own, but provides for a vote only on a proposition for the erection of water works by the city. Decree Walla Walla Water Co. v. City of Walla Walla (C. C.) 60 F. 957, affirmed.—City of Walla Walla v. Walla Walla Water Co., 19 S. Ct. 77, 172 U. S. 1, 43 L. Ed. 341.

A constitutional amendment adopted, pending the execution of a contract for the construction of a drainage system for a city, prohibiting "increase" of the city's debt, which expressly provides that it shall not be construed so as to prevent the issue of drainage warrants to the transferees of the drainage contract, payable only from drainage taxes, should receive a construction commensurate with the object intended to be accomplished, and will authorize the issue of warrants in payment for the contractor's plant, in case the city decides to do the work itself, where the debt created by the drainage assessments had already been incurred and put in judgment. Decree Warner v. City of New Orleans, 81 F. 645, 26 C. C. A. 508, modified.—City of New Orleans v. Warner, 20 S. Ct. 44, 175 U. S. 120, 44 L. Ed. 96.

On objection that part of the delinquent taxes were levied to raise money to pay interest on bonds alleged to be void because of a statute prohibiting the county from becoming indebted in excess of 4 per cent. of the value of its taxable property, it was shown that the bonds were funding bonds, and it did not appear that they were not merely a change in the form of an indebtedness incurred prior to the statute. Held, that the objection could not defeat the tax. — Maish v. Territory of Arizona, 17 S. Ct. 193, 164 U. S. 599, 41 L. Ed. 567.

A municipal corporation may lawfully contract for a supply of water or gas, or a like necessary, and may stipulate for the payment of an annual rental for the water or gas furnished each year, notwithstanding the aggregate of its rentals during the life of the contract may exceed the amount of the indebtedness limited by its charter. Such a contract does not create a debt, except conditionally, and upon the furnishing of the consideration from year to year. Decree Walla Walla Water Co. v. City of Walla Walla (C. C.) 60 F. 957, affirmed. — City of Walla Walla v. Walla Walla Water Co., 19 S. Ct. 77, 172 U. S. 1, 43 L. Ed. 341.

869. Borrowing money.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1842, 1844.

Act Dec. 27, 1838, authorized the authorities of the city of Savannah "to obtain money on loan, on the faith and credit of said city, for the purpose of contributing to works of internal improvement." The validity of bonds issued thereunder having been questioned, Act March 4, 1856 (Wils. Dig. p. 526), was passed, validating the bonds previously issued, and authorizing the municipal authorities, upon the recommendation of a public meeting of citizens called for that purpose, to issue and dispose of bonds for purposes of internal improvement. Held that, as the authority "to obtain money on loan" conferred by the act of 1838 is so much broader and more comprehensive than the power given by the act of 1856 to issue bonds, the latter cannot be considered a repeal by implication of the former. — City of Savannah v. Kelly, 108 U. S. 184, 2 S. Ct. 468, 27 L. Ed. 696; Same v. Martin, 108 U. S. 191, 2 S. Ct. 472, 27 L. Ed. 698.

Charter power to borrow money "for general purposes," "on the credit" of the city, only includes authority to borrow money for ordinary governmental purposes, such as are generally carried out with revenues derived from taxation; and the presumption is that the power was intended to confer the right to borrow money in anticipation of the receipt of taxes. — City of Brenham v. German-American Bank, 144 U. S. 173, 12 S. Ct. 559, 36 L. Ed. 390; Id., 144 U. S. 549, 12 S. Ct. 975, 36 L. Ed. 399. Reversing decree (C. C.) *German-American Bank v. Under Act Ga. Dec. 27, 1838, authorizing the municipal authorities of Savannah "to obtain money on loan on the faith and credit of said city, for the purpose of contributing to works of internal improvements," the city was authorized to guaranty the bonds of a railroad company, issued for construction already made and for future improvements. — City of Savannah v. Kelly, 108 U. S. 184, 2 S. Ct. 468, 27 L. Ed. 696; Same v. Martin, 108 U. S. 191, 2 S. Ct. 472, 27 L. Ed. 698.

Act Ill. Feb. 24, 1869, § 10, amendatory of Act Ill. Feb. 25, 1867 (the charter of the Illinois Southeastern Railway Company), is an entire revision of sections 9 and 10 thereof, and consequently operates a repeal by implication of the provision limiting the amount which could be donated by a township in aid of the railroad to $30,000. — Town of Pana v. Bowler, 107 U. S. 529, 2 S. Ct. 704, 27 L. Ed. 424.

Laws Ohio 1880, p. 157, which authorizes a certain township to construct a few miles of railroad within its limits, intended to ultimately form part of a continuous line of road to be operated and equipped by private capital, violates Const. Ohio, art. 8, § 6, which prohibits the general assembly from authorizing any county, city, town, or township to become a stockholder in any private corporation, or to raise money for or loan its credit to or in aid of such corporation. — Pleasant Tp. v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 138 U. S. 67, 11 S. Ct. 215, 34 L. Ed. 864.

Legislative acts authorizing municipal corporations to subscribe to railroad stock are constitutional. — Rogers v. City of Keokuk, 154 U. S. 546, 14 S. Ct. 1162, 18 L. Ed. 74.

A power given by charter to take stock in any chartered company for making "roads" to said city authorized a subscription to the stock of a railroad to the city. — City of Evansville v. Dennett, 161 U. S. 434, 16 S. Ct. 613, 40 L. Ed. 760.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1857-1861.

Where a city votes to subscribe for railway stock when no authority existed for such action, a general statute declaring all such elections theretofore held to be valid is sufficient to cure all defects. — City of Jonesboro v. Cairo & St. L. R. Co., 110 U. S. 192, 4 S. Ct. 67, 28 L. Ed. 118.

Const. Missa. art. 12, § 14, provides that the legislature shall not authorize any county, city, or town to become a stockholder in, or to lend its credit to, any corporation, unless two-thirds of the qualified voters of such county or city, at a special or regular election, shall assent thereto. At a special election held by a city without authority from the legislature, more than two-thirds of the qualified electors voted to subscribe to the stock of a railroad company. After the city had made the subscription pursuant to such vote, though before the issuance of bonds in payment of the subscription, an act was passed providing that subscriptions to the stock of the said railroad company, made by any city, which were not in violation of the constitution, were thereby legalized, ratified, and confirmed. Held, that the constitution required the legislature to authorize such subscription, that the act of the legislature did not so identify the said election and subscription as to amount to a ratification, and that the bonds were therefore void, even in the hands of a bona fide purchaser. — Hayes v. City of Holly Springs, 114 U. S. 120, 5 S. Ct. 785, 29 L. Ed. 81.

If a legislature has power to authorize a subscription to stock of a railroad by a township, and to provide, as a condition precedent to such subscription, that a majority of the legal voters of such township signify their assent thereto, it has the power to legalize an election held for that purpose before the passage of the act of authorization, and to validate a subscription so made. — Anderson v. Santa Anna Tp., 116 U. S. 356, 6 S. Ct. 413, 29 L. Ed. 633; Confarr v. Same, 116 U. S. 366, 6 S. Ct. 418, 29 L. Ed. 636.

The issue of warrants by the city of New Orleans as a compromise of drainage taxes collected by the city and misappropriated was authorized by Act La. Feb. 24, 1876, providing for the purchase and settlement by the city of all or any rights arising in favor of the Mississippi & Mexican Gulf Ship-Canal Company, and by an ordinance providing for "the full settlement of all claims for damages and to secure the absolute sale, relinquishment, and transfer to the city of New Orleans, of all rights" arising in favor of the canal company. Decree 101 F. 1005, 41 C. C. A. 676, affirmed.—City of New Orleans v. Warner, 21 S. Ct. 353, 180 U. S. 199, 45 L. Ed. 498.

Authority of the city of New Orleans to issue warrants in settlement of the damages claimed by a ship-canal company will be deemed to have been conferred by Act La. Feb. 24, 1876, empowering the city to "transact and contract" for the purchase and settlement of any rights, franchises, and privileges of such company, and to purchase its dredging plant, in view of the long acquiescence of the city in this construction of that act, and of the impossibility of distinguishing between these warrants and such as were issued in payment of the plant.—Id.

A city which voluntarily made a purchase of property with which to complete drainage improvements, under authority conferred by an act of the legislature, and issued in payment therefor warrants on the drainage fund, a part of which it had collected and the remainder of which it contracted to collect, but afterwards abandoned the work and thus rendered the drainage assessments invalid and uncollectible, and otherwise obstructed their collection, is estopped to set up, in defense to an action against it on the warrants, that it had, previous to their issuance, discharged claims against the drainage fund in excess of the amount collected.—Warner v. No. 133 of 1880, by which all the property, real and personal, of the city of New Orleans, not dedicated to public use, and not necessary for current expenses in administering its affairs, is pledged for the payment of its indebtedness, except the floating debt, is in violation of Const. La. 1879, art. 254, requiring the general assembly to enact such legislation as might be proper to liquidate the indebtedness of the city, as that contemplates the liquidation of its entire indebtedness, floating as well as bonded.—Board of Liquidation of City of New Orleans v. Tex. art. 11, § 4, providing that cities and towns having a population of 10,000 or less may be chartered alone by general law, and may levy, assess, and collect an annual tax to defray the current expenses of the local government does not include power to issue and sell negotiable bonds.—City of Brenham v. The charter power of the city of Brenham (Sp. Laws Tex. 1873, c. 2, art. 3, § 2) to borrow money "for general purposes, not exceeding Ill. 1848, art. 9, § 5, providing that municipal authorities "may be vested with power to assess and collect taxes for corporate purposes," authority in the charter of a city "to borrow money on the credit of the city, and to issue bonds therefor," will not authorize a donation of the bonds of the city for the improvement of the water power on rivers within the city limits, or in its immediate neighborhood, to bring the water into use as a power to be leased or sold at reasonable rates. Such an end is not a "corporate purpose," within the meaning of the constitution.—City of Ottawa v. Carey, 108 U. S. 110, 1 S. Ct. 31, 2 S. Ct. 361, 27 L. Ed. 669.

Act Minn. March 6, 1868, authorizing the towns in one group of counties to issue bonds in aid of a certain line of railroad, and requiring only a vote of a majority of the legal voters assenting thereto, is not repealed by implication by Act March 5, 1870, authorizing the towns in another group of counties to aid in the construction of another line of road, and requiring a vote of a majority of the supervisors, as well as of a majority of the legal voters, to authorize the issue. The mere fact that one county happens to be in both groups does not render the statutes repugnant, nor does it indicate a legislative intent to repeal the first statute as to the towns in that county.—Town of Red Rock v. Henry, 106 U. S. 596, 1 S. Ct. 434, 27 L. Ed. 251.

By Act N. J. April 9, 1868, all the townships along the line of the Montclair Railroad are authorized to issue their bonds in aid thereof, "except the township of Bloomfield, in the county of Essex," which is excepted from the operation of the act. By Act April 15, 1868, setting off from Bloomfield a new township, called "Montclair," it is provided that all acts then in force in the township of Bloomfield shall be extended to and be in force in the township of Montclair, but that any act from the operation of which the township of Bloomfield has by any exception contained therein been specially excepted, shall nevertheless apply to and be in force in Montclair, the same as if Bloomfield had not been specially excepted. Held, that Montclair was authorized to issue bonds in aid of the railroad.—Inhabitants of Montclair Tp. v. Ramsdell, 107 U. S. 147, 2 S. Ct. 391, 27 L. Ed. 431.

Power given by charter to a city "to borrow money and issue bonds therefor" does not warrant the issue of bonds to pay for a subscription for railway stock.—City of Jonesboro v. Cairo & St. L. R. Co., 110 U. S. 192, 4 S. Ct. 67, 28 L. Ed. 116.

In the absence of some provision in the state constitution prohibiting it, the legislature has power to authorize municipalities to issue bonds in aid of railroads designed to benefit the public interests of the community.—Otoe County v. Baldwin, 111 U. S. 1, 4 S. Ct. 265, 28 L. Ed. 331.

Const. Mo. art. 11, § 14, provides that the legislature shall not authorize any county, city, or town to become a stockholder in, or loan its credit to, any company or corporation, unless two-thirds of the qualified voters of such county, etc., assent thereto. Declaration of Rights, art. 16, provides that no private property ought to be taken or applied to public use without just compensation. Held that, as the general grant of legislative power in the constitution does not authorize the legislature, in the exercise either of the right of eminent domain or of the right of taxation, to take private property, without the owner's consent, for any but a public object, the Missouri legislature has no constitutional power to authorize a city to issue its bonds by way of donation to a private manufacturing corporation.—Cole v. City of La Grange, 113 U. S. 1, 5 S. Ct. 416, 28 L. Ed. 896, affirming (C. C.) 19 F. 871.

The term "village," in section 10 of Act Ill. Feb. 24, 1869, amending the charter of the Illinois Southeastern Railway Company, authorizing "any village, city, county, or township" along the route of the railway to subscribe to the stock of the company, or make donations to it, and to issue bonds for such subscriptions or donations, includes "towns," and the bonds of an incorporated town issued thereunder are valid.—Town of Enfield v. Jordan, 119 U. S. 680, 7 S. Ct. 358, 30 L. Ed. 523.

Priv. Laws Ill. 1867, p. 842, authorizing certain municipal corporations to appropriate moneys and levy a tax to aid the construction of a railroad, provided the appropriation be first sustained at the polls by a majority of electors, does not authorize the issue of bonds in payment of an appropriation so voted.—Town of Concord of Robinson, 121 U. S. 165, 7 S. Ct. 937, 30 L. Ed. 885.

A statute authorizing a municipal corporation to subscribe to the capital stock of a railroad company, and to levy and collect a tax for the payment of said subscription, does not authorize the issue of bonds for said payment.—Katzenberger v. City of Aberdeen, 121 U. S. 172, 7 S. Ct. 947, 30 L. Ed. 911, affirming judgment (D. C.) 16 F. 745.

The clause in a statute empowering a municipal corporation to subscribe to the stock of a railroad company on "such terms and conditions as they may stipulate and agree upon" does not imply a power to issue bonds to meet the payment of the subscription.—Id.

Code Tenn. 1857-58, §§ 1142-1161, authorizes any county or incorporated town to subscribe for stock, to a specified amount of its taxable property, "in railroads running to or contiguous thereto," on certain conditions: such subscription being payable by means of taxes to meet the installments. Act Jan. 23, 1871, § 1, prescribes the vote in pursuance of which counties and incorporated towns may loan their credit, take stock, and impose taxes for county and corporation purposes. Act March 23, 1872, § 1, authorizes the mayor and aldermen of any incorporated city or town of between 1,000 and 20,000 population to issue bonds for the purpose of paying outstanding and matured liabilities. Held, that under none of these statutes can an incorporated town issue negotiable bonds in aid of a railroad enterprise, either directly or in payment of subscriptions to its capital stock.—Kelley v. Town of Milan, 127 U. S. 139, 8 S. Ct. 1101, 32 L.

Ed. 77, affirming judgment (C. C.) Kelly v. Same, 21 F. 842.

The grant of power to a municipality to subscribe for stock in a railroad does not imply the power to issue bonds therefor.—Norton v. Town of Dyersburg, 127 U. S. 160, 8 S. Ct. 1111, 32 L. Ed. 85.

By Act Tenn. Feb. 8, 1870, the city of B. was authorized to issue its bonds in aid of a certain railroad, if a majority of all the votes cast at an election held for that purpose should be in favor thereof. The proceedings were initiated May 11, 1870, and the election was held June 11, 1870. By Const. Tenn. 1834, art. 2, § 29, the legislature was given power to authorize the several counties and municipal corporations to impose taxes for county and corporation purposes, "in such manner as shall be prescribed by law." By the amendment, which was adopted March 26, 1870, and went into effect May 5, 1870, the above section 29 was retained, with the addition that "the credit of no county, city, or town shall be given or loaned to or in aid of, any person, company," etc., except upon an election and the assent of three-fourths of the votes cast. Held, that the new constitution abrogated the act of February 8, 1870, so far as it authorized the issuing of bonds upon an election held after the new constitution went into effect; and that, no new act having been passed to confer the required authority upon the city of B., there was no authority to hold the election of June 11, 1870, or to issue the bonds, and that the holders thereof could not enforce them.—Norton v. Taxing Dist. of Brownsville, 129 U. S. 479, 9 S. Ct. 322, 32 L. Ed. 774.

Act Mo. March 3, 1851, § 14, empowering county courts to "subscribe to the stock" of a railroad company; to "invest funds" of the county in such stock; to "issue the bonds of such county to raise funds to pay the stock" subscribed; and providing that "any incorporated city or town * * * may subscribe to the stock" of such company,—does not authorize an incorporated town to issue its negotiable bonds in payment of the stock.—Hill v. City of Memphis, 134 U. S. 198, 10 S. Ct. 562, 33 L. Ed. 387, affirming (C. C.) 23 F. 872.

Under Const. Mo. 1865, art. 11, § 14, prohibiting legislative authority to a municipal corporation to become a stockholder in, or loan its credit to, a corporation, without the assent of two-thirds of the qualified voters at a general or special election, such a vote, under legislative authority (Gen. St. Mo. § 338) to subscribe to the stock of a railroad company, will authorize a subscription, but will not validate the issue of negotiable bonds in payment therefor.—Id.

Railroad aid bonds issued by a municipal corporation in one of the territories are void, under the act of June 8, 1878 (20 Stat. 101), which provides that nothing therein shall authorize such a corporation to incur any debt or obligation except such as shall be "necessary to the administration of its internal affairs."—Lewis v. Pima County, 155 U. S. 54, 15 S. Ct. 22, 39 L. Ed. 67.

Though a municipal corporation may have authority, either express or implied, to contract loans and issue evidences of debt, to raise money to pay its necessary expenses and indebtedness, it cannot, without express legislative authority, issue and sell in open market negotiable paper for the purpose of raising money to fund its Defendant school district, for the purpose of funding an outstanding bonded indebtedness of $20,000 at reduced interest, under a resolution of the district board, regularly passed, issued funding bonds under a statute authorizing such issue, and authorizing the treasurer of such district to sell such bonds at not less than their par value, and apply the proceeds to the payment of the outstanding bonded indebtedness of the district, "or he may exchange such bonds for outstanding bonds, par for par, but the bonds hereby authorized shall be issued for no other purpose than the funding of outstanding bonded indebtedness." Laws Iowa 1880, c. 132. The bonds recited that they were issued in accordance with such statute and the constitution of the state, and the resolution of the district board, and plaintiff purchased them from the duly authorized agent of the district at par. At the time of their issue the total valuation of the taxable property within the district, as shown by the next preceding state and county tax lists, was $131,038. Only a small proportion of the proceeds was in fact applied in payment of the outstanding bonds, the remainder being applied on other obligations of the district. Held that, under the provision of the state constitution that "no county, or other political or municipal corporation, shall be allowed to become indebted in any manner, or for any purpose, to an amount in the aggregate exceeding five per centum on the value of the taxable property within such county or corporation, to be ascertained by the last state and county tax lists, previous to the incurring of such indebtedness" (Const. Iowa 1857, art. 11, § 3), that such bonds were not enforceable in plaintiff's hands.—District Tp. of Doon v. Cummins, 142 U. S. 366, 12 S. Ct. 220, 35 L. Ed. 1044, reversing judgment (C. C.) Cummins v. District Tp. of Doon, 42 F. 644.

Laws N. Y. 1869, c. 907, § 1, which provided for the issuance of railroad aid bonds "whenever a majority of the taxpayers of any municipal corporation * * * whose names appear upon the last preceding tax list or assessment roll, * * * as owning or representing a majority of the taxable property in the corporate limits, * * * shall make application to the county judge * * * by petition, * * * setting forth that they are such a majority of taxpayers, and represent such a majority of taxable property," etc., was amended by Laws 1871, c. 925, § 1, which defined the persons authorized to petition as a majority of the taxpayers "who are taxed or assessed for property, not including those taxed for dogs or highway tax only, upon the last preceding assessment roll, * * * and who * * * represent a majority of the taxable property," etc. Held, that a petition, after the enactment of the later statute, which followed the language of the act of 1869, and did not show that petitioners were a majority of the taxpayers exclusive of those "taxed for dogs or highways only," conferred no power on the county judge, and an adjudication thereon which was similarly defective, and bonds issued on it, which recited that they were issued under the act of 1869, were void.—Rich

Under the New York statute relative to the issue of bonds by municipal corporations in aid of railroads (Laws 1869, c. 907), the fact that some of the signatures attached to the petition to the county judge are conditional does not deprive the county judge of jurisdiction, and his determination in favor of the issue of bonds is conclusive, until legally reversed.—Town of Andes v. Ely, 158 U. S. 312, 15 S. Ct. 954, 39 L. Ed. 996.

Acts Tenn. 1868-69, c. 59, § 20, provides that the town of D. may make a corporate subscription to the capital stock of the M. R. R. Co., not to exceed $50,000, payable, in not exceeding four years, by annual assessments levied by the board of trustees, and collected as other moneys are; and bonds of the town may be issued in anticipation of such collections. Acts Tenn. 1869-70, c. 55, § 18, provides that stock subscribed by any county, city or incorporation to railroad companies may be payable in six annual payments; and the corporate authorities may issue short bonds, bearing interest, to said companies, in anticipation of the collection of annual levies, if thereby the construction of the roads can be facilitated. Held, that the town of D. was not authorized to issue bonds payable in 10 years, in payment of a subscription to said company.—Norton v. Town of Dyersburg, 127 U. S. 160, 8 S. Ct. 1111, 32 L. Ed. 85.

A city ordinance authorizing the issuance of bonds payable 20 years after date, but redeemable, at the city's option, "at any time after five years from date," confers no authority to issue bonds redeemable "after the expiration of 10 years from the date hereof."—City of Brenham v. German-American Bank, 144 U. S. 173, 12 S. Ct. 559, 36 L. Ed. 390; Id., 144 U. S. 549, 12 S. Ct. 975, 36 L. Ed. 999. Reversing decree (C. C.) German-American Bank v. City of Brenham, 35 F. 185.

Act Miss. March 25, 1871, authorized certain counties, cities, and towns to aid in the construction of a certain railroad by subscribing for stock of the company, and provided, in section 4, that the supervisors of such counties might issue bonds payable at such times as they might deem best, but "not to extend beyond ten years from the date of issuance," for such sums as might be necessary to meet the subscriptions. Section 5 authorized the towns to issue bonds for the same purpose, "in the same manner, and with the like effect," and provided that all bonds so issued "shall be alike binding upon the towns respectively in their corporate capacity, as the bonds so issued by the said boards of supervisors shall be binding upon the counties respectively." Held, that bonds issued by towns, having longer than 10 years to run, are void, for the limitation contained in section 4 is made a part of section 5.—Barnum v. Town of Okolona, 148 U. S. 393, 13 S. Ct. 638, 37 L. Ed. 495.

The Illinois general railroad law of 1849 (Laws 1849 [2d Sess.] p. 33) authorized cities to subscribe for railroad stock, and pay therefor with bonds. The charter of the Cairo & Vincennes Railroad Company authorized cities along its lines to subscribe for stock, and pay therefor in bonds of $500 each, which bonds might be made payable in New York. Held, that there was nothing to prevent a city from exercising all the powers conferred by both acts, and hence, in payment for stock of the Cairo & Vincennes Railroad Company, it might issue bonds for $1,000 each, payable in New York City.—City of Cairo v. Zane, 149 U. S. 122, 13 S. Ct. 803, 37 L. Ed. 673.

920. Authority of officers or agents.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1930, 1931.

The fact that the commissioners were special officers appointed by the court for the purpose of issuing railroad aid bonds of a certain town, under an act of the Legislature, does not make their acts any less binding on the town. It is sufficient that full control was given them in the matter.—Inhabitants of Bernards Tp. v. Morrison, 133 U. S. 523, 10 S. Ct. 333, 33 L. Ed. 766.

It does not affect the validity of bonds issued under Gen. St. Kan. 1868, p. 154, c. 19, entitled "An act to incorporate cities of the second class," that in reciting the title of that act the term "organize" is substituted for the term "incorporate."—Board of Education of City of Atchison v. De Kay, 148 U. S. 591, 13 S. Ct. 706, 37 L. Ed. 573.

The Illinois general railroad law of 1849 (Laws 1849 [2d Sess.] p. 33) authorized cities to subscribe for railroad stock and pay therefor with bonds. The charter of the Cairo & Vincennes Railroad Company authorized cities along its lines to subscribe for stock and pay therefor in bonds of $500 each, which bonds might be made payable in New York. Held, that there was nothing to prevent a city from exercising all the powers conferred by both acts, and hence, in payment for stock of the Cairo & Vincennes Company, it might issue bonds for $1,000 each, payable in New York City.—City of Cairo v. —924. — Necessary recitals.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1937.

Bonds were issued by A. county in aid of a railroad under authority of Act Kan. Feb. 27, 1869, providing for the issue of such bonds by county commissioners after a majority of the voters of the county have given their consent thereto at an election, and that at least 30 days' notice of such an election shall be given. The bonds in question recited that they were issued in pursuance of the statute, which provided that at least 20 days' notice should be given. But the bonds further recited that they were issued in "pursuance to the vote of the electors of A. county, September 13, 1869." The record of the proceedings of the board of A. county showed that the board made an order for the election 33 days before it was held, had canvassed the returns, and certified that a majority of the votes were in favor of the issuance of the bonds, and that they were issued on the basis of such vote. Held, in a suit on the bonds by a bona fide holder, that the statement in them as to the vote was equivalent to one that sufficient notice of the election had been given.—Anderson County Com'rs v. Beal, 113 U. S. 227, 5 S. Ct. 433, 28 L. Ed. 966.

A judgment commanding the sale of city bonds because of the existence of a legal duty arising from the provisions of Const. La. 1898, art. 317, should not be construed as excluding the right and duty to refer, in issuing the bonds, to the fact that they are issued by virtue of the constitution and as a result of the command of the court. Judgment, State ex rel. Wilder v. Board of Liquidation of City Debt, 26 So. 679, 51 La. Ann. 1849, affirmed.—Board of Liquidation of City Debt v. State of Louisiana, 21 S. Ct. 263, 179 U. S. 622, 45 L. Ed. 347.

—925. — Provisions as to payment.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1938.

A municipal bond, by which the obligors acknowledge themselves to be indebted for a specified sum "in gold coin," "which sum" they bind themselves and their successors "to pay to bearer" (without specifying any medium of payment), and the coupons of which are expressly payable in "currency," is legally payable in any money of the United States, of whatever kind, and not in gold coin alone. Mr. Justice Peckham, Mr. Justice Brewer, and Mr. Justice White, dissenting, were of the opinion that a contrary decision by a state supreme court was purely a matter of local law, and therefore conclusive on the United States supreme court.—Woodruff v. State of Mississippi, 162 U. S. 291, 16 S. Ct. 820, 40 L. Ed. 973.

—927. Execution of bonds.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1940.

Laws Kan. 1870, c. 90, entitled "An act to enable municipal townships to aid in the construction of a railroad running within and through its corporate limits," authorizes the issue of township bonds, and provides that after the requisite vote in favor of the issue "the board of county commissioners shall order the county clerk to make such subscription in the name of the township, and shall cause such bonds as may be required by the terms of said vote and subscription to be issued in the name of such township, to be signed by the chairman of the board, and attested by the clerk, under the seal of the county." Held, that the signature of the clerk was essential to the validity of the bonds, even though he had no discretion to withhold it.—Bissell v. Spring Valley Tp., 110 U. S. 162, 3 S. Ct. 555, 28 L. Ed. 105.

Rev. St. 1879, p. 72, tit. 17, c. 4, authorizing municipal corporations to issue bonds, provides, by article 422, that the bonds shall be signed by the mayor of such city. Held, that the city council has no power, after the term of a mayor has expired, to authorize him to sign bonds as of a date during his term of office.—Coler v. City of Cleburne, 131 U. S. 162, 9 S. Ct. 720, 33 L. Ed. 146.

Bonds signed by one claiming to act as the mayor of a city, after his successor had qualified, but before he had entered upon the duties of his office, and during a period in which the outgoing mayor and the common council were continuing to hold meetings as city officials, without any protest or question being made in respect to their right to do so, cannot be held invalid on the ground that they were not signed by the legal mayor, since it is sufficient in that respect if they are signed by the mayor de facto. Judgment, City of Santa Cruz v. Waite, 98 F. 38, 39 C. C. A. 106, reversed.—Waite v. City of Santa Cruz, 22 S. Ct. 327, 184 U. S. 302, 46 L. Ed. 552.

Act Mich. March 22, 1869, authorizing township aid to railroads, provides that the township "shall, within 60 days after the question of aid is determined by a vote of the electors, * * * issue its coupon bonds for the amount so determined to be granted." Held, that this language gives the township officers the whole of the 60 days to get the bonds out, but does not imply that they may not issue them after the 60 days specified, and the signature of clerk in office at the time of their issue will be sufficient.—Chickering Tp. v. Carpenter, 106 U. S. 663, 1 S. Ct. 620, 27 L. Ed. 307.

Act Mich. March 22, 1869, relative to the issue of bonds by a township in aid of a railroad company, provided that the bonds should be "executed by the supervisor and clerk," and delivered by the person having charge of them to the state treasurer, who should receipt therefor, and hold the same "as trustee" for the township and the company, "to be disposed of by said treasurer in the discharge of his trust, as herein-after provided"; that whenever the company in aid of which they had been issued should present to the treasurer the governor's certificate that the company had complied with the provisions of the act, and was entitled to any of such bonds, the said bonds should be delivered by the treasurer to the company, the past-due coupons being first cut off and canceled. If the bonds were not demanded of the treasurer, in compliance with the act, within three years after the date of their receipt by him, they were to be canceled, and returned to the proper township officers. Bonds were issued in pursuance of this act, and delivered to the treasurer, but no demand for them was made, owing to the governor's refusal to give his certificate, based on a decision of the state supreme court that the act was unconstitutional, and within a few days of the expiration of the three years from the date of their delivery to the treasurer they were canceled by him, and returned to the township officers. Held, that the bonds never became operative.—Young v. Clarendon Tp., 132 U. S. 340, 10 S. Ct. 107, 33 L. Ed. 356.

—930. — Fulfillment of conditions.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1943.

Laws N. Y. 1871, c. 298, § 1, authorized the extension of the N. Y. & O. M. & R. R. from the city of Auburn, "or from any point on said road easterly or southerly from said city, upon such route and location and through such counties, as the board of directors of said company shall deem most feasible and favorable for the construction of said railroad, to any point on Lake Erie or the Niagara river." Authority was also given for the issuance of aid bonds by "any town, village, or city in any county through or near which said railroad or its branches may be located." Held that, before any such bonds could be issued, the company must have adopted an entire route and designated all the counties through which the road was to pass.—Purdy v. Town of Lansing, 128 U. S. 557, 9 S. Ct. 172, 32 L. Ed. 531.

931. Validity of bonds in general.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1944-1947.

Laws W. Va. 1868, c. 118, as passed December 15, 1858, authorized the city of Parkersburg to issue its bonds for the purpose of lending the same to persons engaged in manufacturing, and as consideration for bonds to the amount of $20,000 issued by the city to a borrower under such act he executed a trust deed to secure payment to the city of such sum, with power of sale in case of default. The bonds were payable to the borrower's order, and he indorsed them in blank and sold them to plaintiffs, who bought them for value in good faith; and, the city having taken possession of the property included in the deed of trust and refused to make further payments of interest on the bonds, plaintiffs filed a bill against the city and the maker of the deed of trust, praying for an accounting and a receiver, but no application therefor was ever made. The suit was not brought to a hearing for three years, and the city was allowed to control and manage the property in the meantime, and acted in good faith and with reasonable discretion in caring for it and disposing of some of it. Held, that its receipt of the property created no obligation on its part to pay the bonds, which it had a total want of power to issue originally under the law, which was invalid.—City of Parkersburg v. Brown, 106 U. S. 487, 1 S. Ct. 442, 27 L. Ed. 238.

In a suit for the payment of railroad bonds issued by the town of Dayton, under act of 1857, of Illinois, authorizing a town meeting to issue such bonds, upon the application of a certain number of legal voters, which act was held invalid, plaintiff claimed the support of act of March 6, 1867, of Illinois, which authorizes such meeting upon application of "voters and taxpayers." Held, that as it appeared from the bonds and the record that they were issued under act of 1857, and not 1867, a demurrer was properly sustained.—Gilson v. Town of Dayton, 123 U. S. 59, 8 S. Ct. 66, 31 L. Ed. 74.

In an action at law on negotiable paper, issued without authority by a city, it is not estopped to set up its invalidity because it has received and used the money for which it was issued.—Merrill v. Town of Monticello, 138 U. S. 673, 11 S. Ct. 441, 34 L. Ed. 1069.

When the people, at an election held under a refunding act, voted to issue new bonds to exchange for old ones issued in aid of a railroad company, the county was thereafter estopped to assert as against innocent holders of the new bonds that the old ones were invalid because some of the conditions imposed by the county on the grant of aid to the railroad company were not complied with.—Graves v. Saline County, 161 U. S. 359, 16 S. Ct. 526, 40 L. Ed. 732.

932. Ratification of invalid bonds.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1948-1950.

933. — In general.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1943, 1949.

A bona fide holder of municipal bonds issued in aid of a railroad, and bearing evidence of that fact on their face, is in law chargeable with notice of want of legislative authority for their issue, and they are void in his hands, notwithstanding a ratification of the issue by the voters of the municipality.—Lewis v. City of Shreveport, 108 U. S. 232, 2 S. Ct. 634, 27 L. Ed. 723.

Bonds issued without legislative authority cannot be made binding by mere municipal ratification, because there is no more power to ratify than there was to create originally.—Katzenberger v. City of Aberdeen, 121 U. S. 172, 7 S. Ct. 947, 30 L. Ed. 911, affirming judgment (D. C.) 16 F. 745.

934. — Payment of principal or interest.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1950.

Where a city, having issued its bonds under a void statutory authority, took a deed of trust of real and personal property to secure them, it is not estopped by the payment of interest, nor by the acts of its officers or agents in dealing with the property, from denying their validity.—City of Parkersburg v. Brown, 106 U. S. 487, 1 S. Ct. 442, 27 L. Ed. 238.

In a suit on bonds issued by a county in aid of a railroad under legislative authority, the defense cannot be made, as against a bona fide holder, that proper notice of the election to determine the question of the issuance of such bonds was not given, where the issue or use of the bonds was not enjoined for 2½ years, the time between the election and the transfer of the bonds to bona fide holders, and where for 10 years the county has paid the interest on the bonds.—Anderson County Com'rs v. Beal, 113 U. S. 227, 5 S. Ct. 433, 28 L. Ed. 966.

The county court having been designated by the Missouri statute as the proper authority to determine the existence of the conditions requisite to authorize the subscription by a municipal township to a railroad company's stock, and the consequent issuance of bonds, the fact that the county has for several years paid the interest on the bonds estops it from urging, as against a bona fide holder, the existence of any mere irregularity in making the subscription or issuing the bonds.—Livingston County v. First Nat. Bank, 128 U. S. 102, 9 S. Ct. 18, 32 L. Ed. 359.

In an action on city bonds it was shown that the consent of the city council to their issuance was given at one of a series of adjourned meetings, the first of which was held pursuant to an adjournment by the clerk because no member of the council was present. It was not shown what the rules were as to adjournment, nor whether the dates on which the council met were not those fixed for regular meetings. Interest was paid on the bonds for a number of years, and no objection made that the consent was not properly given. Held, that the objection could not avail in an action to recover the principal of the bonds.—Board of Education of City of Atchison v. De Kay, 148 U. S. 591, 13 S. Ct. 706, 37 L. Ed. 573.

935. Curative statutes and ordinances.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1951.

The city council of Quincy, in conformity with a vote of electors, but without authority of law, passed an ordinance subscribing $100,000 to the capital stock of a Missouri railroad terminating in West Quincy. Afterwards it was provided by Act March 27, 1869 (3 Priv. Laws 1869, p. 376), that "the subscription of said stock, and all other acts of said council in connection therewith, are hereby legalized and confirmed." Subsequently bonds were issued in payment of the subscription. Held, in an action by a bona fide holder for value, that the curative act made the subscription binding, and was not invalid on the ground that it assumed to impose indebtedness on the city without the consent of the corporate authorities, who are vested with power to assess and collect taxes for corporate purposes by Const. 1848, art. 9, § 5, since the act empowered, but did not compel, the council, which constituted the "corporate authorities" of the city, to proceed as if originally invested with the authority to execute such bonds, and since the construction of a railroad within or near a city is a "corporate purpose," within the meaning of the constitution.—City of Quincy v. Cooke, 107 U. S. 549, 2 S. Ct. 614, 27 L. Ed. 549.

A city voted to subscribe to certain railway stock when it had no authority to do so. The vote was afterwards validated by statute. After the enactment of the curative act, a constitutional provision was adopted prohibiting municipal subscriptions for stock, except where already authorized by vote "under existing laws." Held, that the power acquired by the city was within the exception and remained intact.—City of Jonesboro v. Cairo & St. L. R. Co., 110 U. S. 192, 4 S. Ct. 67, 28 L. Ed. 116.

The state legislature, unless restrained by its organic law, having the right to authorize a municipal corporation to issue bonds, may cure by a retrospective act any irregularities in the exercise of the power conferred.—Otoe County v. Baldwin, 111 U. S. 1, 4 S. Ct. 265, 28 L. Ed. 331; Rogers v. City of Keokuk, 154 U. S. 546, 14 S. Ct. 1162, 18 L. Ed. 74.

Act Feb. 26, 1869 (3 Priv. Laws Ill. 1869, p. 355), entitled "An act to legalize certain aids heretofore voted and granted to aid in the construction of the Chicago, Danville & Vincennes Railroad," has reference only to aids voted and granted prior to its passage, and cannot authorize an aid subsequently voted.—Town of Concord v. Robinson, 121 U. S. 165, 7 S. Ct. 937, 30 L. Ed. 885.

A statute attempting to validate the bonds of a municipal corporation, which it had no power to issue, is inoperative when, under the constitution, such power can be granted upon the vote of two-thirds of the voters of the city, which has not been obtained.—Katzenberger v. City of Aberdeen, 121 U. S. 172, 7 S. Ct. 947, 30 L. Ed. 911, affirming judgment (D. C.) 16 F. 745.

The fact that bonds of a municipality in a territory have been adjudged void because there was no power to issue them is immaterial, when they have been subsequently made valid by an act of congress giving such power.—Utter v. Franklin, 19 S. Ct. 183, 172 U. S. 416, 43 L. Ed. 498.

Act Cong. June 6, 1896 (29 Stat. 262), authorizing the funding of all outstanding bonds of the territory of Arizona and its municipalities theretofore authorized by legislative enactments of the territory, which had been sold or exchanged in good faith in compliance with the acts authorizing their issuance, and confirming and validating all such bonds, was not intended to be confined merely to the outstanding legal indebtedness of such municipalities, but was intended to apply to bonds issued under authority of the legislature, and purporting on their face to be legal obligations of a municipality, whether in fact legal or not.—Id.

—936. Registration of bonds.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1962.

Laws Kan. 1872, c. 68, § 15, which authorized the state auditor to receive from the holder bonds issued by a township in payment of a subscription to railroad stock, and to register the same, directed the auditor, on the registration of any such bonds, "within ten days thereafter to notify the officers issuing the same of such registration, which fact shall be entered by such officers in a book wherein the record of such bonds is kept, and such bonds shall thereafter be considered registered bonds." Held, that the bonds could not be regarded as registered bonds until notice was given to the township officers of the registration, and they had entered the same on their books; and a certificate of registration will not estop the township to deny the validity of the bonds.—Bissell v. Spring Valley Tp., 110 U. S. 162, 3 S. Ct. 555, 28 L. Ed. 105.

Rev. St. Tex. 1879, art. 423, makes it the duty of the mayor, when municipal bonds are issued, to forward them to the city comptroller for registry, and, as they cannot be issued until they are properly signed by the person who is mayor at the time, the comptroller can receive them lawfully for registry only from him.—Coler v. City of Cleburne, 131 U. S. 162, 9 S. Ct. 720, 33 L. Ed. 146.

Rev. St. Tex. 1879, art. 424, makes it the duty of the mayor of a municipality to forward with its bonds for registry a statement of the amount of taxable property, and of the amount of the tax levied to pay interest and create a sinking fund. Held, that no other person could furnish such statement.—Id.

—938. Negotiability and transfer of securities.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1955-1957.

A municipal bond issued under the authority of law for the payment, at all events, to a named person or order, of a fixed sum of money at a designated time therein limited, being indorsed in blank, is a negotiable security within the law merchant.—Independent School Dist. of Ackley v. Hall, 113 U. S. 135, 5 S. Ct. 371, 38 L. Ed. 954.

Its negotiability is not affected by a recital that it is issued by a school district on the authority of a popular election, or by a provision of Act Iowa April 6, 1868, under which it was issued, that it should be "payable at the pleasure of the district at any time before due."—Id.

Where an act of the legislature authorized the compromise of a debt due by a county on account of negotiable bonds issued by said county, by issuing to the holders of said bonds and interest coupons "the obligations of said county, * * * which shall be signed by the county judge of said county, and attested by the clerk of said court," held, that it was the intention of the legislature to authorize the execution of obligations negotiable in form and in law, if necessary, to secure a settlement, and to attach interest coupons thereto.—County of Carter v. Sinton, 120 U. S. 517, 7 S. Ct. 650, 30 L. Ed. 701, affirming judgment (C. C.) Sinton v. County of Carter, 23 F. 535.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1961-1966; 13 Cent. Dig. Counties, § 289; 43 Cent. Dig. Schools, § 231.

A county judge, assuming to act under Act N. Y. May 18, 1869, permitting municipal corporations to aid in the construction of railroads, rendered a judgment appointing commissioners to execute bonds of a town. The bonds were accordingly executed and delivered to the railroad company, but before delivery a writ of certiorari issued from the supreme court to review the judgment, which was afterwards reversed. In the meantime the pledgee of such bonds, with authority from the railroad to sell them, transferred the same to one who took up the loan made by him; and thereafter S., a resident of New Orleans, became possessed of the bonds, but in what way it did not appear. The next holder, B., a resident of Texas, appeared to have gone through the form of buying the bonds from S., giving a check for $50,000 therefor, the par value of the bonds being $75,000, besides $28,000 dishonored coupons. The check was produced, not by the drawee, but by the bank on which it was drawn, five or six years after the transaction, and the payee named therein was James J. S., instead of John J. S., from whom the bonds were purchased. B. did not look at the bonds, nor notice whether they were signed or sealed, nor make any inquiries as to the responsibility of the town, the circumstances of the issue, or the title of the seller. He made the purchase on the recommendation of a friend in New York, and testified that he was at the time uncertain whether the purchase was made on his own account or for his friend. Held, that he was not a bona fide holder, so as to entitle his transferee to recover on the bonds.—Lytle v. Town of Lansing, 147 U. S. 59, 13 S. Ct. 254, 37 L. Ed. 78, affirming judgment (C. C.) Town of Lansing v. Lytle, 38 F. 204.

Such a transferee took up the loan made by the first pledgee, and stood in the same position. Subsequently he sold the bonds, paid his loan out of the proceeds, and credited the railroad company with the balance. He never took title himself. Held, that he was not a bona fide holder, so as to entitle his transferee to recover on the bonds.—Id.

The next holder who appeared was one S., a resident of New Orleans. It was not shown how he became possessed of the bonds, nor was any effort made to secure his deposition. The sale by the second pledgee was at an enormous discount, and this holder had failed to recover in a suit on overdue coupons, previously brought. Held, that he was not a bona fide holder, so as to entitle his transferee to recover on the bonds in a subsequent suit.—Id.

One L. claimed to have purchased bonds from B. He gave a carelessly worded and inaccurate receipt, did not look at the bonds, nor make any inquiries about them, but was thereafter informed by his attorneys in New York of some difficulty concerning them, and learned from the seller that the latter had a suit pending about some of the coupons. He nevertheless, without further inquiry, and without any complaint that he was misled by the seller, transferred the consideration for the bonds. Held, that he had notice at least before consummating the sale, and that such notice was equivalent to notice before the sale, and barred his recovery upon the bonds.—Id.

The pledgee of bonds, with authority from the railroad to sell them, though he would be protected to the amount of his advances, to secure which the bonds were pledged, is not such a bona fide holder as to entitle his transferee to recover upon the bonds.—Id.

942. — Constructive notice, and facts putting on inquiry.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1967-1971.

A county bond containing no recitals, and which, though apparently regular, was in fact issued by the county collector in excess of the amount authorized, and pledged as security for his personal debt, is void, even in the hands of an innocent holder for value, when an inspection of the public registry of bonds would have disclosed the overissue.—Merchants' Exch. Nat. Bank v. Bergen County, 115 U. S. 384, 6 S. Ct. 88, 29 L. Ed. 430, affirming (C. C.) Board of Chosen Freeholders of Bergen County v. Merchants' Exch. Nat. Bank, 12 F. 743.

The purchaser of municipal bonds is not put upon inquiry in relation to pending suits because a provision appears upon the face of them, illegal under the law of Illinois, that they are payable at a place other than the town treasurer's office; such provision being merely void itself, and not avoiding the bonds.—Town of Enfield v. Jordan, 119 U. S. 680, 7 S. Ct. 358, 30 L. Ed. 523.

Act III. April 16, 1869 (Laws III. 1869, p. 316), provided that a county might issue bonds in aid of a railroad upon the vote of a majority of the legal voters, and prescribed the conditions upon which they should be made, and that such bonds should not be valid until such conditions should have been complied with. A county, in September, 1869, voted to issue bonds on condition that the road should be begun and completed in the county within specified periods. These periods were extended by the county court and board of supervisors, but not until after the adoption of Const. III. 1870, which prohibited such subscriptions in aid of railroads, except where they were authorized by vote prior to its adoption. Held, that the road not having been completed within the time prescribed by the original vote, the bonds were invalid in the hands of the bona fide purchasers, especially when issued and purchased after a decision by the supreme court of the state holding similar bonds void.—German Sav. Bank v. Franklin County, 128 U. S. 528, 9 S. Ct. 159, 32 L. Ed. 519.

Recitals in bonds that the bonds were issued by virtue of a certain act, as well as by virtue of a resolution of the city council ordering an election of the qualified voters of the city, which resulted in a legal majority in favor of such subscription, and of a resolution ordering the issue of bonds, does not, as between the city and bona fide purchasers for value, prevent the latter from assuming the truth of the recital that the bonds were issued by virtue of—that is, in compliance with—the city's charter.—City of Evansville v. Dennett, 161 U. S. 434, 16 S. Ct. 613, 40 L. Ed. 760.

Purchasers of county bonds purporting to be issued for subscriptions to the capital stock of a railroad company, under the authority of Code N. C. §§ 1996-1999, authorizing such subscriptions when necessary to aid in the completion of any railroad in which the citizens of the county may have an interest, are not entitled to assume, for the purpose of sustaining the validity of the bonds, that the railroad had been begun before the adoption of Const. N. C. 1868, which antedated the charter of the railroad company. Decree Board of Com'rs of Stanly County v. Coler, 113 F. 705, 51 C. C. A. 379, affirmed.—Board of Com'rs of Stanly County v. W. N. Coler & Co., 23 S. Ct. 811, 190 U. S. 437, 47 L. Ed. 1126.

943. — Effect of recitals in bonds.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1972-1977; 13 Cent. Dig. Counties, § 291; 43 Cent. Dig. Schools, § 231.

A recital in a bond of an independent school district that it "is issued by the board of school directors by authority of an election of the voters of said school district, * * * in conformity with the provisions of chapter 98 of Acts Twelfth General Assembly of the State of Iowa," while it implies that the bond was issued by authority of the election, and that the election was in conformity with the statute, does not necessarily import a compliance with the provision of the statute which, following the state constitution, prohibited independent school districts from incurring indebtedness exceeding in the aggregate 5 per cent. of their taxable property, and therefore the school district is not estopped, in a suit on the bond, from showing that it is invalid because issued in violation of that provision.—Independent School Dist. of Steamboat Rock v. Stone, 106 U. S. 183, 1 S. Ct. 84, 27 L. Ed. 90.

Where the power to issue municipal bonds is dependent upon certain preliminary proceedings, the holder in good faith has a right to assume that they have taken place if the fact be certified on the face of the bonds by the authorities whose duty it is to ascertain it.—Town of Pana v. Bowler, 107 U. S. 529, 2 S. Ct. 704, 27 L. Ed. 424.

Where a statute (Act Neb. Feb. 18, 1875) authorizes certain counties named to fund their indebtedness in negotiable bonds, but provides that the issue shall not exceed the amount necessary to redeem the outstanding warrants, an innocent purchaser thereof cannot be required to go beyond the recitals on the face thereof to ascertain whether in fact there had been an overissue.—Sherman County v. Simonds, 109 U. S. 735, 3 S. Ct. 502, 27 L. Ed. 1096.

Municipal bonds are not invalid in the hands of a bona fide holder by reason of the bonds having been voted and issued in excess of the statutory limit, if the recitals import a valid issue.—Dallas County in the State of Missouri v. McKenzie, 110 U. S. 686, 4 S. Ct. 184, 28 L. Ed. 285.

Where, by legislative enactment, authority has been given to a township to subscribe for stock of a railroad, and to issue bonds in payment, after the performance of certain conditions precedent, but only in case the county in which the township is situated has failed to subscribe upon like conditions precedent, the recital on the face of the bond afterwards issued by the township is conclusive of the act of the township, and only of its act; no presumption is thereby raised that the county failed to perform the conditions and subscribe to the stock previously to the action of the township.—Northern Nat. Bank of Toledo, Ohio, v. Trustees of Porter Tp., 110 U. S. 608, 4 S. Ct. 254, 28 L. Ed. 258, affirming (C. C.) 5 F. 568.

Invalidity of bonds issued in excess of the power conferred on a municipal corporation may be asserted by it, when sued thereon by a bona fide holder for value, notwithstanding recitals therein.—Dixon County in State of Nebraska v. Field, 111 U. S. 83, 4 S. Ct. 315, 28 L. Ed. 360.

Bonds of a municipal corporation recited that they were for a subscription to the capital stock of a railroad company, authorized by acts of the state legislature referred to by title and date. Held, that this did not estop the municipality from setting up, in an action on the bonds, that their issue was not authorized by vote of two-thirds of the voters of the municipality, as required by the constitution of the state.—Board of Sup'rs of Carroll County v. Smith, 111 U. S. 556, 4 S. Ct. 539, 28 L. Ed. 517.

Act III. March 30, 1869, providing for the issuance of bonds in aid of a railroad company, by towns and villages along its route, requires the supervisor and town clerk to sign the bonds, and by the terms of the act the "corporate authorities" to act for the town in issuing them to the company are intrusted with the duty of deciding, before issuing the bonds, whether the conditions prescribed at the election authorizing the issue existed. Held that, where the supervisor and clerk have certified to that effect in the bonds, the town is estopped from asserting, as against a bona fide holder, that the conditions prescribed by the popular vote were not complied with.—Town of Oregon v. Jennings, 119 U. S. 74, 7 S. Ct. 124, 30 L. Ed. 323.

Where the recitals in township bonds show that they were issued under an act under which the auditor had no authority to register them, and certify that they were regularly and legally issued, a recital of such registration and certificate, although conclusive, when authorized, upon the facts, as when the bonds are held by bona fide purchasers, will, in such case, be ineffectual to make valid such bonds under a general act to which they do not refer, and under which, in fact they were not issued.—Crow v. Oxford Tp., 119 U. S. 215, 7 S. Ct. 180, 30 L. Ed. 388.

A recital in municipal bonds that they were issued "under and pursuant" to law and the charter of the city does not estop the city from asserting the contrary.—Katzenberger v. City of Aberdeen, 121 U. S. 172, 7 S. Ct. 947, 30 L. Ed. 911 affirming judgment (D. C.) 16 F. 745.

The county court having been designated by the Missouri statute as the proper authority to determine the existence of the conditions requisite to authorize the subscription by a municipal township to a railroad company's stock and the consequent issuance of bonds, the fact of the issue thereof by the county court under its seal, with the recital that all the necessary steps have been taken, estop it from urging, as against a bona fide holder, the existence of any mere irregularity in making the subscription or issuing the bonds.—Livingston County v. First Nat. Bank, 128 U. S. 102, 9 S. Ct. 18, 32 L. Ed. 359.

As against bona fide holders of municipal bonds which recite that they are issued in pursuance of a certain act of the legislature, which authorizes certain commissioners to borrow money on the faith and credit of the town and execute bonds therefor, after a majority of the taxpayers had assented thereto, which fact should be proved by the affidavit of the town assessor, the defense that the consent of a majority of the taxpayers was not given is unavailing.—Inhabitants of Township of Bernards v. Morrison, 133 U. S. 523, 10 S. Ct. 333, 33 L. Ed. 766.

Const. Iowa 1857, art. 11, § 8, restricts the indebtedness of political and municipal corporations to 5 per cent. of the taxable value of the property within their limits, and the purchaser of bonds issued by a school district, no matter what recitals appear on their face, is bound to take notice of this limitation, and of the official assessment of the taxable property within the district.—Nesbit v. Independent Dist. of Riverside, 144 U. S. 610, 12 S. Ct. 746, 36 L. Ed. 562.

A charter provision, requiring all municipal bonds to specify the purpose for which they are issued, is not complied with so as to cut off equitable defenses, as against an innocent holder, by a negotiable bond which merely gives the date of the ordinance authorizing its issuance, without stating the contents or title thereof.—Barnett v. City of Denison, 145 U. S. 135, 12 S. Ct. 819, 36 L. Ed. 652, distinguishing State v. School Dist., 34 Kan. 237, 8 Pac. 208.

Recitals in municipal bonds issued in violation of constitutional, as distinguished from legislative, provisions, can give rise to no estoppel in favor of bona fide purchasers.—Hedges v. Dixon County, 150 U. S. 182, 14 S. Ct. 71, 37 L. Ed. 1044, affirming judgment (C. C.) 37 F. 304.

It seems that a municipal corporation is estopped, by recitals in its bonds that all conditions necessary to their issue have been complied with, to dispute the performance of such conditions, though the bonds were not issued by the regular municipal officers, but by commissioners named by a court.—Town of Andes v. Ely, 158 U. S. 312, 15 S. Ct. 954, 39 L. Ed. 996.

A recital in bonds issued on account of a municipal subscription to the stock of a railroad company, that the subscription was "made in pursuance of an act of the legislature and ordinances of the city council passed in pursuance thereof," imports not only compliance with the act of the legislature, but that the ordinances of the city council conform to the statute.—City of Evansville v. Dennett, 161 U. S. 434, 16 S. Ct. 613, 40 L. Ed. 760.

A recital in the bonds that they were issued "by virtue of" the city's charter imports compliance with the provisions of the charter.—Id.

A recital in county bonds that the total amount of the issue does not exceed the constitutional limit of indebtedness, taken in connection with the fact that the bonds do not show on their face the amount of the issue, estops the county, as against an innocent purchaser, from disputing the truth of the recital.—Board of Com'rs of Gunnison County, Colo., v. E. H. Rollins & Sons, 19 S. Ct. 390, 173 U. S. 255, 43 L. Ed. 689, reversing judgment E. H. Rollins & Sons v. Gunnison County Com'rs, 80 F. 692, 26 C. C. A. 91.

Recitals in refunding bonds which a city has authority to issue for its "outstanding indebtedness evidenced by bonds and warrants thereof," stating that these bonds are issued for that purpose, in conformity to the constitution and statutes of the state, and that all which the law requires has been done to authorize their issue, estop the city, as against bona fide purchasers of such bonds, from contending that the original bonds for which the refunding bonds are issued did not constitute a part of the bonded indebtedness of the city, and that notice of that fact was given by the ordinance under which the election authorizing this issue was held, since it specified that the indebtedness to be refunded included certain bonds issued by a water company which constituted a lien on the city waterworks, and had thereby become a part of the bonded indebtedness of the city. Judgment, City of Santa Cruz v. Waite, 98 F. 387, 39 C. C. A. 106, reversed.—Waite v. City of Santa Cruz, 22 S. Ct. 327, 184 U. S. 302, 46 L. Ed. 552.

Recitals in county bonds that they were issued, under the authority of Code N. C. §§ 1996-1999, to pay a subscription to the capital stock of a railway, entitled bona fide purchasers to assume that the condition of the railroad as to construction and the interest of the county therein were such as, by section 1996, were required to exist before the power to issue such bonds could be exercised. Decree Board of Com'rs of Stanly County v. Coler, 113 F. 705, 51 C. C. A. 379, affirmed.—Board of Com'rs of Stanly County v. W. N. Coler & Co., 28 S. Ct. 811, 190 U. S. 437, 47 L. Ed. 1126.

Recitals in county bonds of compliance with statutes authorizing their issuance for courthouse and jail purposes by the commissioners' court relieve a purchaser from the necessity of examining the order of such court referred to in the bonds as authorizing the issue, and estop the county to assert, as against a bona fide holder, that his bonds were issued in excess of the authorized amount, or were not issued for the purposes contemplated by the statutes.—County of Presidio v. Noel-Young Bond & Stock Co., 29 S. Ct. 237, 212 U. S. 58, 53 L. Ed. 402.

A purchaser of county bonds, even if bound to examine the order of the county commissioners' court referred to therein as authorizing the issue, is not charged with the knowledge that such court exceeded its power in issuing the bonds purchased by him because the numbers which such bonds bear show that the amount authorized by the court's order had already been issued, where the statutes recited in the bonds do not name any specific amount beyond which the court cannot go, but merely forbid an issue of a larger number than a specified annual tax will liquidate in 10 years, and there is nothing in the court's order which requires the bonds to be numbered consecutively from one upward.—Id.

944. — Effect of recitals in municipal records.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1978; 13 Cent. Dig. Counties, § 292.

Where an examination of the records would have shown that the bonds were not issued on the day recited as their date, and that the person who signed them was not mayor at the time they were signed, the facts that the records would show that the person signing them was mayor on the day of their date, and that the statutes and ordinances referred to in the bonds authorized their issue, and that the indorsements showed that they had been registered, will not aid the purchaser as even bona fide purchasers of municipal bonds must take the risk of the official character of those who execute them.—Coler v. City of Oleburne, 131 U. S. 162, 9 S. Ct. 720, 33 L. Ed. 146.

945. — Effect of official decisions, certificates, and affidavits.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1979-1981.

In an action by a bona fide holder of township bonds issued by commissioners under Act N. J. April 9, 1868, authorizing them to take stock in a certain railroad company, their action is conclusive as to the amount authorized, and the township is estopped from setting up that the issue is excessive.—Inhabitants of New Providence Tp. v. Halsey, 117 U. S. 336, 6 S. Ct. 764, 29 L. Ed. 904.

As against bona fide holders of municipal bonds, which recite that they are issued in pursuance of a certain act of the legislature, which authorizes certain commissioners to borrow money on the faith and credit of the town, and execute bonds therefor, after a majority of the taxpayers had assented thereto, which fact should be proved by the affidavit of the town assessor, the defense that the affidavit of the assessor to that effect was not true is unavailing.—Inhabitants of Bernards Tp. v. Morrison, 133 U. S. 523, 10 S. Ct. 333, 33 L. Ed. 763.

When the law of a state provides for the registry of municipal bonds and a certificate thereof, such certificate should be held as sufficient evidence to a purchaser of the existence of those facts upon which alone such bonds can be registered.—City of Cairo v. Zane, 149 U. S. 122, 13 S. Ct. 803, 37 L. Ed. 673.

Negotiable bonds issued by a county and placed in escrow were authorized to be delivered in payment for stock of a railroad company when its road had been "so completed through such county that a train of cars shall have passed over the same." The road was built into the county, and within two miles of the opposite side, and cars were run thereon. There being a question as to whether the condition precedent to delivery of the bonds had been complied with, the company secured right of way, and prepared to extend the road beyond the county line, but desisted when, after public discussion of the question, it was determined by the trustee holding the bonds that the condition had been fulfilled, and he delivered the bonds. Both parties acted in entire good faith. The county received, retained, and voted the stock, and paid the interest on the bonds for 3½ years. Held, that the county could not defend against the bonds in the hands of a bona fide holder on the ground that, to render them valid obligations, the railroad must have been constructed entirely through the county from one side to the other. Judgment Mercer County v. Provident Life & Trust Co., 19 C. C. A. 44, 72 F. 623, reversed.—Provident Life & Trust Co. of Philadelphia v. Mercer County, Ky., 18 S. Ct. 788, 170 U. S. 593, 42 L. Ed. 1158.

Defective organization of an irrigation district, under the California irrigation act of March 7, 1887, because of the insufficiency of the notice of the intended presentation to the board of supervisors of the petition for the formation of such district cannot be raised, as against bona fide holders for full value and without notice of bonds issued by such district, by the owners of land within the district, who acquiesced in the issue of the bonds, and received the full benefit of the proceeds, where the board of supervisors, in the exercise of their statutory authority, had decided that the district was duly organized, and filed a copy of such determination with the county recorder as required by such statute, and the bonds contained a recital, in compliance with section 15 of that act, that they were issued by authority of such act stating its title and date of approval. Judgment, Shepard v. Tulare Irr. Dist. (C. C.) 94 F. 1, affirmed.—Tulare Irr. Dist. v. Shepard, 22 S. Ct. 531, 185 U. S. 1, 46 L. Ed. 773.

—946. — Consideration.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1963.

A holder of valid county warrants, who exchanges them for refunding bonds, without notice that the debt created thereby exceeds the constitutional limit, becomes a bona fide holder to the extent as if he had purchased them in open market.—Board of Com'rs of Gunnison County, Colo., v. E. H. Rollins & Sons, 19 S. Ct. 390, 173 U. S. 255, 43 L. Ed. 689, reversing judgment E. H. Rollins & Sons v. Board of Com'rs of Gunnison County, 80 F. 692, 26 C. C. A. 91.

—947. — Purchasers from bona fide holders.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 1982.

A purchaser of negotiable county bonds from a bona fide holder takes all the rights and title of such holder, without regard to any knowledge which the purchaser may himself have affecting the validity of the bonds.—Board of Com'rs of Gunnison County, Colo., v. E. H. Rollins & Sons, 19 S. Ct. 390, 173 U. S. 255, 43 L. Ed. 689, reversing judgment E. H. Rollins & Sons v. Board of Com'rs of Gunnison County, 80 F. 692, 26 C. C. A. 91.

—948. — Defenses as against bona fide holders.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1982-1990; 13 Cent. Dig. Counties, § 290; 43 Cent. Dig. Schools, § 221.

Where municipal bonds contain no recital that the corporation is actually authorized to issue them, the corporation is not estopped to deny the authority of its officers to execute them.—Town of Concord v. Robinson, 121 U. S. 165, 7 S. Ct. 937, 30 L. Ed. 885.

As against bona fide holders of municipal bonds which recite that they are issued in pursuance of a certain act of the legislature, which authorizes certain commissioners to borrow money on the faith and credit of the town and execute bonds therefor, after a majority of the taxpayers had assented thereto, which fact should be proved by the affidavit of the town assessor, the defense that the commissioners did not borrow money on the bonds, but disposed of them without lawful consideration, is unavailing.—Inhabitants of Bernards Tp. v. Morrison, 133 U. S. 523, 10 S. Ct. 333, 33 L. Ed. 766.

Bonds issued by a municipal corporation without legal authority therefor are invalid, even in the hands of an innocent purchaser for value.—City of Brenham v. German-American Bank, 144 U. S. 173, 12 S. Ct. 559, 36 L. Ed. 390; Id., 144 U. S. 549, 12 S. Ct. 975, 36 L. Ed. 399, overruling Mitchell v. Burlington, 4 Wall. 270, 18 L. Ed. 350.

A city was duly authorized, by a vote of its inhabitants, to subscribe $100,000 for stock in a railroad company, and to issue its bonds to an equal amount in payment thereof. Thereafter the city council passed a resolution binding the city to sell to the company all this stock for $5,000, to be paid by a return of its bonds to that amount. The bonds were accordingly issued, and by direction of the council placed in escrow, to be delivered to the company when certain conditions were performed by it, the depositary being authorized and directed, after receipt of the stock, to sell the same to the railroad company for $5,000 of the city bonds. There was nothing to show that the railroad company agreed to purchase the stock on the terms stated, or on any terms, but, after the stock and bonds were duly exchanged, the stock was sold in the manner proposed. Held, that this transaction did not convert the "subscription," which was authorized by the statute, into an unauthorized donation of $95,000, and, if any wrong was done by the council in thus disposing of the stock, it did not vitiate the bonds in the hands of a bona fide purchaser.—City of Cairo v. Zane, 149 U. S. 122, 13 S. Ct. 803, 37 L. Ed. 673.

One having purchased railroad aid bonds in open market, for value, is not charged with any defect or irregularity in their issue.—Rogers v. City of Keokuk, 154 U. S. 546, 14 S. Ct. 1162, 18 L. Ed. 74.

Act III, April 16, 1869, gave any county, city, or town the right, when subscribing in aid of a railroad company, to prescribe the conditions upon which the subscription or donation should be made. Held, that county bonds, issued in 1872 in aid of a railroad company, which failed to disclose on their face the fact that the county had imposed conditions on its liability to the railroad company, were binding on the county in the hands of innocent purchasers, though such conditions were not complied with by the company.—Graves v. Saline County, 161 U. S. 359, 16 S. Ct. 526, 40 L. Ed. 732.

—949. Rights and remedies of holders of invalid securities.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1991-1994.

Where money received on the sale of invalid bonds issued without authority of law has been used in the construction of waterworks, the purchaser cannot have a lien for the amount paid out by him on the works; such lien being inconsistent with the theory by which he sought to hold the waterworks as his property purchased with his money.—City of Litchfield v. Ballou, 114 U. S. 190, 5 S. Ct. 820, 29 L. Ed. 132.

Where bonds issued by a city are void, because in violation of a constitutional provision that no city "shall be allowed to become indebted in any manner or for any purpose to an amount exceeding a certain percentage of the taxable property, a purchaser of such bonds cannot recover the purchase price in an action against the city on an implied contract for money had and received.—Id.

If the purchaser of municipal bonds seeks to pursue and reclaim the specific money which he paid therefor, he must clearly identify it or the property which it represents, and no such identification can be made where the money received from the bonds has been invested in waterworks, along with an indefinite amount of other funds.—Id.

Where township bonds, in the hands of bona fide purchasers for value, are invalid on their face under the act under which they were issued, they will not be declared valid under another act under which they might have been issued, and in that case have been valid on their face, but which act was not complied with, so that they would have been invalid under it in fact. The purchaser, having had notice of the invalidity of the bonds, cannot maintain their validity under an act to which they do not refer, as valid on their face under such act, if such act was not complied with, and the bonds were actually invalid under it.—Crow v. Oxford Tp., 119 U. S. 215, 7 S. Ct. 180, 30 L. Ed. 388.

A municipality which issued bonds in payment of a stock subscription cannot, in an action on such bonds, when they have been held void as ultra vires, be held to liability on the subscription.—Norton v. Town of Dyersburg, 127 U. S. 160, 8 S. Ct. 1111, 32 L. Ed. 85.

The holder of bonds issued by a town in payment of its subscription to railroad stock, which bonds had been held void, sued the town and the railroad company, and procured a decree, the town not objecting, that the bonds should be surrendered and canceled, and the stock, in payment of which they were issued, transferred by the town to him. Held, that he is in the same attitude as if the town had voluntarily transferred the stock to him, and the railroad company cannot object thereto.—Illinois G. T. Ry. Co. v. Wade, 140 U. S. 65, 70, 11 S. Ct. 709, 35 L. Ed. 342.

Nor can it claim that the transaction between it and the town was void, and hence the town never acquired the legal title to the stock, where it sold the bonds and received value therefor, and has never offered to return any of them, or asserted any right to the stock.—Id.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 1995-1998.

The city of East St. Louis is empowered by its charter to levy for all purposes a tax of 1 per cent., and no more, and out of this to apply three-tenths of 1 per cent., and no more, to the payment of its bonds. Held, that a decree commanding the city to levy the full tax of 1 per cent., and to appropriate a certain sum out of three-tenths of that amount to the payment of its bonded indebtedness was proper and justifiable; but that a decree ordering a certain amount out of the remaining seven-tenths to be applied for a like purpose was unwarranted by the charter and could not be upheld, even though the whole levy was not required for the current expenses of the city. If a surplus actually existed it might be disposed of by the court, but its existence cannot be anticipated and enforced.—City of East St. Louis v. United States, 110 U. S. 321, 4 S. Ct. 21, 28 L. Ed. 162.

Where there is no pretense of fraud or want of consideration in the inception of municipal bonds, a mere irregularity in the election held to authorize them will not put upon plaintiff, in an action thereon, the burden of showing that he is a holder for value.—Town of Pana v. Bowler, 107 U. S. 529, 2 S. Ct. 704, 27 L. Ed. 424.

In an action on negotiable municipal bonds, against a town which is authorized to issue bonds for certain specified purposes only, where the bonds in suit contain no statement of the purpose for which they were issued, and no recital binding the municipality by way of estoppel, the complainant must allege and prove the authority to issue them, and the purpose for which they were issued.—Hopper v. Town of Covington, 118 U. S. 148, 6 S. Ct. 1025, 30 L. Ed. 190, affirming (C. C.) 8 F. 777.

In an action on the bonds, the city alleged in its plea of non est factum that the person who was mayor at the time the bonds were signed never signed the same, or authorized any one to do so for him, and that they had never been forwarded to the comptroller by the mayor, or by any one authorized by him to do so, and that he had never forwarded, or authorized to be forwarded, the statement of taxable property. Held, that the plea was not defective for failure to negative the idea that the bonds may have been signed by some one authorized by defendant or by law, as the defendant had no power to authorize any one other than the mayor to sign them, and it was for the plaintiff to show that the person who signed them was authorized by law to do so.—Coler v. City of Cleburne, 131 U. S. 162, 9 S. Ct. 720, 33 L. Ed. 146.

Whatever rights a railroad company had as to bonds issued by a municipality in aid thereof were lost by laches in failing to assert them until 13 years after the surrender of the bonds to the municipality by the state treasurer, who held them as trustee, pursuant to Act Mich. March 22, 1869; the statute of limitations of that state touching the question varying from six to ten years.—Young v. Clarendon Tp., 132 U. S. 340, 10 S. Ct. 107, 33 L. Ed. 356.

A county judge, assuming to act under Act N. Y. May 18, 1869, permitting municipal corporations to aid in the construction of railroads, rendered a judgment appointing commissioners to execute bonds of a town. The bonds were accordingly executed and delivered to the railroad company, but before delivery a writ of certiorari issued from the supreme court to review the judgment, which was afterwards reversed. Held, in an action against a transferee of the bonds to compel their surrender for cancellation, that defendant had the burden of showing that he, or some one under whom he claimed, was a bona fide holder for value.—Lytle v. Town of Lansing, 147 U. S. 59, 13 S. Ct. 254, 37 L. Ed. 78, affirming judgment (C. C.) Town of Lansing v. Lytle, 38 F. 204.

The school board that issued the bonds in suit is none the less the proper party to be sued thereon because in the meantime the city which constituted the school district, by simple increase of population, has become a city of the first class, in which class the school boards have no separate corporate existence.—Board of Education of City of Atchison v. De Kay, 148 U. S. 591, 13 S. Ct. 706, 37 L. Ed. 573.

The holder of negotiable county bonds is presumed to have obtained them under and before maturity, in good faith, for a valuable consideration, and without notice of any circumstances impeaching their validity.—County of Presidio v. Noel-Young Bond & Stock Co., 29 S. Ct. 237, 212 U. S. 58, 53 L. Ed. 402.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. §§ 2010-2013.

A state having power to tax property for state purposes may confer on one of its municipal corporations the power to tax the same property for local purposes; so that a judgment declaring the taxation of such property by a municipal corporation for local purposes, under the authority of the state, to be forbidden by the federal constitution, in effect declares that like taxation by the state for state purposes is also forbidden by that instrument.—Henderson Bridge Co. v. City of Henderson, 19 S. Ct. 553, 173 U. S. 592, 43 L. Ed. 823.

◀957. Constitutional requirements and restrictions.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 2015-2022.

The provision of Const. 1870, art. 9, § 12, that any municipal corporation incurring indebtedness "shall * * * provide for the collecting of a direct annual tax sufficient to pay" the interest as it falls due, and the principal in 20 years, has the effect to authorize the levy of such taxes by a municipal corporation to pay indebtedness incurred since the constitution went into effect, although thereby a provision of the municipal charter, granted previous to 1870, limiting the rate of taxation for certain purposes, is necessarily violated.—City of East St. Louis v. United States, 120 U. S. 600, 7 S. Ct. 739, 30 L. Ed. 798.

◀958. Charter and other statutory provisions.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 2023-2037.

The immunity from taxation, except at a limited rate upon its net income, enjoyed by the Atlantic & Gulf Railroad Company under Act Ga. April 18, 1863, was withdrawn by Act Feb. 28, 1874, requiring railroad companies to make returns on all their property for taxation to the comptroller general, to whom the taxes were to be paid, and by whom collection was to be enforced. No provision was made for municipal taxation, and no machinery was provided for the collection of local taxes. Held, upon the intervening petition of a city in the foreclosure of a mortgage on the road, claiming taxes in arrears for several years, that the act instituted state taxes for state purposes only, and did not open the door for municipal taxation as well.—City of Savannah v. Jesup, 106 U. S. 563, 1 S. Ct. 512, 27 L. Ed. 278.

The provision of the charter of the city of Quincy that the city council shall have power to levy and collect taxes to pay debts and meet the general expenses of the city, "not exceeding 50 cents on each $100," relates only to debts and expenses incurred for ordinary municipal purposes, and does not limit the power of taxation to pay a subscription in aid of a railroad, the authority to make which must be expressly conferred.—City of Quincy v. United States, 113 U. S. 332, 5 S. Ct. 544, 28 L. Ed. 1001.

Act Wyo. Dec. 18, 1879, provides that the territorial board of equalization shall assess the value of the entire line (including rolling stock, etc.) of any railroad within the territory, and ascertain what such valuation amounts to per mile; that buildings belonging to the corporation, not on the right of way, shall be assessed by the assessor of the county or district in which they are situated; that the auditor shall then certify such assessment per mile and the number of miles in each county to the different counties; and that the county commissioners shall then divide and adjust the number of miles and the amounts falling within each precinct, township, or school district in their respective counties. All acts providing for the assessment and the equalization of assessments of the property of railroads inconsistent with such act were repealed. Held, that the provision of the charter of Cheyenne, conferring power upon the municipal authorities to assess the property of railroad corporations, was repealed.—Union Pac. R. Co. v. Ryan, 113 U. S. 516, 5 S. Ct. 601, 28 L. Ed. 1098.

◀960. Power to tax for special purposes.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 2038-2044.

◀963. — Aid to corporations and subscriptions to or purchase of stock.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 2040.

Act Ill. 1869, from which the city of Quincy derived authority to issue bonds in payment of its subscription to the stock of a railroad, or any general law of the state, not having forbidden, expressly or by necessary implication, taxation to the extent necessary to meet the obligations thus incurred, the power to levy taxes to meet subscription is to be inferred, though the limit of taxation authorized by law for ordinary municipal purposes is thereby exceeded.—City of Quincy v. United States, 113 U. S. 332, 5 S. Ct. 544, 28 L. Ed. 1001.

◀964. — Payment of indebtedness.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 2043.

The levy and collection of taxes by the city of New Orleans to satisfy outstanding indebtedness of the metropolitan police board, contracted on the faith of the exercise of the taxing power for its payment do not exhaust the city's power in the premises, where the city has applied the taxes to other purposes, and has failed to turn them over, upon demand, to the board or its representative. Judgment (1907) 44 So. 321, 119 La. 623, reversed.—State of Louisiana ex rel. Hubert v. City of New Orleans, 30 S. Ct. 40, 215 U. S. 170, 54 L. Ed. 144.

◀966. Persons and property taxable.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 2045-2061.

The fact that a bridge between low-water mark on either side of a river between two states is used by the corporation which built it under grant from a city within the boundaries of which it lay, for purposes of interstate commerce, does not exempt it from taxation by the city.—Henderson Bridge Co. v. City of Henderson, 19 S. Ct. 553, 173 U. S. 592, 43 L. Ed. 823.

Where a city is situated on one bank of a river, and its limits extend to low-water mark on the further shore, bridge property outside of low-water mark on the nearer shore is not so far beyond the reach of municipal protection by the city authorities that it cannot receive any benefits whatever from the municipal government, so that to impose taxes on it for city purposes would be a taking of private property for public use without compensation. Exact equality and absolute justice in taxation are not attainable under any system of government.—Id.

◀967. Exemptions from taxation.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 2062-2067.

A provision in a city charter that "no land embraced within the city limits, and outside of ten-acre lots as originally laid off, shall be assessed and taxed by the city council, unless the same is divided or laid out into lots of five acres or less, and unless all of same is actually used and devoted to farming purposes" (2 Acts Ky. 1887-88, p. 991), has no reference to bridges, their approaches, piers, etc., but refers only to lands capable of being cultivated or used and divided into lots, upon which buildings may be erected or over which streets may be constructed.—Henderson Bridge Co. v. City of Henderson, 19 S. Ct. 553, 173 U. S. 592, 43 L. Ed. 823.

The boundaries of a city situated on one bank of a river extended to low-water mark on the further shore, and it had power to tax property within its limits. It granted to a corporation the right to build a bridge across the stream from a point on the bank within the limits, with the stipulation that the grant should not be construed "as waiving the right of the city * * * to levy and collect taxes on the approaches to said bridge, or any building erected by said bridge company within the corporate limits of said city, the bridge itself, and all appurtenances thereto within the limits of said city." Held, that the stipulation saved, not only any right the city then had to impose taxes, but also any right that might subsequently be lawfully conferred on it.—Id.

A contract for the exemption from taxation for city purposes of lots sold by a city on the ground-rent plan under the Savannah (Georgia) ordinance of 1790, providing that the lots may be held, forever, on payment of the ground rent, but making no reference to taxes, is not created where the deeds provide that the holders shall be "subject to all such assessments and burthens as might be in common with other lot holders in the city," although for many years annual ordinances exempted such lots from taxation for the respective years, and on the sale of such lots from time to time statements were made by officials to the effect that they would not be taxable, and similar statements were contained in reports of committees. Judgment 32 S. E. 669, 107 Ga. 1, affirmed.—Wells v. City of Savannah, 21 S. Ct. 697, 181 U. S. 531, 45 L. Ed. 986.

No exemption from the municipal taxation of the business of a street railway company results from provisions in its agreement with the municipality preserving its easements for railway purposes in land to be conveyed by it to the city, and granting it the right to lay down, construct, maintain, and operate its railway through certain streets, subject to the control and regulation of the mayor and aldermen. Judgment 41 S. E. 592, 115 Ga. 137, affirmed.—Savannah, T. & I. of H. Ry. v. City of Savannah, 25 S. Ct. 690, 198 U. S. 392, 49 L. Ed. 1097.

A contract exemption from municipal taxation cannot be deduced from the covenant of a perpetual leaseholder with his municipal lessor to pay all the public taxes which shall become due on the land, although the municipality possessed no power of taxation when the lease was made.—(1911) J. W. Perry Co. v. City of Norfolk, 31 S. Ct. 465, 220 U. S. 472, 55 L. Ed. 548, affirming judgments (1908) City of Norfolk v. J. W. Perry Co., 61 S. E. 867, 106 Va. 28 and (1908) *Same v. The city of New Orleans cannot be permitted to escape liability to the creditors of the school board for the amount of interest collected by it as a penalty for delayed payment of school taxes, on the ground that school taxes are not within Acts La. 1879, No. 48, § 9, inflicting such penalty on "all taxes imposed by the city." Decree 91 F. 574, 34 C. C. A. 15, modified.—City of New Orleans v. Fisher, 21 S. Ct. 347, 180 U. S. 185, 45 L. Ed. 485.

Interest collected by a city as a penalty for nonpayment of school taxes forms no part of the city's revenues, but should be included with the taxes, where the city holds them in trust for the purpose of paying the expenses of the public schools.—Id.

Interest will not commence to run upon the amount of school taxes collected by a city as agent for its school board, and retained by it, until after a failure to pay such sums when required so to do, or failure to account on demand.—Id.

In 1880 the board of liquidation of the city of New Orleans was by act of the legislature (No. 133) created and given power to dispose of and sell the property of the city not dedicated to public uses, and out of the proceeds pay the public debt. But before any new rights had accrued under this power the control and disposition of bature property (including that in controversy in this suit) not needed for public purposes was withdrawn from the board by Act No. 81 of 1882 and given to the city council, and the proceeds of the sales and leases of public privileges and franchises were appropriated to the payment of the expenses of public improvements which were permanent in their character. In 1882 a compromise was effected in a suit pending between the New Orleans, Mobile & Texas Railroad Company, who claimed certain rights in the property, against the city, by which the railroad company were to pay a certain sum of money to the city, and the city was to dismiss its appeal. The board of liquidation sought to avoid the compromise. Held, that the compromise itself was within the departmental authority of the city council, and not subject to the control of the board of liquidation.—Board of Liquidation of City Debt of New Orleans v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 109 U. S. 221, 3 S. Ct. 144, 27 L. Ed. 916.

The city of Louisville, by virtue of a statute of Kentucky, passed an ordinance imposing certain license taxes on the banks of the city, to be paid into the city sinking fund. The banks affected denied the validity of the tax. By a written stipulation, entered into before any suit to test the validity of the tax had been instituted, between the attorneys for the banks, the city attorney, and the commissioners of the sinking fund, who constituted a separate corporation from the city, it was agreed that the banks, except those who were to bring test suits, should each pay into the sinking fund the amount of tax demanded; that test suits should be brought by those not paying, who represented the different classes of banks affected; and that the decisions in such suits should be accepted by the banks and the city as adjudicating the rights of all others in the same classes, as between them and the city. Held, that the sinking-fund commissioners had no authority to make such agreement, and, in the absence of suits actually pending, the city attorney, whose duty, under the statute, was to act as legal adviser, and to prosecute and defend all suits in behalf of the city had no power to bind the city by such stipulation, and that, the stipulation not having been ratified by the mayor or council of the city, the judgment in one of the suits brought did not render the question of the legality of the tax res judicata, as between the city and any bank not a party to such suit.—Stone v. Bank of Commerce, 19 S. Ct. 747, 174 U. S. 412, 43 L. Ed. 1028.

The payment by the banks of the taxes claimed by the city pursuant to the provisions of the stipulation, and their receipt by the sinking-fund commissioners,—it having been finally determined that the tax was valid,—did not create an equitable estoppel against the city, which would prevent it from asserting the invalidity of the stipulation.—Id.

Whether trust companies having no general banking powers, by accepting the burdens of the Kentucky tax law of May 17, 1886 (the "Hewitt Act"), thereby acquired an irrevocable contract right to exemption from other forms of taxation, is a different question from that as to whether regular banking corporations, by like conduct, acquired such a right; and hence, in proceedings brought by trust companies and banks against a city to establish an exemption on this ground, the city attorney has no authority to bind the city by an agreement that the suits involving the rights of the trust companies shall abide the result of suits involving the rights of the banks. Decree, Louisville Trust Co. v. Stone (C. C.) 88 F. 407, affirmed.—Fidelity Trust & Safety-Vault Co. v. City of Louisville, 19 S. Ct. 875, 174 U. S. 429, 43 L. Ed. 1034.

⌚1029. Process.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 2199.

Laws Wis. 1879, c. 46, provides that "the board of street commissioners of said city, and the chairman of said board, shall have concurrent power with the mayor and common council of said city in the appointment of inspectors and clerks of elections, and shall have all other powers conferred by law upon said mayor and common council, subject to the control of said common council, except the power of levying taxes," Held, that this act did not give the chairman of the board of street commissioners power to receive service of process against the city.—Amy v. City of Watertown, 130 U. S. 301, 9 S. Ct. 530, 32 L. Ed. 946.

The general statutes of the state and the city charter having designated a particular officer with whom the process might be left, service could not be had by leaving a copy with any other officer.—Id.

The charter of a city (Laws Wis. 1865) provided that service of process in actions against the city might be made by leaving a copy of the process with the mayor. P. & L. Laws 1871, c. 204, provided that the resignation of the mayor should be in writing, and filed with the city clerk, and should take effect at the time of filing the same. Held, that service could not be had by leaving a copy with him after he had filed his resignation.—Id.

⌚1037. Judgment.

After a lapse of more than 20 years a city cannot question the validity of judgments against itself, to which it assented, for assessments upon its property for public improvements, upon the ground that such property was not subject to assessment,—especially assessments approved by the legislature. Decree Warner v. City of New Orleans, 81 F. 645, 26 C. C. A. 508, modified.—City of New Orleans v. Warner, 20 S. Ct. 44, 175 U. S. 120, 44 L. Ed. 98.

⌚1038. Execution and enforcement of judgment.

See 36 Cent. Dig. Mun. Corp. § 2211.

Rev. St. § 916, provides that a party recovering a judgment in any common-law cause in any circuit or district court shall be entitled to similar remedies on the same, by execution or otherwise to reach the property of the judgment debtor, as are now provided in like causes by the laws of the state in which such court is held. Code Prac. La. art. 641, declares that, when the judgment orders the payment of a sum of money, the party in whose favor it is rendered may apply to the clerk and obtain a writ of fieri facias against the property of the debtor; and Act La. March 17, 1870, § 2, prohibits the issuance of a fieri facias from any of the courts of Louisiana against the city of New Orleans to enforce the payment of any judgment for money against the city. Held, that plaintiff, who obtained a judgment against the city of New Orleans in the circuit court of the United States for the Eastern district of Louisiana, was entitled to issue a fieri facias against the city for the collection of the judgment, since the general act allowing the issuance of a fieri facias was included within the meaning of the United States statute, but the exception in the special act in reference to the city of New Orleans has no operation in the United States courts.—Canal & C. Sta. R. Co. v. Hart, 114 U. S. 654, 5 S. Ct. 1127, 29 L. Ed. 226.

Judgment creditors of a city school board, whose claims are payable out of the school taxes, are entitled to require the city to account for the amount of such taxes collected and held in trust by the city for the payment of the expenses of the public schools, where the school board declines to compel such an accounting. Decree 91 F. 574. 34 C. C. A. 15, modified.—City of New Orleans v. Fisher, 21 S. Ct. 347, 180 U. S. 185, 45 L. Ed. 485.

❧1. Navigability in general.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 5-16.

In order to be a navigable stream it is not necessary that the waters shall be deep enough to admit the passage of boats at all portions of the stream. The Mississippi, in the region of the falls of St. Anthony, Minn., is to be classed as a navigable river, being navigable in its natural state both above and below the falls and the adjacent rapids.—St. Anthony Falls Water-Power Co. v. Board of Water Com'rs of City of St. Paul, Minn., 18 S. Ct. 157, 168 U. S. 849, 42 L. Ed. 497.

The Rio Grande river is not a navigable stream within the territory of New Mexico. Decree 51 P. 674, 9 N. M. 292, reversed.—United States v. Rio Grande Dam & Irrigation Co., 19 S. Ct. 770, 174 U. S. 690, 43 L. Ed. 1138.

A pass or crevasse caused by the overflow of the Mississippi river, making a channel to the Gulf of Mexico, through which a few fishermen have occasionally gone with small vessels carrying oysters for planting, and through which one or two cargoes of willows and timber may have passed, but which has not been used for any purpose of interstate commerce, and the gulf end of which has become closed, does not constitute a navigable water of the United States in such a sense that a dam erected therein for the purpose and with the effect of reclaiming overflowed lands and rendering them fit for cultivation will constitute an obstruction in navigable waters, within the prohibition of the act of congress of September 19, 1890, against such obstructions without authority of the secretary of war. Judgment 92 F. 344, 34 C. C. A. 392, reversed.—Leovy v. United States, 20 S. Ct. 797, 177 U. S. 621, 44 L. Ed. 914.

The mere capacity to pass in a boat of any size, however small, from one stream or rivulet to another, is not sufficient to constitute a navigable water of the United States, which the act of congress of September 19, 1890, makes it a misdemeanor to obstruct unless the channel is substantially useful to some purpose of interstate commerce.—Id.

Congress did not act arbitrarily in determining by Act March 3, 1909, § 11, that for purposes of navigation the entire flow of the rapids and falls of the St. Marys river should be devoted exclusively to that end.—United States v. Chandler-Dunbar Water Power Co., 33 S. Ct. 667, 229 U. S. 53, 57 L. Ed. 1063.

❧2. Power to control and regulate.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 2, 63.

Act Cong. Sept. 9, 1850, admitting California into the Union, and providing that all the navigable waters within the state shall be common highways and forever free, as well to the inhabitants of the state as to the citizens of the United States, without any tax, duty, or impost therefor, does not deprive the state of any of the powers which the original states possessed over such waters within their limits.—Cardwell v. American River Bridge Co., 113 U. S. 205, 5 S. Ct. 423, 28 L. Ed. 959, affirming (C. C.) 19 F. 562, 9 Sawy. 662.

All navigable waters are under the control of the United States for the purpose of regulating and improving the navigation, and though the title to the shore and submerged soil is in the various states and individual owners under them, it is subject to the servitude in respect to navigation created in favor of the federal government by the constitution.—Gibson v. United States, 17 S. Ct. 578, 166 U. S. 269, 41 L. Ed. 996.

The provision of the Minnesota enabling act (11 Stat. 166) declaring the Mississippi river a common highway for the inhabitants of the state, and all other citizens of the United States, does not impair the title and jurisdiction of the state over the navigable waters within her boundaries any more than rights of that nature are limited with regard to the thirteen original states.—St. Anthony Falls Water-Power Co. v. Board of Water Com'rs of City of St. Paul, Minn., 18 S. Ct. 157, 168 U. S. 849, 42 L. Ed. 497.

The royal charters granted by the English crown to the founders of the Atlantic colonies conveyed to the grantees both the territory described and the powers of government; and, under such charters, the dominion or propriety in the navigable waters, and in the soil under them, passed as a part of the prerogative rights annexed to the political powers conferred on the patentees, and in their hands were intended to be a trust for the common use and benefit of the new communities, and not as private property which could be parceled out and sold; and, on the Revolution, such rights became vested in the several states for like purposes, where such as were not surrendered by the constitution to the federal government remain.—Morris v. United States, 19 S. Ct. 649, 174 U. S. 196, 43 L. Ed. 946.

Action of state in fixing lines of ordinary high and low water in certain rivers held to give riparian owners no rights which will prevent Congress from fixing harbor lines in accordance with the high-water mark as changed by the wearing away of banks in the course of years.—(1912) Philadelphia Co. v. Stimson, 32 S. Ct. 840, 223 U. S. 605, 56 L. Ed. 570, affirming decree (1909) Same v. Dickinson, 33 App. D. C. 338.

❧3. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 2, 16.

The authority of a state to prohibit the erection, without its permission, of a structure in a navigable river wholly within its limits, was not superseded by the provision of River and Harbor Act March 3, 1899, c. 425, § 10, 30 Stat. 1121, 1151 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 8541], that it shall not be lawful to erect any structure in a navigable river except on plans recommended by the chief of engineers and authorized by the Secretary of War.—Cummings v. City of Chicago, 23 S. Ct. 472, 188 U. S. 410, 47 L. Ed. 525; Calumet Grain & Elevator Co. v. City of Chicago, 23 S. Ct. 477, 188 U. S. 431, 47 L. Ed. 532.

❧5. Improvement of channels and streams.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 17-30.

❧6. — In general.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 17, 19, 20, 23-24.

It was not the intention of congress by the act of August 2, 1882 (22 Stat. 198), providing for the improvement of the Potomac river and flats in the vicinity of the city of Washington, nor by the subsequent act of August 5, 1898, (24 Stat. 335), directing a suit in equity to be brought by the attorney general for the purpose of determining the rights of all parties claiming adversely to the United States in the lands or waters affected by said improvement, that those who have built wharves or warehouses along the river and within the limits of the contemplated improvements, under authority from the city, which it was empowered by congress to grant, should be treated as trespassers, although they hold no rights in fee in the lands or waters occupied; but under the provisions of the later act, which require the court to make a final determination of all rights drawn in question, and in a summary way to proceed to ascertain the value of any right, title, interest or claim adverse to the complete and paramount right of the United States found to exist, it is the duty of the court, in such suit, to make an equitable appraisal of the value of rights arising out of the building of such structures, and this requirement cannot be waived and such part of the controversy withheld from consideration by the action of counsel for the respective parties.—Morris v. United States, 19 S. Ct. 649, 174 U. S. 196, 43 L. Ed. 946.

◀ 7. — Power to make or authorize.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. § 18.

The states have full power as to the erection of bridges and other works in navigable streams wholly within their jurisdiction, in the absence of the exercise by Congress of authority to the contrary.—Lake Shore & M. S. Ry. Co. v. State of Ohio, 17 S. Ct. 357, 165 U. S. 365, 41 L. Ed. 747.

The city of Chicago was empowered, without the approval of the Secretary of War, to require the lowering of a street railway tunnel under the Chicago river to give a clear depth of 21 feet of water above it, or, in the alternative, to compel its removal, by the declaration in River and Harbor Act March 3, 1899, c. 425, 30 Stat. 1156, that all the work of removing and reconstructing bridges and piers and lowering tunnels, necessary to permit a navigable channel with the prescribed "project" depth of 21 feet in the Chicago river, should be done by the city without expense to the United States. Judgment 73 N. E. 393, 214 Ill. 9, affirmed.—West Chicago St. R. Co. v. People of State of Illinois ex rel. City of Chicago, 28 S. Ct. 518, 201 U. S. 503, 50 L. Ed. 845.

◀ 8. — Injuries from improvements.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. § 21.

Building of levees along Mississippi river under authority of Congress to improve navigation gives no valid cause for complaint to riparian owners whose lands are overflowed by the raising of the flood level thereby.—Cubbins v. Mississippi River Commission, 36 S. Ct. 671, 241 U. S. 351, 60 L. Ed. 1041.

◀ 11. — Construction and operation of works.

On the admission of Wisconsin as a state, it accepted a grant of lands previously made by congress to aid in improving the navigation of the Fox and Wisconsin rivers, and entered upon the making of the improvement; reserving to the state, by the act, any water power which should be created by the dams built. By subsequent legislation the state transferred the lands, improvements, and all its rights to a corporation, which undertook to complete the work. The state assented to a mortgage of all the property and franchises of the corporation, and, on a subsequent foreclosure of the mortgage, to the acquiring of such property and rights by a new corporation, and in 1872 to their sale and transfer to the United States. Through the entire history of the improvement, the incidental water powers created by the dams erected were recognized by the legislature as a source of revenue for the promotion of the work, and were specially enumerated as a part of the property transferred to the first corporation and by the subsequent mortgage. The United States purchased the improvement at an appraised value, and in part payment of the price, by agreement, permitted the grantor corporation to reserve from the conveyance all personal property and all water powers created by the dams, and by the use of the surplus waters not needed for purposes of navigation. The United States has completed and maintains the improvements at a large expense. Held, that the reservation to the state of all the water power incidentally created in making the public improvement was lawful, and the subsequent conveyances passed full title and right to the same, free from the claims of any other riparian owners, whose remedy, if injured in their water rights, was by obtaining compensation therefor as was provided by the statutes under which the improvements were made; that the sole power to control or regulate the use or disposition of the surplus waters accumulated by the dams built became vested in the United States when it acquired and took charge of the improvement; that by virtue of the contract by which the United States virtually sold to the canal company, which was its grantor, the water power, the latter became the sole owner of the same, subject only to the control and regulation of its use by the United States.—Green Bay & M. Canal Co. v. Patten Paper Co., 19 S. Ct. 97, 172 U. S. 58, 43 L. Ed. 364.

◀ 13. — Tolls and other charges.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. § 30.

Under the ordinance of July 13, 1787, for the government of the territory of the United States northwest of the Ohio river, which declares that all "navigable waters leading into the Mississippi shall be common highways, without any tax, duty, or impost," it is no violation of the ordinance for a state to exact tolls for using improvements, such as dams and locks, because the freedom from tax refers to the stream in its natural state. The ordinance did not contemplate improvements by artificial means; and for outlays caused by such works the state may exact a reasonable toll. A charge for services rendered is in no sense a tax or duty.—Huse v. Glover, 119 U. S. 543, 7 S. Ct. 313, 30 L. Ed. 487, affirming decree (C. C.) 15 F. 292, 11 Biss. 550.

◀ 14. Harbors.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 31-42.

The mere establishment of general harbor lines by a state board of harbor line commissioners, so as to pass over lands (and wharves situated thereon) belonging to a railroad company as part of its right of way under a congressional grant, is not, of itself, an injury or taking of property, and cannot, consistently with the public interests be enjoined.—Frosser v. Northern Pac. R. Co. 152 U. S. 59, 14 S. Ct. 528, 38 L. Ed. 352.

The extension of wharves beyond harbor lines established by local law, in navigable waters of the United States wholly within the limits of a state, cannot be justified by the relocation of such harbor lines by the Secretary of War acting under the authority of River and Harbor Act Sept. 19, 1890, c. 860, § 12 (25 Stat. 400, 425), which forbids the construction or extension of any such structures beyond the harbor lines established under his direction, except under such regulations as he may prescribe, since Congress has not, by such act, indicated any purpose wholly to ignore the original power of the states to regulate the use of navigable waters entirely within their respective limits. Judgment, City of Portland v. Montgomery, 62 P. 755, 38 Or. 215, affirmed. —Montgomery v. City of Portland, 23 S. Ct. 735, 190 U. S. 89, 47 L. Ed. 965.

Act of Secretary of War in fixing a harbor line in an island in a navigable river outside the high-water mark does not prevent him from subsequently changing the lines to coincide with the actual high-water line.—(1912) Philadelphia Co. v. Stimson, 32 S. Ct. 340, 223 U. S. 605, 56 L. Ed. 570, affirming decree (1909) Same v. Dickinson, 33 App. D. C. 338.

15. Navigation.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. § 43-53.

16. — Right in general.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. § 43-49, 51-53.

The rights of a street railway company in a tunnel under a navigable river, arising from its ownership of the fee of the land on either side of the river or in its bed, are subject to the paramount right of navigation over the waters of such river. Judgment 73 N. E. 393, 214 Ill. 9, affirmed.—West Chicago St. R. Co. v. People of State of Illinois ex rel. City of Chicago, 26 S. Ct. 513, 201 U. S. 506, 50 L. Ed. 845.

19. Obstruction of navigation in general, and injuries therefrom.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. § 59-63, 67-73.

The federal government is not estopped to rely upon the five-year limitation prescribed by Act March 3, 1891, c. 561, 26 Stat. 1095-1102 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1571), for constructing an irrigation canal or reservoir, by obtaining an injunction interfering with such construction, where between the dissolution of the preliminary injunction and the granting of the perpetual injunction more than five years elapsed, during which the construction was not impeded or hindered. Decree, United States v. Rio Grande Dam & Irrigation Co. (1906) 85 P. 393, 13 N. M. 386, affirmed.—Rio Grande Dam & Irrigation Co. v. United States, 30 S. Ct. 97, 215 U. S. 266, 54 L. Ed. 190.

20. Bridges.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. § 73-99.

Where an act of congress authorizing the construction of a bridge over navigable waters (Act March 3, 1869; 15 Stat. 336, c. 139) provides that the plans therefor shall be submitted to the secretary of war, and until he notifies the company in writing of his approval the bridge shall not be built or commenced, a notice to the company by the chief of engineers, pursuant to instructions of the secretary of war, is a sufficient compliance with the statute, and will authorize the building of the bridge.—Miller v. City of New York, 109 U. S. 385, 3 S. Ct. 228, 27 L. Ed. 971, affirming (C. C.) 10 F. 513, 13 Blatchf. 212.

The bridge across East River, between New York and Brooklyn, is authorized by Act N. Y. April 16, 1867 (Laws 1867, c. 399), Act N. Y. Feb. 20, 1869, and Act Cong. March 3, 1869 (15 Stat. 336, c. 139), and cannot be declared to be a public nuisance, even though it may injuriously affect the business of a warehouseman on the banks of the river above the bridge.—Id.

Act Miss. Feb. 7, 1867 (Laws 1867, p. 332), authorizing defendant to build its railroad over the waters of the state, contained a requirement that, "in the central portion of the channel of Pearl river" and certain other waters, defendant should maintain a drawbridge, giving a space at least 60 feet wide for the passage of vessels, "provided, however, that in case the company shall locate the line of their road across the channel of the Rigolet, at a point south of or below the principal entrance of Pearl river into the Rigolet, then the said company shall not be required to construct a drawbridge across any bayou leading into Pearl river, or across any small pass or mouth of said river." Act Cong. March 2, 1868 (15 Stat. 38), authorized defendant to construct its road over the navigable waters of the United States, and required it to maintain drawbridges of specified width over the Pascagoula and Rigolet rivers, and the bays of St. Louis and Biloxi. Held, that the fact that defendant built its road "south of or below the entrance of the Pearl river" into the Rigolet, did not excuse defendant from constructing a drawbridge over the main branch of the Pearl river, where it crossed the same.—New Orleans, M. & T. B. Co. v. State of Mississippi, 112 U. S. 12, 5 S. Ct. 19, 28 L. Ed. 619.

Act Cong. Feb. 20, 1811, enabling the people of the territory of Orleans to form a state, declared that the Mississippi and its navigable tributaries be common highways, forever free. Held not to prohibit a state from authorizing a railroad to construct a drawbridge over such a tributary, since the use of the stream was not thereby given to private parties to the exclusion of the public.—Hamilton v. Vicksburg, S. & P. R. Co., 119 U. S. 280, 7 S. Ct. 206, 30 L. Ed. 393.

A railroad empowered by its charter to bridge the navigable streams on its lines, in the course of repairing a drawbridge, which had become unsafe, constructed, in order to prevent the stoppage of its trains, a temporary bridge adjoining the old one, making unusual efforts to expedite the work. Plaintiff's steamer could have carried freight above the bridge unusually early in the season but for the temporary bridge and the supports used in the erection of the new bridge, and for the loss occasioned by the obstruction he sues. Held, that the temporary obstruction was not a ground for recovery, since wherever the exercise of a right conferred by law for the benefit of the public is attended with temporary inconvenience to private parties, in common with the public in general, they are not entitled to damages therefor.—Id.

By expending money in improving the Willamette river in Oregon, and making Portland a port of entry, congress did not assume police power over that stream so as to deprive the state of the power to authorize the erection of a bridge over that river without the consent of congress.—Willamette Iron Bridge Co. v. Hatch, 125 U. S. 1, 8 S. Ct. 811, 31 L. Ed. 629, reversing decree (C. C.) Willamette Iron Bridge Co. v. Same, 19 F. 347, 9 Sawy. 643.

Act Cong. July 25, 1866, authorizing the construction of bridges across the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, provides that, "if any bridge built under this act shall be constructed as a pivot drawbridge with the draw over the main channel of the river, it shall have spans of not less than 160 feet in length in the clear on each side of the center or pivot pier, and the piers of said bridge shall be parallel with the current of the river." Held to require a passageway for vessels between such piers of not less than 160 feet wide, measured by a line running directly across the channel and at right angles with the piers of the bridge, and that, if a bridge be built diagonally across the river, a measurement along the line of the bridge is not the proper measurement.—Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. v. Missouri River Packet Co., 125 U. S. 260, 8 S. Ct. 874, 31 L. Ed. 731.

A bill for injunction by a railroad company which has lawfully erected a bridge across a navigable river, with a draw of ample width, against a navigation company, for towing barges through in such a negligent manner as to endanger the bridge, does not ask relief in the nature of a regulation of commerce, such as can only be prescribed by congress.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Interstate Transp. Co., 155 U. S. 585, 15 S. Ct. 228, 39 L. Ed. 271, modifying decree (C. C.) 45 F. 5.

The delegation to the secretary of war by Act Sept. 12, 1890 (26 Stat. 453, §§ 4, 5, 7), of authority to direct changes in existing bridges over any navigable waters of the United States, or of bridges to be erected under legislative authority of any state, for the purpose of preventing obstructions to navigation, showed no intention by Congress to exercise exclusive control over navigable waters entirely within the jurisdiction of a state; and consequently this act did not deprive the states of power to compel the removal or alteration of bridges erected over such waters without authority.—Lake Shore & M. S. Ry. Co. v. State of Ohio, 17 S. Ct. 357, 165 U. S. 365, 41 L. Ed. 747.

The failure of municipal officers to suggest any want of public moneys in their hands for the alteration of a bridge, or any want of power to obtain the funds, until after the secretary of war has made an order for such alteration, does not preclude them from setting up those facts in defense of their criminal liability under the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, as amended by the act of congress of September 19, 1890. Judgment, United States v. Rider (D. C.) 50 F. 406, reversed.—Rider v. United States, 20 S. Ct. 838, 178 U. S. 251, 44 L. Ed. 1057.

Failure to comply with an order of the secretary of war directing an alteration in a bridge to facilitate navigation will not subject municipal officers to criminal prosecution under the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, as amended by the act of congress of September 19, 1890, where such officers have not in their hands the funds to do the work, and under the laws of the state cannot obtain them within the time fixed by the secretary's order for the completion of the work.—Id.

The Secretary of War is not invested with arbitrary power in the premises by the provision of River and Harbor Act, March 3, 1899, c. 425, § 18, 30 Stat. 1153 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3545), empowering him, when satisfied that a bridge over an interstate waterway is an unreasonable obstruction to navigation, to require such changes or alterations as will render navigation reasonably free, easy, and unobstructed, since he is bound, before making any decision or taking final action, to notify the parties interested of any proposed investigation by him to give them an opportunity to be heard, and to allow reasonable time to make such alterations as he finds to be necessary to free navigation. Judgment, United States v. Monongahela Bridge Co. (D. C. 1906) 160 F. 712, affirmed.—President, etc., of Monongahela Bridge Co. v. United States, 30 S. Ct. 356, 216 U. S. 177, 54 L. Ed. 435.

The mere silence of Congress and its failure directly to interfere and prevent the original construction of a bridge erected under the sanction of a state, over an interstate waterway, imposes no constitutional obligation upon the United States to make compensation for subsequent changes or alterations which the public good, in its judgment, requires.—Id.

A bridge company convicted for failure to make the alterations in a bridge over an interstate waterway which the Secretary of War, acting under the authority of Act March 3, 1899, c. 425, § 18, 30 Stat. 1153 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3545), requires, was afforded the reasonable opportunity to be heard, contemplated by that law, upon the question whether the bridge was, in fact, an unreasonable obstruction to navigation, where the company had full notice of the action of the officer of engineers, who, under the order of the Secretary, made a tentative examination of the facts, and appeared at the regular final hearing before that officer, with liberty to contest the facts, and introduce any evidence pertinent to the case, and the decision of the Secretary of War was based on the Engineer officer's report of all the facts adduced before him, and which constituted the basis of his conclusion that the bridge was an unreasonable obstruction to navigation.—Id.

A bridge over the Mississippi river, constructed under the authority of Sp. Act Cong. July 25, 1866, c. 246, 14 Stat. 244, which expressly reserves the right of alteration or amendment so as to prevent or remove all material obstructions, to navigation by the construction of bridges, is subject to the provisions of the river and harbor act (Act March 3, 1899, c. 425, § 18, 30 Stat. 1153), empowering the Secretary of War, when satisfied, after a hearing of the parties interested, that a bridge over a navigable waterway of the United States is an unreasonable obstruction to navigation, to require such changes or alterations as will render navigation reasonably free, easy, and unobstructed.—Hannibal Bridge Co. v. United States, 31 S. Ct. 603, 221 U. S. 194, 55 L. Ed. 699.

—21. Booms.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 121-127, 130, 131.

The extension of a sheer boom across the navigable channel of the Mississippi and near the Wisconsin shore, under authority of the state of Minnesota, cannot be complained of as an obstruction of navigation, by one who has chosen to avail himself of its advantages, in order to escape a lien for surveying and scaling under the state law, after the logs are within the limits of the state of Minnesota, when neither the state of Wisconsin nor the United States makes any complaint.—Lindsay & Phelps Co. v. Mullen, 20 S. Ct. 325, 176 U. S. 126, 44 L. Ed. 400.

A log boom constructed in a manner conformable to a state statute at a time when congress had not assumed jurisdiction over the waters in question is "affirmatively authorized by law," within the meaning of River and Harbor Act 1890, § 10 (26 Stat. 426), which prohibited any obstruction, "not affirmatively authorized by law, to the navigable capacity of any waters in respect to which the United States has jurisdiction." Decree 81 F. 658, 26 C. C. A. 647, reversed.—United States v. Bellingham Bay Boom Co., 20 S. Ct. 343, 176 U. S. 211, 44 L. Ed. 437.

A log boom which completely blocks up the channel of a navigable river, leaving no space for the free passage of boats and vessels, although it has what is termed a "trip," which may be opened for the passage of vessels, is not authorized by 1 Hill's Ann. St. Wash. § 1592, which provides that a boom shall be so constructed as to allow the free passage between it and the opposite shore for all vessels or for ordinary purposes of navigation; and such boom is therefore not exempt from the prohibition of River and Harbor Act 1890, § 10, prohibiting obstructions to navigation if not affirmatively authorized by law.—Id.

—22. Piers, dams, and cables.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 100-103, 105, 106, 108-120, 132, 260.

The landowner who has waived his right to damages by failure to take advantage of the act of 1875 (18 Stat. 506), providing for compensating riparian owners for all damages caused by the erection of dams or other improvements on a certain river, and has acquiesced for 25 years in the construction of a dam and embankment, will be enjoined from cutting the embankment in order to use a portion of the surplus water power for his private benefit.—Kaukauna Water-Power Co. v. Green Bay & M. Canal Co., 142 U. S. 254, 12 S. Ct. 173, 35 L. Ed. 1004, affirming decree Green Bay & M. Canal Co. v. Kaukauna Water-Power Co., 70 Wis. 635, 35 N. W. 529, 36 N. W. 828.

In respect to the lots lying north of Randolph street, in Chicago, and the lots in front of Michigan avenue, all bordering on the lake, and to which defendant railroad company acquired the fee by purchase, it was vested with riparian rights, and thereby became entitled to construct piers, not extending beyond the point of navigability.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. State of Illinois, 146 U. S. 387, 13 S. Ct. 110, 36 L. Ed. 1018, affirming decree (C. C.) Illinois v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 33 F. 730.

Defendants contracted to build the piers for a railroad bridge across a river, and to furnish materials therefor, but before the piers were completed they were submerged by high water, so as to be a dangerous obstruction to navigation, and defendants placed buoys to indicate their position. The buoys were washed away and replaced once. One of them was again washed away, and, after a reasonable time for its replacement had elapsed and defendants had failed to replace it, a barge in tow of plaintiff's steamer struck the submerged pier, whose position it should have indicated, and was destroyed. Held, that defendants were guilty of negligence.—Casement v. Brown, 148 U. S. 615, 13 S. Ct. 672, 37 L. Ed. 582.

A finding that a stream is navigable up to the junction with it of another stream, but that the portion above the junction, on which it was proposed to build a dam, is not navigable, has no channel, and is "nothing but a high-water outlet, going dry every summer at many places, choked with rafts, and filled with sand, reefs, etc.," is, in effect, a finding that the navigability of the stream below the junction is not influenced by the flow of water from that portion above, and hence that such navigability would not be injured by the erection of the dam.—Egan v. Hart, 17 S. Ct. 300, 165 U. S. 188, 41 L. Ed. 680.

Act U. S. Sept. 19, 1890 (26 Stat. 454) § 10, prohibiting "the erection of any obstruction, not affirmatively authorized by law, to the navigable capacity of any waters, in respect of which the United States has jurisdiction," prohibits the construction of a dam in a river, at a point where it is not navigable, which so retards the flow of water as to affect the navigability of the river at a point where the river was navigable before. Decree 51 P. 674, 9 N. M. 292, reversed.—United States v. Rio Grande Dam & Irrigation Co., 19 S. Ct. 770, 174 U. S. 690, 43 L. Ed. 1136.

Since the duty of the United States to its own citizens, to preserve the navigability of the Rio Grande river, is as great as any arising out of a treaty with Mexico, the court, on a bill by the United States to enjoin the erection of a dam in such river, will not consider the question whether the erection of such dam would be a violation of the treaty.—Id.

Piers, docks, and wharves erected in Lake Michigan by a railroad company by virtue of its riparian proprietorship cannot be said to extend into the lake beyond the point of practical navigability, having reference to the manner in which commerce in vessels is conducted on that lake, where such structures extend no further into the lake than is necessary to accommodate a great number of vessels of moderate capacity, and the average depth of water at the outer line of the structures is insufficient for the accommodation of a vast amount of commerce carried on in vessels on the lake. Decree 91 F. 955, 34 C. C. A. 138, affirmed.—People of State of Illinois v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 22 S. Ct. 300, 184 U. S. 77, 46 L. Ed. 440.

The provision of a state Constitution that all navigable waters shall forever remain public highways does not prevent the Legislature, in the exercise of its police power to subserve the drainage of lowlands, from authorizing the construction of a dam across a navigable stream. Judgment (C. C.) Manigault v. S. M. Ward & Co., 123 F. 707, affirmed.—Manigault v.

Springs, 26 S. Ct. 127, 199 U. S. 473, 50 L. Ed. 274.

26. Remedies for obstructions.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 133-166.

Act Cong. Feb. 14, 1859 (11 Stat. 383), admitting the state of Oregon into the Union, provides "that all the navigable waters of said state shall be common highways, and forever free, as well to the inhabitants of said state as to all other citizens of the United States, without any tax, duty, impost, or toll therefor." Held, that the act did not prohibit obstructions to the navigation of such waters, and that, congress not having by subsequent legislation assumed police power over the Willamette river, a bill to enjoin the erection of a bridge over that river, authorized by the state legislature, on the ground that the bridge impeded navigation, and that the act was passed without the consent of congress, did not present a case arising under the constitution or laws of the United States, so as to give the circuit court jurisdiction.—Willamette Iron Bridge Co. v. Hatch, 125 U. S. 1, 8 S. Ct. 811, 31 L. Ed. 629, reversing decree (C. C.) Willamette Iron Bridge Co. v. Same, 19 F. 347, 9 Sawy. 643.

In an action against persons building a railroad bridge for injuries to plaintiff's steamboat, due to defendants' failure to indicate the position of unfinished piers which were covered by high water, it appeared that the water was not so high as to make navigation dangerous, and that the steamboat at the time of the accident was under perfect control, and had a sufficiency of competent lookouts, and the course she pursued was the customary and proper one. On the other hand, her pilots had passed the locality frequently before, and had opportunity to become familiar with the positions of the piers. There was no break in the water to indicate that the submerged pier was near the surface, and another boat had shortly before taken the same course in safety. Held, that the pilots were not guilty of contributory negligence, since the absence of the buoy which, until it was washed away, indicated the position of the pier, might warrant the inference that the pier—whose exact position they were not bound to know—was submerged to such an extent as to be no longer dangerous.—Casement v. Brown, 148 U. S. 615, 13 S. Ct. 672, 37 L. Ed. 582.

Whether the appropriation of the upper waters of a navigable stream should be enjoined on application of the attorney general, as authorized by 26 Stat. U. S. 454, § 10, is a question of fact, dependent on whether such appropriation interferes with the navigability of the stream. Decree 51 P. 674, 9 N. M. 292, reversed.—United States v. Rio Grande Dam & Irrigation Co., 19 S. Ct. 770, 174 U. S. 690, 43 L. Ed. 1136.

27. Criminal prosecutions for causing or maintaining obstructions.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 167-171; 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. § 60.

The failure of an order by a police jury for the construction of a dam, to say anything about the subject of health, does not preclude the defense against an indictment for obstructing a navigable stream, that it was done in order to promote the health of the community. Judgment 92 F. 344, 34 C. C. A. 392, reversed.—Leovy v. United States, 20 S. Ct. 797, 177 U. S. 621, 44 L. Ed. 914.

A notice to a bridge company to make certain alterations in a bridge over an interstate waterway, conformably to Act March 3, 1899, c. 425, § 18, 30 Stat. 1153, enacted to secure navigation against unreasonable obstructions, is not insufficient as the basis of a criminal prosecution in case of noncompliance because it bears the signature of the Assistant Secretary of War, instead of the Secretary himself, who is the official named in the statute as the one to give such notice, where the communication shows upon its face that it was from the War Department, and from the Secretary of War, and that the latter, without abrogating his authority under the statute, only used the hand of the Assistant Secretary in order to give the owners of the bridge notice of what was required of them.—Hannibal Bridge Co. v. United States, 31 S. Ct. 603, 221 U. S. 194, 55 L. Ed. 699.

—35. Sewage and pollution.

The threatened daily transportation by the sanitary district of Chicago, by artificial means and through an unnatural channel, of large quantities of sewage and of accumulated deposits which will poison the water supply of inhabitants of the state of Missouri, and injuriously affect that portion of the bed or soil of the Mississippi river which lies within its territory, entitles that state to maintain a suit for equitable relief, in advance of any actual injury sustained thereby.—State of Missouri v. State of Illinois, 21 S. Ct. 331, 180 U. S. 208, 45 L. Ed. 497.

The discharge into the Mississippi river, through an artificial drainage canal, of the sewage of Chicago, mixed with a large volume of pure water from Lake Michigan, will not be enjoined by the federal Supreme Court on complaint by the state of Missouri that the result of such action is to poison the water supply of its inhabitants, where the evidence, though disclosing an increase in the deaths from typhoid fever in St. Louis, leaves it doubtful whether the typhoid bacillus can and does survive the journey and reach the intake of St. Louis in the Mississippi, and shows other possible sources of infection in the discharge of sewage above the St. Louis intake from other towns and cities, some of which are situated in Missouri.—State of Missouri v. State of Illinois, 26 S. Ct. 268, 200 U. S. 496, 50 L. Ed. 572.

Act Cong. June 12, 1866, relinquishing to the city of St. Louis all rights of the United States "in and to all wharves" and thoroughfares within the corporate limits, does not authorize the city to impair the rights of other riparian owners on the Mississippi river by extending streets into the river.—City of St. Louis v. Myers, 113 U. S. 566, 5 S. Ct. 640, 28 L. Ed. 1131.

Where a navigable stream forming a boundary is above the influence of the tide, a riparian owner's land will extend to low or high water mark, or to the center of the stream, according to the law of the state in which the land is situated.—Packer v. Bird, 137 U. S. 661, 11 S. Ct. 210, 34 L. Ed. 819, affirming judgment 71 Cal. 134, 11 P. 873; City of St. Louis v. Rutz, 138 U. S. 226, 11 S. Ct. 337, 34 L. Ed. 941.

Under the acts of congress of April 18, 1818 (3 Stat. 429, § 2), and March 6, 1820 (Id. 545, § 2), providing, respectively, for the organization and admission of Illinois and Missouri as states of the Union, and declaring that the western boundary of Illinois and the eastern boundary of Missouri shall be the "middle of the main channel of the Mississippi river," the question whether a riparian owner holds the fee to the middle thread of the stream or the river's bank is governed by the law of the states.—City of St. Louis v. Rutz, 138 U. S. 226, 11 S. Ct. 337, 34 L. Ed. 941, affirming judgment (C. C.) Rutz v. Seeger, 35 F. 188.

The boundaries of lands located on navigable waters are under state control, subject to the regulations of congress concerning commerce and navigation.—Hardin v. Jordan, 140 U. S. 371, 11 S. Ct. 808, 838, 35 L. Ed. 428, reversing judgment (C. C.) 16 F. 823.

The question of the water boundary of a riparian owner is one to be determined under the law of the state where the land is situated.—Id.

Whether the title of a proprietor of land on the margin of a navigable river extends to high-water mark, low-water mark, or the middle of the stream, is to be determined by the laws of the state in which the land is situated.—Kaukauna Water Power Co. v. Green Bay & M. Canal Co., 142 U. S. 254, 12 S. Ct. 173, 35 L. Ed. 1004, affirming decree Green Bay & M. Canal Co. v. Kaukauna Water-Power Co., 70 Wis. 635, 35 N. W. 529, 36 N. W. 828.

The common-law doctrine as to the dominion, sovereignty, and ownership of lands under tide waters on the borders of the sea applies equally to the lands beneath the navigable waters of the Great Lakes; and in this country such dominion, sovereignty, and ownership belongs to the states, respectively, within whose borders such lands are situated, subject always to the right of congress to control the navigation so far as may be necessary for the regulation of foreign and interstate commerce.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. State of Illinois, 146 U. S. 387, 13 S. Ct. 110, 36 L. Ed. 1018, affirming decree (C. C.) Illinois v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 33 F. 730.

The title and rights of riparian or littoral proprietors in the soil below high-water mark are governed by the laws of the several states, subject to the rights granted to the United States by the constitution, and new states have the same rights as the original ones.—Shively v. Bowlby, 152 U. S. 1, 14 S. Ct. 548, 38 L. Ed. 331, affirming judgment Bowlby v. Shively, 22 Or. 410, 30 P. 154.

Upon the acquisition of a territory by the United States, whether by cession from one of the states, or by treaty with a foreign country, or by discovery and settlement, the title and dominion over land under tide water passed to the United States, for the benefit of the whole people, and in trust for the several states.—Id.

The fact that the portion of Water street lying in front of certain property has never been actually opened by the city as a thoroughfare could not give the owner of such property title to the land and water on the river front opposite and across the space appropriated for the street; nor would his occupancy of such frontage for wharfage or other purposes raise a presumption of a grant, but must be presumed to have been with the consent of the city authorities.—Morris v. United States, 19 S. Ct. 649, 174 U. S. 196, 43 L. Ed. 946.

The state of Alabama when admitted into the Union became entitled to the soil below high-water mark under the navigable waters within the limits of the state, where it had not been previously granted.—Mobile Transp. Co. v. City of Mobile, 23 S. Ct. 170, 187 U. S. 479, 47 L. Ed. 266, affirming judgment 30 So. 645, 128 Ala. 335, 64 L. R. A. 333, 86 Am. St. Rep. 143; (C. C. A.) City of Mobile v. Sullivan Timber Co., 129 F. 298, 63 C. C. A. 412.

The order of the President of January 13, 1899, reserving for naval purposes "Mission Island and the small island southeast thereof," in the bay of San Francisco, cannot be construed as an appropriation for such purposes of the surrounding tide land, which had been reclaimed by a grantee from the state of California, and upon which had been erected extensive warehouses and wharves. Judgment Mission Rock Co. v. United States, 109 F. 763, 48 C. C. A. 641, affirmed.—United States v. Mission Rock Co., 23 S. Ct. 606, 189 U. S. 391, 47 L. Ed. 865.

On admission of Idaho to statehood the ownership of the bed of Snake river on the Idaho side of that stream, forming the state boundary, passed from the United States to the state.—Scott v. Lattig, 33 S. Ct. 242, 227 U. S. 229, 57 L. Ed. 490, 44 L. R. A. (N. S.) 107, reversing decree Lattig v. Scott, 107 P. 47, 17 Idaho, 506.

What shall be deemed a navigable stream within the local rules of property in the bed of a stream is for the determination of the several states.—Donnelly v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 449, 228 U. S. 243, 57 L. Ed. 820, Ann. Cas. 1913E, 710, rehearing denied 33 S. Ct. 1024, 228 U. S. 708, 57 L. Ed. 1035, Ann. Cas. 1913E, 710.

Title to the bed of the Klamath river has been vested in the United States as riparian owner by Act Cal. April 13, 1850 (Laws 1850, p. 219), adopting the common law, and transferring to riparian proprietors or confirming in them the ownership of nonnavigable streams and their beds by Act Cal. February 24, 1891 (Laws 1891, p. 10), and Act March 11, 1891 (Laws 1891, p. 96), declaring that the Klamath river is a nonnavigable stream.—Id.

The bed of the Mississippi river above tide-water belongs in Mississippi to the riparian owner up to the thread of the channel.—Archer v. Greenville Sand & Gravel Co., 34 S. Ct. 587, 233 U. S. 60, 58 L. Ed. 850, reversing judgment 194 F. 1020, 114 C. C. A. 664.

The riparian owner on the Mississippi river above tidewater, whose title under the local law extends to the middle of the stream, is not powerless to prevent a trespasser from dredging the sand in the bed of the river in front of her land, even if she, under the River and Harbor Act Sept. 19, 1890, § 7, could not take out such sand without permission of the Secretary of War.—Id.

Authority from the Secretary of War to dredge out sand in the Mississippi river in front of the land of a riparian owner, whose title under the local law extends to the middle of the stream, is a matter of defense to be pleaded to a bill by a riparian owner to restrain such dredging as a continuing trespass.—Id.

—37. Grants to and acquisition by private owners or municipalities.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 201-226, 285; 8 Cent. Dig. Bound. §§ 108-112, 115-117, 121, 122; 41 Cent. Dig. Pub. Lands, §§ 35, 36.

A deed of certain surveys in a county in Illinois, which bordered on the Mississippi and extended southeasterly inland, described a line as running north, 33½ degrees west, "to the present bank of the Mississippi river," thence along the same line "to low-water mark of the Mississippi river," and "thence down to the extended line," between specified surveys, the tract conveyed containing 500 acres, "together with all rights as riparian owner to the accretion or sand bar lying northwardly and between the extended lines of said land herein described." Held, that the land conveyed was not bounded by low-water mark, but extended to the middle of the main channel; the fee of the riparian owner, under the law of Illinois, of lands bordering on the Mississippi, extending to the middle of the main channel of the river.—St. Louis v. Rutz, 138 U. S. 226, 11 S. Ct. 337, 34 L. Ed.

941, affirming judgment (C. C.) Rutz v. Seeger, 35 F. 188.

Since the common law governs in Illinois, a patentee from the United States of land there situated, and bounding on a navigable lake, takes to the center of the lake.—Hardin v. Jordan, 140 U. S. 371, 11 S. Ct. 808, 838, 35 L. Ed. 428, reversing judgment (C. C.) 16 F. 823.

The decree of the United States circuit court confirming to the city of San Francisco, Cal., as successor of a Mexican Pueblo, its claim, made under Act Cong. March 3, 1851, to the pueblo lands, described as tract so confirmed as "embracing so much of the extreme upper portion of the peninsula, above ordinary high-water mark, * * * on which the city of San Francisco is situated, as will contain an area of four square leagues; said tract being bounded on the north and east by the Bay of San Francisco, on the west by the Pacific Ocean, and on the south by a due east and west line drawn so as to include the area aforesaid." A survey of the tract, which, in running the shore line of the bay, followed the line of ordinary high tide of Mission creek, a navigable arm of the bay, was approved by the commissioner of the general land office, but his approval was set aside by the secretary of the interior, and a new survey was ordered by the latter, and under his directions was made, in which the shore line of the bay was run across the mouth of Mission creek; and the latter survey was approved by the commissioner of the general land office, and a patent was issued thereon to the city, following the lines of such latter survey. In ejectment for land lying on Mission creek above the shore line of the bay, and embraced in the patent, but not in the first survey, brought against a defendant claiming title derived from the city under the patent, plaintiffs claimed under a grant of the land from the state tide land commissioners, as land which had passed to the state on its admission to the Union, by virtue of its sovereignty over all tide lands below the high-water line. Held, that the patent, following the decree of confirmation and the final and correct survey of the confirmed claim, was conclusive, not only as against the government and against all parties claiming under it by title subsequently acquired, but also as against all parties except those having a full and complete title acquired from Mexico anterior to that confirmed by the decree of confirmation.—Knight v. United Land Ass'n, 142 U. S. 161, 12 S. Ct. 258, 35 L. Ed. 974.

The title which a state holds to lands under tide waters bordering on the sea or under the navigable waters of the Great Lakes, lying within her limits, is different in character from the title of the state to lands intended for sale, or from that of the United States to the public lands which are open to pre-emption and sale. It is a title held in trust for the people of the state, that they may enjoy the navigation of the waters, carry on commerce over them, and have liberty of fishing therein, free from obstruction or interference by private parties; and it is not within the legislative power of the state to abdicate this trust by a grant whereby it surrenders its property and general control over the lands of an entire harbor, bay, sea, or lake, though it may grant parcels thereof for the foundations of wharves, piers, docks, and other structures in aid of commerce, or parcels which, being occupied, do not substantially impair the public interest in the waters remaining.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. State of Illinois, 146 U. S. 387, 13 S. Ct. 110, 36 L. Ed. 1018, affirming decree (C. C.) Illinois v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 33 F. 730.

Act Ill. April 16, 1869, purporting to grant to the Illinois Central Railroad Company all the right and title of the state to the submerged lands constituting the bed of Lake Michigan, for one mile from the shore opposite the company's tracks and breakwater in the city of Chicago, to be held in perpetuity without power to alienate the fee, was in excess of the legislative power of the state, and inoperative to affect, modify, or in any respect control the sovereignty and dominion of the state over such lands, or its ownership thereof, and was annulled by the repealing act of April 15, 1873, which was valid and effective to that extent.—Id.

Laws 1872, p. 129, and Laws 1874, p. 76, providing for the sale of tide lands and giving the owners of adjoining uplands the first right to purchase, are a constitutional and legal exercise of the state's dominion over lands under navigable waters.—Shively v. Bowlby, 152 U. S. 1, 14 S. Ct. 548, 38 L. Ed. 331, affirming judgment Bowlby v. Shively, 22 Or. 410, 30 P. 154.

Grants by congress of lands within a territory to settlers thereon, though bordering on navigable waters, convey no title below high-water mark, and leave the control of the use of the shores by the owners of uplands to the future state, subject only to the rights vested by the constitution in the United States.—Id.

The grant of the province of Maryland by Charles I. to Lord Baltimore, in 1632, embraced the Potomac river and the soil under it and islands therein to high-water mark on the southern or Virginia shore, and the title conveyed by such grant was not affected by the subsequent grant by James II., in 1688, to Lord Culpeper of what was called the "Northern Neck of Virginia," nor was it devested by any valid proceedings prior to the Revolution.—Morris v. United States, 19 S. Ct. 649, 174 U. S. 196, 43 L. Ed. 946.

The state of California has the right to convey its title to tide lands contiguous to, and immediately surrounding, certain islands in the bay of San Francisco, free from any easement appurtenant to such islands. Judgment Mission Rock Co. v. United States, 109 F. 763, 48 C. C. A. 641, affirmed.—United States v. Mission Rock Co., 23 S. Ct. 606, 189 U. S. 391, 47 L. Ed. 865.

A rule of local law that the owner of land bordering on a river owns to the center of the channel inures to the benefit of a patentee from the United States as against one claiming to enter as a homestead an unsurveyed island in such river, where the omission to survey the island was not due to fraud or mistake, and subsequent applications for a survey have been refused by the Land Department. Judgment, McBride v. Whitaker, 90 N. W. 966, 65 Neb. 137, affirmed.—Whitaker v. McBride, 25 S. Ct. 530, 197 U. S. 510, 49 L. Ed. 857.

A patentee from the United States government has all the rights of a riparian owner in the channel lying opposite his banks, although his land may be itself surrounded by two channels of the river.—Id.

A conveyance of the upland "with the right of extension to low-water mark" carries title to land between the upland and low-water mark.—Spreckels v. Brown, 29 S. Ct. 256, 212 U. S. 208, 53 L. Ed. 476.

Disposal by the United States after admission of Idaho of fractional subdivisions on the east bank of the Snake river, forming the boundary between Idaho and Oregon, carries with it no right to the bed of the river save the rights of private riparian owners under the law of Idaho.—Scott v. Lattig, 33 S. Ct. 242, 227 U. S. 229, 57 L. Ed. 490, 44 L. R. A. (N. S.) 107, reversing decree Lattig v. Scott, 107 P. 47, 17 Idaho, 506.

The state of California, admitted into the Union by Act Sept. 9, 1850, may confer on riparian owners title to the bed of any navigable stream within its borders.—Donnelly v. Unit- ed States, 33 S. Ct. 449, 228 U. S. 243, 57 L. Ed. 820, Ann. Cas. 1913E, 710, rehearing denied 33 S. Ct. 1024, 228 U. S. 708, 57 L. Ed. 1035, Ann. Cas. 1913E, 710.

A tract of about 40 acres lying between platted traverse lines of a lot in a fractional section and the waters of a navigable stream held not included in a patent for lot calling for 12.84 acres issued to the occupant who did not for more than 30 years occupy or exercise any possession outside the traverse lines.—Producers' Oil Co. v. Hansen, 35 S. Ct. 755, 238 U. S. 325, 59 L. Ed. 1330, affirming judgment Same v. Hansen, 61 So. 754, 132 La. 691.

§38. Reclamation and improvement.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 223-238.

Act N. J. March 31, 1869 (Laws N. J. 1869, c. 386), authorizing certain companies to reclaim and erect wharves and other improvements in front of any lands owned by them adjoining Kill von Kull, or any other tide waters of the state, and, when so reclaimed and improved, to hold them as owners, and providing that said companies should file with the secretary of state a map and description of the lands under water in front of the upland referred to in the law, applies not only to the water front of land owned by the companies above the original high-water mark, but also to land owned by them adjoining tide water, lying below such high-water mark, which had been already granted, for purposes of reclamation, to an improvement company, which had conveyed to the united companies.—City of Hoboken v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 124 U. S. 656, 8 S. Ct. 643, 31 L. Ed. 543, affirming judgment (C. C.) 16 F. 816.

The reclamation by the Illinois Central Railroad Company from the waters of Lake Michigan of a tract 200 feet wide, extending along the front of the city of Chicago, and the construction of its tracks, crossings, guards, etc., and the erection of the breakwater on the east thereof, and the necessary works for the protection of the shore on the west, all as required by the ordinance under which it was permitted to enter the city, did not interfere with any useful freedom in the use of the waters of the lake for commerce,—foreign, interstate, or domestic,—or constitute such an encroachment upon the domain of the state as to require the interposition of a court for their removal, or for any restraint in their use.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. State of Illinois, 146 U. S. 387, 13 S. Ct. 110, 36 L. Ed. 1013, affirming decree (C. C.) Illinois v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 33 F. 730.

Such acts did not give it an absolute fee in the lands reclaimed, or any right of use, disposal, or control, except for a right of way and for railroad purposes.—Id.

Such acts did not give it any rights as a riparian owner to reclaim still further lands from the lake for its use or for the construction of piers, docks, and wharves in furtherance of its business.—Id.

In respect to the lots lying north of Randolph street in Chicago, and the lots in front of Michigan avenue, all bordering on the lake, and to which defendant railroad company acquired the fee by purchase, it was vested with riparian rights, and thereby became entitled to fill up the shallow waters of the lake.—Id.

A riparian owner on a navigable stream owns to the water's edge only.—Packer v. Bird, 137 U. S. 661, 11 S. Ct. 210, 34 L. Ed. 819, affirming judgment 71 Cal. 134, 11 P. 873.

The rights of the city of Chicago as a riparian owner on the lake front were not devested by the fact that the Illinois Central Railroad occupied the lands underlying the immediate front, and filled them in for its right of way, under authority of the city ordinance; but the city still has the right to exercise such riparian rights, subject to the terms of the ordinance and to the authority of the state to prescribe the lines beyond which no structures may be extended, and also subject to such supervision and control as the United States may lawfully exercise.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. State of Illinois, 146 U. S. 387, 13 S. Ct. 110, 36 L. Ed. 1018, affirming decree (C. C.) Illinois v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 33 F. 730.

The fee in the streets, alleys, commons, and public grounds, as exhibited on the maps of subdivision of fractional sections 10 and 15, lying on the lake front of Chicago, is vested in the city, together with the riparian rights appertaining thereto.—Id.

The right of a riparian owner on a navigable river extends to high-water mark only.—Shively v. Bowlby, 152 U. S. 1, 14 S. Ct. 548, 38 L. Ed. 331, affirming judgment Bowlby v. Shively, 22 Or. 410, 30 P. 154.

The question as to the nature and extent of the rights of riparian owners upon navigable waters, including the right to the continued flowage of the stream, is one to be decided by the courts of the state as a matter of local law, subject to the right of congress to regulate public navigation and commerce.—St. Anthony Falls Water-Power Co. v. Board of Water Com'rs of City of St. Paul, Minn., 18 S. Ct. 157, 168 U. S. 349, 42 L. Ed. 497.

There is nothing in the legislation of congress, nor in the action of the authorities of the city of Washington in relation to the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal Company, which gives such company any riparian rights in the Potomac river within the city.—Morris v. United States, 19 S. Ct. 649, 174 U. S. 196, 43 L. Ed. 946.

A patentee from the United States government has all the rights of a riparian owner in the channel lying opposite his banks, although his land may be itself surrounded by two channels of the river. Judgment, McBride v. Whitaker, 90 N. W. 966, 65 Neb. 137, affirmed.—Whitaker v. McBride, 25 S. Ct. 530, 197 U. S. 510, 49 L. Ed. 857.

Lawful building of a dam by the United States to increase depth of water in a harbor in a navigable river submerged an island to a greater extent than before gives subsequent purchaser no right to relief in an action against the Secretary of War.—(1912) Philadelphia Co. v. Stimson, 32 S. Ct. 340, 223 U. S. 605, 56 L. Ed. 570, affirming decree Same v. Dickinson (1909) 33 App. D. C. 338.

Authority of Secretary of War under Act March 3, 1899, to establish harbor lines may be exercised to widen the Elizabeth river to permit mooring of war vessels in front of Norfolk Navy Yard.—Greenleaf-Johnson Lumber Co. v. Garrison, 35 S. Ct. 551, 237 U. S. 251, 59 L. Ed. 939, affirming decree Garrison v. Greenleaf Johnson Lumber Co., 215 F. 576, 131 C. C. A. 644.

—41. Shores and banks.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 178, 246-252.

Riparian proprietors in Virginia have the right to build out private wharves so as to reach the navigable waters of the stream. Decree (1907) 152 F. 1022, 82 C. C. A. 276, reversed.—Weems Steamboat Co. of Baltimore City v. People's Steamboat Co., 29 S. Ct. 661, 214 U. S. 345, 53 L. Ed. 1024, 16 Ann. Cas. 1222.

The owner or lessee of the exclusive right to use a wharf on a navigable stream need not permit its use by others upon payment of reasonable compensation therefor because there is no other wharf at that port, or because such use is convenient, and has been permitted by the former owner or lessor.—Id.

—42. Islands and sandbars.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 253-255.

Small rocky islands, without apparent value, situated in the St. Mary's river, were not excepted from the transfer to the state by act June 15, 1836, c. 99, 5 Stat. 49, 50, admitting Michigan to the Union, of the bed of the stream surrounding them, because of the provisions of section 4 of that act that no right was conferred upon the state "to interfere with the sale by the United States, and under their authority, of the vacant and unsold lands within the limits of the said state," and of Act June 23, 1836, c. 121, 5 Stat. 59, 60, that the state should "never interfere with the primary disposal of the soil within the same by the United States." Decree (1907) 152 F. 25, 81 C. C. A. 221, affirmed.—United States v. Chandler-Dunbar Water Power Co., 28 S. Ct. 579, 209 U. S. 447, 52 L. Ed. 881.

A patent from the United States, describing the land granted as bounded by the St. Mary's river, carries with it the title to small, unsurveyed islands on the American side of the international boundary line where, under the laws of the state, a grant of land bounded by a stream, whether navigable in fact or not, carries with it the bed of the stream to the center of the thread.—Id.

A large island on the Idaho side of the Snake river, a navigable stream, being in existence when Idaho became a state, did not pass to the state on admission, but remained the property of the United States.—Scott v. Lattig, 33 S. Ct. 242, 227 U. S. 229, 57 L. Ed. 490, 44 L. R. A. (N. S.) 107, reversing decree Lattig v. Scott, 107 P. 47, 17 Idaho, 506.

A large island on the Idaho side of the Snake river which is navigable did not pass to the state upon admission to statehood, but remained the property of the United States.—Moss v. Ramey, 36 S. Ct. 183, 239 U. S. 538, 60 L. Ed. 425, affirming judgment A. B. Moss & Bro. v. Same, 186 P. 608, 25 Idaho, 1.

—43. Wharves, docks, piers, and other structures.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 104, 256-265.

The original owner of a tract of land on the Potomac river, now within the city of Washington, conveyed it with all appurtenances to trustees in trust to be laid out in streets, squares, parcels, and lots of a "federal city," and to convey to the United States all of the streets and such of the squares, parcels, and lots as the president might deem proper for the use of the United States, and that of the residue of said lots a fair and equal division should be made, and one portion should be reconveyed to the original owner or his heirs and assigns. Certain parts of this land described as bounded by Water street were reconveyed to such owner. Water street was not laid out at the time, and the owners of the water lots for a great many years used the land to the water's edge. Held, that the fee simple of the strip described as "Water Street" vested in the United States, and all the rights of wharfage originally appurtenant to the land had passed absolutely to the United States.—Potomac Steamboat Co. v. Upper Potomac Steamboat Co., 109 U. S. 672, 3 S. Ct. 445, 27 L. Ed. 1070; Id., 109 U. S. 672, 4 S. Ct. 15, 27 L. Ed. 1070.

In respect to the lots lying north of Randolph street, in Chicago, and the lots in front of Michigan avenue, all bordering on the lake, and to which defendant railroad company acquired the fee by purchase, it was vested with riparian rights, and thereby became entitled to construct wharves, docks and slips not extending beyond the point of navigability.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. State of Illinois, 146 U. S. 387, 13 S. Ct. 110, 36 L. Ed. 1018, affirming decree (C. C.) Illinois v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 33 F. 730.

The Maryland act of December 19, 1791, which vested in the commissioners of the president for the time being, and until congress should assume jurisdiction over the District of Columbia, the power to license the building of wharves in the waters of the Potomac and Eastern Branch adjoining the city of Washington, and declared any wharf built therein without such license to be a common nuisance, by its terms made such licenses temporary, and no right to the permanent maintenance of wharves could be given, or was ever assumed to be given, by the commissioners acting thereunder; and congress and the city under its authority having at all times since the United States assumed jurisdiction over the District assumed and exercised the right to license and regulate the building of wharves, it cannot be held that any such wharves were built in the exercise of riparian rights by the owners of lots fronting on Water street, nor can the maintenance of wharves built under such licenses give the owners any right of property in the soil or waters occupied, or of permanent occupancy, as against the United States.—Morris v. United States, 19 S. Ct. 649, 174 U. S. 196, 43 L. Ed. 946.

Where that portion of a street in front of certain property has never been actually opened by the city as a thoroughfare, the occupancy of the river front across such street and opposite such property by the owner thereof for wharfage or other purposes will not raise the presumption of a grant, but must be presumed to have been with the consent of the city authorities.—Id.

⚡44. Accretion and reliction.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 266-278, 281, 282.

Allegations in a bill that land was formed by imperceptible degrees, and that the process continued for 17 years, resulting in the production by accretion of 40 acres or more, and "went on so slowly that it could not be observed in its progress, but at intervals of not less than three or more months it could be discerned by the eye that additions greater or less had been made to the shore," sufficiently state that the land was formed by imperceptible degrees to bring it within the rule relating to accretion.—Jeffries v. East Omaha Land Co., 134 U. S. 178, 10 S. Ct. 518, 33 L. Ed. 872, affirming (C. C.) East Omaha Land Co. v. Jeffries, 40 F. 386.

The rule that owners of land bounded by streams are entitled to additions to their land formed by accretion is applicable to the Missouri river, notwithstanding the peculiar character of that stream and of the soil through which it flows, whereby changes in its banks are great and rapid.—Id.

Land formed gradually in the Philippine Islands since 1811 by action of the sea held to belong to the sovereign, and not to the owner of the upland, in view of the declaration of the Spanish Law of Waters of 1806, effective in the Philippine Islands in 1871, that lands added to the shores by accretions shall belong to the public domain.—Ker & Co. v. Couden, 32 S. Ct. 284, 223 U. S. 268, 56 L. Ed. 432.

⚡45. Avulsion.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 279, 280.

When a river, upon which the riparian owners own to the middle of the channel, changes its course so as to rapidly and visibly wash away one of its banks, the boundary of the riparian land does not follow the shifting of the channel, but remains in its original position.—City of St. Louis v. Rutz, 138 U. S. 226, 11 S. Ct. 337, 34 L. Ed. 941, affirming judgment (C. C.) Rutz v. Seeger, 35 F. 188.

Where the middle of a stream is the boundary between private landowners, that boundary follows any changes in the stream which are due to a gradual accretion or degradation of its banks; but where the change is of a sudden and rapid character, such as occurs when a river forms a new course by cutting through a bend, the boundary does not follow the change, but remains in the middle of the old channel.—State of Nebraska v. State of Iowa, 143 U. S. 359, 12 S. Ct. 396, 36 L. Ed. 186; Id., 145 U. S. 519, 12 S. Ct. 976, 36 L. Ed. 798.

Loss of land by washing away by floods in a flowing stream falls on the riparian owner.—(1912) Philadelphia Co. v. Stimson, 32 S. Ct. 340, 223 U. S. 605, 56 L. Ed. 570, affirming decree (1909) Same v. Dickinson, 33 App. D. C. 338.

Allegations that land was washed away by heavy floods in a course of years held insufficient to show a sudden visible change in the channel so as to entitle the riparian owner to retain his boundary to the original line.—Id.

⚡46. Conveyances and contracts.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Nav. Wat. §§ 283-291, 293; 8 Cent. Dig. Bound. § 135.

Act Wis. June 29, 1848, providing for the improvement of the Fox and Wisconsin rivers, and for connecting the same by a canal, declared that any water power created by any dams built in the course of such improvement should belong to the state. The state subsequently granted all the property rights and privileges to an improvement company, and to this company the owner of certain lots granted "the right to erect and forever maintain an embankment" in front thereof. Held, that this operated as a surrender of all riparian rights, including any claim the owner might have to the surplus water power created by the dam.—Kaukauna Water Power Co. v. Green Bay & M. Canal Co., 142 U. S. 254, 12 S. Ct. 173, 35 L. Ed. 1004, affirming decree Green Bay & M. Canal Co. v. Kaukauna Water Power Co., 70 Wis. 635, 35 N. W. 529, 36 N. W. 828.

The act of congress of July 1, 1864, chartering the Potomac Ferry Company, did not have the effect of releasing to such company the title of the United States to such riparian property as the company might acquire or use for its proper purposes.—Morris v. United States, 19 S. Ct. 649, 174 U. S. 196, 43 L. Ed. 946.

(A) PERSONS INJURED IN GENERAL.

§82. Contributory negligence as proximate cause of injury.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. §§ 112-114.

Although defendant's negligence may have been the primary cause of the injury complained of, yet an action for such injury cannot be maintained if the proximate and immediate cause of the injury can be traced to the want of ordinary care and caution in the party injured, unless the exercise of reasonable care and prudence on the part of defendant might have avoided the consequences of the injured party's negligence.—Grand Trunk Ry. Co. of Canada v. Ives, 144 U. S. 408, 12 S. Ct. 679, 36 L. Ed. 485, affirming judgment (C. C.) Ives v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 35 F. 176.

§83. Injury avoidable notwithstanding contributory negligence.

Contributory negligence of the person injured will not prevent recovery, where such negligence was known to the party causing the injury, and the injury could have been avoided by the use of ordinary and reasonable care.—Inland & Seaboard Coasting Co. v. See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. §§ 121-123.

The fall of a boy into a place of danger not before known to him, while he was running from threatened harm along the only path open, is not to be deemed the result of his negligence.—Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. McDonald, 152 U. S. 262, 14 S. Ct. 619, 38 L. Ed. 434, affirming judgment (C. C.) McDonald v. Union Pac. Ry. Co., 42 F. 579.

(C) IMPUTED NEGLIGENCE.

§92. Negligence of carrier imputable to passenger.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. §§ 142-146.

A person who hires a public hack, and gives the driver directions as to the place to which he wishes to be conveyed, but exercises no other control over the conduct of the driver is not responsible for his acts or negligence, or prevented from recovering against a railroad company for injuries suffered from a collision of its train with the hack, caused by the negligence of both the managers of the train and of the driver.—Little v. Hackett, 116 U. S. 366, 6 S. Ct. 391, 29 L. Ed. 652.

§94. Negligence of parent or custodian imputable to child.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. §§ 151-161.

§96. — Care of children.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. §§ 157-161.

Consent by a mother to a visit by plaintiff, her son, 12 years of age, to a coal mine, in company of one presumably capable of caring for him, is not negligence contributing to an injury to him near the mine from a concealed danger unknown to both.—Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. McDonald, 152 U. S. 262, 14 S. Ct. 619, 38 L. Ed. 434, affirming judgment (C. C.) McDonald v. Union Pac. Ry. Co., 42 F. 579.

(D) COMPARATIVE NEGLIGENCE.

Privileges and immunities of citizens of United States, see Constitutional Law, §206.

§101. Effect of difference in degree or preponderance of negligence.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. §§ 85, 163, 164, 167; 9 Cent. Dig. Carr. § 1339; 15 Cent. Dig. Damag. § 371; 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. §§ 665, 673; 41 Cent. Dig. R. R. §§ 1089, 1312, 1509, 1685.

The direction in Employer's Liability Act April 22, 1908, as to diminution of damages because of contributory negligence of plaintiff, means that, where the causal negligence is partly attributable to him and partly to the carrier, he shall only recover a proportional amount, bearing the same relation to the full amount that the negligence of the carrier bears to the entire negligence attributable to both.—Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Earnest, 33 S. Ct. 654, 229 U. S. 114, 57 L. Ed. 1096, Ann. Cas. 1914C, 172.

A request to charge as a matter of law that a switchman, whose arm was crushed between two cars moving in interstate commerce, could not recover if he gave the "come ahead" signal, as he went between the cars, is properly refused as in violation of Employers' Liability Act of April 22, 1906, establishing the rule of comparative negligence.—Grand Trunk Western Ry. Co. v. Lindsay, 34 S. Ct. 581, 233 U. S. 42, 58 L. Ed. 838, Ann. Cas. 1914C, 168, affirming judgment 201 F. 836, 120 C. C. A. 166.

The contributory negligence of a switchman, whose arm was crushed between two cars while examining the defective coupling mechanism, does not diminish his recovery in view of the proviso of the Employers' Liability Act April 22, 1906, § 3, establishing the rule of comparative negligence where the mechanism failed to act automatically as required by the federal safety appliance act.—Id.

The direction in the Employers' Liability Act April 22, 1906, § 3, that the diminution of damages on plaintiff's contributory negligence shall be in proportion to his negligence, means that, where the cause of negligence is partly attributable to him and partly to the carrier, he shall not recover full damages.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Tilghman, 35 S. Ct. 653, 237 U. S. 499, 59 L. Ed. 1069, reversing judgments Tilghman v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 83 S. E. 315, 167 N. C. 163, and Id., 83 S. E. 1090, 167 N. C. 163.

The comparative negligence rule established by the Employers' Liability Act is not applicable to the case of a rear brakeman who, after going back to signal a train approaching from the rear, remained in the caboose until a collision occurred; his negligence being the sole cause of the injury.—Great Northern Ry. Co. v. Wiles, 36 S. Ct. 406, 240 U. S. 444, 60 L. Ed. 732, reversing judgment Wiles v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 147 N. W. 427, 125 Minn. 348.

◀119. Issues, proof, and variance.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. §§ 200-216.

In an action for personal injuries, where plaintiff alleges that the injuries for which he seeks to recover were caused by a defective pile driver, he cannot recover for injuries received on account of an unmanageable team of horses used in operating it. Judgment (Ariz.) 36 P. 216, 4 Ariz. 258, affirmed.—Santa Fé P. & P. Ry. Co. v. Hurley, 19 S. Ct. 879, 172 U. S. 645, 43 L. Ed. 1183.

◀121. — Negligence in general.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. §§ 217-220, 224-223, 271.

The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur does not shift the burden of proof so as to require defendant to overcome the presumption of negligence by a preponderance of evidence.—Sweeney v. Erving, 33 S. Ct. 416, 228 U. S. 233, 57 L. Ed. 815, Ann. Cas. 1914D, 906, affirming judgment 35 App. D. C. 57.

◀122. — Contributory negligence.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. §§ 221-223, 229-234.

In an action for injuries, contributory negligence is a matter of defense, and the plaintiff is not required to prove its absence, as a part of his case.—Inland & Seaboard Coasting Co. v. Tolson, 139 U. S. 551, 11 S. Ct. 653, 35 L. Ed. 270, affirming judgment Tolson v. Inland & S. Coasting Co., 6 Mackey, 39; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Volk, 151 U. S. 73, 14 S. Ct. 239, 38 L. Ed. 78.

Although the burden of proving contributory negligence is upon defendant, the defense may be founded upon facts shown by plaintiff's evidence alone.—Washington & G. R. Co. v. Tobriner, 147 U. S. 571, 13 S. Ct. 557, 37 L. Ed. 284.

◀123. Admissibility.

◀125. — Similar facts or transactions.

To show that a defect in property existed and caused a particular injury, evidence of other accidents or injuries occurring about the same time and place from the same or similar cause is admissible.—District of Columbia v. Arms, 107 U. S. 519, 2 S. Ct. 840, 27 L. Ed. 618; Kennon v. Gilmer, 131 U. S. 22, 9 S. Ct. 696, 33 L. Ed. 110.

◀130. — Conditions after injury.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. §§ 250-254.

Evidence of changes or repairs made after an accident is admissible to show a defective condition at the time of the injury.—Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. McDade, 24 S. Ct. 24, 191 U. S. 64, 48 L. Ed. 96, affirming judgment 112 F. 888, 50 C. C. A. 591.

◀131. — Precautions against recurrence of injury.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. §§ 255, 256.

Evidence that, after an accident resulting in injury to plaintiff, defendant took precautions to prevent a recurrence of the injury, or made changes and repairs in the property or place causing the same, is not admissible to show negligence.—Columbia & P. S. R. Co. v. Hawthorne, 144 U. S. 202, 12 S. Ct. 591, 36 L. Ed. 405, reversing judgment 3 Wash. T. 353, 19 P. 25.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. § 267-268.

Where the injury complained of was caused by the backing of a train against a car on a siding, which plaintiff was unloading, the testimony of a man engaged with plaintiff that they were busy at their work, and did not think of an engine coming in, is competent on the issue of contributory negligence.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Volk, 151 U. S. 73, 14 S. Ct. 239, 38 L. Ed. 78.

133. Weight and sufficiency.

A jury is warranted in finding that tuberculosis of the spine is the direct result of an injury from falling timber, where the blow occasioned the development of the disease, though it was not discovered for a year.—(1912) Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Howell, 32 S. Ct. 601, 224 U. S. 577, 56 L. Ed. 892, affirming judgment (1911) 191 F. 1006, 111 C. C. A. 674.

(C) TRIAL, JUDGMENT, AND REVIEW.

Application of instructions to case, see Trial, 249.

136. Questions for jury.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. § 277-283; 34 Cent. Dig. Mast. & S. § 1091; 41 Cent. Dig. R. R. § 1745.

The terms "ordinary care," "reasonable prudence," and such like terms have a relative significance, and cannot be arbitrarily defined; and, when the facts are such that reasonable men differ as to whether there was negligence on the part of the plaintiff, the determination of the matter is for the jury; nor is it error to instruct them to fix the standard for reasonable, prudent, and cautious men according to their judgment and experience.—Grand Trunk Ry. Co. of Canada v. Ives, 144 U. S. 408, 12 S. Ct. 679, 36 L. Ed. 485, affirming judgment Ives v. Grand Trunk R. Co. (C. C.) 85 F. 176.

The question of contributory negligence is one of fact for the jury.—Id.

Where the evidence of contributory negligence is not of such a conclusive character as would warrant the court in setting aside a verdict, the question of contributory negligence should be left to the jury.—Washington & G. R. Co. v. Tobriner, 147 U. S. 571, 13 S. Ct. 557, 37 L. Ed. 284.

Where undisputed facts show negligence of defendant, which is the primary, substantial cause of the injury complained of, and there is no just ground for imputing contributory negligence to plaintiff, it is not error to instruct the jury that defendant is guilty of negligence, and that the disputed issue is the question of damages.—Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. McDonald, 152 U. S. 262, 14 S. Ct. 619, 38 L. Ed. 434, affirming judgment (C. C.) McDonald v. Union Pac. R. Co., 42 F. 579.

Upon the question of negligence the court may direct a verdict, where the evidence is undisputed, or is so conclusive that the court, in the exercise of a sound discretion, would be compelled to set aside a verdict in opposition to it.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Pool, 160 U. S. 438, 16 S. Ct. 338, 40 L. Ed. 485.

On the question of negligence or contributory negligence, when the facts are so clear that the inference therefrom is irresistible, the court may decide; but, when the facts or the inferences to be drawn from them are doubtful, the whole matter must be submitted to the jury under proper instructions.—District of Columbia

v. Moulton, 21 S. Ct. 840, 182 U. S. 576, 45 L. Ed. 1237, reversing judgment 15 App. D. C. 363; Wabash R. Co. v. Mathew, 26 S. Ct. 752, 199 U. S. 605, 50 L. Ed. 329, affirming judgment Mathew v. Wabash R. Co., 78 S. W. 271, 115 Mo. App. 468.

The negligence of one who carelessly places herself in a position exposed to danger cannot as matter of law be said to be the proximate cause of an injury, if her negligence was discovered in time to avoid the injury by the use of reasonable care, and such care was not exercised. Judgment (1904) 23 App. D. C. 551, reversed.—Chunn v. City & Suburban Ry. of Washington, 28 S. Ct. 63, 207 U. S. 302, 52 L. Ed. 219.

Whether a fire was caused by the inflammable nature of a mixture of coal oil and gasoline sold as coal oil is for the jury, where the evidence while tending to show that such mixture had been used to saturate kindling wood in a stove, tends to rebut implication that, after the fire had been lighted, the mixture was poured upon it. Judgment (1907) 89 P. 212, 18 Okl. 107, affirmed.—Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Deselms, 29 S. Ct. 270, 212 U. S. 159, 53 L. Ed. 453.

137. Instructions.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. § 354-359; 41 Cent. Dig. R. R. § 1212.

138. — In general.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. § 354-370.

The court charged that the defendant having alleged contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff, it must be established by a clear preponderance of evidence to warrant the jury in finding it. Held proper, and not calculated to mislead the jury into assuming that the proof of contributory negligence must be adduced by the defendant.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Mares, 123 U. S. 710, 8 S. Ct. 321, 31 L. Ed. 296, affirming judgment Mares v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 3 Dak. 336, 21 N. W. 5.

139. — Negligence.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. § 371-377.

Proper effect is not given to Employers' Liability Act April 22, 1908, § 3, by an instruction leaving to the jury the matter of diminishing the damages for contributory negligence without making any standard other than their own conception of what is reasonable.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Tilghman, 35 S. Ct. 653, 237 U. S. 499, 59 L. Ed. 1069, reversing judgments Tilghman v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 83 S. E. 315, 167 N. C. 163, and Id., 83 S. E. 1090, 167 N. C. 163.

141. — Contributory negligence.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neglig. § 382-399; 41 Cent. Dig. R. R. § 1212.

It is proper to modify an instruction requested, that if plaintiff placed his foot between the piles and flooring of a pier, and left it there while the boat was making the pier, so that it was injured by the boat's striking the pier, then he cannot recover, by stating that the act mentioned must be found to be negligence that contributed to the injury, before it can defeat a recovery.—Inland & S. Coasting Co. v. Tolson, 139 U. S. 551, 11 S. Ct. 653, 35 L. Ed. 270, affirming judgment Tolson v. Inland & S. Coasting Co., 6 Mackey, 39.

An instruction that Employer's Liability Act April 22, 1908, requires that, where plaintiff has been guilty of contributory negligence, the damages shall be diminished in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to such employee, held not objectionable because the court further states that such negligence goes by way of diminution of damages.—Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Earnest, 33 S. Ct. 654, 229 U. S. 114, 57 L. Ed. 1096, Ann. Cas. 1914C, 172.

¶3. Nature and elements of offenses.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neut. Laws, §§ 3-3.

A body of men went on board a tug loaded with boxes of arms, and were taken by it 30 or 40 miles out to sea, when they met a steamer outside the 3-mile limit, by prior arrangement. They boarded her, taking the boxes with them, which they opened, distributing the arms among themselves. They drilled to some extent on board, and were apparently officered; and, as preconcerted, they disembarked near the coast of Cuba, to effect an armed landing thereon. Held, that the jury had a right to find that this was a military expedition or enterprise, within the meaning of the neutrality law.—Wiborg v. United States, 163 U. S. 632, 16 S. Ct. 1127, 1197, 41 L. Ed. 289, affirming judgment (D. C.) United States v. Wiborg, 73 F. 159.

Mates of a foreign vessel sailing from a United States port, who at the time of sailing did not know that the vessel was to carry an expedition in violation of the neutrality law, and did not learn thereof until they met beyond the three-mile limit another vessel containing men and arms, are not guilty of the offense.—Id.

If the officers of a foreign vessel, sailing from a United States port, which, after passing the three-mile limit, took aboard men and arms for an expedition in violation of the neutrality law, had prepared for sailing, and had taken aboard extra boats while in port, with knowledge of the proposed expedition, they were guilty of the crime in the district from which they sailed.—Id.

It was proper for the court to charge that any combination of men organized in the United States to go to Cuba, to make war upon its government, provided with arms and ammunition (the United States being at peace with Cuba), constituted a military expedition prohibited by Rev. St. § 5286; and that it was not necessary that the men should be drilled, put in uniform, or prepared for efficient service; but that it was sufficient that they should have combined and organized in the United States to go to Cuba, and make war on a foreign government, and should have provided themselves with the means of doing so.—Id.

Rev. St. § 5286, making it a criminal offense to provide or prepare the means for a military expedition or enterprise against a people with whom the United States are at peace, applies to the providing or preparing of means of transportation for such an expedition or enterprise.—Id.

Rev. St. U. S. § 5283, by forbidding the fitting out and arming of a vessel with intent that she shall be employed in the service of any foreign prince or state "or of any colony, district, or people," includes any insurgent or insurrectionary body of people acting together and conducting hostilities, though their belligerency has not been recognized.—The Three Friends, 17 S. Ct. 495, 166 U. S. 1, 41 L. Ed. 897, reversing decree (D. C.) 78 F. 175.

The act of sending from the United States to a foreign and prohibited country, without reference to the completion of such act by the landing or delivery of the merchandise at its destination, held condemned by Joint Resolution March 14, 1912, § 1, making it unlawful to export any arms or munitions of war from the United States to an American country brought within the terms of the resolution by the proclamation of the President; section 2 of the resolution making the prohibition of the first section operative by punishing violations of the provisions, and making punishable in express terms "any shipment of material hereby declared unlawful."—United States v. Chavez, 33 S. Ct. 595, 228 U. S. 525, 57 L. Ed. 950, reversing judgment (D. C.) 199 F. 518.

Resort to personal carriage to move prohibited articles from the United States to a foreign and prohibited country will not render inapplicable prohibitions of Joint Resolution March 14, 1912, §§ 1, 2, against the shipment of munitions of war from the United States to an American country brought within the terms of the resolution by the proclamation of the President.—Id.

4. Forfeitures of vessels and enforcement thereof.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Neut. Laws, §§ 9-12.

Under Rev. St. § 5283, forbidding the fitting out and arming of a vessel with intent that she be employed against a government with which the United States are at peace, no prior personal conviction of an offender is necessary to warrant a decree of forfeiture in rem against the vessel.—The Three Friends, 17 S. Ct. 495, 166 U. S. 1, 41 L. Ed. 897, reversing decree (D. C.) 78 F. 175.

A vessel libeled for forfeiture for violation of the neutrality laws, in that she was fitted out and armed to be employed in the service of a body of Cuban insurgents to commit hostilities against the subjects of the king of Spain, should not, in the exercise of a sound discretion, be released on bond, pending the continuance of the insurrection, prior to the determination of the cause.—Id.

I. NATURE AND SCOPE OF REMEDY.⇒ 1. Power and duty of court in general.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 1-3.

Where a term of the circuit court of the District of Columbia has been extended indefinitely for the purpose of settling a bill of exceptions, and the attorneys are unable to agree upon it, and the judge dies before settling it, the supreme court of the district, in general term, has authority to grant a new trial, pursuant to rule 64 of that court, which provides for new trials when the judge is unable to settle the bill of exceptions.—Hume v. Bowie, 148 U. S. 245, 13 S. Ct. 582, 37 L. Ed. 438.

⇒ 6. Discretion of court.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 9, 10.

Where a motion for a new trial is made on the minutes, on other grounds than those mentioned in Rev. St. § 804, the trial judge has no discretion as to entertaining the motion, but must do so under the right of appeal from his decision, as provided by section 772.—Metropolitan R. Co. v. Moore, 121 U. S. 558, 7 S. Ct. 1334, 30 L. Ed. 1022; Inland & Seaboard Coasting Co. v. Hall, 124 U. S. 121, 8 S. Ct. 397, 31 L. Ed. 369.

⇒ 10. Estoppel, waiver, or agreements affecting right.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 12, 115, 121.

A new trial may be ordered though the party successful at the first trial offered to waive her rights to a trial by jury.—McGovern v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 35 S. Ct. 127, 235 U. S. 389, 59 L. Ed. 283, reversing judgment (D. C.) 209 F. 975.

⇒ 11. Successive applications.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 14-16.

Code Tenn. 1884, § 3335, providing that "not more than two new trials shall be granted to the same party in any action at law, or upon the trial by jury of an issue of fact in equity," refers only to new trials granted because of the insufficiency of the evidence, and not where there is no evidence to justify the finding, or where there has been error of law, and does not violate Const. U. S. Amend. 14, which provides that "no state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."—Louisville & N. R. Co.

v. Woodson, 184 U. S. 614, 10 S. Ct. 628, 33 L. Ed. 1032.

II. GROUNDS.

(A) ERRORS AND IRREGULARITIES IN GENERAL.

[No paragraphs or references in this Digest. But see 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 19-41.]

(B) MISCONDUCT OF PARTIES, COUNSEL, OR WITNESSES.

[No paragraphs or references in this Digest. But see 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 42-47.]

(C) RULINGS AND INSTRUCTIONS AT TRIAL.

39. Instructions and failure or refusal to instruct.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 57-61.

An instruction based upon an erroneous theory, unsupported by evidence, is erroneous; and a verdict that the jury may have rendered upon such erroneous theory will be set aside, and a new trial granted.—Davis v. Patrick, 122 U. S. 138, 7 S. Ct. 1102, 30 L. Ed. 1090.

(D) DISQUALIFICATION OR MISCONDUCT OF OR AFFECTING JURY.

53. Necessity of objection at trial.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 106-115.

55. — Failure to object.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 106-111.

A new trial need not be granted on the ground that the jury was improperly influenced by newspaper reports that the trial judge, in the absence of the jury, stated, on a motion to direct a verdict, that he was inclined in favor of the plaintiff, though still having some doubt, and that he might set aside a verdict for defendants, where counsel for defendants, in open court, stated that they would take their chances of the effect of such reports upon the jury, at a time when there were several ways in which the jurors could have been prevented from seeing the papers, and stopped the court from even giving the jury instructions not to read the papers.—Spreckels v. Brown, 29 S. Ct. 256, 212 U. S. 208, 53 L. Ed. 476.

(E) IRREGULARITIES OR DEFECTS IN VERDICT OR FINDINGS.

[No paragraphs or references in this Digest. But see 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 120-129.]

(F) VERDICT OR FINDINGS CONTRARY TO LAW OR EVIDENCE.

65. Power and duty of court in general.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. § 130.

A motion for a new trial, on the ground that the verdict is against the weight of evidence, may be heard by the trial judge under the provision of Rev. St. § 804, relating to the District of Columbia, authorizing him to hear such a motion where the verdict is attacked "for insufficient evidence." The phrase quoted includes insufficiency in point of fact, and is equivalent to "against the weight of evidence."—Metropolitan R. Co. v. Moore, 121 U. S. 558, 7 S. Ct. 1334, 30 L. Ed. 1022; Inland & S. Coasting Co. v. Hall, 124 U. S. 121, 8 S. Ct. 397, 31 L. Ed. 369.

(G) SURPRISE, ACCIDENT, INADVERTENCE, OR MISTAKE.

[No paragraphs or references in this Digest. But see 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 167-200.]

(H) NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE.

102. Diligence in procuring evidence.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 207, 210-214.

In a contest over special improvement taxes, a new trial will be refused when asked on the ground of newly-discovered evidence, and such evidence could have been ascertained by using due diligence, or where it was contained in the ordinance, plans, specifications, and estimates, which were open to the movant's inspection before trial, and constituted a part of the record in the case. Judgment 55 N. E. 325, 182 Ill. 250, affirmed.—Farrell v. West Chicago Park Com'rs, 21 S. Ct. 609, 645, 181 U. S. 404, 45 L. Ed. 916, 924.

108. Sufficiency and probable effect.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 226, 237; 16 Cent. Dig. Des. & Dist. § 431.

Newly discovered evidence, to be a ground for a new trial, should be such as would probably produce a different result.—Williams v. United States, 137 U. S. 113, 11 S. Ct. 43, 34 L. Ed. 590.

III. PROCEEDINGS TO PROCURE NEW TRIAL.

Effect of motion for new trial on time for taking appeal or other proceeding for review, see Appeal and Error, 345. Encroachment of Legislature on judiciary, see Constitutional Law, 55. In Federal courts, see Courts, 353.

141. Affidavits and testimony of jurors.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 230-239.

143. — Impeachment of verdict.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 230-234.

Jurors may not in the federal courts impeach their verdict by evidence that it was a quotient verdict.—McDonald v. Pless, 35 S. Ct. 783, 238 U. S. 264, 59 L. Ed. 1300, affirming judgment 206 F. 263, 124 C. C. A. 131.

156. Continuance or postponement.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. § 316.

A motion for a new trial is to be deemed to be overruled at the end of the term, although continued to another term by an order in chambers made by the judge who tried the cause, because of his inability to attend, by virtue of Rev. St. Ariz. 1887, par. 837, requiring motions for new trials to be "determined at the term of the court at which the motion shall be made," especially when considered in connection with paragraph 842, as amended by Acts 1891, p. 49, No. 49, providing for a review by the territorial Supreme Court of a denial of a motion for a new trial, and enacting that "in case there shall be no ruling on said motion for a new trial during the term at which it was filed, then said motion shall be denied."—James v. Appel, 24 S. Ct. 222, 192 U. S. 129, 48 L. Ed. 377.

162. Remission or reduction of excess of recovery.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. §§ 234-239.

In a proper case, the trial court has discretion to allow a plaintiff in whose favor a verdict is rendered to elect to remit part of the amount, or suffer a new trial. If plaintiff remits the excess, the verdict will be allowed to stand, and judgment may be entered thereon.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Herbert, 116 U. S. 642, 6 S. Ct. 590, 29 L. Ed. 755, affirming Herbert v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 3 Dak. 38, 13 N. W. 349; Clark v. Sidway, 142 U. S. 682, 12 S. Ct. 327, 35 L. Ed. 1157.

The filing by plaintiff of a remittitur of part of his judgment as a condition of avoiding a new trial, and his motion thereupon made for an affirmance of the judgment as to the remaining part, is a waiver of all right to object to the order of the court under which the remittitur was made, and the benefit of which he has thus obtained by accepting its conditions.—Koenigsberger v. Richmond Silver Min. Co., 158 U. S. 41, 15 S. Ct. 751, 39 L. Ed. 889.

IV. PROCEEDINGS AT NEW TRIAL.

↔172. Effect of proceedings at former trial.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. § 239.

A defendant who goes to the jury on one of several defenses is not precluded thereby, at a subsequent trial, from insisting upon other defenses, involving the merits, which have not been withdrawn of record or abandoned in pursuance of an agreement with the plaintiff.—Moulor v. American Life Ins. Co., 111 U. S. 335, 4 S. Ct. 466, 28 L. Ed. 447.

V. STATUTORY NEW TRIAL AS OF RIGHT.

↔180. Parties entitled to new trial.

See 37 Cent. Dig. New Tr. § 358.

Code Civ. Proc. Colo. § 254, as to new trials in ejectment, providing that "neither party shall have but one new trial in any case as of right without showing cause," entitles each party against whom in turn a verdict may be rendered to one new trial as of right.—Equator Mining & Smelting Co. v. Hall, 106 U. S. 86, 1 S. Ct. 128, 27 L. Ed. 114.

An engine house and repair shop, erected by a railroad company in a city so near a church that the noise, smoke, and odors necessarily arising therefrom render the church uncomfortable and almost unendurable as a place of worship, and less valuable for the purposes to which it was devoted, is a nuisance, and the railroad company is responsible in damages there-

Feb. 5, 1867, authorizing the Baltimore & Potomac Railroad Company to bring its road into the city of Washington along public streets and alleys, and to make and construct all works whatever which may be "necessary and expedient" to the proper running of its road, does not relieve it from liability for damages for maintaining a nuisance in constructing its roundhouse and repair shops so near a church that, by the noise, smoke, cinders, and unpleasant odors, it is rendered uncomfortable, and almost unendurable, as a place of worship.—Baltimore & P. In an action for damages for nuisance in maintaining a railroad repair shop so near a church that the noise, smoke, cinders, and unpleasant odors render it almost useless as a place of public worship, and the passing and repassing of engines render it difficult and dangerous of access, the proper measure of damages is not simply the depreciation in the market value of the property, but the discomfort and annoyance of the congregation in the enjoyment of their church.—Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Fifth Baptist Church, 108 U. S. 317, 2 S. Ct. 719, 27 L. Ed. 739.

Where there have been previous recoveries for maintaining a nuisance for definite periods, the jury cannot, in a new action covering a subsequent period, take into consideration the amounts thereof for the purpose of reducing the damages.—Baltimore & P. OBSCENITY.

Scope-Note.

[INCLUDES lewd or immodest acts, conduct, or language, offensive to the public sense of decency or to the public morals, in general, publicly exhibiting or disseminating objects, publications, or representations of lewd or indecent character, and publishing obscene libels; nature and elements of the crimes of indecent exposure, using obscene language, dealing in indecent articles or publications, etc., and obscene libel; nature and extent of criminal responsibility therefor, and grounds of defense, prosecution and punishment of such acts as public offenses.]

④12. — Description, setting out, or filing obscene matter.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Obscen. § 11.

The refusal of the court to require the prosecutor to file a copy of the matter on which the prosecution is based, where the indictment alleges that it is too obscene and indecent to be set out in the record, is discretionary with the court, and its action is not reviewable.—Dunlop v. United States, 17 S. Ct. 375, 165 U. S. 486, 41 L. Ed. 799.

④18. Trial.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Obscen. §§ 15, 16.

④20. — Instructions.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Obscen. § 18.

In a prosecution for mailing obscene matter the court charged that what are obscene, etc., publications "is largely a question of your own conscience and your own opinion"; but to be of that character a publication "must be calculated with the ordinary reader to deprave him, deprave his morals, or lead to impure purposes, * * * calculated to lower the standard which we regard as essential to civilization," etc. Held, that this could not mislead the jury into supposing that anything which tended to deprave morals in any way whatever was an obscene publication, when the publications in evidence consisted of advertisements by women offering inducement for the visits of men to their rooms.—Dunlop v. United States, 17 S. Ct. 375, 165 U. S. 486, 41 L. Ed. 799.

OBSTRUCTING JUSTICE.

Scope-Note.

[INCLUDES resisting or obstructing or intimidating an officer or other duly authorized person in the execution of process, civil or criminal, or performance of other official act or duty, preventing witnesses from attending or testifying, suppressing evidence, and other acts defeating, impeding, or delaying the administration of justice, public or private, not constituting a distinct offense, and attempts to commit such acts; nature and extent of criminal responsibility therefor, and grounds of defense; and prosecution and punishment of such acts as public offenses.]

⚡4. Preventing witness from attending or testifying.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Obst. Just. § 13.

A preliminary examination before a United States commissioner is not a proceeding "in any court of the United States," within the meaning of Rev. St. § 5406, imposing a penalty for conspiring to deter a witness from attending or testifying in such a proceeding.—Todd v. United States, 158 U. S. 278, 15 S. Ct. 889, 39 L. Ed. 952.

⚡6. Obstructing or interfering with judicial proceedings.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Obst. Just. § 15.

The rule that ignorance of penal laws is no defense to an indictment for their violation has no application in a prosecution for obstructing the administration of justice, for the intent to obstruct the administration of justice can only be present when there is knowledge that justice is being administered.—Pettibone v. United States, 148 U. S. 197, 13 S. Ct. 542, 37 L. Ed. 419.

An injunction issued from a federal court, restraining defendants from endeavoring by force or fraud to procure a certain master to discharge his servants, or the servants to quit their employment. Defendants were thereafter indicted, under Rev. St. §§ 5399, 5440, for conspiring to obstruct the administration of justice in the federal courts; the indictment charging that defendants conspired to use force and fraud to break up the relation between the master and servants, and did so pending the existence of the injunction. The act charged was an offense against the laws of the state, but not against those of the United States. Held, that the intent to obstruct the administration of justice could not be imputed from the intent to commit the unlawful act of compelling the master to discharge his servants, and the servants to leave the service of their master, since the unintended wrong was not a natural and probable consequence of the intended wrongful act, and the intended wrongful act was not an offense against the United States, but against a separate sovereignty,—the state of Idaho.—Id.

⚡10. Indictment or information.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Obst. Just. §§ 19-23.

⚡11. — Requisites and sufficiency in general.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Obst. Just. §§ 19-23.

An injunction issued out of the United States circuit court, restraining defendants from endeavoring, by force or fraud, to procure a certain master to discharge his servants, or the servants to quit the employment of their master. Defendants were thereafter indicted, under Rev. St. §§ 5399, 5440, for conspiring to obstruct the administration of justice in the federal courts. The indictment charged that defendants conspired to use force and fraud to break up the relation between the master and servants aforesaid, and did so do, pending the existence of such injunction; and, as a legal conclusion from this allegation, it stated that they conspired to obstruct the administration of justice, by the violation of the injunction. The act charged was an offense against the laws of the state, but not against those of the United States. Held, that the indictment was fatally defective, in failing to aver, in terms, that the object of the conspiracy was to obstruct the administration of justice in the federal courts, and to aver that defendants were served with process, or in any manner notified of the issue of the writ.—Pettibone v. United States, 148 U. S. 197, 13 S. Ct. 542, 37 L. Ed. 419.

The acceptance by an army officer on the active list, detached to command a battalion of Philippine scouts, of a small sum from the civil government of the Philippine Islands, to be used by him in connection with his military command in the preparation and display of an exhibit at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, did not make him a civil officer, so as to be amenable to Pen. Code, P. I. art. 300, punishing the falsification of a public document by a public official.—Carrington v. United States, 28 S. Ct. 203, 208 U. S. 1, 52 L. Ed. 367.

Aug. 15, 1878, § 3 (19 Stat. 169), and Civil Service Act 1883, § 7 (22 Stat. 406), is limited to cases in which such persons are "equally qualified," and does not authorize the appointment of incompetent or inefficient clerks. Rev. St. § 1765, providing that "no officer, in any branch of the public service, or any other person whose salary, pay, or emoluments are fixed by law or regulations, shall receive any additional pay, extra allowance, or compensation, in any form whatever, for the disbursement of public money, or for any other service or duty whatever, unless the same is authorized by law, and the appropriation explicitly states that it is for such additional pay, extra allowance, or compensation," does not prevent a person from holding two distinct offices, appointments, or positions, not otherwise forbidden, and not incompatible with each other, and drawing the salary attached to each.—United States v. Saunders, 120 U. S. 126, 7 S. Ct. 467, 30 L. Ed. 594.

Since Acts Tenn. 1867–68, c. 46, §§ 21, 25, establishing a board of commissioners for the government of a named county, were declared void by the supreme court of the state under its constitution, which vested the administration of the county in justices of the peace, the commissioners appointed under that act were not de facto officers, for there was no office for them to fill, and hence an attempted subscription by them to the stock of a railroad company was void.—*Norton v. Where the receiver of public moneys at the government land office was appointed special receiver and superintendent, to assist in disposing of land held by the United States in trust for the Indians, and his official duty as receiver only required him to receive public moneys, he was entitled to take, in addition to his salary, the compensation provided for the separate services rendered in respect to the trust land.—United States v. ¶101. — Allowance and recovery of compensation.

A de jure officer may recover from the de facto incumbent the fees and emoluments of the office, received during incumbency. Judgment (1908) Sandoval v. Albright, 93 P. 717, affirmed.—Albright v. Sandoval, 30 S. Ct. 318, 216 U. S. 331, 54 L. Ed. 502.

The cost of obtaining the emoluments of an office, which would have been entailed on any person who might have held the office, may be set off by an ousted de facto officer in an action by the de jure officer for official earnings.—Id.

United States marshals, see United States Marshals, ¶36.

¶126. Insufficient, informal, or defective bond.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Omc. §§ 220-224.

An official bond may be good in part and void for the residue, and therefore a bond conditioned to "discharge the duties of property and disbursing officer of the signal service," and also to "faithfully expend all public money, and honestly account for the same," even if void for uncertainty as to the first condition, is not void as to the second.—Moses v. United States, 17 S. Ct. 682, 166 U. S. 571, 41 L. Ed. 1119.

¶129. Accrual or release of liability by breach or fulfillment of conditions.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Omc. §§ 225, 226, 228-234.

If a public officer permits money for the government to be paid in his absence to his agent, it is a good payment to him, and he will be liable therefor on his bond.—Potter v. United States, 107 U. S. 126, 1 S. Ct. 524, 27 L. Ed. 230.

¶134. Actions.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Omc. §§ 234-259.

¶137. — Defenses.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Omc. §§ 33, 112, 240.

Though the small penalty named in an official bond may show that it was not supposed the officer would have such large sums to disburse as in fact came to his hands, that fact forms no defense to an action on the bond.—Moses v. United States, 17 S. Ct. 682, 166 U. S. 571, 41 L. Ed. 1119.

¶142. — Evidence.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Omc. §§ 253-255.

Certificates of nonindebtedness, given by the auditor to an officer to enable him to obtain payment of his salary, are not conclusive in favor of his sureties as against evidence of the forgery of vouchers upon which the settlement was based.—Moses v. United States, 17 S. Ct. 682, 166 U. S. 571, 41 L. Ed. 1119.

Where an official bond offered by the principal without seals was returned to him to have the seals put on, and was brought back by him with the seals attached, the consent of the sureties thereto will be presumed in an action on the bond, unless the contrary appears.—Id.

In an action on the official bond of an officer to whom a certificate of nonindebtedness has been given, a restatement of his account, made by proper officers, by disallowing credits given him upon forged vouchers is competent evidence.—Id.

¶143. — Trial, judgment, and review.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Omc. §§ 256-259.

In an action on the bond of an officer intrusted with money for the purpose of disbursing it, plaintiff cannot recover interest, in the absence of evidence of a demand and refusal to pay, or transfer it to the government, or comply with some lawful order in respect to it.—United States v. Power, 106 U. S. 536, 1 S. Ct. 481, 27 L. Ed. 264.

◀4. Authority and duty to pardon, relieve, or commute sentence.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Pardon, §§ 4-6½.

The practice of granting remissions of pecuniary penalties and forfeitures by the secretary of the treasury, sanctioned by statute, and acquiesced in, for nearly a century, as a valid exercise of authority, and no invasion of the power of pardon granted by the constitution to the president, is too firmly established to be questioned.—The Laura, 114 U. S. 411, 5 S. Ct. 881, 29 L. Ed. 147, affirming decree (C. C.) 8 F. 612, 19 Blatchf. 562.

◀8. Issuance, requisites, and validity.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Pardon, §§ 10, 14, 15.

A pardon from the President, to be effective, must be accepted.—Burdick v. United States, 35 S. Ct. 267, 236 U. S. 79, 59 L. Ed. 476; Curtin v. Same, 35 S. Ct. 271, 236 U. S. 96, 59 L. Ed. 482. Reversing judgment (D. C.) United States v. Burdick, 211 F. 492.

◀11. General amnesty.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Pardon, §§ 24-26.

Land in Washington, sold under the confiscation act of 1862, was thereafter condemned under Act May 8, 1872 (17 Stat. 83), for an enlargement of the capitol grounds. An appraisal was had and the value was deposited in court. These proceedings took place during the life of the fee simple owner, who had lost the estate by confiscation. On December 25, 1868, the president issued a general amnesty proclamation, within which the fee simple owner was included. Held that, the disability being removed, the appraisal was valid as to him and his heirs, as well as to the tenant for life.—United States v. Dunnington, 146 U. S. 338, 13 S. Ct. 79, 36 L. Ed. 996, modifying judgment Wallach v. Van Riswick, 92 U. S. 202, 23 L. Ed. 473.

◀14. Conditions, and breach or fulfillment thereof.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Pardon, §§ 28-31.

A pardon from the President to a person convicted of defrauding the government of certain public lands, upon full restitution to the satisfaction of the federal district attorney, gives the latter no authority to bind the government to reimburse the accused for the value of improvements and taxes paid.—Bradford v. United States, 33 S. Ct. 573, 228 U. S. 446, 57 L. Ed. 912, rehearing denied 33 S. Ct. 1026, 57 L. Ed. 1630.

A testator devised the legal estate in his lands to his widow for life, with remainder over, after the death of the widow, to his children in fee. In case the widow should survive the children, she was to have the whole estate. Held, that the estate in remainder in the children could be sold under St. 1798, c. 12, relating to the management and control of wards' property, during the existence of the life estate, for the support and education of the children.—*Thaw v. The plenary power conferred upon the father by Civ. Code La. 1870, 221, 223, 226, to administer, during marriage, the estate of his minor children, is wholly distinct from tutorship, and is not modified or controlled by the provision of article 3350, that an inventory must be made and recorded before fathers and mothers who, by law, are entitled to the usufruct of property belonging to their minor children, shall be allowed to take possession of such property, and enjoy the fruits and revenue thereof. Decree 24 App. D. C. 573, reversed.—Darlington v. Turner, 26 S. Ct. 630, 202 U. S. 195, 50 L. Ed. 992.

A transfer in the District of Columbia of the property of a testator, there situated, to the father of certain minor legatees residing in Louisiana, who was fully empowered to collect and receive the same by the law of their domicile, is valid and binding on such minors, there being no showing of any creditors in Virginia, which was the domicile of the testator, although if the property had been administered upon in that jurisdiction, the father would not have been entitled to receive or remove the property therefrom without an order made by a Virginia court, and the giving of satisfactory security.—Id.

It is proper to join as codefendants a mail contractor and his subcontractor, in an action to recover money fraudulently obtained from the postal authorities as extra allowances for expediting the service, where the complainant alleges that such allowances were made on the sworn statement of the contractor as to the extra men and horses required, "presented by and on behalf of both the said defendants," and that by means of false and fraudulent vouchers the said defendants (naming both) "received larger sums than they were entitled to receive"; for these allegations show that both were participants in the fraudulent transaction.—United States v. A citizen of West Virginia sued H. and wife and a land company for an assignment of dower in certain lands conveyed by her husband to H., and by him, during the husband's life, conveyed to the land company. Held, that H. and wife were not necessary parties.—Laidly v. Huntington, 121 U. S. 179, 7 S. Ct. 855, 30 L. Ed. 883.

A bill against the receiver of a national bank alleged a loan by complainant to the bank, at the request of its managing officer, secured by his pledge of certificates of stock of the bank, obtained by him as part of a proposed increase of its capital which had not been legitimated when the bank became insolvent, on account of which he had paid into the bank a certain sum of money, and prayed for subrogation to his rights on account of such money. Held, that the bill was demurrable for failing to make such officer a party, as, in his absence, his rights to recover the money could not be adjudicated.—Western Nat. Bank v. Armstrong, 152 U. S. 346, 14 S. Ct. 572, 38 L. Ed. 470.

The validity of a pledge of collateral to secure an issue of notes placed on the market and negotiated by the pledgee as trustee cannot be attacked in a suit to which neither the pledgor nor the holders of the notes are parties.—Hubbard v. 40. Persons entitled to intervene.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Parties, §§ 60-63, 65-67; 23 Cent. Dig. Insurance, § 1571.

A complainant in intervention must have an interest in the matter in litigation of such a nature that he will either gain or lose by the direct legal operation of the judgment, and the contingency of being held liable on covenants of warranty given to one of the parties is not such an interest.—Smith v. Gale, 144 U. S. 509, 12 S. Ct. 674, 36 L. Ed. 521, affirming judgment Gale v. Shillock, 29 N. W. 661, 4 Dak. 182, and Same v. Frazier, 30 N. W. 138, 4 Dak. 196.

A federal Circuit Court which has acquired jurisdiction over a street railway company, and has appointed receivers for it, may, in its discretion, permit another street railway company to intervene, making it a party defendant, and extending the receivership to it, where the two companies sustained, respectively, the relation of lessee and lessor, and their interests are inextricably bound together.—(1908) In re Reisenberg, 28 S. Ct. 219, 208 U. S. 90, 52 L. Ed. 403, dismissing petitions (C. C. 1907) Pennsylvania Steel Co. v. New York City R. Co., 157 F. 440.

Ⓔ42. — Time for intervention.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Parties, § 69.

The right of intervention should be asserted within a reasonable time, and under Code Civ. Proc. Dak. § 90, providing that a complaint in intervention must be filed by leave of court, it is not error to refuse to allow such a complaint to be filed on the eve of trial, after the action has been pending for two years, and in behalf of one who has long slept upon his rights.—Smith v. Gale, 144 U. S. 509, 12 S. Ct. 674, 38 L. Ed. 521, affirming judgment Gale v. Shillock, 29 N. W. 661, 4 Dak. 182, and Same v. Frazier, 30 N. W. 138, 4 Dak. 196.

Ⓔ43. — Necessity for leave of court.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Parties, § 70.

Parties holding obligations of the same nature and kind as plaintiff in a suit brought by him on his own behalf, as well as on behalf of all such persons, may, after a decree in his favor, come in and prove their claims without formal interventions or special leave. Decree 101 F. 1005, 41 C. C. A. 676, affirmed.—City of New Orleans v. Warner, 21 S. Ct. 353, 180 U. S. 190, 45 L. Ed. 493.

Ⓔ48. — Proceedings in cause after intervention.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Parties, § 75.

A suit brought in a state court of Minnesota by a citizen of that state against the sheriff for trespass in taking possession of goods was not changed as to its character by an intervention of a foreign corporation, alleging that the sheriff had acted under its direction and admitting the facts, pleaded by the sheriff in justification, that his acts were done by the direction of such corporation, and seeking a removal to a federal court; but the sheriff was still a necessary party, and the judgment, if in favor of the plaintiff, must be a joint judgment against all the defendants.—Thorn Wire Hedge Co. v. Fuller, 122 U. S. 535, 7 S. Ct. 1265, 30 L. Ed. 1235.

IV. DESIGNATION AND DESCRIPTION.

will, on the granting of the motion, be substituted.—Walton v. Marietta Chair Co., 157 U. S. 342, 15 S. Ct. 628, 39 L. Ed. 725.

Ⓔ94. Misnomer or misdescription.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Parties, §§ 155-159, 177; 22 Cent. Dig. Ex. & Ad. § 1791.

Where the Fifth Baptist Church of Washington, D. C., sues as "The Fifth Baptist Church of Washington, D. C., by Its Trustees," the words "by its trustees" should probably be regarded as indicating that the suit was brought in its behalf by the trustees, but, if regarded as part of the name, it is a mere misnomer which is waived by pleading to the merits.—Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Fifth Baptist Church, 137 U. S. 568, 11 S. Ct. 185, 34 L. Ed. 784.

Ⓔ96. Waiver of defects and objections.

See 37 Cent. Dig. Parties, §§ 167-177; 39 Cent. Dig. Plead. § 1406.

During the trial of an action, it appeared that A. claimed an interest in the land, and it was agreed by counsel that the pleadings should be amended by making him a codefendant, and, before the entry of the judgment, a clause was added to the complaint accordingly, asking for a decree against him. After the amendment, A. participated in all the proceedings as if he had been regularly made a party. Held, that such amendment, though irregular, was sufficient under Code Civ. Proc. Dak. § 142, to sustain a judgment against A.—Noonan v. Caledonia Gold Min. Co., 121 U. S. 393, 7 S. Ct. 911, 30 L. Ed. 1061, affirming judgment Caledonia Gold Min. Co. v. Noonan, 3 Dak. 189, 14 N. W. 426.

An executor charged with the administration of a charitable trust brought suit, together with the beneficiary, a corporation of which he was treasurer, to recover money due the trust estate. Held, that he should have sued alone, but, as no objection was made in the court below, the judgment might be amended so as to allow him to recover as executor, instead of as treasurer of the beneficiary corporation.—Hayes v. Pratt, 147 U. S. 557, 13 S. Ct. 503, 37 L. Ed. 279.

Where one who has excepted to a ruling of the court as to misjoinder of plaintiffs does not stand on such exception, but elects to dismiss as to all but one, he has waived his exception.—Campbell v. City of Haverhill, 155 U. S. 610, 15 S. Ct. 217, 39 L. Ed. 280.

By Const. Cal. 1862, art. 6, § 6, the district courts have original jurisdiction in all cases in equity; also in all cases at law which involve the title or possession of real property. Section 8, after conferring upon the county courts original jurisdiction in certain cases, provides that "the county judges shall also hold in their several counties probate courts, and perform such duties as probate judges as may be prescribed by law." Held, that a suit for partition among heirs, after distribution in the probate court defining their undivided interests, neither the title of the decedent nor the fact of heirship being disputed, is a matter which may be committed to probate courts according to the jurisdiction usually pertaining to them, and hence that the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. Cal. §§ 1581, 1634, 1665, 1666, 1668, 1675, et seq., conferring jurisdiction of partition in such cases upon probate courts, are not in conflict with the constitutional provisions as to the original jurisdiction of district courts.—Id.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. §§ 120-135.

A party asserting possession of real property under a tax title may obtain relief by intervention against proceedings in a partition suit which would cast a cloud upon his title after the bill has been dismissed as to him on the grounds of lack of jurisdiction, multifariousness, and laches, barring complainants from equitable relief against him. Decree, Roller v. Clarke, 19 App. D. C. 539, modified.—Clark v. Roller, 26 S. Ct. 141, 199 U. S. 541, 50 L. Ed. 300.

A partition suit in which a judgment has been entered naming the persons entitled to stated undivided interests and appointing commissioners is still pending within Comp. Laws N. M. 1897, § 3182, giving the right to intervene during the pendency of such suit, where the commissioners have reported that partition cannot be made and no further action has

§54. Pleading.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. §§ 143-182.

§55. — Bill, complaint, or petition.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. §§ 143-159, 182.

The fact that a petition for partition of the estate of a decedent is signed by the widow "as administratrix," the petition embracing her claim as widow and heir to a share in the estate, and containing a distinct prayer that partition be had between herself and the children, does not invalidate the proceedings, as being instituted by a person having no interest in the partition.—Robinson v. Fair, 128 U. S. 53, 9 S. Ct. 30, 32 L. Ed. 415.

§76. Determination as to mode of partition.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. §§ 211-225, 265-273.

§77. — Actual partition or sale.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. §§ 211-223.

Under Act Cong. Aug. 15, 1876, c. 297, § 2, providing that the court "may, if it satisfactorily appears" that the property cannot be divided without loss or injury, decree a sale thereof, and a division of the proceeds, it is unnecessary, in order to authorize a sale, to allege in the petition any special reasons for a sale rather than for a mere division.—Willard v. Willard, 145 U. S. 116, 12 S. Ct. 818, 38 L. Ed. 644.

§95. Final judgment or decree for actual partition, and enforcement thereof.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. §§ 300-316.

Where one entitled to a fee under a will is allotted a life estate with remainder to his children, but the conveyances inter partes made three days after do not follow the erroneous decree in this respect; and a bill is brought 12 years afterwards to perfect the partition by compelling conveyances in accordance with the erroneous decree, it is competent for the court to examine the equities of the title, and decree accordingly.—Gay v. Parpart, 106 U. S. 679, 1 S. Ct. 456, 27 L. Ed. 256.

§96. Conveyances on actual partition.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. §§ 317-321.

Where one entitled to a fee under a will is allotted only a life estate by the decree in partition, and the deeds between the parties, made three days thereafter, do not limit him to a life estate, he takes a fee.—Gay v. Parpart, 106 U. S. 679, 1 S. Ct. 456, 27 L. Ed. 256.

Partition in equity does not, of itself, divest parties of their title to their individual shares, and reinvest them with title to their separate allotments; but it is required to be perfected by conveyances pursuant to the decree.—Id.

§112. Final judgment on sale in partition, and enforcement thereof.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partit. §§ 419-423.

The omission of the names of the minor children from the order to show cause why there should not be a final settlement, distribution, and partition, did not affect the jurisdiction over the subject-matter and parties, where the petition and order appointing an attorney to represent the minors contained the names of all interested in the proceedings.—Robinson v. Fair, 128 U. S. 53, 9 S. Ct. 30, 32 L. Ed. 415.

I. THE RELATION.

Effect of adjudication in bankruptcy, see Bankruptcy, ¶100.

(A) CREATION AND REQUISITES.

¶3. Community of interest in property.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 13, 14.

An agreement between the owners of unimproved property and a builder, in consideration of his assistance in improving and marketing the property to give him an undivided third interest therein, creates a partnership as to the developing and marketing of the property.—Campbell v. Northwest Eckington Imp. Co., 33 S. Ct. 796, 229 U. S. 561, 57 L. Ed. 1330, reversing decree 36 App. D. C. 149.

¶4. Community of interest in profits and losses.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 15-23.

¶5. — In general.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 15, 16.

A single special venture, entered into by two persons on joint account, to purchase a tract of land and hold it for sale at a profit, each agreeing to pay one-half the purchase price and expenses, does not create a partnership in respect to the land, but merely makes them tenants in common.—Clark v. Sidway, 142 U. S. 682, 12 S. Ct. 327, 35 L. Ed. 1157.

¶17. Intent of parties.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 2.

The members of a firm agreed to admit A. into their business on condition that the firm should become incorporated, and that he should pay a certain sum into the firm for its use. The agreement further provided that no change should take place in the name or character of the firm until the formation of the corporation. Held, that a partnership was not contemplated, and that the payment of the agreed sum did not give A., prior to the formation of the corporation, an interest in the firm property.—Drennen v. London Assur. Corp., 113 U. S. 51, 5 S. Ct. 341, 28 L. Ed. 919, reversing (C. C.) 20 F. 657.

¶20. Creation of relation in general.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 6, 7; 32 Cent. Dig. Land. & Ten. § 11.

In a suit for an accounting, under articles of partnership, brought by the administrator of one of the parties against the executrix of the other, it appeared that the partnership was to continue for a certain time, unless dissolved by mutual consent; and that complainant's intestate had never complied with the terms of the agreement, but, shortly after its execution, had accepted a public office in a distant city, and absented himself, in the discharge of the duties thereof, until after the date of the expiration of the agreement, and on his return had made no attempt to enforce the same; and that a written agreement, executed by the partners shortly before the death of complainant's intestate, was inconsistent with any claim thereunder. Held, that the evidence showed that complainant's intestate regarded the agreement as never having gone into effect, or as having been canceled, and that the bill was properly dismissed.—Davis v. Key, 123 U. S. 79, 8 S. Ct. 55, 31 L. Ed. 112.

(B) AS TO THIRD PERSONS.

¶28. Creation of partnership as to third persons.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 30-35, 38-43.

¶30. — Sharing profits and losses.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 38-43.

S., a broker, engaged largely in discounting a peculiar class of securities, agreed with E. in writing, that the latter should furnish money with which S. should buy such securities. When purchased they were not to be mingled with other securities bought by S., but were to be placed in E.'s possession, and when due were to be exchanged for other similar securities, or for cash. They were to yield a specified profit to E., and S. was to retain all above that rate, and S. guaranteed their genuineness as well as the stipulated profit. E. was to hold possession of them to the extent of the money loaned, the profit, and an additional 2 per cent. to insure their prompt payment. A large business was carried on by S. with which E. neither had nor was supposed by creditors or others to have any connection, and their dealings with the securities so purchased were consistent with the agreement so made. Held, that E. was not a partner of S., so as to render the securities purchased with his funds liable for the debts of S. incurred in his general business.—Wilson v. Edmonds, 130 U. S. 472, 9 S. Ct. 563, 32 L. Ed. 1025.

The mere loaning of money to a partnership for a definite period, under an agreement that the debtor shall receive interest and also one-tenth of the excess in yearly profits over $10,000, which agreement is renewed for several successive years, does not make the lender liable as a partner.—Meehan v. Valentine, 145 U. S. 611, 12 S. Ct. 972, 36 L. Ed. 835, affirming judgment (C. C.) 29 F. 276.

¶33. Estoppel by holding out as partner.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 43-51.

¶35. — Acts and conduct constituting holding out.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 50.

In an action at law for breach of a contract for the construction and erection of machinery on a steamboat, one defense was that defendants were a corporation and contracted as such, and were sued as individuals on the theory of a partnership existing between them. It was shown that defendants held themselves out to plaintiff's agents as a partnership, had been partners up to a short time previous to the making of the contract in suit, had signed what purported to be a firm name to a portion of the correspondence out of which the contract had arisen, and that plaintiff had dealt with them under the belief that they were partners, and without knowledge or notice of the transformation of defendants' business from a partnership into a corporation. Held, that for the purposes of the action defendants were to be deemed partners.—McGowan v. American Pressed Tan Bark Co., 121 U. S. 575, 7 S. Ct. 1315, 30 L. Ed. 1027.

Where persons who are in fact members of a corporation negotiate a contract with a third person as partners, both by correspondence and interviews down to and including the time of signing the contract, they are estopped, in fact and law, when sued on such contract, to deny that as to the other contracting party they were partners in making the contract, in the absence of proof of notice to or knowledge by the other party of the existence of the incorporation.—Id.

¶37. — Knowledge and reliance of third person.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 37, 51.

A person who is not actually a partner, and who has no interest in the partnership, cannot, by reason of having held himself out to the world as a partner, be held liable as such on a contract made by the partnership with one who had no knowledge that he was so held out.—Thompson v. First Nat. Bank, of Toledo, Ohio, 111 U. S. 529, 4 S. Ct. 689, 28 L. Ed. 507.

(C) EVIDENCE.

[No paragraphs or references in this Digest. But see 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 61-81.]

(D) COMMENCEMENT AND DURATION.

658. Term fixed by agreement.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 83.

A partnership operating a hotel, thereafter leased to a partner for a specified term with option to purchase by implication, is to continue during the term of the lease.—Zimmerman v. Harding, 33 S. Ct. 887, 227 U. S. 489, 57 L. Ed. 608.

II. THE FIRM, ITS NAME, POWERS, AND PROPERTY.

65. Scope and extent of partnership in general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 82, 83½.

An agreement among the members of a real estate brokerage firm that any knowledge obtained by any members as to bargains in real estate should be communicated to the firm, with the view of giving it or its members the first opportunity of purchasing, before the individual could act thereon for his own benefit, does not enlarge the scope of the partnership business so as to include dealing in real estate for its own account, but, if of any legal force, is merely an agreement for a future partnership as to any particular piece of land, which by special consent might be jointly acquired.—Latta v. Kilbourn, 150 U. S. 524, 14 S. Ct. 201, 37 L. Ed. 1169, reversing decree Kilbourn v. Latta, 5 Mackey, 304, 60 Am. Rep. 373.

The use by a partnership of the words "real estate and note brokers" on their letter heads and office sign and in the city directory implies that they are engaged in negotiating the sale and purchase of real property for the account of others, rather than in buying and selling for the firm, and affords a presumptive limitation on the scope of the firm's business.—Id.

68. Partnership real estate.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 101-111.

Testator, who had been in partnership with his brother in a brick-making business, constituted his brother and his son his executors and trustees, directing them to continue the partnership business. Testator had also been engaged in some transactions apart from his brother, and just before his death his daughter heard a neighbor tell him that he would give him a deed for some lots. Several years afterwards this neighbor conveyed to the executors, for a nominal consideration, several lots from a square adjoining land owned by the partnership, to be held upon the trusts stated in the will. This square had been used by the partnership in the brick business. The trustees sold the lots thus received, and accounted to the legatees for only one-half the proceeds, for which they receipted in due form. Held, that under a bill filed 11 years after this distribution, and after both executors were dead, it would be presumed that this property was bought with partnership funds, and did not belong solely to the testator.—Hammond v. Hopkins, 143 U. S. 224, 12 S. Ct. 418, 36 L. Ed. 134.

69. Conversion of joint property into separate property.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 112, 113.

In an action against a partnership goods of the defendant in the possession of a third person were attached on the ground that the defendant was fraudulently disposing of all its property to defraud creditors. Such third person interpleaded, claiming the title to the goods under a mortgage from one of the partners, who owned the goods, as such partners represented the firm to have been dissolved. The court refused to instruct that if the firm was dissolved, and such partner took the stock with the consent of his copartner and was to be charged therewith, then, as between them, such partner would be the owner, and could make a valid mortgage of the same in his own name. Held, that the refusal of such instruction was error, since the charge presupposed good faith, and, if by a bona fide transfer the property became several property of one partner, the equities of the partners were extinguished.—Huiskamp v. Moline Wagon Co., 121 U. S. 310, 7 S. Ct. 899, 30 L. Ed. 971, reversing judgment (C.) Moline Wagon Co. v. Rummell, 14 F. 155.

III. MUTUAL RIGHTS, DUTIES, AND LIABILITIES OF PARTNERS.

Insurable interest in life of partner, see Insurance, 6116.

(A) FIRM PROPERTY AND BUSINESS.

Assignment for benefit of creditors as including firm or individual property, see Assignments for Benefit of Creditors, 629.
Mining partnerships, see Mines and Minerals, 699.

71. Construction of partnership articles in general.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 115, 116.

An agreement of a partnership nature was made between S. and two other parties, whereby he agreed to sell, and they agreed to buy from him, certain interests in designated railroad bonds, the purchase money for which interests was to be paid to him at a future date, and the bonds meanwhile were to remain in his hands as collateral security, with the privilege of selling them at any time, and applying the proceeds in payment of the sums so due him. The agreement, and a supplement to the same, further provided that the proceeds which might arise from a foreclosure or sale of the bonds "shall be considered as due to each party in proportion as the bonds and stock are now held, but may be held by S. as collateral security for the payment of the aforesaid sums, respectively." Held, that S. was empowered to sell the property as managing partner independently of his right as creditor; and that losses resulting from a sale were consequently to be borne by all parties.—Simonton v. Sibley, 122 U. S. 220, 7 S. Ct. 1351, 30 L. Ed. 1225.

76. Interests of partners in firm property.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 116, 124, 143.

An agreement stating that a firm composed of two members has "taken into partnership" a third person, and providing that their entire stock of merchandise shall be turned over to him, and sold under his supervision, in a specified new firm name; that he shall have entire control of the business, and shall open "a new set of books," showing the business of the "new concern"; that the merchandise turned over shall constitute the capital stock; that the profits and losses shall be shared among all three in certain proportions; and that "the partnership only pertains to that of merchandising, and has no connection" with outside business of the two original partners,—constitutes the third a joint owner, as a partner, of the stock of merchandise, though he put neither goods nor money into the concern.—Paul v. Cullum, 132 U. S. 539, 10 S. Ct. 151, 33 L. Ed. 430.

79. Control and conduct of firm business.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 127.

The obligation of one partner in possession of partnership property under a lease of the other's interest, to pay the taxes thereon to save it from sale, is not satisfied or discharged by the statement of the lessor that if the lessee paid the former's half of the taxes he would not allow it in payment of the rent.—Chapin v. Streeter, 124 U. S. 360, 8 S. Ct. 529, 31 L. Ed. 475.

83. Services and compensation.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 131.

Defendant held contracts for the purchase of land, and plaintiff advanced him money to complete the purchase under an agreement that legal title should be taken in defendant's name, and then conveyed to plaintiff by him; that defendant, after doing everything necessary to an advantageous sale of the land, the expense of which was to be borne by plaintiff in the first instance, should sell them, and retain a commission, depositing the balance in bank to plaintiff's credit, until the latter should be reimbursed for his advances; that sales were to be made at prices mutually agreed on by plaintiff and defendant, and all contracts made by the latter should require approval by the former; and that, when all advances were repaid with interest, the remainder of the property should belong three-fifths to plaintiff and two-fifths to defendant. Held, that the conveyance of the legal title to plaintiff, and the deposit of proceeds of sale to his credit, were intended only as security for his advances, and defendant retains an equitable interest in two-fifths of the property, subject to plaintiff's claim for reimbursement, which will not be defeated by his fraud or misconduct; but his fraudulent representations as to the value of the land and the purchase price will defeat his right to the stipulated commissions, whether the contract constituted him a partner of plaintiff in the venture or only an agent.—Shaeffer v. Blair, 149 U. S. 248, 13 S. Ct. 856, 37 L. Ed. 721, reversing decree (C. C.) Blair v. Shaeffer, 33 F. 218.

86. Interests in profits.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 134.

P. undertook, without any just cause, to exclude his partner, H. from an interest in a valuable contract, in which they were equally concerned, and to take in K. in his stead; and K., with knowledge of the facts, divided with P. H.'s share of the profits of the contract. Held, that H. was entitled to one-half of the profits of the contract.—Pearce v. Ham, 113 U. S. 585, 5 S. Ct. 676, 28 L. Ed. 1067.

Plaintiff and defendant formed a partnership for the purchase and sale of minerals and mining lands, and defendant was appointed agent of the firm, on a salary. He visited the West, and inspected several mines; his expenses being paid by the firm. After his return he consulted with plaintiff as to the purchase of shares in a mine, which required more money than the partnership had, and it was agreed between them that the money therefor should be obtained by defendant from a friend of defendant, if possible. The loan was so obtained, but it was agreed that, in case it should not be obtained, plaintiff would raise a sum nearly equal to one-half of that required for the purchase. The shares were purchased by defendant in his own name, which was customary; no property being purchased in the name of the firm. Held, that the purchase was made in the interest of the partnership, and that plaintiff was entitled to half the profits, after the repayment of the loan.—Kimberly v. Arms, 129 U. S. 512, 9 S. Ct. 355, 32 L. Ed. 764.

89. Lien of partner on firm property.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 137.

A lien in favor of the partner contributing the entire capital and necessary advances to a land partnership is created by a provision of the partnership agreement for the repayment of the whole sum advanced by him for the venture before any division of profits is declared, although some earlier provisions in the agreement treat the advance of a part of the capital as a loan to the other partner. Judgment (Ariz. 1906) 83 P. 463, reversed.—Smith v. Rainey, 28 S. Ct. 474, 209 U. S. 53, 52 L. Ed. 679.

(B) INDIVIDUAL TRANSACTIONS.

95. Purchase of copartner's interest in firm.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 142.

The managing partner of a mining venture made a complete contract to purchase the interest of an absent partner for a consideration suggested by the latter, and thereafter discovered a rich vein on the claim. He then secured a deed from the absent partner, in accordance with the contract, without informing him of this discovery. Held, that the absent partner could not maintain a bill in equity to set aside the deed.—Patrick v. Bowman, 149 U. S. 411, 13 S. Ct. 811, 866, 37 L. Ed. 790, reversing decree (C. C.) Bowman v. Patrick, 36 F. 133.

99. Engaging in other business.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 153.

The violation by a partner in a real estate firm of a stipulation that no member shall engage in buying and selling real estate on his own account, does not give to the other partners a right to share in the profits thus made.—Latta v. Kilbourn, 150 U. S. 524, 14 S. Ct. 201, 37 L. Ed. 1169, reversing decree (D. C.) Kilbourn v. Latta, 5 Mackey, 304, 60 Am. Rep. 373.

Profits made by a member of a firm through individual transactions outside the scope of the firm business do not belong to the firm, although he employs therein the skill and information acquired as a member of the firm.—Id.

(C) ACTIONS BETWEEN PARTNERS.

102, 103. Grounds of action and form of remedy.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 156-172.

105. — Breach of partnership agreement.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 163.

Whether or not a partnership for a definite time can be dissolved by one partner at his own will within that time, one who assumes so to do is liable in an action at law by his co-partner for the value of the profits which the latter would otherwise have received.—Karrick v. Hannaman, 18 S. Ct. 125, 168 U. S. 323, 42 L. Ed. 484.

112. Set-off and counterclaim.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 175.

A partnership is under a joint liability for the payment of taxes on partnership property, and where one partner is in possession under a lease of the other's interest it is the duty of the former to pay all taxes in default of the latter paying his share, and in an action by the latter for rent cannot set off the amount of rent paid to a purchaser at a tax sale of the latter's undivided half.—Chapin v. Streeter, 124 U. S. 360, 8 S. Ct. 529, 31 L. Ed. 475.

—118. Injunction.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 181.

Equity will not generally interfere at the suit of one partner to prevent a dissolution by the other partner before the time named in the partnership agreement.—Karrick v. Hannaman, 18 S. Ct. 135, 168 U. S. 323, 42 L. Ed. 484.

IV. RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES AS TO THIRD PERSONS.

(A) REPRESENTATION OF FIRM BY PARTNER.

—142. Mortgages or pledges.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 222-223.

An instruction that if "the partnership once existing had not been dissolved, and the property in question was partnership property, then a partner could not pay an individual debt with it, and a chattel mortgage given by one partner to secure his individual debt was void," held error, since a partner has the right, with the consent of his copartner, to appropriate the partnership property to the payment of his individual debts, provided the transaction is without intent to hinder or delay creditors of the partnership.—Huiskamp v. Moline Wagon Co., 121 U. S. 310, 7 S. Ct. 899, 30 L. Ed. 971, reversing judgment (C. C.) Moline Wagon Co. v. Rummell, 14 F. 155.

A deed of trust of partnership property to secure some creditors to the exclusion of others will bind the partnership, though executed by two only out of three partners.—Union Nat. Bank of Chicago v. Bank of Kansas City, 136 U. S. 223, 10 S. Ct. 1013, 34 L. Ed. 341.

The fact that the third partner had authorized his copartners to make an assignment, which was never executed, cannot affect the validity of the deed of trust.—Id.

Nor can the appointment of a receiver of the partnership property at the suit of one of the partners, commenced simultaneously with the execution of the deed of trust, transform the deed into an assignment.—Id.

Where a partner, who holds the legal title to an undivided part of land belonging to the firm, mortgages such part to secure the firm's notes and their renewals, with the knowledge of his copartner, who accepts the benefits of the renewals without objection, such mortgage is valid, and may be enforced as against such copartner and a purchaser of the whole tract at execution sale under a subsequent judgment against the firm and such copartner, who held the legal title to the other undivided part.—McGahan v. National Bank of Rondout, 156 U. S. 218, 15 S. Ct. 347, 39 L. Ed. 403.

—146. Negotiable instruments.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 242-251, 253-255; 10 Cent. Dig. Compromise, § 94.

A partnership organized "for the purpose of carrying on the business of sawing lumber, pickets, and lath" is "nontrading" in character, and an individual partner has no right, as a matter of law, to execute a note in the name of the firm without the knowledge of his copartners, in the absence of express authority, or a course of dealing from which such authority can be presumed.—Dowling v. National Exch. Bank of Boston, 145 U. S. 512, 12 S. Ct. 928, 36 L. Ed. 795, reversing judgment (C. C.) National Exch. Bank of Boston v. White, 30 F. 412.

—147. Guaranty or suretyship.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 256, 257.

The indorsement of a note, by one of several partners, in the partnership name, as surety for a third person, without the consent or knowledge of the other partners, will not bind the firm.—Bank of Fort Madison v. Alden, 129 U. S. 372, 9 S. Ct. 332, 32 L. Ed. 725.

—151. Assignment for benefit of creditors.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 267-271.

A power of attorney by which a member of a firm authorizes a copartner "to bargain and agree for, buy, sell, mortgage, hypothecate, and in any and every way and manner deal in and with, goods, wares, and merchandise, choses in action, and other property in possession or in action," authorizes such attorney to represent his principal in an assignment of the firm's property for the benefit of its creditors.—Paul v. Cullum, 132 U. S. 539, 10 S. Ct. 151, 33 L. Ed. 430.

—153. Wrongful acts.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 274-277.

If, in the conduct of partnership business, and with reference thereto, one partner makes false or fraudulent misrepresentations of fact, to the injury of innocent persons dealing with him, as representing the firm, and without notice of any limitations on his general authority as agent for the partnership, his partners cannot escape pecuniary responsibility therefor on the ground that the misrepresentations were made without their knowledge, especially where the firm appropriates the fruits of the fraudulent conduct of such partner; and they are not released from liability therefor by a discharge in bankruptcy, the debt having been created by "fraud," within the exception of Rev. St. U. S. § 5117.—Strang v. Bradner, 114 U. S. 555, 5 S. Ct. 1038, 29 L. Ed. 248.

—156. Estoppel of firm by acts or conduct of partner.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 281.

Where a claim is assigned to a third person by a firm which afterwards becomes bankrupt, and the assignee in bankruptcy assigns the claim to a member of the firm, such member is estopped to say that the first assignment is void as in fraud of the firm's creditors.—Crawford v. Halsey, 8 S. Ct. 641, 124 U. S. 648, 31 L. Ed. 572.

(B) NATURE AND EXTENT OF FIRM LIABILITIES.

[No paragraphs or references in this Digest. But see 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 301-307.]

(C) APPLICATION OF ASSETS TO LIABILITIES.

Preferred claims, in bankruptcy, see Bankruptcy, —351.

Right of trustee in bankruptcy, see Bankruptcy, —156.

—177. Assets of firm.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 310-336, 342.

—182. — Rights and liens of partners as creditors of firm.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 318.

Where three persons form a partnership, and agree to bear the losses and share the profits of the partnership venture in proportion to their contributions to its capital, and two of the partners furnish all the money and do all the work, they are entitled to be repaid their advances out of the assets before payment of the individual creditors of the partner who paid nothing and did nothing to promote the partnership business.—Hobbs v. McLean, 117 U. S. 567, 6 S. Ct. 870, 29 L. Ed. 940.

183. — Transactions by or between partners affecting rights of creditors.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 312, 319-336, 348.

Where a corporation, formed out of a pre-existing partnership, in consideration of becoming invested with all the partnership property, assumes the partnership liabilities, all partnership equities against the property are extinguished and debts due to the several partners cease to be a lien.—Franchlyn v. Sprague, 121 U. S. 215, 7 S. Ct. 951, 30 L. Ed. 936.

If, as between the members of a firm, goods mortgaged to an individual creditor of one of the partners were the mortgagor's goods, and the mortgage is taken in good faith, it is valid as against firm creditors, though they had no notice of the dissolution of the firm and division of the property.—Huiskamp v. Moline Wagon Co., 121 U. S. 310, 7 S. Ct. 899, 30 L. Ed. 971, reversing judgment (C. C.) Moline Wagon Co. v. Rummell, 14 F. 155.

(D) ACTIONS BY OR AGAINST FIRMS OR PARTNERS.

See Removal of Causes, 107.

Limitation of action, see Limitation of Actions, 155.

198. Parties.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 361-374.

199. — Firms or partners as plaintiffs.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 363-368.

Defendant made an agreement with "S. and such other parties as he may associate with him under the name of S. & Co." The agreement was signed and sealed by the defendant, and signed "S. & Co.," by the hand of S., acting in behalf and by authority of the partnership, and provided for payment to the said S. & Co., parties of the second part," for work to be done by them. Held that, in an action on the agreement, all those who were partners at the time of the signing of the agreement might join.—Seymour v. Western R. Co., 106 U. S. 320, 1 S. Ct. 123, 27 L. Ed. 103.

One partner cannot recover his share of a debt, due to the partnership in an action at law, prosecuted in his own name alone, against the debtor.—Vinal v. West Virginia Oil & Oil Land Co., 110 U. S. 215, 4 S. Ct. 4, 28 L. Ed. 124.

204. Process and appearance.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 376-381.

A partnership is not one of the associations referred to in Rev. St. 1895, art. 1223, authorizing service of process on any local agent of a "corporation, joint-stock company or association, or acting corporation or association."—In re Grossmayer, 20 S. Ct. 535, 177 U. S. 48, 44 L. Ed. 665.

218. Trial.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 49, 426-428.

It cannot be said as a matter of law that two persons holding themselves out as partners in the business of dealing in grain authorize each other to bind the firm by contracts for the purchase and sale of grain for future delivery. The scope of ostensible authority is a question for the jury.—Irwin v. Williar, 110 U. S. 499, 4 S. Ct. 160, 28 L. Ed. 225.

The question as to whether a nontrading firm is estopped from denying liability on a firm note made by one of the partners for his personal use, and without authority, is for the jury, since it depends on the facts indicating the nature and course of business in relation to such matters.—Dowling v. National Exch. Bank of Boston, 145 U. S. 512, 12 S. Ct. 928, 36 L. Ed. 795, reversing judgment (C. C.) National Exch. Bank of Boston v. White, 30 F. 412.

V. RETIREMENT AND ADMISSION OF PARTNERS.

Necessary parties in suit after change of partner, see Equity, 96.

Right of retiring partner to use of trade-mark, see Trade-Marks and Trade-Names, 36.

241. Liabilities of retiring partner for acts and obligations of continuing partner or new firm.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 479½, 480, 651, 652, 654, 657, 659, 665.

On the withdrawal from a partnership of one of its members, the others agreed to pay him a certain sum as his capital, all believing the firm to be solvent. The remaining members formed a new partnership, which, on its own responsibility, borrowed money on its notes from plaintiff and others, with which it paid part of the sum agreed on to the retiring partner, and some of the debts of the former firm, and soon afterwards failed. It then appeared that the old firm was insolvent at the time of dissolution, and the retiring partner discharged outstanding liabilities of the old firm exceeding in amount the sum received by him from the new firm. Held, that plaintiff could not maintain a bill in equity to charge the old firm and the retiring member with the money loaned by plaintiff to the new firm.—Penn Nat. Bank v. Furness, 114 U. S. 876, 5 S. Ct. 900, 29 L. Ed. 168.

VI. DEATH OF PARTNER, AND SURVIVING PARTNERS.

See Equity, 65.

Death of partner pending appeal, see Appeal and Error, 334.

Limitation of action by surviving partner, see Limitation of Actions, 127.

Partnership of attorneys, see Attorney and Client, 30.

245. Collection and disposition of assets.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 514-518.

The sole surviving partner of an insolvent firm has power to make an assignment of the partnership assets for the benefit of joint creditors, with preferences.—Emerson v. Senter, 118 U. S. 3, 6 S. Ct. 981, 30 L. Ed. 49.

246. Real property of firm.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 519-523.

A purchaser who colluded with an administrator of a deceased partner in the fraud by which a sale of partnership property was consummated takes the property with notice of the rights of the intestate's partner, and of the relation of trustee which the administrator bore to such partner.—Griffith v. Godey, 113 U. S. 89, 5 S. Ct. 383, 28 L. Ed. 934.

In equity, lands which are partnership property are liable for the debts of the partnership prior to any claim of the widow or heirs of a deceased partner; and a surviving partner has a right, if the firm is indebted to him, to hold such property until he is paid.—Clay v. Freeman, 118 U. S. 97, 6 S. Ct. 964, 30 L. Ed. 104.

249. Rights and liabilities of survivor as to estate of deceased.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 510, 529-535, 731.

Where a person has been induced by fraudulent representations, to enter into a partnership, equity has jurisdiction to rescind the contract at his instance, and put an end to it ab initio.—Oteri v. Scalzo, 145 U. S. 578, 12 S. Ct. 895, 36 L. Ed. 824.

255. Continuance of business of firm.

See 33 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 552-561.

The right of a firm creditor to be paid out of firm assets is not a lien, but only an equity derived from the equity of the partners that firm property shall be so used, and ceases, as to specific property, when it ceases to be firm assets. Therefore the fact that a surviving partner of an insolvent firm, continuing the business, procures a new stock upon his own credit, which he mingles with the assets of the late firm, appropriates a portion of such assets in good faith to the payment of his individual indebtedness, and borrows money to pay the debts of the firm, is not such a fraudulent preference as will sustain an attachment.—Fitzpatrick v. Flannagan, 106 U. S. 648, 1 S. Ct. 369, 27 L. Ed. 211; McGinty v. Same, 106 U. S. 661, 1 S. Ct. 380, 27 L. Ed. 215.

On the death of the owner of a half interest in a cotton plantation, his brother, who was his copartner, continued to manage the plantation because he in good faith believed that the property could not then be advantageously sold. The civil war breaking out, the slaves belonging to the estate ceased to be property, and the plantation itself greatly depreciated in value. Held, that the copartner was chargeable to his brother's heirs for the fair rental value of the property, including that of the slaves, as long as they remained slaves, but not for the value of the slaves themselves.—Clay v. Field, 138 U. S. 464, 11 S. Ct. 419, 34 L. Ed. 1044.

VII. DISSOLUTION, SETTLEMENT, AND ACCOUNTING.

Property vesting in assignee in insolvency; see Insolvency, Ⓒ-56.
Notice of action as denial of due process of law, see Constitutional Law, Ⓒ-309.

(A) CAUSES OF DISSOLUTION.

Ⓒ-263. Withdrawal of partner.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 600-602, 607.

The mandate of Civ. Code, Porto Rico, § 1607, that a dissolution of a firm shall occur at the will or withdrawal of one partner only where the duration is not fixed, is not confined to a case where one partner desires to turn over the business to the other.—Zimmerman v. Harding, 33 S. Ct. 387, 227 U. S. 489, 57 L. Ed. 608.

(B) RIGHTS, POWERS, AND LIABILITIES AFTER DISSOLUTION.

Ⓒ-282. Control and disposition of firm property.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 632, 638-641.

A partner who, after a dissolution, carries on the business with the firm property, is liable in equity, at the election of the other partner, to account for the profits.—Karrick v. Hannaman, 18 S. Ct. 135, 168 U. S. 328, 42 L. Ed. 484.

(C) DISTRIBUTION AND SETTLEMENT BETWEEN PARTNERS AND THEIR REPRESENTATIVES.

Limitation of action for accounting, see Limitation of Actions, Ⓒ-102.

Ⓒ-304. Repayment to partners of premiums or advances.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 701, 702.

A partner in a scheme to develop and market certain real estate should on accounting be credited with whatever has been properly expended for the common enterprise, whether of material benefit or not.—Campbell v. Northwest Eckington Imp. Co., 33 S. Ct. 796, 229 U. S. 561, 57 L. Ed. 1330, reversing decree 36 App. D. C. 149.

Ⓒ-305. Division of capital.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 702-706.

A partnership formed between S. and three others, for the purpose of dealing in real and personal property at St. Louis, Mo., and in the country north of that city, was afterwards dissolved by mutual consent; and the question in dispute, after all the partners had died, was as to the terms of the agreement of dissolution. The agreement was contained in a letter to S., which was alleged to have been lost, and in a reply from S. accepting the proposition contained in the letter to him. The executor of S. testified that S. should relinquish his claim to all the firm assets except certain land in Minnesota, which "should be retained by him absolutely," and was to be released from all firm liabilities. The firm also owned a trading post in Minnesota called the "Minnesota Outfit," the assets of which consisted principally of debts. The other parties alleged that it was agreed that S. should retain his interest in the "Outfit," but denied that he was to retain the Minnesota land. There had been other litigation between the parties, and the agreement sought to be established by the executor of S., as to the Minnesota land, had never been produced. Held, that a finding that S. should retain the Minnesota land free of charge was not sustained by the evidence.—Chouteau v. Barlow, 110 U. S. 238, 3 S. Ct. 620, 28 L. Ed. 132.

Ⓒ-311. Private accounting and settlement.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 718-725; 8 Cent. Dig. Can. of Inst. § 49.

The day after the dissolution of a partnership between plaintiff and defendant, defendant executed an instrument, agreeing to convey to plaintiff a half interest in all mining lands or claims or stocks in mining interests which defendant held, but excepted the interest claimed by him in a certain mine, stating that said interest should belong to him. The instrument was delivered to a third person, and was not shown to plaintiff till four months thereafter, when he wrote to defendant, protesting against the latter's claim, and stated that said interest belonged to them jointly, and that he would have half of it, if he was compelled to obtain it by legal proceedings. It was not shown that defendant received this letter, though it was mailed to his address. Held, that it would be presumed that he received it; and, in any event, there was no assent by plaintiff to defendant's claim.—Kimberly v. Arms, 129 U. S. 512, 9 S. Ct. 355, 32 L. Ed. 764.

Two partners, engaged in prosecuting claims against the government, had a partnership settlement. One had the more intimate knowledge of the business affairs, and the settlement was based upon his representation as to the value of the fees collected, and of the claims in their hands. Immediately after the settlement he left the city, turning over to the other a schedule, footed up, and showing in detail all the claims collected and on hand, together with the fees provided for. This schedule was in the latter's hands for nearly a month, during which time, and until his partner returned, he had entire charge of the firm's affairs; frequently referring to, and making entries upon, said schedule. Held, that he must have known the amount of claims on hand, and all fees coming to the firm, at the time of the settlement, or shortly thereafter.—Baker v. Cummings, 18 S. Ct. 367, 169 U. S. 189, 42 L. Ed. 711.

(D) ACTIONS FOR DISSOLUTION AND ACCOUNTING.

Acknowledgment of debt barred by limitations, see Limitation of Actions, Ⓒ-143.

Joinder on appeal, see Appeal and Error, 325.
 Summon and severance on appeal, see Appeal and Error, 324.

318. Form of remedy.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 735-738.

In a suit to rescind a contract of partnership, where there is a failure to show either fraudulent inducements to enter into the partnership in the first instance, or any subsequent scheme to defraud in the course of the business, or any misconduct occasioning loss to such partner, the return of the capital originally invested by him will not be decreed because of mere irregularities or unauthorized acts, and the proper remedy is an accounting.—Oteri v. Scalzo, 145 U. S. 578, 12 S. Ct. 895, 36 L. Ed. 824.

321. Time to sue, limitations, and laches.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 742-745.

While a lapse of 18 years would ordinarily bar a suit for an account of partnership transactions, yet where a surviving partner, to whom the firm is indebted, holds the partnership property, he has a right to hold it until it is paid, whether he be barred from suing on his claim or not.—Clay v. Freeman, 118 U. S. 97, 6 S. Ct. 964, 30 L. Ed. 104.

327. Pleading.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 769-778.

A bill by one partner against another charged fraudulent and unauthorized acts, and prayed for a decree declaring the partnership dissolved ab initio, for the return of plaintiff's capital with interest, and for general relief, but there was no prayer in the alternative for an accounting. Held, that an accounting might nevertheless be granted under the prayer for general relief, where the evidence warranted the same, but did not warrant the specific relief asked, as this would be conformable to the case made by the bill.—Oteri v. Scalzo, 145 U. S. 578, 12 S. Ct. 895, 36 L. Ed. 824.

328. Evidence.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 779-781.

In an action to charge a surviving partner with the rent of a plantation owned by the firm, where some witnesses testify that during the first year of the war the land was worth $10 per acre rent, one witness fixes the amount at $5 per acre, and another says that it was nothing, a rent of $5 per acre is as much as should be charged.—Clay v. Field, 138 U. S. 464, 11 S. Ct. 419, 34 L. Ed. 1044.

333. Charges and credits.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 792-796.

A partner permitted by the court to continue the business during a dissolution suit after refusing to appoint a receiver on application of the other partner is accountable for the latter's share in the profits made up to the time of the decree of the dissolution.—Zimmerman v. Harding, 33 S. Ct. 387, 227 U. S. 489, 57 L. Ed. 608.

A partner assuming the right to carry on the business may be called to account for the share of the other partner in the joint property and may be required to account for the profits which the other partner had been prevented from making by wrongful exclusion from the business.—Id.

340. Sale or other disposition of property.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 803-808.

Where defendants, by their answer to a bill for dissolution of a partnership, consent to the dissolution, the court may proceed to a distribution of the assets without a formal decree of dissolution, and without proof of the special grounds set out in the bill.—Burns v. Rosenstein, 135 U. S. 449, 10 S. Ct. 817, 34 L. Ed. 193.

VIII. LIMITED PARTNERSHIP.

Assignment for benefit of creditors, see Assignments for Benefit of Creditors, 27, 177.
 Jurisdiction of federal courts, see Courts, 315.

362. Failure to comply with statutory requirements.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 842.

The fact that a special partner fails to comply with the statutory requirements does not change his special partnership into a general one, but simply makes him liable to creditors as a general partner.—Abendroth v. Van Dolsen, 131 U. S. 66, 9 S. Ct. 619, 33 L. Ed. 57.

365. Estoppel to allege or deny partnership.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 845.

Where a certificate of the formation of a limited partnership is made, certified, and recorded as required by Rev. St. Tex. arts. 3446-3448, and publication is made under article 3450, which provides that, unless the partners shall publish "the terms" of the partnership in a newspaper, it shall be deemed a general partnership, the creditors of the partnership so formed, who have dealt with it, and recognized it as a limited partnership, are estopped to claim that it is general because the publication failed to state its terms.—Tracy v. Tuffy, 134 U. S. 206, 10 S. Ct. 527, 33 L. Ed. 879.

373. Conveyances on or in contemplation of insolvency.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. § 850.

Under Rev. St. Tex. arts. 3444, 3455, providing that, in limited partnerships, "the general partners only shall be authorized to transact business and sign for the partnership, and to bind the same," and that "suits in relation to the business of the partnership may be brought and conducted by and against the general partners, in the same manner as if there were no special partners," the general partner can in his own name, without being joined by the special partner, execute an assignment for the benefit of the partnership creditors.—Tracy v. Tuffy, 134 U. S. 206, 10 S. Ct. 527, 33 L. Ed. 879.

375. Actions by or against firms or partners.

See 38 Cent. Dig. Partners. §§ 852-861.

The pendency of bankruptcy proceedings against the general members of a firm cannot be pleaded under Rev. St. § 5106, in abatement of an action by creditors to enforce the statutory liability of a special partner who was not a party to the bankruptcy proceedings.—Abendroth v. Van Dolsen, 131 U. S. 66, 9 S. Ct. 619, 33 L. Ed. 57.

A certain process for preserving beer consists, not only in applying an apparatus to the cask at some period of the kraeusen stage of the beer, but, further, in this: that when the beer has been put into the casks and the kraeusen beer is added to it, and the apparatus is applied, at the beginning of the kraeusen stage, the beer will be kept under a controllable pressure of carbonic acid gas until such time as it is fit to be transferred to the kegs for market, such pressure resulting in the complete and speedy clarification of the beer, although it is in a state of active fermentation in the closed shavings casks, with the incidental results of no loss of beer, no fouling of the casks or the cellar, no alteration of the flavor of the beer, and no danger to the health of the workmen. Held, that this was a true and patentable process.—New Process Fermentation Co. v. Maus, 122 U. S. 413, 7 S. Ct. 1304, 30 L. Ed. 1103, reversing decree (C. C.) 20 F. 725.

Prior to March 7, 1876, the date of letters No. 174,465, to A. G. Bell, for "improvements in telegraphy," it had long been believed by those experienced in the art that, if the vibrations of air caused by the voice in speaking could be reproduced at a distance by means of electricity, the speech itself would be reproduced and understood. Bell discovered that these vibrations could be electrically reproduced by gradually changing the intensity of a continuous current so as to make it correspond exactly to the changes in the density of the air caused by the human voice. He then devised a way in which these changes of intensity could be made, and speech actually transmitted. Held, that discovery in finding this art, and invention in devising the means of making it useful, were both involved, and that the patent was properly issued, under Rev. St. U. S. § 4886 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3382], providing that any person who has invented or discovered any new and useful art may obtain a patent therefor.—Dolbear v. American Bell Tel. Co., 126 U. S. 1, 8 S. Ct. 778, 31 L. Ed. 863.

Processes of manufacture which involve chemical or other similar elemental action are, in general, patentable, though mechanism may be necessary in carrying out such processes; but a valid patent cannot be obtained for a process which involves nothing more than the operation of a piece of mechanism, or, in other words, for the function of a machine. Held,
